CLEVER grilling by Detectives King and Oaks of the Los Angeles police department, assisted by Detectives Ryland and Miller of a private agency, has wrung from Charles E. Light and Alfred L. Sells, who are under arrest for the sensational hold-up and robbery at the residence of Fred Harlow, the cafe owner, last December, amazing confessions which are expected to solve many of the mysterious crimes committed in California during the past few months. Among them is the shocking murder of Jacob Vogel, a wealthy old banker, and his wife, Elsie, in their home at Redondo on the night of February 11. The hold-up of the Lark, a fast Southern Pacific train, at Burbank

PHILADELPHIA AWAKE AGAIN.

And Why? Because a Girl has on the Trouser Skirt.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—The trouser skirt made its public appearance here today. Traffic stopped and Chestnut street gasped this afternoon when a bewitching young woman hailed a trolley car at Broad street, lifted her abbreviated overskirt, displayed her elongated "panties" and negotiated the high step of the vehicle with ease and grace. Department store officials and modistes here were surprised at the commotion made by the appearance of the "pantie" costume. "Its simply the new fashion, and there will be dozens on the streets before Easter," they ventured.

last fall, when twoscore passengers were relieved of their money and jewelry, is expected to be traced to the two prisoners as well as numerous day and night burglaries in Sacramento, San Jose, Oakland, San Diego and other cities on the Coast.

How they planned to murder Francis J. Heney a few months ago, when announcement was made that he would probably conduct the prosecution of gamblers and other thugs in Oakland, was freely confessed by both men. They did not kill Mr. Heney, both admitted, because the men who wanted to get him out of the way failed to put up $2000 for the murder.

Sells declared their first job together was a theft of $500 from the Standard Oil Company in Oakland.

Sligh and Sells occupy different cells at the City Jail and since the arrest of Sells last week in Oakland neither was allowed to communicate with the other until yesterday, when Sells told the detectives he would like to face Sligh just to let him know that he

SUMMARY.

THE SKY. Cloudy. Wind at 5 p.m., northerly; velocity, 8 miles. Thermometer, highest, 69 degrees; lowest, 47 degrees. Forecast: Increasing cloudiness Sunday. For complete weather report see last page, Part I.

THE CITY. Matthew A. Schmidt and David Caplan, last of the labor-union officials indicted for dynamiting the original Times Building and murder-

The U. S. Reclamation Service and private persons have been carving farms from the California desert at a rate of four a day.

A temporizing "jitney" bus ordinance was passed by the City Council with apologies.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. A large tract of the Baldwin estate is to be made a high-class suburb of Pasadena.

PACIFIC SLOPE. The discovery of the remains of a three-toed horse, the missing link in the evolution of that quadruped, was announced in the North.

GENERAL EASTERN. It is charged from German sources that Stegler, arrested for attempting to secure an American passport by fraud, is in the employ of the British.

WASHINGTON. At a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington it was stated that the Rock Island railroad is in good physical condition.

MEXICO. Another uprising has been reported in Yucatan and it is said the Carranza troops are being driven from the State.

Gen. Obregon has considerably modified his decree imposing a heavy tax on the rich in Mexico City.

Decision of the triple entente to stop the shipment of all food to the Germans, Austrians and Turks.

Seizure of the Dacia by the French.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

The Triple Entente has decided to stop the shipment of all food to Germany, Austria and Turkey, and to starve the civilian as well as the military population of those nations if it can. The American steamship Dacia has been seized by the French fleet. These are the two great outstanding facts in the war news last night calculated to cause a profound impression in the United States. The progress of the allied fleet through the Dardanelles and the offensive of the French in the Champagne district are mere incidents of the great war.

A new uprising in Yucatan against the Carranza people and the modification of Obregon's tax decrees in Mexico City are the essentials of the Mexican situation for one day.

Atlantic Trip is Now Twice Hazardous.

BY WILL IRWIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ON BOARD THE LUSITANIA, Feb. 15.—Three times since this war began I have sailed from New York for the disturbed continent, and each time, as the panorama of the New York skyscrapers faded from view, I have experienced the same queer sense of an overturn in civilization. From the time of Columbus to times within our own memory, the westward voyager has felt that he was leaving security, regularity, civilization for a measure, at least, of peril, irregularity and barbarism. Now the shoe is on the other foot. Back there people are living their own lives in their own chosen way, under guard of the police. Over yonder are tears and anxieties and partings and losses. No one smiles, no one laughs naturally, the mist of disaster hangs over everything. The tide of civilization has turned, it is flowing now from west to east.

The "state of war" begins, in fact, at the pier. This was no common sailing of an Atlantic liner; any one could see that with half an eye. There was much excitement in the crowd which came to bid us goodby, much emotion expressed and suppressed. Wives clung emotionally to their husbands; a few women, blinded by their tears, refused to wait to see us off, but ran away down the pier before the deck hands drew in the gang plank. When, finally, the shores of America faded away in the mist, we came upon our first sign of real war—the British cruisers which for four months have stood at anchor just outside the neutral zone, monotonously waiting for something to happen. We always bestow a little sympathy, in passing, on the crew of the Essex.

THE PATIENT PATROL.

All this winter they have done nothing but patrol—the most monotonous, nerve-tearing work known to the service—and all that time they have looked over at the magic lights of New York, with its lobster palaces, its Eighth-avenue dances, its beer gardens and its girls. They might as well be patrolling in the North Sea, for all the good they get out of New York.

The war is settling down to its pace, the "piker" sails the seas no more. This is a passenger list of old, experienced voyagers. It had been a rough passage—no worse, probably, than any other February passage, but no winter trip on the Atlantic is very comfortable. Besides, the Lusitania is loaded with certain mysterious and very heavy contraptions of steel which she was not built to carry, and she has rolled miserably in the winter gale. Nevertheless, the dining-saloon and smoking-rooms have been almost as well filled in the rough days as in the smooth. These are people who got over the habit of seasickness long ago. There is the regular delegation of American buyers, over to get the advance spring styles from Paris. Most of them will not cross the channel this season; the Parisian dressmakers will move their stocks over to London and meet them half way. There are at least a dozen gentlemen, American and foreign, concerned in furnishing the allies with munitions and clothing. There is a delegation of young and adventurous Americans billeted to our hospital at Paris; they are going to drive motor ambulances from the front to the base hospitals.

There is Mary Garden, going over to be a nurse. Elsie Janis, Joe Coyne and Frank Belcher are going to fill theatrical engagements, just as though there were no war in England. Ernest Thompson Seton is on a lecture tour. He had supposed that his winter engagement was off, until he communicated with his manager in London. They spurned the idea that Great Britain was letting the war interfere with anything.

LAFE YOUNG'S MISSION.

Ex-Senator Lafe Young of "The Des Moines Capital," is going over at the age of 66 to be his own war correspondent. The other newspaper men aboard tell him that this business of sending cub reporters to a great war has got to stop. George Doran, the publisher, is on his way to see why the British authors are not writing. Mark Sullivan, editor of "Collier's," is trying to inform himself first hand on the European situation. George Tyler will look over the theatrical situation. Dr. Crozier of Winnipeg, veteran of the Boer War, finding himself too old for any more fighting, will go to the front as an army surgeon. W. D. Boyce, the Chicago newspaper publisher, is on his way to Petrograd, not so much be-

The nature of the defenses with which the Turk in Europe has surrounded himself may be obtained by a study of the above pictures. The one shows a cross section of the fortifications around the city of Constantinople, the residence of the Sultan, the spiritual head of the Mohammedan world. The other picture is a snapshot of the forts in the Dardanelles. The English and French fleets have reduced the outer forts in the Dardanelles and are now hammering away at the inner forts.

CHINESE DECLARE A BOYCOTT ON PACIFIC COAST JAPANESE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—A Chinese boycott on all Japanese industries and business houses as a form of retaliation, it is said, against the demands made on the Chinese government by Japan, has been started in this city and word of the action taken has been sent broadcast throughout the region under the jurisdiction of the Chinese Six Companies, which includes all the States west of the Rocky Mountains and as far south as the Mexican border, according to a statement made tonight by John L. McNab, counsel for the Six Companies.

The legal phases of the boycott, McNab said, had been gone into carefully by representative Chinese merchants, who, when assured of the legality of their course, took immediate steps to notify their countrymen to refrain from patronizing all things Japanese. Printed literature, advertisements in Chinese papers and other methods of communication will be used by the Six Companies in spreading their propaganda, which, it is understood, will be in the form of a patriotic appeal.

In a quiet way, the boycott was started in various Pacific Coast cities this week on the understanding that sanction soon was to be given to the movement.

San Francisco merchants say that Japanese goods, so far as Chinese trade in this city is concerned, are already a glut on the market. All the big Chinatown mercantile stores have ceased handling Japanese-made goods, and no form of Japanese custom or trade is recognized or patronized by the Chinese.

Yashtaro Numano, Japanese Consul General here, denied tonight a statement by Fresno Japanese that a meeting was to be called in San Francisco early next week to bring about an understanding between the Chinese and Japanese races.

"As to the boycott," said the Consul General, "I can see nothing in the

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Feb. 27, 6:50 p.m.—Great Britain, France and their allies have advised neutral countries that they hold themselves at liberty to stop all shipping to and from Germany and the countries of her allies.

Public announcement of this action will be made early next week, probably Monday. The text of the declaration will set forth that this decision is necessary because of German submarine attacks, but that Great Britain and France will respect the lives of crews and passengers in any steps they may take.

The declaration is not a reply to the American representations looking to a cessation of German submarine activity and the admission of food to Germany for civilians. The declaration will not affect cargoes shipped before the date of this advice to neutrals. The exact date carried by the declaration has not been announced, but it is probably February 26 or 27.

No special articles of commerce will be mentioned in the British-French declaration. Cotton and foodstuffs, for example, will not be specified, but the terms will be general. The situation created will be entirely justified, according to the English view, because of Germany's unprecedented action in attempting a submarine blockade, regardless of danger to the crews and passengers of ships.

Shipping in the Baltic will not be affected except as Great Britain and her allies prevent supplies from entering Norway, Sweden and Denmark for re-exportation to Germany. Holland, by making its prohibited export list conform with the British contraband list and by the creation of The Netherlands interseas trust—to which virtually all cargoes entering Holland are now consigned with the government guarantee that they will not be exported to Germany—has put its shipping in a position which will be affected little by the declaration.

It is believed here that the Scandinavian countries doubtless will take similar action to insure continuation of supplies from America and elsewhere for home use. While Denmark, Sweden and Norway have repeatedly modified the lists of prohibited exports, their regulations for the prevention of re-exportation apparently have been unsatisfactory to Great Britain, or the administration of the regulations has been unsatisfactory, as cargoes have not moved to the Scandinavian countries with the same freedom as to Holland.

INNER FORTS ATTACKED; SULTAN READY TO FLEE.

"Take Constantinople," is Order to the Greatest Fleet Ever in Action.

More Difficult Work Ahead of the Allied Squadron in the Narrows of the Dardanelles — Waters Swept of Mines in Preparation for the Assault — One British Dreadnaught Hit by the Turks.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Feb. 28, 3:30 a.m.—"There is a panic in Constantinople, and many inhabitants are leaving," says the Athens correspondent of the Weekly Dispatch. "Internal troubles are imminent. The Cabinet has decided to transfer the seat of government to Broussa, Asia Minor."

LONDON, Feb. 27.—After having completed the destruction of the forts at the entrance of the Dardanelles, the allied fleet of British and French warships, the greatest which has ever been in action, is now attacking the inner forts, which heretofore have stood between Turkey and invasion by the sea.

Apparently the outer forts could not withstand a great bombardment, and when they had been leveled and deserted by their defenders, men were landed from the ships to complete the work of demolition, while mine sweepers cleared a passage for ships in the straits.

More serious work is now ahead, for the all-important fortifications are at Kilid Bahr and Chanak, which guard the narrowest part of the straits, which the fleet is now approaching. There is no doubt, however, that the allied commanders have instructions to make their way to Gonstantinople in spite of obstacles and have been supplied with the best means for carrying out these orders.

A complete list of the ships engaged is not available, but reports from Athens and other points say that twenty large vessels are taking part, and the report issued tonight by the British Admiralty up to Friday night mentions no less than ten of these. Previous reports mentioned others that were not engaged on Thursday or Friday, the period covered by the Admiralty statement.

At the head of the fleet is the Queen Elizabeth, one of England's latest superdreadnaughts, which has been commissioned since the war began and which mounts eight fifteen-inch guns. The Queen Elizabeth took part in the bombardment, so that for the first time these monster weapons had been used, and according to the Admiralty report, they did their work "with great accuracy."

Other ships which assisted in silencing the outer forts were the British battleship Agamemnon, which was struck by a Turkish shell and had three men killed and five wounded; the British battleships Irresistible, Vengeance, Cornwallis, Albion and Majestic, each of which carries four twelve-inch guns, and the Triumph, which has four ten-inch guns, and the French battleships Gaulois, Suffren Charlemagne, each of which carries four twelve-inch guns.

Other vessels, including the French battleship Bouvet and one or two British battle cruisers, are in the vicinity, to render assistance should it be required.

Fort Dardanus, which the ships attacked Friday after the entrance to the straits had been swept of mines, is not far from the narrows, and it is probable that the big and more important attack has begun by this time.

Reports from neutral Balkan states say that the residents of the islands in the Sea of Marmora have been ordered to evacuate their homes and that an imperial train is waiting to take the Sultan to Asia Minor.

So far as Great Britain is concerned, however, the most important immediate result of the initial success is the reduction which it has brought in the price of bread, which has dropped two shillings a quarter.

ADMIRALTY STATEMENT.

The Admiralty statement follows:

"The entrance to the Dardanelles was guarded by four principal forts, namely, Cape Helles battery, Fort Seddul Bahr, Fort Orkhanieh Tabia and Fort Kum Kalosi Tabia, which will be described for convenience as A, B, C and D. These forts were armed as follows:

A—Two 9.2 guns.
B—Six 10.2 guns.
C—Two 9.2 guns.
D—Four 10.2 and two 5.9 guns.

"The weather having improved although the wind was still from the southwest, the attack on these forts was resumed Thursday morning, February 25, at 10 o'clock.

"The Queen Elizabeth, Agamemnon, Irresistible and Gaulois began by deliberately bombarding forts A, B, C and D, respectively, at long range.

"Fort A rallied. One shell at 11,000 yards hit the Agamemnon, killing three and seriously wounding five. The Irresistible and Gaulois made excellent practice on Forts C and D, while the Queen Elizabeth concentrated with great accuracy on Fort A, putting both of its guns out of action by about 11:30 a.m.

"The Vengeance and Cornwallis then ran in under cover of long-range fire and engaged Fort A at close range. The reduction of Fort A was completed while Forts C and D opened a very slow and inaccurate fire.

"The Suffren and Charlemagne next delivered an attack on Forts C and D, advancing to within 2000 yards of them. It was then seen that they were in no condition to offer an effective resistance.

"The Vengeance, Triumph and Albion were then ordered in to complete the reduction of the forts. All four were reduced by 5:15 p.m.

"Sweeping operations, covered by a division of battleships and destroyers, were immediately begun. The enemy set fire to a village at the entrance as darkness fell.

"A report also has been received of the operations of February 26. The straits had been swept up to four miles from the entrance. The Albion and Majestic, supported by the Vengeance, proceeded to the limit of the swept area and began an attack on a fort and some new batteries on the Asiatic shore. The fire in reply was ineffective.

"After being shelled from inside the straits, the enemy retired from the forts at the entrance and, during the afternoon, demolishing parties were landed at Kum Kale and

"A BLACKMAIL OFFER," SAYS LONDON TIMES.

Thunderer So Characterizes the German Proposals for an Open Sea.

Note Transmitted by President Wilson is Answered in Advance by the So-called Mouthpiece of British Public Opinion — "Yield to no Demand Accompanied by a Threat."

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Of President Wilson's proposals, the London Times says editorially:

"Our Washington correspondent has told us something about the informal proposals said to have been transmitted by the United States to London and Berlin. They arose out of the German suggestion that Germany would cease to sink at sight English and neutral merchant ships within the war zone, if England would refrain from seizing foodstuffs and certain other commodities consigned to Germany in neutral ships. A consideration of the character of this offer shows that in no conceivable circumstance ought we to entertain it. Intelligent Americans have seen at once that this is clearly a blackmailing offer. Its acceptance would be recognition upon our part that the threat, under which the offer is made, was effective. It would be an admission by England that she had lost command of her own home waters and that her navy was helpless before the German submarines.

"That is an admission which the most elementary considerations of self-respect and of self-interest forbid us to consider. With what regard for our honor could we, the greatest of naval powers, brook dictation by Germany as to the manner in which we shall conduct a maritime war? The mere fact that the German protest against our exercise of our sea power has been accompanied by a deliberate effort to blackmail us makes it impossible that we should entertain it. Be the merits or demerits of a demand made upon England by an enemy what they may, she cannot listen to it when it couples with it a menace.

"If Germany were to extort an unmolested passage for foodstuffs by threatening us with her torpedoes, why should she not order us to renounce the use of high explosives under threat of massacring her British prisoners? The nation and the government have the strongest respect for American interests and American feeling. They have done much to satisfy both, and wherever vital considerations of a military order so permit they will gladly do more, but they cannot and will not submit to German blackmail or yield one inch of their full rights in deference to a menace and they know, or think they know, that America will feel in this that they do well."

AWAITING A REPLY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—No word came from either Great Britain or Germany today concerning their attitude on the American government's proposals for the removal of mines, the abandonment of submarine warfare on merchant ships and the shipment of foodstuffs to the civilian population of belligerents.

Both sides were understood still to be considering the Washington administration's suggestions. Replies were not expected for two or three days. From the press reports of England's plans for reprisals which were decided on before the American proposals arrived, officials did not draw much encouragement for the success of their plan. They are hopeful, however, that if an acceptance of all the proposals is not possible now there at least will be an acquiescence by all the belligerents in the suggestion that mines be removed from the high seas except those directly guarding coast defenses and harbors.

Inquiry as to the form of the Washington government's latest diplomatic correspondence with the belligerents over the war zone problems brought the information from reliable sources today that the communication sent identically to Great Britain and Germany was of an informal character with a suggestion of three articles which might be the basis for a "modus vivendi," technically known among diplomatic papers as an exchange of notes and regarded as a temporary agreement designed to cover an emergency situation until the points at issue usually can be further deliberated upon.

The suggested articles which might become the "modus vivendi" cover a plan, the details of which are not worked out in the notes, for the supervision by agencies certified to by the United States government of the distribution of imported foodstuffs to the civilian population of belligerents. The other two articles deal with the removal of floating mines and the abandonment of submarine attacks on merchant vessels. The text is comparatively brief.

AMERICAN STEAMER DACIA A PRIZE OF THE FRENCH.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Feb. 28, 1:50 a.m.—A French cruiser has arrested the American steamer Dacia in the channel and taken her to Brest. This announcement is officially made.

The steamship Dacia left Galveston for Rotterdam January 31 with 11,000 bales of cotton, to be transshipped to Bremen. It was fully expected at that time that the ship would be seized on her way to Rotterdam, as Great Britain questioned the validity of the recent transfer of the Dacia from German to American registry. The Dacia touched at Norfolk February 11 and proceeded.

The Dacia was formerly a Hamburg-American freight steamship, which had been used before the war in trade with Bremen and New Orleans and other gulf ports. At the outbreak of hostilities she was interned at Port Arthur, Tex. On December 24 the Dacia was purchased by an American, and on January 4 American registry was obtained. It was then announced that she was to be used to relieve the cotton congestion, and loading was begun with a cargo of cotton to be taken to Rotterdam and thence shipped to Bremen, where it was already sold.

BERNHARDT RECOVERING.

PARIS, Feb. 27, 2:30 p.m.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt is making normal progress toward recovery, according to a dispatch received here today from Bordeaux. The famous French actress has been in a Bordeaux hospital for nearly a week, getting over the effects of the amputation of her right leg.

ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS EXPECT GERMANS TO WIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 27.—Capt. F. B. Nelson, U.S.A., for two months military observer with the staff of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, upon his return to the United States last week, said:

"The stories from Petrograd about brilliant Russian bayonet charge and breaking down of the German offensive are pure fiction. I witnessed the Russians in action and they simply would not stand up under German charges.

"The Germans in the trenches have the habit of tossing notes, tied to stones, over into the Russian trenches, inviting them to come across and get some cigarettes and hot food. And the invitation never passes unheeded; at night the Russians come in squads of tens and dozens and beg to be made prisoners.

"The Germans marveled at the accuracy and effectiveness of the Russian artillery fire until they discovered that a large number of French artillerists had gone over to the Russian forces and were handling many of their guns.

"I predict the absolute defeat of Russia by Germany, nor do I think it will be long delayed. The Germans at present are counting only on holding their lines in the west until they bring Russia to terms."

Francis T. Bowles, former rear-admiral of the United States navy and former head of the Bureau of Construction of the Navy Department, made this statement when he arrived from Germany:

"I am confident that Germany will be the victor in the European war."

"What effect will the submarine have now upon warfare?" he was asked.

"I think it will materially modify the tactics of modern warfare," he replied.

"Is it likely to decrease the importance of a battle fleet?"

"No, it certainly will not decrease the importance, the value or the necessity of the battle fleet. The war has fully demonstrated the value of the battle cruiser, as it has the value of the submarine. Our navy neglected an important feature in its development when it failed in 1902 and 1903 to continue its policy of building battle cruisers."

On the subject of the effect of the present war upon the United States navy, Bowles said:

"The result of this war will mean the development of our navy along a more rounded basis. One thing surely has been demonstrated, and that is the value and importance of gunfire have not in the least been diminished."

Tearing things to pieces.

Inner Forts Attacked.

Seddul Bahr (Sedd-el-Bahr) from the Vengeance and Irresistible. Forts A, B and C were then completely and Fort D was partially demolished.

"The enemy encountered in Kum Kale were driven out over the Menderе bridge, which was partially destroyed. Two new four-inch guns, concealed near the tomb of Achilles, were also destroyed, and four Nordenfelts covering the entrance were destroyed. Our casualties on the 26th were one killed and three wounded."

The Turkish army headquarters in Constantinople announced yesterday that one ship of the Agamemnon type and two other armored vessels were damaged by the fire from the forts on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles.

The Agamemnon, a vessel of 16,500 tons displacement, was laid down in 1905. Her complement is 885 men. She is 435 feet long and has a main battery of four twelve-inch guns.

FROM CONSTANTINOPLE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 27 (via London.)—At the War Office today the following statement was issued:

"After being subjected for seven hours last Wednesday to bombardment by heavy guns, the outer forts of the Dardanelles were damaged at some points, but we had only five killed and fourteen wounded. The enemy's fleet resumed bombardment today, but in the afternoon retreated out of range of our batteries at Sedd-el-Bahr.

"Some hundreds of soldiers who landed from French cruisers on the coast at Aka-bah (Arabia) were compelled to flee to their ships with heavy losses, after a two-hours' battle. Despite the severity of cannon and machine gun fire, we had only three killed and three wounded."

SOFIA REPORT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Feb. 27.—It is reported from Sofia, Bulgaria, that the Turkish forces manning the fortifications at the Dardanelles suffered heavy losses during the bombardment by the Anglo-French fleet. Reuter's Sofia correspondent says that according to credible information which he has obtained, about 600 wounded Turkish soldiers were taken from the Dardanelles forts to Constantinople after the bombardment of February 19.

SHELL INTERIOR FORTS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The Athens correspondent of the Matin has forwarded the following:

"After the complete destruction of the forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles, the allied fleet penetrated the straits and shelled the interior forts. It proceeded down the Dardanelles fourteen miles from the entrance."

The Matin prints today a dispatch from its correspondent at Athens who repeats the story published several times recently that the Sultan of Turkey is preparing to leave Constantinople and to this end imperial trains are kept with steam up in the railroad station. The inhabitants of the Prinkipo Islands in the Sea of Mormora, not far from Constantinople, have been instructed to hold themselves in readiness to leave.

FRENCH CAPTURE A GERMAN TRENCH.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS (via London) Feb. 27, 11:55 p.m.—The following official communication was issued by the War Office tonight:

"In Champagne our progress of Friday evening to the north of Mesnil-les Hurlus has made us masters of 500 meters of German trenches, where we made about 100 prisoners and captured two machine guns and one quick-firer. This attack was brilliantly carried out with the bayonet.

"A strong German counter-attack was repulsed during the course of Friday night. Today we made fresh progress to the west of Perthes and to the north of Beausejour. In Lorraine at Laneuveville, near the forest of Parroy, a German attack was repulsed."

ALLIES' POWDER CONTRACT REACHES FIFTY MILLIONS.

T. C. Dupont About to Dispose of His $14,000,000 Interest in Vast Concern Which will be Taken Over by Bankers' Syndicate—Plant Greatly Enlarged to Supply Demands from European Powers.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 27.—It became known in Wall street today that negotiations are in progress for the sale by T. C. Dupont, president of the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Powder Company, of his $14,000,000 interest in that property.

Mr. Dupont is head of the Dupont family, who for nearly a century have been the leading powder manufacturers of this country. He has signified his desire to retire from business and to be succeeded by a younger man, provided the necessary financial arrangements can be made for the purchase of his holdings.

It is said that his sons and an associated syndicate of New York and Philadelphia bankers expect little difficulty in raising the necessary funds. It is expected that a number of New York bankers will join the enterprise, which will be supervised by one of the big New York trust companies. At a meeting to be held on Tuesday next it is possible that a plan will be finally concluded.

If the proposition is carried a new company will probably be formed to take over the present organization, probably at an increased capitalization. The company has always been an extremely profitable enterprise, but since the beginning of the European war its earnings have been enormous.

It is said to have received contracts from the allies alone aggregating $50,000,000 approximately. It has been necessary greatly to enlarge its plant to take care of the increased business.

While the company has always been controlled by the Dupont family it has distributed a large bonus every year in the shape of capital stock to its employees, so that they now have a very large interest in the business.

The company has a total outstanding capitalization of $62,588,516, of which $29,397,283 is in common stock, $31,426 common stock held in reserve, $16,068,801 preferred stock, $45,000 preferred stock held in reserve, and $17,046,000 funded debt. On December 31 last the total assets were $83,432,445, of which $45,096,950 represented permanent investment in manufacturing property, patents, etc.

The company was incorporated in May, 1903, in New Jersey to consolidate into one corporation the various explosive manufactories controlled by the old E. I. Dupont de Nemours Powder Company. The latter company was the successor of the original partnership established in 1802 in Delaware. In 1913 a large part of the company's assets was segregated into the Hercules and Atlas powder companies, created in accordance with the decree of the United States Circuit Court.

T. C. Dupont is one of the largest owners of the new Equitable building.

The officers of the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Powder Company are T. C. Dupont, president; H. M. Barksgale, vice-president; E. C. Buckner, vice-president; Alfred I. Dupont, vice-president, and Irene and Pierre S. Dupont, vice-presidents. The treasurer is John J. Raskob. The corporate office of the company is at Hoboken.

BRITISH OFFICERS LOSE HEAVILY.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Feb. 16.—From January 26 to February 16, twenty-one days, the British forces in France and Belgium had eight-four officers killed and 151 wounded, while twenty-five were reported missing.

This information is conveyed in the official officers' casualty delivery issued today. The list in its detail shows that the Coldstream Guards had five officers killed and five wounded in these three weeks. Added to the previous officers' casualty lists, the list of today shows that Great Britain since the beginning of the war has had 1394 officers killed and 2629 wounded, while 690 have been reported missing.

ALLIES ARE GLOATING OVER NEWS FROM FRONT

Russian Successes Paralleled by Triumph of French-English Fleets.

Add to that the Decision of the Triple Entente to Stop the Shipment of All Food to Germany, Austria and Turkey and One Can Understand Why the People of London are Crowing.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Feb. 27, 10:30 p.m.—With Russian successes in the region of Przasnysz, North Poland, and Kilomea, East Galicia; the successful progress of the operations of the allied fleet in the Dardanelles and the decision of the allied governments to stop all shipping to and from Germany, Austria and Turkey, it is believed here that a new phase of the war is about to be entered upon.

While the success reported by Petrograd covers only a small portion of the long front in North Poland and the Germans have been able to record a counter success near Kolno, the general impression among military men in London is that not only has the German offensive in the north exhausted itself, but the tide is turning in favor of the Russians, who, with railways at their back, have been able to bring up more reinforcements than the invading army, whose communications, after German territory is left, must cross a country of marshes and overflowing rivers.

Much more fighting, however, must be waged before a final decision is reached, and in the meantime the battle has been resumed in central Poland, where the Russians have made a slight advance, and the engagements in the Carpathians, Eastern Galicia and Bukowina continue with unabated fury.

From what can be gathered from the official reports, the Russians, despite the onslaughts made upon them from all sides by Austrians and Germans, have been able to maintain their strength at all points and to throw in new troops where they were necessary. As a result the Austro-German plan of compelling them to weaken their center by attacking the two extreme wings has failed, and while the Russians have been from East Prussia and Bu they have been able to make and when reinforced, delivered ter-attacks, which apparen making some headway.

IN THE WEST.

DESCRIBES BOMBARDMENT OF THE TURKISH FORTS

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Feb. 27 (via London, 9:45 p.m.)—The Constantinople correspondent of the Tageblatt who witnessed the bombardment of the forts at the entrance to the Dardanelles by the British and French fleets, sends a dispatch dated noon, February 26, as follows:

"Four hostile warships appeared at 8 o'clock this morning before the entrance, but the fire against the outer forts was weak. The enemy's minesweeping vessels could clearly be seen among the big armored ships. Nothing noteworthy happened up to 9 o'clock.

"The bombardment yesterday lasted fully eight hours. The Anglo-French ships bombarded almost uninterruptedly the outer forts, Orhahie and Kum Kale on the Asiatic side and Erthogroll and Sedd-el-Bahr on the Eureopean side, but were to silence completely any though the ships finally within short range of the showered them with shells heavy artillery. Sedd-el-Bahr Kum Kale particularly was ed to a most violent fire.

"In the afternoon I rod Turkish brigade commander Kale and from a distance of mile watched the gallant fire forts until evening. For ships which lay at short fore the entrance to the be seen with the naked eye.

"The Turkish losses were ably small. There were a few in Sedd-el-Bahr and Kum fire from the forts soon ceases. Several hostile cluding the Agamemnon battleship) were severely One ship is reported to have fire."

FORTY GERMAN OFFICERS CAPTURED BY THE SLAVS

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD (via London) Feb. 27, 11:50 p.m.—The following official communication from headquarters was issued tonight:

"During February 26, the Germans appeared to pass to the defensive along almost the whole front. On the left bank of the Niemen on the roads to Symno and Sorey, there have been actions following the progress of our advance guard.

"North of Orodno, the battle has been limited to an intense fire by the enemy. At the village of Tcharnevo, a German battalion with sappers advanced toward the Bobr Valley. Our artillery, seizing the moment when part of the column had crossed to our bank, almost annihilated it. The survivors, consisting of five officers and a few score men, were made prisoners.

"The guns of the fortress of Ossowetz are successfully engaging the enemy's heavy batteries, which include eleven-inch and twelve-inch mortars.

"Our offensive at Przasnysz has been vigorously pursued. We have recaptured the town of Przasnysz which the Germans had temporarily occupied.

"The prisoners we have taken to the present number forty-one and 3600 soldiers; our capture constantly increasing. Our pursuit continues in pursuit of the new Germans.

"There has been no change on left bank of the Vistula, on the Je River or in the Carpathians.

"In Eastern Galicia in the two district, we have repulsed operate Austrian attacks and in the last five days nineteen and 1592 soldiers, taking also chine guns."

Sixty-third Congress.

EXTRA SESSION IDEA ABANDONED

Plan for Action on Treaties is Finally Given Up.

Trade Commission Nominees Favored by Committee.

Both Houses Continue Work on Appropriations.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Plans for an extra session of the Senate to ratify treaties and confirm nominations immediately after March 5 have been abandoned. The foremost of possibilities being considered today was an extra session beginning probably on October 1, two months earlier than the Sixty-fourth Congress would ordinarily assemble.

Favorable action was taken today by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on President Wilson's nominations to the Federal Trade Commission except George Rublee. That removed one remote possibility of an extra session of the Senate in March and the determined announcements of Republicans that they would fight the Colombian treaty all summer if necessary probably was another deciding factor.

Both houses continued today working on appropriation bills and conference reports. There is every prospect that all would be completed by March 4 with exception of the river and harbor bill for which a joint resolution appropriating a lump sum to be expended by the War Department probably will be substituted.

LEASING BILL IS PROTESTED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 27.—Protests have been received from California against the passage of Senate Bill No. 5434, it being alleged that bona fide locators of oil lands, under the provisions of this bill, who can not get patents to their lands within six months, will be obliged, because of their fear that they might lose all they have invested, to relinquish their rights to a patent and accept a lease, under which they would have to give up one-eighth of their output. They consider that such a requirement would be very unfair and unjust. The oil men say that they favor the leasing bill, which is House Bill 16,136, as reported by the Senate Public Lands Committee.

It is suggested that if the Senate bill becomes a law, it should be amended by incorporating into it the relief provisions in sections 9 and 16 of the House bill, which is what is known as the general leasing bill.

Representative Church says that Senate Bill No. 5434 has been dropped and that it is hoped to pass the leasing bill, so amended as to cut out everything except that portion relating to oil lands. It is conceded that the general leasing bill cannot be passed at this season.

Columns upon columns of newspaper space have been used in the discussion of the price of wheat; of the proposed raise in the price of bread; of reduced loaf sizes and of the bread in use in some of the countries now at war. Germany, by official proclamation, bakes a loaf that practically eliminates WHEAT as an ingredient. It is wholesome, appetizing and nourishing; a combination of rye and potato flour, with maybe a handful of wheat and a spicing of caraway seeds.

The Owl determined to give the people of Los Angeles a generous sized sample loaf of this WAR BREAD. On Monday, therefore, we have a splendid combination offer, reducing the price of Owl Lemon or Vanilla Extract to 17c and giving FREE a loaf of nutritious Bread.

Owl Lemon and Vanilla Extract are two of the finest products of our laboratories. Food in which either of these extracts is used will be daintier and more delicious Choice of:

"RIGOROUS INSPECTION," OF STARVATION DECREE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Confirmation was lacking here tonight of a report from London that neutral governments had been notified by Great Britain and her allies that a general blockade of German ports would be declared next week. Press dispatches to that effect aroused wide interest in official and diplomatic circles, however, as to the probable course the United States would pursue.

Authorities on international law agree that a belligerent has the right to, "blockade an enemy's ports with a competent force," and that neutrals are bound to respect that right.

They divide such blockades into two classes, simple or de facto, and public. The latter class is defined as one "where the investment is not actually established, but where also a public notification of the fact is made to neutral powers of the government or officers of state, declaring the blockade." Such a notification, it is added by the same authorities, is considered binding not only upon a neutral state but also upon

The result is to throw the burden of proof upon the captured vessels seized while attempting to enter a blockaded port. The blockade is held to be in force until formal notification of its withdrawal has been received.

The exact date of the issuance of the blockade notification, it is said, will be of utmost importance, since a vessel sailing for a blockaded port in ignorance of the fact that it has been blockaded has been held not liable to condemnation. A treaty of 1794 between Great Britain and the United States made this specific provision, and proclamations issued at Washington declaring blockades during the Civil War follow this theory. It has been the general international rule, it is said, for neutral vessels in ports to be blockaded to be allowed at least fifteen days after the blockade is announced in which to leave those ports without cargo. After that time they are subject to seizure.

If the notification of the Anglo-French blockade of German ports is accepted by the United States government, as in accordance with international law, it is assumed that formal warning will be given American shipowners and shippers in a proclamation by the President.

Government officials refused tonight to discuss the matter in the absence of official confirmation of the British plan. It was made clear, however, that such notice, when received, would be subjected to rigorous inspection as to its conformity with international precedent.

FIRST COTTON BY CANAL ROUTE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The first shipload of cotton from the South, amounting to 3270 tons, went through the Panama Canal October 23, last, on the steamship Penrith Castle.

It was bound from Galveston for Yokohama, Japan. The same steamship made the return trip through the canal in February with a cargo from Seattle for Liverpool made up principally of wheat for Europe. It was estimated that on her cotton cargo the vessel saved $5060 by using the canal instead of going around South America to get to Japan. Even on the trip from Seattle to Liverpool there will be a saving of twenty-three days at sea, or $1155, by the canal route.

This Woman

You do not enjoy the thought of growing aged in appearance, being called old while still young in spirit.

Wrinkles, loose, sagging muscles, discolored skin, flabby neck, disgust you. You realize that woman's beauty is her greatest asset and you cannot bear the thought of your face all wrinkled up.

Madam Julia Mays of New York discovered the scientific process of restoring the face of woman to former youthful beauty. Leading actresses, society women, business women who must be youthful, who need be called beautiful, have had their faces made and kept young by Madam Mays. You may also.

Madam has many imitators, but no competitors. Her work stands alone. It is a marvelous success. Doctors, scientific journals, etc., have told of its never failing success.

Every woman, no matter what the conditions now are, can be beautiful. During one week all lines around eyes or on forehead removed for $10.00. So many ladies desired this test that could not avail themselves that we gladly extend the opportunity. Remaining a short time only. Madam will gladly talk to scientists, doctors, or those who may in the future want her work, if not now. Her advice is "Do not grow old while yet young."

CHICKS WORTH MORE THAN DOG.

Owner Fails to Recover for Killing of Canine.

California Court Settles a Long-mooted Question.

Relative Property Right is Involved in Suit.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—A man owning a dog and a chicken owns more of the chicken than he does of the dog. This, in substance, is a decree of the District Court of Appeal which held, in a suit for damages for the killing of a dog, that less property rights are involved in the ownership of a canine than in poultry.

Mrs. J. A. Merril of Los Altos, Cal., whose valuable Russian wolf hound, "Saltikoff," was killed by S. M. Smith, a neighboring poultry rancher, sued for actual damages of $350 and $1000 exemplary balm. Smith shot the dog in a raid by the hound on his chickens. Mrs. Merril, who lost her suit in the Superior Court, appealed on the ground that Smith had no right to kill her dog under the code of California, but that his remedy was a damage suit for the loss of his chickens. This plea was made upon the ground that "Saltikoff" under the common and California laws was real property.

Mrs. Merril lost her appeal. Said the court: "By American courts the dog is held to less legal regard and protection than more harmless and useful domestic animals. The claim that the dog killed had a greater relative value than the fowls injured and therefore the killing was unwarranted, is without merit.

"It can hardly be contended that the defendant was bound to stand by and mentally calculate the value of the chicks destroyed and await action until such value equaled that of the dog.

"From earliest childhood we have listened to tales of the faithfulness of dogs portrayed in fable and song. Nor are we wanting in champions for their defense among our brother judges for we see them referred to as responsible for the changing of modern history."

LEAVE AMERICA, WED IN CHINA.

TWO YOUNG WOMEN ON LONG TRIP TO JOIN FIANCES.

Romance Which Began in the United States will Culminate When Eastern Belles Reach Orient, Where They will Meet the Prospective Grooms.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 27.—Accompanied only by Cupid, who is taking them to far-off Hongkong with its junk-filled harbor, babel of tongues along the Bund and its stately residences along the slopes of the Peak, two young eastern belles sailed today on the Manchuria to join the men to whom they are to be married upon their arrival in the British port. They are Miss Beatrice Leonard of New York and Miss Georgian Kalman of Milwaukee and the grooms are W. L. Marshall and Fred Tyson, both officials of the Standard Oil Company in China.

Meetings in the two cities of the East started a romance, which ripened into engagements and the trip to the Orient is hastened by the attack of West River pirates on one of the Standard Oil steamers, the repulse of whom resulted in the wounding of both the prospective grooms. Word of the wounds, which the two young men had suffered, decided the two young women to start at once for Hongkong; transportation was arranged by the oil company and within a month they will join their fiances.

Not until they arrived in Chicago did the two girls, who are on a 10,000-mile bridal trip alone, meet, but from that time they have been chums and will be all the way to the altar in the Orient. They were in this city several days and had an opportunity to visit the exposition before leaving.

The adventurous life will not really commence for them until they are in the Orient, for both young men are stationed at Standard Oil stations far in the interior of China, and from Hongkong the two couples will travel several hundred miles before they reach their new homes.

Fossil.

MISSING LINK IN HORSE FOUND.

THREE-TOED SPECIMEN SAID TO HAVE SOLVED PROBLEM.

Graduate Student of U. of C. Makes Known Valuable Find at Session of Division of Scientists—Discovery was Made in Miocene Strata of Southern Sierras.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, Feb. 27.—A missing link in the evolution of the horse has been discovered in the miocene strata of the Southern Sierra Mountains near the Tehachepi Pass by John P. Buwalda, a graduate student in the paleontological department of the University of California. Buwalda made known his recent find in an address before the Pacific Coast division of the Paleontological Society of America, convening here today.

The fossil form discovered by Buwalda is that of a three-toed horse of the Merychippus type, long sought for by scientists to fill the gap in the history of the horse. According to its discoverer, the fossil fits precisely the description of a hypothetical animal which scientists maintained must have existed in horse history.

The specimen unearthed by the Berkeley student is said to be the most ancient species of its type yet discovered.

Prof. John T. Merriam, head of the department of paleontology of the University of California, in a paper said that fauna species never before discovered have been unearthed in the regions of San Pablo and Suisun bays, proving that the climate of the bay regions was once much less severe than at present. Some of the fauna discovered are those now peculiar to the Southern California climate.

Vice-president, Dr. Ralph Arnold of Los Angeles.

Secretary, Chester Stock of Berkeley.

The latter part of today's second session was given over to a discussion of plans for the national convention of the society to be held in San Francisco next August. A joint dinner with the Pacific Coast Biological Society was held tonight.

The final paper presented to the scientists was read by J. P. Smith of Stanford University, entitled "The Climate of the Pleistocene Age." According to Prof. Smith, faunal life of that age in Northern California is conclusive evidence that at one time the Pacific Coast enjoyed a sub-tropical climate as far north as Alaska.

PORTLAND (Or.) Feb. 27.—A $1,000,000 swindle is charged against officers and salesmen of the now defunct United States Cashier Company of this city, in an indictment returned against them by the Federal grand jury here today. The indictments charges conspiracy and misuse of the mails. It is alleged that the concern, which is incorporated at $1,250,000, sold all its capital stock, bringing into its treasury more than $1,000,000 in money and property on the false representation that the company owned the patents to five change-making machines which it proposed to manufacture.

The company was organized September 1, 1910, for the purpose of making models as a basis for selling stock. It continued its business until January 31, 1914, when it sold out to an Indiana concern. The indictment asserts that during the entire life of the concern it was insolvent and that in the published statements of its financial condition liabilities to the extent of $500,000 were entirely omitted.

FERN HOBBS IS OUT.

Woman Who Broke Recent Deadlock in Oregon Legislature Will now Seek Another Job.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALEM (Or.) Feb. 27.—Miss Fern Hobbs, the woman who broke the deadlock between the Oregon House and Senate at its recent session by offering to resign as a member of the State Accident Industrial Commission, will retire from office on May 21. Her resignation was accepted today by Gov. James Withycombe. Miss Hobbs recently promised the Senate to resign on condition that the Senate preserve the commission of three members intact.

Her resignation ends, for the time being, the most exciting career probably of any woman who ever held public office in the United States. One of Miss Hobbs's most spectacular experiences occurred when she went to Copperfield, Or., while Gov. West's secretary, and putting the town under martial law, closed the saloons and gambling places.

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 27.—Although her brief romance was ended twelve days after their marriage, when her husband deserted her, Dixie Clements, southern belle, daughter of an Atlanta [illegible] filed a complaint for divorce on the ground of desertion, less than a year after she and Clements were married at Los Angeles.

Although the divorce complaint cites merely that twelve days after the young couple were married, February 4, 1914, the husband deserted her, since has "failed to provide for her," it is said. Rumors at Mrs. Clements' hotel today told of a similar uprising, the husband's departure was given as the reason for the wedding.

"He packed a suit case and said he was going on a business trip," she said. "That was the last I heard from him."

Mrs. Clements, then Miss Dixie Nunnally, became well known in San Francisco when it was learned that she was married, that she had run away from her Atlanta home following a disagreement with her mother.

The young heiress (she is said to be the daughter of an Atlanta manufacturer. Two years ago she decided to see something of the world, rather than live with her mother, and journeyed to the West Coast and then to Mexico. Her father, it is said, refused her allowance when she refused to return home, so she drew on the family estate for her expenses.

She had been in San Francisco a month, stopping at the St. [illegible] when an exchange of [illegible] duced her to move to Los Angeles, where she had met young Clements before coming here. The young couple motored to San Diego from that city, where they [illegible] married, but Miss Nunnally returned to Los Angeles, it is said, to the home of J. L. Clements, the young husband's father, who was, on the day of the ceremony they raced from San Francisco as fast as a speeding automobile could carry them.

Mrs. Clements's lawyer announced that no quarrel had preceded her husband's desertion, and that the young wife still is at a loss to explain the abrupt ending of her romance.

SALEM (Or.) Feb. 27.—[illegible] ing three burglars robbing several merchandise stores in Gooding at St. Paul, Or., late last night, Girdle, a citizen of the town, opened fire with a rifle and killed one unidentified member of the trio. County Sheriff Needham at once arrested James Grady and Frank Ulrich, who are being held on charges that the former had plunder on his person when alleged.

Girdle's attention was attracted to the store by the crashing of glass. Arming himself with a rifle he waited for the robbers to come out. When they finally emerged, loaded down with plunder, he called on them to halt and when they ran he fired.

A few hours previous three safes were broken into at Wilsonville, near St. Paul, by three men, who are believed to be the same who operated here.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PUEBLO (Colo.) Feb. ... seven former striking coal miners on trial for the murder of Lee Doyle, chauffeur, near La Veta, November, 1913, were declared not guilty by the verdict of the jury returned in the District Court late today. The jury was out one hour.

The men acquitted, all members of the United Mine Workers of America, are Charles Sheppard, Frank Daniel Richards, Edward Charles Richards, Peter Marcus Martinolich.

The charge upon which they were tried grew out of the battle between Terry and Harry Bryan, Walter Linten and R. G. Adams, militiamen, and the wounding of W. H. Bush, all employees of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, while automobiling near the Oakdale mine from La Veta to the recent Colorado coal strike.

John F. Lockhart, who was accused with the others, was discharged on trial because of a technicality in the omission of his name in the indictment. The charge against Charles Zeuler was dismissed on motion of the State during the trial. Zeuler is still held on charges in connection with the death of the militiamen.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Feb. 27 (via Sayville.)—Messages reaching here from Vienna say the Austrian War Office has given out a report explaining that an extremely valuable partial success has been achieved near Stanislau and that it soon will result in a favorable general move. The number of Russian prisoners falling into Austrian hands is increasing daily, these Vienna dispatches declare. The Russians have abandoned their attempt to storm the Dukla Pass, and they are said to be entrenched. Their attacks have been bravely carried out and have tested the steadfastness of the Austro-Hungarian troops to the utmost. The possession of Stanislau is important for the Russians, because the railroad lines running from there into the Carpathians, and for the reason that it would prevent, according to the view held in Vienna, the outflanking of the Russian left [illegible].

YUCATAN UPSET BY NEW REVOLT.

Successful Uprising Aimed at Carranza Faction.

Gen. Obregon's Tax Decree Is Partially Annulled.

Mexico City's Water Supply Will be Restored.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Feb. 27.—A successful uprising against the Carranza faction controlling Yucatan, a rich state in the southernmost portion of the republic, was reported today in official Villa advices received here. It was not made known whether the Revolutionists had avowed allegiance with the Villa faction in the south.

The capital, Merida, fell into the hands of the Revolutionists after a battle three days ago, it was reported. The Carranza officials fled to Progreso, and Havana, Cuba, with the exception of Gov. Santos, who was captured. The new party is headed by Ignacio Magaloni Governor of Yucatan.

The Carranza faction attempted to send troops to quell the uprising on the steamer Progreso from the Mexico City, Tampico & Tuxpan Company, an American concern, it is said. Rumors at Merida told of a similar uprising at Campeche, the seaport whence the troops were to have been transported. Reports of fighting in South Central Mexico have reached the border within a few days.

Gen. Villa remains at Aguascalientes, apparently having abandoned at least for the time being his campaigns against Manzanillo, on the west coast, and Tampico, on the eastern seaboard.

OBREGON DECREE PARTLY ANNULLED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Consul Silliman notified the State Department today that Gen. Carranza has annulled so much of Gen. Obregon's decree levying a tax upon commercial enterprises with the Mexican capital as applied to Americans and other foreigners. The State Department had previously notified the State Department made representations to Carranza authorities at Vera Cruz, Mexico, for the release of the American schooner Martha, held in port on the ground that her master was attempting to evade export duties on a consignment of cattle to Galveston.

The duties and fines are said to amount to more than 11,000 Mexican dollars.

Carranza's agency here announced today receipt of a report from Vera Cruz saying the food situation in Mexico City is better and food supplies are being received from various points and distributed among the people.

Villa and Zapata factions," it is said, "are reported fighting at Cuernavaca. Carranza forces defeated the Villistas at Tacubs, near Mico City, yesterday.

Federico Cervantes, one of the Carranza leaders, the State Department announced today, will permit the food supply for Mexico City to be sent for the sake of humanity. The principal source has been cut off at this time by Zapata forces who control the suburbs of the capital.

Operations are reported under way for a battle at Monterey, which is directed by Gen. Angeles, in command of Villa forces. It is reported that the Carranza forces at Tampico have been sent in the direction of Monterey. Carranza authorities are said to be doing work on fortifications at Vera Cruz. From Vera Cruz it was reported that Felicitas Villareal was still in command. John W. Belt, private secretary to Consul Silliman, concerning inquiries had been made, and found safely at Vera Cruz from Mexico City.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderline, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

INTERESTS WANT CHINA TO TURN DOWN JAPAN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 27.—Some of the great corporations of the United States are about to make an effort to prevent China from acceding to the demands that Japan has recently made upon that country.

Counsel for the Standard Oil Company of New York, a corporation with $75,000,000 capital, and which is one of the offshoots of the old Standard Oil Company, it was reported here today, are exhibiting considerable uneasiness as to what, if any, action the administration intends to take with reference to Japan's demands upon China, so far as their demands may conflict with the "open-door" policy.

Not only has the Standard Oil Company made strong representations to the State Department against the Japanese demands upon China, but the American Tobacco Company either has made or is about to make similar representations to the department, declaring that if the Japanese demands are acceded to by China their business interests and the business interests of many other American companies in China will greatly suffer.

At the State Department it was said no protests from "big business" concerns have yet been under consideration in connection with Japan's demands upon China.

THOUSAND DEAD, WOUNDED, LEFT BY ONE REGIMENT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA, Feb. 27 (via London) 11 p.m.—The following Austrian official statement was given out here tonight:

"At some points on the Polish-Galician frontier there have been lively artillery duels.

"The general situation in the Carpathians is unchanged. There has been vigorous fighting in the sector of Toukholka and Wiszkow.

"A fresh attack on our position in the upper Valley was repulsed with heavy loss to the enemy, after bitter fighting at close quarters. The Ninth Finnish Regiment left on our positions 500 dead and at least an equal number of wounded. Seven hundred and thirty men of the regiment were taken prisoners, unwounded.

FRENCH, ENGLISH TRADERS TO INVADE LATIN AMERICA.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Another attack on German trade by British and French merchants is about to be made through a business men's voyage to Latin America. A French liner, renamed the Argonaut, will sail from Southhampton at a date not yet announced for reasons of caution, bearing fifty French merchants representing the silk, cotton, wine and other industries of France, and a hundred leading business men from Great Britain's manufacturing districts.

La Guaua, the port of Caracas, Venezuela, will be the first of call. Bahia, Rio Janeiro, Santos, Buenos Ayres and Montevideo on the Atlantic side, and Valparaiso, Antofogasta and Lima on the Pacific side, also will be visited. Then, passing through the Panama Canal, the expedition will turn homeward.

Various Chambers of Commerce and municipalities are arranging public receptions for the visitors and the trade exhibit on the ship will be open to the public in the ports visited. The voyage will last three months and be supported by the business interests of the two countries.

A similar commercial tour may be arranged later for Russia.

FLYING AMERICAN FLAG ON TRAINS IN BELGIUM.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BRUSSELS, Feb. 16.—The American flag now has the right of way on Belgian roads, and flying from the warehouses and stations of the commission for relief in Belgium, as well as from its automobiles, it forms about the only bit of color in this desolate land.

For a time the flying of the American flag became so general that an order was given by the commission that this practice should be discontinuel for fear some misuse of the banner might cause friction with the military authorities. The rescinding of this order was due chiefly to the difficulties experienced on the road by the commission's automobiles.

Since the flag has been restored to the cars, the passing peasant not only gives them clear way, but stands at salute as they go by. The flag flies from the barges carrying relief food and it again waves from the warehouses and stations, but care is taken that it is not used without authority.

To the Belgians the American flag is the outward symbol of their relief from possible starvation and they revere it accordingly, extending to it the same respect they would pay to their own banner were they allowed to fly it.

U.S. ENVOY TO REMAIN IF CONSTANTINOPLE FALLS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The bombardment of the Dardenelles forts by the Anglo-French fleet has caused apprehension in Constantinople, according to advices to the Washington government, and the Ottoman government is considering removing the seat of the government to Scutari, opposite Constantinople, on the Asiatic side of the straits of Bosporus. The approach of the allied forces has caused some of the foreign embassies and legations to ask for instructions in case the Turkish government moves, but Ambassador Morgenthau, it is understood, has decided to remain in Constantinople unless otherwise instructed. Some departments of the Turkish government, it is said, will remain in Constantinople even if the others go.

My impression is that the Japanese spend vastly more with Chinese than the reverse of the situation. As a matter of fact, San Francisco Japanese merchants have complained that their own countrymen are patronizing the Chinese more freely than the Japanese."

The Consul General intimated that his countrymen here might resort to retaliation on their own account and refuse to patronize Chinese merchants.

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Feb. 27.—It was announced here today that the Chinese in Vancouver had begun a boycott on all Japanese stores in British Columbia. The Chinese, acting, it is understood, on instructions from the Orient, have decided to extend the boycott over Canada. The Japanese here complain that for the last three or four days they have not conducted a single business transaction with a Chinese.

BOYCOTT IN FRESNO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FRESNO, Feb. 27.—As a result of the visit to this city yesterday of a delegation of Chinese from San Francisco, supposed to represent the Six Companies, a general boycott against the Japanese in this section is to go into effect next Monday. Already Chinese are moving out of the Japanese hotels and lodging-houses. No Japanese merchandise stores are to be patronized hereafter by Chinese, a fine of $500 being threatened by the tongs on any of their members who violate the boycott. It is understood that the visit of the delegation here is the result of a coastwide movement to punish Japanese for political aggressions of the Japanese Empire on the Chinese republic.

Local Japanese said tonight that a statement is now being circulated here from the Japanese Consul-General in San Francisco denying that his government is coercing the Chinese republic, and declaring that a meeting will be held in San Francisco early next week to clear up the difficulty between the two races on this Coast.

March "Better Value"

The four hats which we have pictured are but fair representatives of the scores of others which are included in this sale.

How does it happen that we can sell such hats as these at $6?—it's just a case of the manufacturer co-operating with us to make this March "Better Value" sale one that will surpass any sale event that we have held before.

The name Fisk speaks volumes for the style of these hats—and when we tell you that at $6.00 they are all very close to half price, you will understand the full importance of this sale.

There were just 100 hats in the lot, but some of them were exact duplicates of some which we had received just the week before from the same house, so we reduced these, making about a hundred and fifteen in all.

Real Leather Hand Bags Special at 77c

We bought these bags as a very special feature at a price a full third greater than the one we've quoted—but some of them have become slightly scratched. There are eight different styles with German silver frames with either plain or novelty silk trimmings. Main floor—Jacoby's.

Sale of Imperfect Huck Towels at 7c

There are about 500 dozen included in this sale and all of them are priced at a very small part of their worth—for their imperfections are of the kind that you have to look and look for. The sizes range from 17x34 to 22x42. Main floor—Jacoby's.

Hundreds of Pairs of Silk Stockings 79c

If the factory experts hadn't found tiny little hurts in these stockings, we would never have been able to buy them to sell at this very, very low price. None of the imperfections will hurt the wear of the stockings. They're in black, white and 14 shades. Main floor—Jacoby's.

Dozens of Bolts of Ribbons at Half Price . 12½c

Yes, some of them are even less than half price. Among them are double-faced satins, moires, Dresdens, brocades and fancy hat bandings. The widths range from 2 up to 6½ inches. The colors include nearly every one in the rainbow. Main floor—Jacoby's.

"Better values" for the babies

Vanta Vests at ½—they're in cotton, all silk and in wool in a complete range of sizes—priced 25c to $2.50.

Boys' Wash Suits, 73c — suits of chambray, and of percale in white, blue, tan and black and white stripes in sizes 3 to 6 years—very specially priced.

Babies' Layette, $7.45—the set consists of 31 pieces—2 wool vests, 2 wool bands, 2 flannel skirts, 2 gowns, 2 dresses, 1 kimono, 2 pairs of stockings, 2 bootees, 1 blanket, 12 diapers and a pretty baby book.

Children's Rompers, 69c—they're of white madras in sizes 3 to 6—garments that usually sell for more than a half more.

Jacoby Bros. B. V.s "Better Values"

—This series of sales, which [illegible] are to be more than mere sales—[illegible] new way of merchandising—[illegible] values.

—This advertisement for [illegible] things which we want you to [illegible] items all thru the store which [illegible]

—Plan to see our window [illegible] as you can Monday morning.

Let the pictures tell the "Better value" story at $19.50

And while the picture tells it wonderfully well, we tell it in a way that would sound like a fairy tale.

—When plans were laid for these March "Better Value" sales and the garment chief said he was going after the best coat values of all—and surely he has met with splendid success—the writer doesn't remember of ever having seen such [illegible] as $19.50 that could in any way be compared with [illegible]

And dresses too—[illegible]

—We only wish that we had room to picture some of the very exceptional dresses in this advertisement—they would attract quite as much attention and arouse quite as much interest as the suits told of and shown above.

Now comes a special "Fitrite" corset to sell at half price $1.00

Earrings at ¼—25c
A rare piece of good fortune brought these very exceptional earrings to us to sell at 25c—some are plain pearl, others of black enamel with tiny pearl center.
Main Floor—Jacoby's.

Months ago our buyers wrote to all the manufacturers with whom they did business, and asked for special merchandise for these March "Better Value" sales.

And of all the merchandise which we have received in response to these letters none has been more extraordinary than this lot of 10 dozen "Fitrite" corse which have come to sell at $1.00.

Our corset chief says that she has never seen a corset even at double this price that was the equal of this one which is to be featured Monday.

It's a splendidly-made corset of good, heavy coutil—you'll notice by the picture that it has a medium bust, long skirt, stitched boning, a special slash at the front to give comfort while sitting and best of all, six strong hose supporters. A full range of sizes from 19 to 26.

Private fitting rooms, 4th floor—Jacoby's.

Special! White gloves cleaned, 5c pair

—Again Monday we will clean all white gloves, either long or short, for 5c a pair. Black gloves in all lengths will be cleaned for 25c, tans 15c pair—and you can expect the same high-grade work as though you were paying the full price.—Main Floor—Jacoby's.

Sale Venetian silk vests and knickers $1.95

If the manufacturer would permit us to advertise his name, there would be few of these garments left by noon Monday. The knickers come in black, white and pink, the vests are hand embroidered and come in white only. Main Floor—Jacoby's.

Sale of imperfect union suits at 25c

We call them imperfect because they were sold to us as imperfects—but for the life of us we can find nothing the matter with most of them—a little soiled spot here and there is the worst injury we could find. All are in low neck, knee length styles. Main Floor—Jacoby's.

½ silk shirtings—½ [illegible] challies

Another lot of those 81x90 in. seamless sheets 64c

—It's only because these sheets have very tiny imperfections in them or are slightly spotted with oil that we're able to name this very low price—for they're quite as heavy and quite as splendidly made as Pequot sheets—and Pequots, you know, sell for a great deal more than 64c.

—There are just about enough of these for one day's selling.

—And with these 81x90 in. sheets we will also have ready several other sizes in the same quality at prices proportionately low—for instance, there will be—

81x99 in. sheets, 69c	42x36 in. cases, 17c
72x90 in. sheets, 60c	45x36 in. cases, 19c

—Other sheets and cases in a lighter weight than those listed above, will be specially priced Monday at—

81x90 in. sheets, 59c	42x36 in. cases, 12½c
72x90 in. sheets, 55c	45x36 in. cases, 14c

Just imagine waists of pongee, of silk shirtings and of lingerie $1.95

Sale of Girls' Lingerie Dresses

Some are priced as low as $2.75 and others are $4.50, $4.95 and up to $7.50 and more.

All of them are values that will make mothers give up the idea of making dresses at home.

All of them are styles that will delight the most particular little maids.

They're of sheer batiste and organdie with exquisite lace trimmings—some are very prettily embroidered—all sizes, 6 to 14 years. 4th floor—Jacoby's.

—And no matter how strong your imagination may be there is little danger that you will picture these waists as being better than they are—when you see them you'll say that we could have marked them a full half more and they would still have been "Better values."

—We went to a well known waist manufacturer and told him of our plans for this "Better value" sale and he told us that we could count on him to give us waists that would cause a mighty stir.

—We had our expectations wonderfully high, but the waists, when they came, proved a delightful surprise.

—Among them are chic tailored styles of fancy striped silk shirtings—there are others of natural pongee, with convertible collars that may be worn either high or low and there are fresh, crisp, new lingeries bedecked with exquisite lace that will arouse "Ohs!" and "Ahs!" on every hand. Second Floor—Jacoby's.

Time, time and again we've had spreads at a half more that weren't a whit better than these—and we've considered them very excellent values—in fact, the manufacturer intended these to be sold for a good half more until we came asking for "Better values" for this March event. You can expect to see women buying six or more of these at this price.

Genuine satin Marseilles spreads at $2.50

These, too, are very unusual values. They're full 81x90 inches in size and come in a good range of patterns. Only about 48 of them to go at $2.50.

Included are gowns, drawers, combinations, princess slips and skirts of soft nainsook with very dainty lace and embroidery trimmings. They were bought to sell at prices well in advance of $1.25. 4th floor—Jacoby's.

This is a very heavy, yarn dyed silk—a quality such as you have seen in stores the country over at about double this price which we have named for the first Monday of this "Better Value" sale.

We've arranged a great display of it in one of our front windows today. Even though you hadn't planned on buying silks it will pay you to come down town especially to see this today.

There are enough different colors represented so that you will have no difficulty in finding the one that you like best—but there are only a few pieces of each color, so we would advise you to choose yours early.

40 in. crepe de chine at 95c

Just a limited quantity of a splendid, heavy, all silk crepe de chine will be offered Monday at 95c—not all colors are included.

36 in. taffeta at 95c

These are all black and white striped taffetas—the ones that are being sought after so much right now for Spring frocks and blouses.

36 in. Jap silk at 45c

Just 300 yards of this splendid yard-wide white Jap silk is to be sold at 45c a yard Monday, and 45c is but about one-half of its worth.

50 in. epingle cloth at $1.45

It is of a fine corded weave in a rich navy blue and in black—it has a soft, rich finish that you'll like for suits and for skirts—it's about one-third underworth at $1.45 a yard.

50 in. storm serge 61c

Think of buying a 50-inch heavy storm serge at 61c a yard—it comes in black and navy and is a value very unusual.

Black motor satine 15c

This 36-inch satine has been very specially priced for this Monday "Better value" sale of ours—it's a very extraordinary value at 15c. Main Floor—Jacoby's.

Jacoby special gloves at $1.00

In spite of the fact that the cost of these gloves is now nearly $1.00 we will not make any change in their selling price while present stocks last. Remember, they are guaranteed to wear as good gloves ought to.

Main Floor—Jacoby's.

Sale of Neckwear at 25c

A very fortunate purchase made by our buyer while on her recent trip to New York makes this "Better Value" offering possible. Ordinarily we would be glad to have neckpieces like these to sell at considerably more than 25c.

Included in the sale are Gladstone collars of sheer, white lawn and organdie and others of embroidered nets and of shadow laces—then there are dainty little neck ruffs of plaited maline, of chiffon and of lace with black velvet ribbon bands and there are guimpes of net and of lawn in both high and low neck style and vestees of pique, of lawn and of organdie, yes, and these are dress sets of linen in both plain and hemstitched styles—and—oh! so very many other styles—quite a few of them are pictured above—scores of them will be out for you to see Monday morning.

36 in. allover laces at $1.15

250 yards—we only wish there were four or five times this yardage, for it's all lace that was made to sell at a great deal more. These 250 yards should not last all day. There are a great many different patterns in both white and ecru. See the window display.

15-inch Flouncings, 29c—dainty shadow lace flouncings in white, flesh and ecru. Some close to half price.

JACOBY'S UNDERPRICE BASEMENT

Silk and wool dresses that are more than "Better Values" at $8.95

The first lot of these dresses was put on sale Saturday—and if we are to take the way that women enthused over them and bought them as a criterion of Monday's business—then we can safely say, there will be few—very few left at store-closing time.

The four dresses which we have pictured here and the others which are in one of our windows today tell a more forceful story than any we could put into print.

Don't let the fact that these dresses are in our Basement cause you to think that they are cheap dresses. They were all made to sell at a great, great deal more than $8.95. But this manufacturer was eager to help us make these March "Better Value" sales a wonderful success and so he gave them to us at a very, very special price.

Among them are dresses of crepe meteor, of crepe de chine, chiffon taffeta, messaline, and of French and English serge in a very wide range of styles and in all of the colorings that the Spring has brought out. The sizes range from misses' 16s to women's 44s.

Jacoby's Underprice Basement

Even if we didn't offer a single word of explanation, the above headline would bring scores of women to the Basement bright and early Monday morning. These are the Coverall styles—made of good gingham and percale in neat stripes, checks, and solid colors—they're made generously full and long and with each one we will give a dust cap free.

300 shirt waists, 23c

They're of lawn, of batiste, and of rice cloth in ever and ever so many different styles—both plain and fancy in all sizes 34 to 44, and in an unusual range of patterns.

Jacoby's Underprice Basement.

Children's dresses, 49c

A new model of blue or tan chambray made to slip on—front of dress is embroidered in pretty floral designs with white silk—sizes 6 to 14.

STEAMER ELUDES A SUBMARINE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HALIFAX, Feb. 27.—How the Allan liner Grampian eluded a German submarine in the Irish Sea was described by passengers upon the arrival of the steamer from Liverpool today. On Saturday afternoon soon after leaving Liverpool the steamer was warned of a German submarine lurking in her path. The Grampian was at once sent at top speed on a zig-zag course until the danger zone was passed. Although a sharp watch was kept, no sign of the enemy was seen. According to a radio message received by the Grampian next day a freight steamer a few hours behind on the same course was torpedoed.

Better than calomel, oil or salts for liver, bowels and stomach.

Mother, daddy and the children can always keep feeling fine by taking this delicious fruit laxative as occasion demands. Nothing else cleanses the stomach, liver and bowels so thoroughly without griping.

You take a little at night and in the morning all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and fermenting food, delayed in the bowels, gently moves out of the system. When you awaken all headache, indigestion, sourness, foul taste, bad breath, fever and dizziness is gone; your stomach is sweet, liver and bowels clean, and you feel grand.

"California Syrup of Figs" is a family laxative. Every one from grandpa to baby can safely take it and no one is ever disappointed in its pleasant action. Millions of mothers know that it is the ideal laxative to give cross, sick, feverish children. But get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grownups on each bottle. Refuse with contempt the cheaper Fig Syrups and counterfeits. Se that it bears the name—"California Fig Syrup Company."

ARE WE SOON TO BECOME A RACE OF BALD-HEADED MEN?

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN

Hair Specialist of Chicago, Who Is Now at Hamburger's, Talks Most Interestingly About the Hair.

He says that baldness is increasing rapidly among men and points out some of the reasons. Prof. Austin is probably right in saying that about one man in every hundred ever thinks about his hair at all, except to comb it two or three times a day. If it falls out, he looks anxiously at the falling hair, and then promptly forgets about it until the next time he uses the comb.

A man will give the utmost attention to his teeth, because he knows that when trouble arises he will have more, trouble, and probably lose his teeth if he doesn't go to a dentist promptly. But his hair doesn't ache. It just gradually dies, and when it is nearly gone, and the roots are dead, he anxiously tries a dozen different remedies at once, and then resigns himself to baldness.

According to Prof Austin, there are something like 60 different diseases of the scalp and hair. Some are contagious. Others develop from neglect. Practically all of them are curable in the early stages.

Prof. Austin examines the roots of your hair with a powerful microscope. He finds out just what is the trouble with YOUR HAIR, and then he tells you what to do for that trouble.

It doesn't cost a penny for the examination, and it puts you under no obligation to follow his advice if you don't want to do so.

Prof. Austin has devoted thirty-five years to studying the hair and scalp and has been engaged by the Geo. B. Peck Dry Goods Co. of Kansas City, Mo., many times during the past twenty-five years—surely it will be worth the few minutes it takes to let him turn the microscope on your hair.

He will make FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS of the hair and scalp all this week in his private office on the second floor, Hamburger's. Hours 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m.

"LET'S ALL GET MARRIED."

SEQUEL TO CHAMPAGNE DINNER IN LOS ANGELES.

Woman Tells Chicago Judge She was Greatly Surprised to Find She had a Husband and Now She's Extremely Anxious to Get Rid of Him.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 27.—It was a "wonderful time"—a champagne dinner in Los Angeles. Some one suggested: "Let's all get married." And the next afternoon Mrs. Genevieve Baisden was surprised when told she had a new husband. She had not been divorced from her first mate.

The tangled story of Mrs. Baisden's marriage was unwound before Judge Walker in the Circuit Court today. The young woman, an actress, appeared to ask that she be divorced from one husband and her marriage to another annulled.

She had just emerged from a convent in Cincinnati when she met Albert V. Baisden, in 1908. They went at once to Dalton, Ga., and were married in February and came to Chicago. He deserted her in May and she went on the stage where she was known as "Billy Leigh."

Concerning her second marriage, she told the court:

"One night in Los Angeles a party of us, three men and three women, were having a champagne dinner. We were having a wonderful time. Some one said: 'Let's all get married.' I really don't know what happened until 4 o'clock next afternoon, when everybody told me I was married to Mr. Harris. I packed my things and took the next train for Chicago."

KING'S FAVORITE DEAD AT NINETY.

GEORGE WILLIAM AYLIFFE PASSES AWAY IN HIS LONDON HOME.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Feb. 16.—George William Ayliffe, a well-known London theatrical critic, is dead at his home on the Thames, aged 90 years. As a boy Mr. Ayliffe was a great favorite of King William IV, who by royal decree gave him permission to fly his kite in Bushey Park, where he was the playmate of Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar. Both of Mr. Ayliffe's parents were employees of the royal household.

In the late sixties Mr. Ayliffe joined the staff of a theatrical paper and through this connection he became a close friend of Charles Dickens. He was twice arrested as a Fenian owing to his striking resemblance to a prominent dynamiter.

ELOPERS OUTWIT ANGRY MOTHER.

SEEKS THEM IN AUTOMOBILE BUT THEY GET MARRIED AFTER ALL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

STOCKTON, Feb. 27.—An exciting elopement in which a ranch hand and his employer's pretty daughter fleeing in a farm wagon outwitted an angry mother in an automobile, came to a happy conclusion yesterday near Oakdale.

Thomas Fitz Morris was the intrepid ranch hand; Miss Esther Bloom, the adventurous maiden, and Mrs. W. L. Bloom, owner of a large ranch, was the stern mother.

The young couple were unable to gain the consent of Mrs. Bloom to their marriage and yesterday eloped in a wagon. The mother discovered their absence, and jumping in her car, overtook them. After some persuasion she appeared appeased and accompanied the runaways to Oakdale to make preparation for a wedding. There the couple discovered they had been led into a trap. Mrs Bloom took Morris to an officer and demanded that he be arrested for abducting her daughter. While discussing the case, the couple slipped away to Modesto and were married.

(Sells) did not intend to be made a monkey. This is what the detectives had been working for and they brought the men face to face. Then followed a double confession, the prisoners glaring at each other like bulldogs in a pit.

OTHERS IMPLICATED.

Much admitted by both men in connection with the Vogel murder is withheld by the detectives, but they are positive that within twenty-four hours all the persons who had a part in the crime will be in jail. Sligh told of several conversations with Sells, who he said tried to induce him to go to Fruitvale to rob the old couple. He said that upon one occasion, immediately preceding the murder, Sells informed him the Vogels always kept in the neighborhood of $4000 in the house; that he had the information correct because it came from someone who knew the family intimately. Sligh declared he refused to accompany Sells to the Vogel home.

When asked the direct question as to whether he had killed the Vogels, Sells said he would not talk further on the subject until he could see a lawyer.

The Vogel murder was one of the most sensational crimes in the history of the State. The bodies of the husband and wife, both of whom were old and very infirm, were found in their house on the morning of Feb. 12. They had been bound hand and foot, beaten, choked and finally strangled to death.

Detective King says it has developed that the murderers did not get the loot they expected and it is believed the reason the old man and his wife were killed is because they recognized one of the men who had entered their home. It is said there is a reward of approximately $6000 for the apprehension of the murderers.

THE HENEY PLOT.

"Sligh bought a half-interest in a little poker room in Oakland, near Twelfth street and Broadway. Heney was trying to get to prosecute these gamblers and grafters over there. He was camping on ——— trail and other fellows who are crooked around there. Sligh came to me and said he thought he could get $2000 if we could get rid of Heney. I asked him in a few days what he had done about killing Heney, and he said not yet but a little later. Heney was not killed because nobody put up the money. When Sligh finally told me that he was sure he would get the money, I asked him if he would let me in on the job and he said yes. No, we did not attempt to murder him because we wanted the money and the gamblers got scared and didn't put it up."

ROBBERIES.

Sells admitted his part in many robberies, but in most cases was unable to give the dates or names and locations of the victims. He said he and Sligh on September 1 committed their first job together. It was the looting of the safe in the office of the Standard Oil Company in Oakland. They knocked the watchman down, bound and gagged him and then blew the safe, getting more than $500 for their trouble.

He said he and his partner in crime on October 22 robbed a doctor in his office at No. 830 Market street, San Francisco, of three or four diamonds, for which they received $110.

October 1, he said, they came to Los Angeles and later they planned to rob Eugene Stromberg, a photographer, in San Diego. They went into his office and when he arrived, held him up at the point of a gun, taking from him a valuable diamond. They sold the stone to J. C. Ferguson, a diamond broker of this city, for $270. Mr. Ferguson giving them a check in the name of Frank E. Thomas. Mr. Ferguson yesterday identified the men and corroborated the deal.

Sells told the detectives he and Sligh had sold most of their loot to George M. Ross, 450 Monadnock building, San Francisco, and knowing he always kept considerable money and diamonds in his possession, planned a daylight robbery at his place. They never executed it, however.

BIG JOBS.

Of the numerous big jobs planned by himself and Sligh, Sells told with pride of the proposed holdup of the bank at Huntington Park. He said they intended to go to the suburban city and hold up the cashier during the noon hour. They were well acquainted with the daily scenes about the bank and would have committed the robbery, but for the chance they saw of making a good haul at the Harlow home. They learned that Mr. and Mrs. Harlow wore a number of valuable diamonds and planned to relieve them of the gems upon their arrival home late at night.

While they were waiting for Mr. and Mrs. Harlow to appear, the former, accompanied by Harry Raymond and Thomas Miller, arrived at the Harlow home and they were made the victims. The robbers got about $3000 worth of jewels and several hundred dollars in cash. Nearly all of the jewels have been recovered.

Sells and Sligh are looked upon as the most daring and most dangerous crooks ever captured by the local police and great credit is being given Detectives King and Oaks for their work. Every day during the past week the officers have quizzed both prisoners and through remarkable shrewdness, finally got the two men fighting each other. Each day one would tell a little more and blame the other for talking. Both are ex-convicts. Sells was convicted in Oakland of murder and sent to the penitentiary, being released on parole. He has been in jail many times. Due to his record, the detectives have never taken a chance with him. They handcuffed him to themselves for the trip from Oakland to this city, and every time they took him to different places here they handcuffed him and manacled his feet.

SLIGH'S RECORD.

Here is Sligh's criminal record:

The following is the record of one Charles E. Sligh, alias J. C. Roberts, alias Sam Hall, alias William Francis, alias Edward Hill, Los Angeles, No. 13008.

As Edward Sligh, No. 852, Wyoming State Prison, Rawlings, April 14, 1902.

As Charles Sligh, Oregon State Prison, larceny, March 14, 1906.

As Charles Sligh, No. 1485, Montana State Prison, burglary, third degree, from Deer Lodge, Montana, one year, November 15, 1904.

Served one term in Montana Reform School.

As J. C. Roberts, sentenced from Stockton, Cal., to San Quentin Prison for five years, February 18, 1908. Burglary, second degree, No. 22700. Discharged from San Quentin, September 28, 1911.

Arrested at Rochester, N. Y., March 4, 1912, for house burglary. Sentenced March 26, 1912, to Auburn State Prison for four years and two months. Later transferred to Dannemora Prison, New York.

AGED WOMAN LEAVES ESTATE TO WOULD-BE GROOM.

Thirty-year-old Hotel Clerk Whom Authorities Refused to Allow Her to Marry is Given Bulk of $80,000 Estate at Charlestown, Mass. Relatives to Contest Will.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BOSTON (Mass.) Feb. 27.—The bulk of her $80,000 estate has been left by Miss Frances Maria Wilson, 90 years old, of No. 60 Russell street, Charlestown, to George Augustus Nelson, 30 years old, a hotel clerk, whose application to marry the nonagenarian was refused by the officials at the City Hall last December.

In her will, filed today at the Suffolk Probate Court, Miss Wilson, who died on February 14, makes small bequests to her brother, sister, housekeeper and family physician, leaving the residue of her large estate to Nelson, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, absolutely and forever. The Rev. Thomas F. McCarthy, a Somerville priest, is named as executor of the strange document.

Miss Wilson's relatives are already planning to contest the will upon the ground that the testatrix was of unsound mind at the time the document was drawn.

Nelson, who is a past president of the Dorchester Bachelors' Club, protested last December, at the time his application for a marriage license was refused, that he was deeply in love with the old lady, who had been his best friend from the cradle and had bought him his first suit of long trousers.

AMERICAN STEAMER ARRIVES SAFE IN NEW YORK FROM BREMEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The American steamer City of Memphis reached New York today from Bremen with a cargo of 900 tons of assorted German merchandise. The steamer sailed on the outward voyage from Norfolk with a cargo of nearly 9000 bales of cotton and reached Bremen January 27, without incident throughout the voyage. On the return voyage the steamer was delayed by gales and heavy seas.

BEGIN ATTACK ON MONTEREY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Feb. 27.—A message from Nuevo Laredo says that Gen. Pablo Gonzales, commanding the Carranza forces, said to number 25,000 men, has notified Gen. Felipe Angeles, Villa's commander at Monterey, that the city will be attacked Sunday at noon and asking that noncombatants be notified that they may leave the city. Gen. Angeles is said to have replied that he would be ready to receive the Carranza army.

Villa reports say Angeles has about 20,000 men, while Carranza sources indicate that his forces number between 10,000 and 12,000 men. It is said they are well entrenched in fortifications built by Gen. A. I. Villareal and are well supplied with food and ammunition and have several batteries of artillery planted at advantageous points on the outskirts of the city.

Former Clergyman in Wisconsin City Held for Violation of Mann White Slave Law.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) Feb. 27.—The Rev. James Morrison Darnell, formerly pastor of a Unitarian Church in Kenosha, Wis., was indicted by the Federal grand jury here today, charged with violation of the Mann white slave law in transporting Ruth Soper of Owatonna, Minn., to Kenosha, Wis. The Rev. Mr. Darnell, who in Kenosha had been regarded as the husband of Ruth Soper Darnell, resigned his pastorate there early in January, following the disclosure by the trustees of his church that he had a Chicago wife.

UTE KNOWS HIDING PLACE.

Will Assist United States Marshal to Arrest Band of Outlaws Now Being Sought for Murder.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 27.—Duchy, a Ute Indian, who is said to know the hiding place in the mountains of Polk and Posey, Indian leaders of a band being sought by United States Marshal Nebeker and posse, has agreed to disclose their whereabouts, according to a dispatch today from Bluff, Utah.

According to report, Chief Polk was instrumental in the death of Duchy's brother, who was killed Thursday. Nebeker has been in pursuit of Tse-Ne-Gat, a Piute, and the other Indians for more than a week. Tse-Ne-Gat has been indicted by a Colorado Federal grand jury for the murder of a Mexican sheep herder. Duchy had taken no part in the affair until his brother was killed by some of the followers of Chief Polk, but he is now eager to avenge his brother's death, says the Bluff dispatch, and is on his way to join the Nebeker posse.

Railroads to Add Thousands to Their Pay Rolls.

Chicago Union Depots to Use a Large Number.

Big Construction Programme Begins this Season.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 27.—Good cheer prevailed among the army of the unemployed today at the news that the railroads of Chicago intend to add from 15,000 to 20,000 workmen to their pay rolls within the next three weeks. This, together with the plan to put a similar number of men at work on the new union depot and Pennsylvania terminal before the middle of summer and reports from the Bureau of Public Welfare of demands for labor, spread joy in the ranks of the unemployed.

The work of the railroads will be in full blast by March 15. The schedules of the railroads show that they have a heavy construction programme for the coming season, and that 50 per cent of the money spent in this class of work is to go directly for labor. Last year the railroads spent more than $6,000,000 on track elevation, subways and concrete and single roads employed as many as 5000 men at a time. More men will be needed this year than before and more money will be spent.

Financier Declares Only Standpoint United States Should Regard it from is that of Humanitarianism—Believes it has Put Unbounded Wealth in Our Reach.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Feb. 27.—The only standpoint from which Americans should regard the European war is that of humanitarianism. While we are sorry for the loss of life, the longer the war keeps up the more the country will benefit."

He had just arrived in Santa Barbara, coming from the East on the Santa Fe de Luxe for a sojourn in Southern California sunshine. He interviewed tonight Mr. Guggenheim fairly radiated optimism.

"I am a neutral in both war and politics," said he, "but I will tell you what we ought not to worry about. First, there's the war. We of the United States ought not to worry or only regret should be prompted by humanitarian motives.

"Materially, the war has put wealth unbounded within reach of the United States. It has opened the door of possibility such as we have never dreamed. Take copper and lead, just as an instance, in passing. The market is better now than before the war. Why? Because the big markets for these materials have opened right here at home.

"Instead of sending our copper and lead to Germany to be worked into articles to be sent back to us for our own use, the manufacturers of America are taking this material and we are now making our own articles of our own material. The American inventor and mechanic have no peer anywhere and in any line.

"The war is keeping at home millions on millions of good American gold which would have been spent by American globe-trotters in the south of France and Monte Carlo millions will mean an unprecedented era of prosperity.

"The tide of travel will set in with a strong current to Southern California shortly. It is only a question whether the State can entertain all who come, the crowd will be so great. The people who are coming are big spenders and I see a golden era ahead for this State. There is no doubt about it."

BAR ASSOCIATION WILL ASK JURISTS TO LECTURE IN UNITED STATES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The Executive Committee of the American Bar Association has reported favorably on the plan, broached at its meeting in Washington six weeks ago, to invite three leading South American jurists to this country at the expense of the association to study American municipal and penal institutions and to make addresses.

Three men will be selected by the diplomatic representatives of the South American republics. Their addresses will be delivered at a meeting of the association in the winter after which they will visit the principal cities of the country.

Alton B. Parker, in speaking of the plan, said the South American jurists and Ambassadors thought that it would promote good feeling and would readily result in material advantage.

BECKER'S LAST APPEAL.

Arguments to Secure Third Trial of Condemned Police Lieutenant Filed With New York Supreme Court.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Arguments to be presented to the Court of Appeals in the effort to obtain a new trial for Charles Becker, the former police lieutenant convicted for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, gambler, were made public today in a brief filed with the District Attorney by Becker's counsel.

Becker's lawyers base their plea for a third trial chiefly on the following contentions and allegations:

That Becker's guilt was not established beyond a reasonable doubt.

That his conviction was brought about by newspaper clamor, the connivance of the prosecutor and natural desire of the actual murderers for self-preservation.

That Becker's attorneys were not permitted to introduce at the second trial the written confession of Police Officer Charles Oroficl, known as 'Dago Frank,' one of the four gunmen electrocuted for the murder."

Testimony of several other witnesses, including Charles B. Plitt, Becker's former stool pigeon, and Lillian Rosenberg, widow of "Lefty Louis," one of the gunmen executed for the murder, is assailed.

COUNSEL'S STATEMENT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Thomas L. Chadbourne, Jr., special counsel for the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company, issued a statement in part as follows:

"The board of directors of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company has been for a number of days been in conference with repre sentatives of the largest bond-holding interests. These conferences have now reached a point at which every one feels confident that a harmonious outcome is practically assured.

"A concrete plan is in course of preparation and will be announced as soon as it has been approved by all of the interests that have been in conference, probably early next week.

Mr. Chadbourne said that if a re-organization for the Western Pacific is decided upon it would be of a character friendly to the various in terests involved.

SAN FRANCISCO STATEMENT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—W. G. Kerr, executive secretary of the Western Pacific Railroad, said this morning:

"The Western Pacific was thrown into in 1909 after many vicissitudes. Since then it has met its interest every six months, and during one year earned more than $1,000,000."

It was said at the offices of the Western Pacific that the interest to be defaulted is on the $50,000,000 of first mortgage bonds only. The issue of $105,000,000 of the second mortgage is not involved.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—A conference of the neutral powers of the world to sit while the war continues and mediate between the warring nations without the necessity of an armistice, was proposed today at the national conference of the Emergency Peace Federation by John A. Aylward of Madison, Wis., representing the Wisconsin Peace Society. The plan is known as the Wisconsin peace plan.

The sympathy, influence and aid of the American people are to be tendered nations involved in the European war and the cause of early peace promoted, it is said. The conference was attended by peace advocates from all parts of the nation. Jane Addams of Chicago was the chairman. The conference will close tomorrow night.

Edwin D. Mead, director of the World's Peace Foundation of Boston, in an address said that in the present war the neutral nations had been silent too long.

"Their representatives should meet in conference upon the common welfare and our own government should take the lead," Mr. Mead said. "We should take a strong part in the creation of peace.

"Our people must give definite and persistent thought to their opportunity and duty."

"The absence of women from the councils of state partially, if not largely, is responsible for the continuance of the plague of war upon earth," said Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue of New York.

"Is war cureless?" was the question he discussed.

The belief that man was born a fighting animal and must forever remain one he called "The most immoral of all moral heresies," and he viewed diplomacy's hidden ways as one of the ultimate causes not only of the present war, but virtually all wars.

"A substitute for war must be found and can be found," Dr. Wise said. "There must be some outlet for the passion of men to serve and strive together, some opportunity for the play of social instinct which burns within men and is ready to merge the interest of citizens in the interest of the country."

EXECUTE GERMAN AS A PILLAGER.

FRENCH ALSO ALLEGED AGAINST SAXON SOLDIER HE KILLED THE WOUNDED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

RENNES, Feb. 27 (via Paris.)—A German soldier named Carl Vogelgesang of the Twenty-sixth Saxon Infantry, a native of Esileben, has been sentenced here by a French court-martial to military degradation and death, having been found guilty of pillaging while under arms, of arson and of dispatching French wounded.

The principal evidence against this German soldier was the entries in his own diary, which was found on his person when he was searched after having been made prisoner by the French, the 15th of last September. Vogelgesang denied before the court that he had killed wounded men. He admitted the other charges, however, but declared he was acting under superior orders.

POTATO FAMINE IN BERLIN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Feb. 27 (via London, 8:05 p.m.)—Many Berlin families will have no potatoes for their Sunday dinner. Although it is expected that the removal of the restriction in the maximum price will soon result in the bringing in of a supply, the time has been too short as yet to permit this.

It was necessary to establish a police guard at many shops where potatoes were on sale, to prevent overcrowding. Only small quantities were sold to one person, at a price usually around 1¼ marks (about 30 cents) for ten pounds.

The Minister of Public Works has provided freight cars with which a supply of potatoes may be brought in quickly to Berlin.

PRINCETON GIFT, ONE AMBULANCE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Princeton University has contributed an ambulance to the American ambulance hospital in Paris, it was announced tonight. The subscription of $1100 was made up by undergraduates. Contributions to the American ambulance fund now total $346,451, it is announced.

DUTCH STEAMERS RESUME SERVICE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM (via London) Feb. 27.—Passenger service between Flushing and England, interrupted by the activities of German submarines, will be resumed Monday.

The number of passengers will be limited to 100 from Flushing and fifty from England on each steamer. Passengers will be required to sign declarations freeing the steamship company from all responsibility.

cause he wants to write about the war, as because he cannot stay away from trouble. He has already made up his travelling party from the boat. It includes an oil man, a steel man and the wife of a correspondent assigned to the Russian army. The tour will take seven or eight days from London if they have good luck—by steamer from Newcastle to Norway, by train to the Arctic regions of the Scandinavian Peninsula, forty miles by sledge to the Finnish railways and thence by train to Petrograd. The oil man intends to remain in Russia only two weeks, then back again by the same route, unless, in the meantime, the ice is broken in Archangel Harbor.

CRYPTIC REMARK.

Senator Young remarked yesterday in the presence of Capt. Dow, skipper of the Lusitania:

"It would be fun to make every one on board tell why he's going to Europe."

"I'm," said Capt. Dow, "I'm thinking you'd get some long passages of silence."

For we have a few mysterious passengers, who seek no smoking-room acquaintances and try to make themselves as inconspicuous as possible. I must be tantalizing; I cannot repeat some things I have heard, but there are two or three very pretty little spy games going on under the surface of life on the Lusitania. One of them, in fact, would make a Philippa Oppenheim novel-international intrigue, spy against spy. Just now, so far as I can learn, the allied spies are ahead of the game. I suspect that as soon as we land in Liverpool two or three of our passengers will disappear, not to be seen again until the war is over. It is lucky for them, indeed, that they are landing in England, instead of France or Germany. The continental nations imprison spies only long enough to get the firing squad ready. In this case—judging by what I have seen before—none of our passengers will ever see them arrested. It will all be done very quietly, but very effectually, and certain documents of vast import to the history of nations will go on their way unstolen and uncopied.

THE USUAL CONCERT.

We have been going through the motions of a regular voyage on a regular floating hotel: but we have had little heart for the game. The auction pool was a failure; the smoking-room gave it up on the fourth night. But the ship's concert became a live issue. The men who went down on the Cressy, the Aboukir and the Hogue were naval reservists, and as such came under the benefits of the Seaman's Fund. The mariners of England must take care of their widows and orphans. Jee Coyne and Frank Belcher started to make this the greatest concert ever held on the high seas. Fate counted them out, however. The cold sea air gave Coyne neuralgia, and Belcher, on the night of the biggest gale, was pitched from his berth and strained his ankle. However, Seton-Thompson, introduced by Senator Young as the greatest animal authority since Noah, impersonated the beasts of the forest, Elsie Janis imitated stage people until she wore out her voice, and an English conjurer favored. The collectors got almost £100.

THE IRISH CHANNEL.

Now we are rolling along the milky blue waves of the Irish Channel. These seas, in peace times so busy and frequented with craft of all classes, are now as barren and deserted as the open Atlantic. Since we passed Daunt Rock this morning we have sighted only one sail. We shall anchor in the Mersey tonight. Tomorrow morning, escorted by a guide cruiser, we shall zigzag through the mine fields into port. Before that the British authorities will have put us under formal arrest, that they may search the more readily for spies and secret agents. And the least imaginative among us will realize that we are entering a world at war.

Later: Now this, at the very threshold of war, illustrates the mystery which surrounds all things European in these days; perhaps it illustrates also what a world of rumor this has become. This morning, just off the Irish headlands, we slacked up and hove to. The wireless cracked busily for a few minutes, the sailors made some changes in our appearance, which I shall not mention for fear of the censors, then we proceeded again. At 10 o'clock the regular wireless news appeared on the bulletin board. It consisted merely of the official communiques. A little later, however, the rumor grew that ten British merchantmen were torpedoed yesterday by submarines in the English Channel. The stewards, when they talk at all, maintain stoutly that it is true. The officers just as stoutly deny it. We shall not know until the pilot brings the newspapers.

Says Sage Tea Mixed with Sulphur Restores Natural Color and Lustre.

Gray, faded hair turned beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night, is a reality, if you'll take the trouble to mix sage tea and sulphur, but what's the use, you get a large bottle of the ready-to-use tonic, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," at drug stores here for about 50 cents. Millions of bottles of "Wyeth's" are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin, have a surprise awaiting them, because, after just one application the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxurantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth, gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with the Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be amazed at your youthful appearance and the real beauty and healthy condition of your hair within a few days. Inquiry at your drug stores here shows that they all sell lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and the folks using it are enthusiastic.

NEW RAILROAD STATION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Feb. 27.—Advices have been received here that the Southern Pacific Railroad officials plan to spend upwards of $40,000 on the construction of their new passenger station and other incidental improvements at this station and that work will be started soon after July 1. The Railroad Commissioner's order for this work called merely for a station to cost not less than $25,000.

CHARGES AGAINST LAWYER DROPPED.

EXPLAINS PART IN AFFAIRS OF ALLEGED SWINDLER—IS SET FREE.

Dist.-Atty. Woolwine yesterday dismissed the complaint against Attorney A. G. Reily, charging him with obtaining money by false pretenses. Mr. Reily was accused of having been a member of an alleged ring headed by J. H. Wilson, the man with the "drooping eye," to defraud insurance companies. Mr. Reily explained his connection in the matter and the complaint was immediately dismissed. Dr. George B. Rowell of San Bernardino was released on $2500 bail on a similar charge.

Deputy District Attorney Keech, who issued the complaint, declared Mr. Reily is absolutely innocent of any wrongdoing and he deeply regretted that the complaint had been issued.

Mr. Reily declared that Wilson said his name was George Bates and Mr. Reily dealt with him under that name. A certain insurance company refused to pay $2500 to Wilson, alias Bates, as a result of an alleged injury to his left eye. Mr. Reily proceeded in good faith against the company and got judgment for his client—Bates. He did not know that Wilson and Bates were one and the same person until yesterday, when the complaint was issued.

TO OPEN NEW HOME.

A reception will be held tomorrow by the Emil H. Bluemel Company at its new home, No. 904 South Main street, to celebrate the opening. Music will be furnished and refreshments served. The concern has been located at No. 1102 South Main street.

CHARITIES PLAN NOT APPROVED.

DR. MILBANK JOHNSON SAYS IT'S REVERSION TO TYPE THAT'S NOT DESIRABLE.

Dr. Milbank Johnson, president of the Municipal Charities Commission, does not look with favor upon recommendations or suggestions recently made to the Board of Supervisors by County Superintendent of Charities Martin.

In discussing the subject, Dr. Johnson calls attention to the very undesirable conditions that would exist, from his point of view, were the Bethlehem Hotel and bathhouse to be used as suggested, and in summing up the entire situation, he says:

"When the great city of Los Angeles attempts a work of social economics, such as the caring for our unfortunate poor, I believe it should at least provide moral, hygienic surroundings and give them a chance at least to succeed.

"The demand that we turn over the United Charities to the county, having no voice in the care of our poor, no voice in the method or quality of relief offered is not consolidation, it is surrender.

"I should regret very much to believe that the city of Los Angeles, which has made the advance step of creating a Municipal Charities Commission, and which, in turn, has raised the standard of indorsement and efficiency of the various charitable and philanthropic institutions of the city higher than any other city of the United States, just for the worth of a few paltry dollars would surrender the work of a year and a half, and revert to the type and kind of charity heretofore offered by the county, and to revert to the impossible conditions found in the city prior to the organization of this commission."

Dr. Johnson believes that a public welfare commission should be appointed jointly by the Mayor of the city, and the Board of Supervisors of the county, and that this body should be composed of citizens not actuated by political motives. He urges that in all the philanthropic work undertaken there be a well-defined plan and purpose to the end that families may be reconstructed and made self-supporting and self-respecting.

Dr. Johnson also opposes the plan to have the city turn over to the county on or before July 1, the control of the two employment bureaus. He says he cannot see why the city should retire from this work, when the record for 1914 shows 28,860 positions furnished to unemployed persons. He says this is the best record of any municipal employment bureau in the United States, and that the cost of 24.2 cents per job is the lowest of which there is any record. Dr. Johnson urges the joint control of these employment bureaus.

He strongly condemns the proposed uses of the Bethlehem Hotel and baths as a municipal lodging-house, for sanitary and moral reasons.

SIT ON PET PLAN OF THE GOVERNOR.

ATTORNEYS DISLIKE BILL TO MAKE JOBS OF JUDGES APPOINTIVE.

Gov. Johnson's pet plan to have judges appointed by the Governor every six years instead of being elected by the people, as at present, was sat upon yesterday at a meeting of the Los Angeles Bar Association at at luncheon in the Clark. State Senator Chandler of Fresno introduced a constitutional amendment providing for the appointment of judges. It has the backing of the Johnson administration.

It was turned down by the local lawyers, although several championed it. A committee of five was named to study the proposition and report their findings at the next meeting of the association. Brief talks were made by former Judge Bordwell, Bradner W. Lee, W. J. Ford, Ernest Noon, Percy V. Hammon and other well-known attorneys.

What Does Your Mirror Say to You

If Your Face is Not Fair You Are Not Fair to Your Face. Use Stuart's Calcium Wafers and Banish Pimples, Etc.

Before beauty can ever be realized it must have a complexion that adds to its luster, that makes a magnificent face contour radiate an artistic color. The charm of all beauty rests chiefly in the clear skin, the pure red blood, the soft cream-like complexion.

"It is an Exquisite Joy to Look in My Mirror Now—Stuart's Calcium Wafers Gave Me Back My Clear Complexion."

Stuart's Calcium Wafers act directly upon the sweat glands of the skin, since their mission is to stimulate the excretory ducts. They do not create perspiration, but cause the skin to breathe out vigorously, thus transforming perspiration into a gaseous vapor. The calcium sulphide of which these wafers are composed consumes the germ poisons in the sweat glands and pores, hence the blood makes a new, smooth skin in a surprisingly short time.

You will never be ashamed to look at yourself in a mirror, once you use Stuart's Calcium Wafers. Nor will your friends give you that hinting look, as much as to say—for goodness sake, get rid of those pimples.

There is no longer any excuse for any one to have a face disfigured with skin eruptions, when it is so easy to get rid of them. Simply get a box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers at any drug store and take them according to directions. After a few days you will hardly recognize yourself in the mirror. The change will delight you immensely. All blemishes will disappear.

All druggists sell Stuart's Calcium Wafers at 50 cents a box. A small sample package mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

THE CHECKERBOARD OF THE WAR.

BY HARRY CARR.

No student of our Civil War should have much difficulty in understanding the conflict now raging in Europe. The two wars are remarkably similar.

Germany occupies the position of the Confederate States; the allies stand in the place of the North. Let the Russian-German frontier stand for Vicksburg and the operations along the Mississippi; let the French and English allies stand for the Army of the Potomac. When we look at the map of France let us see it as Virginia.

THE ANALOGY.

Like the Confederacy, Germany is attacked upon two sides; like the Confederacy, she has shown military superiority in the opening combats of the war; like the Confederacy, her ports are blockaded; like the Confederacy, Germany is now attempting to create a counter blockade by terrorizing the enemy's merchant marine.

Viewing this present conflict through Civil War spectacles, we are now standing at the place where the Confederate cruiser, Alabama, was sweeping the seas in spite of the blockade of the Southern ports by the United States navy. And the exploits of the Alabama were just as daring, brilliant and sensational as the adventures of the German submarines now throwing the British Empire into panics.

With reasonable surety we may follow this extraordinary analogy into the future and predict with considerable confidence the outcome of this war.

In the end, the superior naval forces of the United States drove the Confederate raiders from the seas. Thrown back upon the blockade, the Confederacy was finally starved into submission.

In spite of the recent brilliant achievements of the German army it seems plain that what happened in our Civil War is exactly what will happen to Germany. But before Germany is brought to her knees, the allies will be forced to the bludgeon policy of Gen. Grant—to fight, lose, fight again, lose again; but never let up until the foe is exhausted. In the end, the only way the allies can beat Germany is by a determined and simultaneous offensive in both the East and West that, once begun, is never relaxed. We must prepare our minds for an appalling butchery.

ON TOP.

Due to inferior team-work between the Russian and Western allies, the German army is at present on the crest of the wave. The best and most conservative military critics admit that the Russians have experienced a very severe and crippling defeat in the latest battles on the frontier of Prussia. Taken unawares by the genius of Gen. Von Hindenburg, the forces of the Czar have suffered such a whacking defeat that large bodies of German troops are now being whirled back across Germany in an attempt to drive a wedge between the allies in France before Kitchener's new army can take the field.

In the first stages of the war, the Russian fell down miserably in supporting the allies when the German battle line was driving down through France. In the latest stages the allies have lamentably failed to support the Russians when Von Hindenburg flew at the throats of the Cossacks. For some reason, it seems to have been impossible for the Russians in the East and the French and the English in the West to maintain a concerted action. The team work is so poor that Germany has been able to rush troops from one frontier to the other to meet each new attack.

The failure of the Russians in the first instance was due to the flanking attack by the Austrians. The failure of the French and English, in the latter phase, to support the Russians is due to two causes. The French aver that their supporting attack upon the German center in Loraine failed because the rise of the Aisne swept away the bridges and they couldn't move troops rapidly enough; also, the Russians did not give sufficient warning of the attack by Gen. Von Hindenburg in the vicinity of Augustowo.

The army experts ascribe the success of Von Hindenburg's "surprise attack," which has so sensationally turned the tide in favor of Germany, to the failure of the Russian spy system. It seems that we have been too much impressed by the black-whiskered Russian spy of the melodrama. The military experts assert that in real life he is a tame and inefficient person. Not only has the Grand Duke Nicholas suffered for want of an efficient "intelligence department," but the German generals have "put it all over him" on account of Germany's superior railroad systems in the Eastern theater of war. Von Hindenburg has such a wonderful system of military railroads that, wherever the Russian attacks, he is met by overpowering forces.

The most expert information now obtainable is that the Russians have lost huge stores of military equipment and supplies and that their recent operations have shown the Czar to be lacking in proper supply of trained officers. They will have a hard time to fill either loss.

If the blow-up of the Russian army has been as severe as it seems apparent, there is no possibility of the war being brought to any decision this year. Released from some of the pressure on the Russian side, the Kaiser has a sufficient force in the West to keep both the French and English very busy for some time to come.

We can expect the Germans to resume the offensive in France very soon in an attempt to embarrass the reinforcement of the allies by the so-called Kitchener army. Kitchener's army is likely to have a very strenuous introduction to the line of battle.

THEY ATE PIE.

The hoped-for superiority that these huge bodies of English volunteer troops were expected to give the allies will probably not materialize. Having abandoned the silly, ostrich-like policy of deluging themselves in bouquets of their own throwing, the allies are now found frankly admitting that they were unequal to the Germans in military science at the beginning of the war. The German heavy artillery was something they never had dreamed of. The Germans dug trenches so infinitely superior in design to the French and English that the allies ate humble pie and imitated them as best they could.

The allies now express the hope and belief that, having learned various lessons during the winter, they will meet the Germans on more equal terms this spring.

The French and English gun foundries are rushing new batteries of guns to completion; new levies of recruits are being hurried to the front. But it is not to be expected that these new armies with new weapons can develop the morale and efficiency of the Germans for another year.

In the end, it would seem that the German defeat is inevitably certain by the starvation route; but meanwhile, the allies are due for a tough time of it.

One of the great dangers that now seems to threaten the allied forces is a lack of harmony. In a recent review, Your

Times Auto Campaign Becomes Thrilling Race

Unprecedented Activity of Young Women Will Win Them Automobiles, Exposition Tours and Gold.

Surging upward and onward, never stopping to look behind where rivers are close at their heels, the candidates in "The Times Automobile Circulation Campaign" are rapidly forging towards the goal where a dozen automobiles, and numerous exposition tours to San Francisco and San Diego, are impatiently waiting to be claimed. The special prize offer, lasting until last Saturday night, at 9 o'clock, has brought forth a spirited battle, and the hundreds of young women in The Times territory are making it count for all that is possible.

With the presentation of the names this morning, together with their respective vote standings, numerous changes may be noted. New names are seen on top, and still other names make their appearance for the first time. Hardly a contestant but has made her efforts during the past week count materially in her favor, while not a few of them have leaped the gauntlet from the bottom to the top.

The facility with which this was accomplished may be attributed to the special vote offer, whereby thousands of extra votes can be added with a little more work than usual. Subscriptions have been coming in to the Campaign Office in a steady stream, while the mails also had their full quota. Each of the sixteen districts, comprising The Times territory, seems to have its large share of ambitious and attractive femininity, that will, in spite of all, move forward at a rapid rate.

It may be observed also, that the $200 in gold, to be divided into three prizes, and given to the three young women who turn in the largest amounts in subscription payments, is proving a most thrilling incentive. Gold is perhaps the most desirable commodity one could wish, and the manner in which the contestants are striving to win this gold, leaves room for speculation. However, many have been gazing at the Fashion Show on Broadway of late, and vacation folders seem to have become more popular.

The cake may be handed to one particular contestant, however, who agreed to the Campaign Manager that she would use the gold to buy gasoline for her automobile, next April! And that is by no means impossible, for the candidate who, during the course of this special offer will amass votes in such high numbers, as it is possible to do, will have an automobile indeed near her grasp. It requires only a trifle more assiduous subscription getting, and consistency, and that is exactly what hundreds of candidates are displaying never before.

Their desires to win the gold are strengthened by the fact that all the extra votes they win will place them that nearer to the big prizes, awarded at the end of the campaign, on April 10. It is but a short time until this period of all campaigns closes, and efforts that are brought to bear now will have their fruitful effects later on.

The little ten-vote coupons are being gathered industriously, as well as the free-vote coupons of larger denominations that appear from time to time. Today, for instance, a free coupon good for fifty votes is printed.

Though only new subscriptions will count in the special vote and gold offer now in progress, this should not deter candidates from securing as many old subscriptions as possible. The old subscriptions may be turned in at all times, and, although they do not apply on the special offer, will bring the regular votes, as given in the schedule below.

No doubt a number of candidates, in soliciting subscriptions, discover that the parties are already taking The Times, or, perhaps, are subscribers to another paper and do not wish two papers at one time. In the event they are already Times readers, no doubt it would be easy to secure their subscription payment, beginning at the time their present subscription expires. Again, where people are taking some other paper, find out when their subscription runs out, and, if possible secure their subscription to The Times, with instructions to begin delivery then. An accurate record is kept in such cases, and subscriptions can commence at any time.

In no case, however, should candidates insert on the receipt blanks or on their stubs, the date to which the subscription is paid.

Candidates should invariably mark correctly, whether a subscription is "OLD" or "NEW." A thorough investigation is made of each subscription sent or turned in by contestants, and where it appears that "old" subscriptions were intentionally been marked "new," the votes applying thereon will be forfeited. Positively no deviation will be made from this rule.

Details of the special offer are given on this page, showing the manner of distribution of the gold, and how the thousands of extra votes may be secured. It offers extraordinary opportunities for new candidates, who, either have just commenced or have not yet sent in their nominations. The time limit is for one week more. By next Sunday surprises may be expected on all sides, for candidates are availing themselves of its limitless chances to do good with one sweep.

Subscriptions need not be withheld until just before the close of the time. At the Campaign Headquarters, on the second floor of the Times building, accurate account is kept of each and every subscription turned in, and candidates should send in their subscriptions as they are secured. Where one or more clubs are secured, according to the conditions, special vote ballots will be mailed as soon as the offer closes.

THE SPECIAL OFFER

The candidate turning into the Campaign Headquarters the largest sum of money on subscription payments to the Daily Times, wins One Hundred Dollars in Gold. The second highest sum turned in entitles the candidate procuring same, to Seventy-five Dollars in Gold. The third highest sum wins Fifty Dollars in Gold.

For every club of NEW subscriptions to the DAILY Times, turned in to Campaign Headquarters, totalling five years, a special ballot good for 50,000 votes will be given. For every club of NEW subscriptions to the Daily Times, aggregating two and one-half years, a special vote ballot good for 25,000 votes will be given.

Clubs may be built on subscriptions not less than three months in length. Cash must accompany subscriptions.

This offer positively ends Saturday, March 6, 1915, at 9 p.m.

JOY RIDING IN THE TIMES BUILDING.

Five vivacious members of The Times staff couldn't resist the temptation to climb into the Chalmers Touring car, and were caught with the goods. 'Tis well the gasoline tank was empty, else the car would probably have been kidnaped. It will be given as the Capital Prize in "The Times Automobile Circulation Campaign," and, according to the girls, is "some" car.

The standings below include all votes received at the Campaign office up to noon yesterday. All votes tabulated on Burroughs Adding Machine.

CONSTIPATION, COLDS, HEADACHES, REGULATE YOUR BOWELS! 10 CENTS.

Furred Tongue, Bad Cold, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and constipated bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, severe colds, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and make you feel cheerful and bully for months.

Don't forget your children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too, occasionally.

PROGRAMME MEETS WITH APPROVAL.

CONVENTION PLANS ACCEPTED BY COMMITTEE.

Representatives of the National Realty Association Tell Local Board to Go Ahead with Fine Entertainment Schedule Already Submitted.

The programme outlined by the Los Angeles Realty Board for the big convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges, to be held in this city, has been accepted without change by the Executive Committee of the association. Information to this effect has been wired to the board by Herbert L. Cornish, one of its vice-presidents, who is in attendance at the association's Executive Committee meeting in Memphis, Tenn. Mr. Cornish will report in person to the board this week.

The convention programme calls for the holding of all business sessions in Trinity Auditorium, where also will be displayed the exhibits of the various delegations. Monday, June 21, will be given over to registration of delegates at headquarters in the Alexandria Hotel; a meeting of the board of managers and the Executive Committee and the calling of the convention to order in Trinity Auditorium by President Thomas Shallcross, Jr. Addresses of welcome will be made by Gov. Johnson and Mayor Rose, greetings extended by Senator Lee C. Gates and the board's address of welcome made by President W. W. Mines. In the evening, at the Shrine Auditorium, there is to be put on "The Days of Forty-Nine," a get-together stag affair with the clock set back sixty-six years.

Tuesday morning will be devoted to business, the ladies meanwhile taking automobile rides through the residence section and having luncheon at Hotel Virginia, Long Beach. That day the secretaries of realty boards will have luncheon at the Los Angeles Athletic Club as guests of the local realty board. In the evening they will attend the "Mission Play" at San Gabriel.

On Wednesday there will be a business session in the morning and an automobile tour to Pasadena and to the nearby beaches in the afternoon. In the evening a unique and beautiful entertainment for all delegates and ladies will be held on the grounds surrounding the homes of a number of the most prominent people of Los Angeles. Two entire city blocks will be closed to traffic and the grounds, with their sub-tropical foliage, will be brilliantly illuminated.

Thursday is to be devoted to business.

On Friday the delegates and ladies will be taken through the orange grove section of Southern California in automobiles or special electric trains. The party will comprise at least 5000 guests. Luncheon will be served at the Mission Inn at Riverside. The trip will cover more than 145 miles over paved boulevards.

Saturday the delegates and ladies will visit Catalina, returning in time to take special trains and special steamers for San Diego. From there, a trip north will be made to San Francisco by special trains, with stops at Bakersfield, Fresno and other places of interest.

RECLUSE KILLED IN AUTO CRASH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WHITTIER, Feb. 27.—Traveling along the county highway without a light, Carl Winsel, a bachelor recluse of La Habra, was instantly killed shortly after dark this evening when the buggy in which he was riding was crushed like an eggshell by a heavy truck driven by S. O. Day of No. 759½ East Fourteenth street, Los Angeles.

The accident occurred only a few hundred yards from Winsel's home. Day was unable to see Winsel's rig till within a dozen feet of it, being blinded by the lights of an approaching touring car. His heroic effort in skidding his wheels and ditching the big truck was of no avail, Winsel being horribly crushed. The truck belongs to P. M. McCormack of No. 1417 Griffith avenue, Los Angeles, and was loaded.

The owner notified officers here and later, learning that the scene of the accident was in Orange county, he notified the Coroner of that county. So far as is known Winsel had no relatives here. An inquest will be held Monday.

ANOTHER BOULEVARD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, Feb. 27.—Three miles along Fremont avenue, the main thoroughfare connecting Los Angeles and the country to the south and southwest, will soon be added to the seven miles of paved streets now within the city. A large proportion of the necessary 51 per cent. of frontage has already been signed up. Fremont avenue, when paved, will once more regain her share of Pasadena and Los Angeles-bound traffic, lost since the completion of the Fair Oaks-avenue paving one block west.

Collision.

MOTOR TRUCK RAMS BUS; TWO INJURED MAY DIE.

WHEN dusk stopped a jitney bus in the highway at Ninety-sixth and Main streets for lamp lighting a motor truck, hurrying cityward, rammed the smaller vehicle, carrying seven passengers, and so severely injured two that the surgeons at the County Hospital, where they were taken, report little hope for life. The other passengers returned to their homes with minor abrasions.

Dan J. Morgan of No. 234 West Eighty-third street was the owner and pilot of the jitney bus, operating between the harbor and the city. He was bringing a load of Slav laborers to Los Angeles when he made the tragic stop. Mr. Morgan was lighting his front lights with the rear unmarked in warning when the truck, driven by Fred C. Bell and owned by the Buckhorn Feed and Fuel Company, No. 2847 West Pico street, ran head-on into the standing bus.

The passenger car was entirely wrecked, the top being tossed into a neighboring field. Mr. Morgan was uninjured. He was first to dig up the debris from his passengers. Two who were in the back seat, Sam Samole of No. 327 South Glenn street and Elick Holoboff of No. 143 South Buchanan street, were struck by the nose of the truck that broke through the rear of the passenger car. They suffered fractures of the skull and other broken bones. They were taken at once to the County Hospital for treatment.

Other passengers slightly hurt are Nick Ednoff, No. 153 South Utah street; John Pivoroff, No. 307 South Buchanan street; Halock Padoloff, No. 171 South Clarence street; George Georgoff, No. 321 South Beaudry avenue, and Joe Menill, No. 171 South Clarence street.

The truck was undamaged and the driver uninjured. Reports were made to the Sheriff's office.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD.

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or, as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

LEAVES FEDERAL POST.

James M. Sheridan, late special assistant to the Attorney-General, tendered his resignation of the above-named office a couple of months ago, to take effect March 1. He had originally entered the field service of the General Land Office in July, 1908, as a special agent, and was assigned to the State of Colorado, where he conducted the coal land fraud investigations for the government in Southern Colorado and Northern New Mexico, the territory occupied by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, the Victor Fuel Company and the American Smelting and Refining Company, together with many lesser coal companies. His headquarters were then at Trinidad, the present scene of difficulties between the Rockefeller interests and the labor unions.

After about one year's work in this field, Mr. Sheridan was designated as attorney to conduct the famous Cunningham Coal cases of Alaska, succeeding the notorious Louis R. Glavis, who shortly after preferred charges of misconduct against the Secretary of the Interior, Richard A. Ballinger, and subsequently was the principal witness of the Pinchot forces in the Congressional investigation that followed. It was about this time that Chief Forester Gifford Pinchot was removed by President Taft. After a majority report of the joint Senate and House Committee had acquitted Mr. Ballinger of any charge of wrong, Mr. Ballinger retired from the Taft Cabinet.

While in charge of the Alaskan coal cases, Mr. Sheridan took testimony at various points throughout this country, and was finally sent to London, Paris, Rome and Naples, before completing the record, as some of the defendants had left the United States and were then residing in Europe. The special commission sent abroad for this purpose on behalf of the government was composed of William J. McGee, special commissioner, and Mr. Sheridan as counsel for the government. Lawyer E. C. Hughes of Seattle, a prominent attorney of Washington, represented the defendants, both in the United States and during the European investigation. As the result of these proceedings, all the Cunningham coal lands were restored to the government; and it was shortly after the termination of that trial that Mr. Sheridan was appointed chief of the field service, with headquarters in Washington, from which point he directed all public land investigations conducted by the General Land Office through United States and Alaska for more than two years. During his tenure of office as chief of this field service, Mr. Sheridan was further more called upon to appear before various committees of Congress, having to do with public land matters, as one of the representatives of the Interior Department in urging appropriations and legislation in the interests of the government.

In October, 1912, Mr. Sheridan was appointed special assistant to the Attorney-General by Atty.-Gen. Wickersham of President Taft's Cabinet, and assigned to the division of Public Lands in the Department of Justice. In November, 1912, Mr. Sheridan came to Los Angeles, where he has since maintained his field headquarters. From here he has represented the government in a number of suits, all of which related to the public domain. He has assisted in oil-land litigation in California and Wyoming, his time being given principally, however, to the conducting of specific suits assigned to him at the time of his appointment, all of which matters have been disposed of.

It is Mr. Sheridan's intention to specialize in public land-fraud matters before the State and the Federal courts, and in the departments in Washington—also before Congressional committees having to do with the public domain.

Mr. Sheridan is optimistic concerning the development of our trade relations with Mexico, Central America and South America, and it is his purpose, when conditions are right, to specialize in legal practice relating to those countries also. During his residence of about six years in the Philippines, under the Taft regime, he frequently appeared before the island courts, investigating titles to military reservations in the southern part of the archipelago for the government. As all of such work had to be conducted in the Spanish language, Mr. Sheridan's experience in that regard will be of use to him in conducting his Latin American practice.

Checkerboard of War.

former Minister of Public Works of France, states the probable terms that the allies will demand in the event of Germany's defeat. The most remarkable feature is that they seem to constitute a studied effort on the part of France and England to give Russia the double cross and make her like it.

PROPOSED DICKER.

In brief, the proposed terms are:

An indemnity to be paid to the allies and to Belgium by Germany.

In the East, Russia is to get Constantinople. As this would imperil England's route to India, Mesopotamia and the valleys of the Euphrates and Tigris are to be ceded to Great Britain. Syria is to become a French possession. Thus Russia is to be neatly hedged in from any access to India. She will be face to face with a closed gate.

On the ground that Austria has always been a disturber of traffic, M. Guyot says that the allies will completely break up that empire. The ancient kingdom of Bohemia will be rehabilitated with the German provinces of Austria as the basis.

A new Poland is to be created, extending from Dantzig on the Baltic Sea south to Cracow in Galicia. This would divide Prussia so that the Prussian King, in order to visit his city of Koenigsberg, would have to go by sea.

The apparent object of the allies in casting these terms is to make Prussia the weakest of the German States and to create a big buffer between Russia and the rest of Europe. These terms, of course, may never get any further than the writings of the French Minister; but they show, at least, the profound suspicion with which the other allies regard Russia; also their desire to accompany the laurels of Russian victory with a stout pair of handcuffs.

The present activities in the Dardanelles certainly have a political cast as well as a military significance. The French and English bombardment shows that these two countries are unwilling to let Russia walk unattended into Constantinople. England, especially, bears in mind the words of Peter the Great, who urged his people to grab India; and, in the opinion of many strategists, the gateway for Russia to enter India is by way of Constantinople.

The Russian people will never be satisfied until the Czar has said his prayers in the Mosque of St. Sophia, the home of the Russian religion; but the other allies are equally determined that he shall get no further than the mosque, and that he shall not say those prayers in the Moslem fashion—looking toward the East.

OLD WARRANT GIVEN SERVICE.

FORMER HOTEL PROPRIETOR IS BEING HELD ON WHITE SLAVE CHARGE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 27.—Fred W. Isch, formerly proprietor of the Roanoke Hotel in this city, has been arrested on a warrant issued here several months ago involving a white-slave charge, and he has testified before the grand jury in connection with the investigation into the saloon-license question.

It is said that Isch's saloon in the hotel block was one of those in which graft charges figured, involving the police and Council. The probe is secret. Isch, it is declared, parted with $600, and the grand jury wants to know what it was for. The Roanoke Hotel bar was closed for a short period and was then reopened.

Isch was alleged to have figured in the Skaggs white-slave charge, on which Skaggs was released at his preliminary hearing a month ago.

NO PRIMARIES.

Owing to the fact that none of the candidates for city offices filed petitions seeking partisan nominations, there will be no primary municipal election in San Bernardino. Mayor J. W. Catick has made this announcement, following the expiration of the time for filing the petitions.

Mayor Catick's was one of the documents turned over to the City Clerk, for he seeks re-election to office. He is opposed thus far by George H. Wixom, Chan W. Smith, Orlis Kennedy, C. W. Boswell and C. R. Davidson.

The names of John Andreson, Jr., and H. M. Barton have been brought forward for the Board of Education, the terms of J. L. Mack and W. C. Seccombe expiring in May. Mack will be a candidate to succeed himself.

FIELD DEPUTIES.

County Assessor E. J. Gilbert has announced his field deputies for the gathering of the 1915-16 assessment: J. E. Mills, Redlands; F. J. Taylor, Mission; L. A. Desmond, Highland; Walter D. Evans, San Bernardino; J. H. Scott, Etiwanda; Pedro Domenigoni, Colton; W. D. Hoover, Rialto; T. L. Brown, Cucamonga; J. H. Riley, Chino; J. C. Caldwell, Ontario; P. T. Tonneson, Upland; Forrest G. Phillips, Victorville; H. E. Bennedict, Needles; Grant McIntyre, Del Rosa; Allen Kelley, Agua Mansa; C. A. Shattuck, San Bernardino.

Charges Naval Attache Had Caused His Trouble.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 27.—That Richard T. Stegler, arrested on the charge of fraudulently obtaining an American passport, was reported to the United States Secret Service agents by persons in the service of the German Emperor after they said they had become convinced that he was in the employ of the British secret service, was the story told in German-American circles today.

Stegler, according to these reports, not only tried to involve Capt. Richard Boy-Ed, the German naval attache, and George Sylvester Viereck, editor of The Fatherland, but also sought to get in touch with Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, personal representative in this country of the Kaiser. In this he failed, Viereck seeing him only in the presence of witnesses and Dernburg being "out" when Stegler called at his office.

Speaking on the matter of the German high in the confidence of Count von Bernstorff, said the report probably had its origin in the fact that the German government had been making a most exhaustive inquiry into the charges made against Capt. Boy-Ed, its naval attache, independent of the report made to it by his chief the Ambassador.

This inquiry, which has now been under way for several days, according to this authority, already developed many startling things. When completed, it will put matters in an entirely different light than have the stories emanating from Stegler.

The value to the allies, however, of anything that might involve Dr. Dernburg in conflict with the laws of the United States is easily apparent. Destroying, as it would at once the great prestige which this former Cabinet Minister has enjoyed since he came to America, and his value to its enemies.

Another section comprising seventy-four acres, lying east of "Anoakia" is to be subdivided also. The elevation of this tract permits of a most charming view and will lend itself admirably for the building of handsome homes. Still another tract containing 225 acres of wonderful woodland, lying west of Mrs. Baldwin's home, will be placed on the market, known as "Court de Santa Anita." It will be the most wonderful of all. It will be cut up into five and ten acre lots and no one person will be permitted to purchase more than two lots.

Not a tree in this tract can ever be cut. While surveyors are busy laying out the tract they are also counting the trees.

Mrs. Baldwin will draw for the landmakers her own idea of how it should be laid out. With its wonderful scenic drives and with every type, gas main, electric wires and everything else laid underground according to the latest methods, she always once built will never have to be torn up again.

In the building of these roads no trees will be cut down, and nothing will be allowed which could possibly offend the eye.

MAKING ADJUSTMENTS.

Although the country in in a very unsettled condition because of the European war and because of unstable legislation, the people are beginning to adjust themselves to conditions and soon be faring pretty well, is the statement made by Henry A. Blair, Chicago traction magnate and chairman of the board of the United Railways Company of Chicago, who arrived here yesterday. Mr. Blair, who came a week later than scheduled, is stopping at the Raymond. Here he joined Mrs. Blair and his daughters.

When speaking of the jitney business, Mr. Blair smiled and said he knew nothing about them except what he had read about those in California. "Last week some one did come to the city endeavoring to have an ordinance passed allowing them to operate these busses, but I don't think they will succeed in putting it through. Even if they are allowed to operate, I don't think it will pay in Chicago."

Mr. Blair is of the opinion that business conditions would have probably cleared some time ago had it not been for the war. "A state of uncertainty will prevail now, however, until the close of the conflict, and when that time will come is a matter of great conjecture.

"The people don't know which way to turn. They do not know what to expect. Before the war legislation brought this feeling of uncertainty about and it has greatly increased because of the conflict."

Mr. Blair and family will remain in Pasadena until some time in April.

PASADENA, Feb. 28.—With the opening of the great Baldwin estate, the market another great residential district rivaling beautiful Oak Knoll with magnificent homes will be added to Pasadena. Here, where grand trees abound, and which must not be disturbed, magnificent homes will be built.

This will probably be the most gigantic enterprise ever undertaken in Southern California. It is to be an exclusive paradise laid out for the rich, and equipped with great wealth. ough the country is in a very condition because of the ean war and because of unstable ions, the people are beginning ust themselves to conditions and ot be faring pretty well, is the ment made by Henry A. Blair, hicago traction magnate and ber of the board of the United ays Company of Chicago, who here yesterday. Mr. Blair, ame a week later than sched- is stopping at the Raymond, he joined Mrs. Blair and his autiful daughters.

ken speaking of the jitney bus Mr. Blair smiled and said have nothing about them except he had read about those in York. "Last week some one did to the city endeavoring to have ordinance passed allowing them operate these busses, but I don't they will succeed in putting it . Even if they are allowed to , I don't think it will pay in ong."

Mr. Blair is of the opinion that ean conditions would have prob- ly cleared some time ago had it not for the war. "A state of uncer- will prevail now, however, un- the close of the conflict, and when time will come is a matter of conjecture.

"People don't know which way turn. They do not know what to . Before the war legislation with this feeling of uncertainty and it has greatly increased be- of the conflict."

Mr. Blair and family will remain Pasadena until some time in April.

CITY BRIEFS.

Mrs. Louis Heck of Chicago, moth- er of the former Mrs. Marshall Field, Jr., arrived in Pasadena yesterday. She is accompanied by her father, Henry Botsford of Chicago, and Mrs. Bernard Hoffman of New York. Marshall Field, III, and his bride are visiting in California and will likely join Mrs. Heck at the Green Hotel, where she has a suite of rooms.

E. B. Strong, a prominent director of the Bank of the Republic of Chicago, who has been at the Green for more than a month, is seriously ill, having suffered a complete breakdown. He is nearly 80 years old and his friends are much concerned over his condition. He is now at the Pasadena Hospital.

Walter Jennings, a stockholder in the Standard Oil Company of New York, is in Pasadena for a few days, having come here in his private car, Advance. He is accompanied by Mrs. Jennings, their two daughter and his two sisters and two servants. They will go to San Diego Monday and later will visit San Francisco.

Every tourist visiting California should see Grace Nicholson's famous Pasadena oriental sales rooms and gift shop. It is the most beautiful shop in the West.—[Advertisement.

CONTRACT AWARDED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COLTON, Feb. 27.—After opening thirteen bids for the construction of the handsome new grammar school building to be erected on the Lincoln site, the school trustees decided to award the contract to the lowest bidder, the Nance Phelps Company of Los Angeles, for $50,383. Their submitted bid of $49,355 was for a lime-brick face and soft brick in the other walls, while at the advance price solid lime brick walls will be used altogether. The award calls for the contract to be signed up in ten days and the structure to be finished in 160 days thereafter. The contracts for the plumbing and heating of the building were not let. The bond issue voted upon was for $80,000. Allison and Allison of Los Angeles are the architects.

CHARITY DOESN'T PAY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EAST HIGHLANDS, Feb. 27.—That the act of the good Samaritan is not a paying proposition in this city is the belief of E. Jones of this place. A tramp called at the home yesterday and asked for something to eat. It was given him and he went his way. A short time later it was discovered that a fine blanket robe and two pairs of heavy blankets were missing. These were stored by the thief for the time being, rolled up in canvas, under a bridge not far away. Some one in passing the bridge noticed the queer bundle and investigated, the stolen articles being returned to the owner later.

GIVEN NAVAL HONORS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 27.—Full naval honors were today accorded the bodies of Lewis Schaub and Ralph Cotner, sailors of the U.S.S. San Diego, who were victims of the accident on the United States destroyer Whipple Wednesday. By the unexpected turning of the Whipple's propeller, the two men, who were in an auxiliary boat, were struck and drowned. A guard of honor, the band from the San Diego and 200 sailors escorted the body of Cotner to the Santa Fe dock where it was conveyed to the Point Loma Cemetery by the army steamer Lieut. Harris. The body of Schaub will be sent to his home in New Haven.

OUR ORANGES RUN GAUNTLET.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COLTON, Feb. 27.—Local citrus men are intensely interested in the fate of a carload of oranges shipped from this city yesterday to London. The fruit, Washington navels, was sent out by the Colton Fruit Exchange. Last year they shipped four consignments across the water, but under peaceful conditions. Thus the fruit shipped yesterday is largely an experiment and a speculation.

All manner of experiences lie ahead. There is a possibility that when the car reaches New York, no vessel will be available, or rates will be too exorbitant, or the blanket prohibition of the exportation of foodstuffs now hinted in Washington, will be an accomplished fact. Then if the consignment does get to sea there is the possibility of the carrying vessel being torpedoed or struck by a mine.

Long Beach.

WOULD REMOVE ALL RAILROADS.

Long Beach Seizes Horns of Traffic Dilemma.

Street-speaking Ordinance Goes into Effect.

Police Still Looking for Bold Robbers.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Feb. 27.—City Councilmen set themselves a huge task last night when they ordered suit before the Railroad Commission to compel three railroads operating here to remove their tracks, stations and service to the harbor district. The complaint is directed against the Southern Pacific, Salt Lake and Pacific Electric roads.

The city complains that the trackage, trains and depots of the roads were placed over a score of years ago when Long Beach was nothing but a hamlet; that they now cause inconvenience, congestion and noise in the business district, and that the interests of the railroads would be better served if their tracks and stations were removed to the harbor district.

It is hoped that the building of a large and handsome union station will result from the suit. The complaint is directed chiefly at the Salt Lake, which occupies with tracks, sheds and stations many blocks of ocean frontage and residence district.

It is stated that all three of the railroads, anticipating such a move by Long Beach, have acquired frontage on the harbor and acreage near by for their yards and stations, should the State Commission find against them.

ORDINANCE OPERATIVE.

The street-speaking ordinance went into effect at 4 o'clock this afternoon. At that hour there were no speakers near the pier, but tomorrow the police are expected to see that the usual Sunday gathering of mouthers move on and cease their talk.

The Salvation Army officers in a letter written to the Council regrets that they can no longer hold street services, but assure the officials that they are willing to pull for a cleaner, and better Long Beach. A subscription list is now being circulated in an effort to make up to the Army what they will lose in voluntary contributions for a time.

BEACH BRIEFS.

The police have come to the conclusion that the two bandits who robbed the Pacific Electric station Wednesday night and who, by an oversight, slipped through their fingers, are the same who attempted to hold up a Southern Pacific train at Saugus a few weeks ago. There is a reward of $4000 on the heads of these men, and the local police officers are chagrined over the loss of both reward and men.

Orra W. Cole, a painting contractor, fell from the roof of the three-story Alission apartments this afternoon, but escaped serious injury. He fell down the airshaft to the cement floor, sustaining a broken left ankle.

ABANDON ARCH PLAN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Feb. 27.—The archway which the Chamber of Commerce and some citizens have believed to be vitally necessary to the city, which was planned for erection at Sierra Vista, will for a while, at least, be abandoned. After reading a communication that had been addressed to them by the members of the Wednesday Afternoon Club, backed up by arguments submitted by Mrs. A. C. Wheat and Mrs. F. D. Jones, about the only thing left for the Chamber of Commerce to do was to put the question of the archway to a vote. This was done and those opposing the project were so greatly in the majority that the plans for the structure will not be carried out.

NEW ROCK CRUSHER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Feb. 27.—W. L. Hodges, president of the Pacific Rock and Gravel Company, announces that a new rock crusher will be erected between Monrovia and Duarte. This plant will be started March 1 and will be completed some time before the first of May. It will be smaller than the plants of the company now in operation between Monrovia and Azusa, but will be modern in every detail. It will be operated entirely by electric power, furnished by the Southern California Edison Company.

GOES TO JAIL, LACK OF BAIL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Feb. 27.—Nicholas Perry, the youth who was arrested last night and identified as the man who had attacked little Catherine van Denberg, is tonight resting in the City Jail, imprisoned this afternoon and held in default of $5000 bail. Last night Perry was given into the custody of his brother, Paul Perry, but today the police decided to hold him safely behind the bars.

Today detectives found that Perry wore shoes the size of which correspond with prints found near the scene of the affair last night. Although young Perry denies the charge, he is apparently unable to give an alibi, only saying that when the affair happened, he "was just down town."

OFFICIALS NEED MORE FACILITIES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Feb. 27.—The Board of Supervisors has started an investigation of architects and builders to see if it is feasible to add two stories to the Courthouse. It is found that the foundations will stand the additional weight and the beauty of the sandstone structure be maintained a contract for the additional stories will probably be advertised in July. The present Courthouse was built in 1910 at a cost of $100,000. At that time it was thought that the Courthouse would do for many years to come, but the growth of the county and its official life has crowded the building to its limit. Several offices have been located in the basement.

WOMAN SEEKS OFFICE.

Mrs. Olive Lopez has entered the race for City Treasurer. So far she is the only woman candidate who is out for any of the offices to be filled at the city election on April 12. So far she has no opponent.

The principal feature of the campaign up to date is the number of acndidates out for City Clerk. City Clerk C. D. Lester will not run. Those who have already taken out nomination papers for the place are G. B. Brown, A. P. Dresser, E. L. Vegely, C. S. Shaw, F. S. Trickey, C. P. Mattern and Cecil DuBois. P. L. Tople, E. E. Hardy and M. L. Lane are expected to take out nomination papers soon.

FLOWER SHOW DATE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SIERRA MADRE, Feb. 27.—The Annual Flower Show Committee has decided to hold this yearly event on April 8, 9 and 10. The intense interest displayed in this coming fete indicates that it will be larger and better than ever. Already many applications have been made for entries. The Board of City Trustees donated $250 and the Board of Trade $50. There have been other offers of financial aid and a large harmonious working committee has been selected among the club women and business men. A much larger space has been arranged for the exhibits than formerly.

MONROVIA ELECTROLIERS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Feb. 27.—In celebration of the completion of Monrovia's new electrolier system, an impressive automobile parade and programme will be held next Monday night, when at 7 o'clock, the lights will be turned on. The electroliers will illumine Myrtle avenue, Monrovia's principal business street, for a distance of ten blocks, between the Foothill boulevard and Huntington drive. The Keystone Iron Works secured the contract for the electroliers for $6688. There are sixty-five globe standards, four at each street intersection and two at each alley.

The Harbor.

BIG SURPRISE ON NOB HILL.

Councilmen Wondering How Assessment's Made.

Hearing in Two Weeks may Reverse Things.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Feb. 27.—Four City Councilmen expressed their amasement over the damage awards and assessments made by the Board of Public Works in the Nob Hill improvement district today after going over the ground carefully and hearing the protests of property owners. The assessment district was formed to pay damage awards amounting to about $17,000 on account of the cut through the hill for the improvement of the Harbor boulevard.

The district includes only the property fronting on the boulevard and intersecting streets. Three-fifths of this is owned by the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, which would pay under the assessment made by the Board of Public Works about $1000. The remaining two-fifths of the frontage would pay about $16,000. After their inspection of the property the Councilmen heard the protests of property owners at the City Hall in San Pedro.

DOESN'T LIKE ITS FACE.

"On the face of it I don't like the looks of this," declared Councilman Roberts. "Perhaps the Board of Public Works can explain its action, but, for the life of me, I don't see how they can do it." Councilman Wheeler took a similar view and cited the fact that out of 266 individual owners only sixteen had filed damage claims, the remainder having waived all damages on the ground that the improvement was a benefit rather than a damage to their property.

"Mathematically this assessment is an impossibility and cannot in any way be justified," said Councilman Conwell. Councilman Snowden also expressed his displeasure with the assessment and called attention to the benefits to property because of the Bunker Hill cut, where property owners were ready and willing to pay assessments as high as $1600 a front foot for similar improvements.

The name of President Handley of the Board of Public Works was used freely during the hearing and he was severely criticised by several of the property owners.

REVERSE OPINIONS.

"When some of the property owners came to the City Hall and told us about the damages and assessments in this district we thought their statements were extravagant," said Councilman Wheeler. "We could not believe that such an assessment had been made, but today we find that none of the complaints were extravagant. We find that most of the property owners, through a motive of public spirit, have waived damages and they have been taxed to pay damages awarded to a few others."

The improvement district is unusual in that none of the property is assessed to pay the cost of improvement. The assessments are to pay damage claims only under the 1913 act, the entire cost of the cut and paving to be paid for from the harbor bond funds in order to afford the first link in the approach to the outer harbor. For the second link, suits were filed about four years ago to condemn property used by the Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific for railroad yards, but these suits have never been pressed.

POSTPONED HEARING.

Formal action on the protests against the assessment district will be taken at the postponed hearing set for March 10. Members of the Council strongly intimated that they will order a new assessment map and possibly refuse to allow any damage claims except to cover cost of moving improvements.

The steamship company filed no claim for damages, and it is said the Board of Public Works let the company off easily on this account. No such consideration was shown other individual owners who did not ask damages.

REDONDO BEACH PLEASURE PIER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, Feb. 27.—The City Trustees have issued a call for a meeting to be held Monday night at the City Hall, at which time it is expected they will pledge themselves to place the municipal pier at whatever location the voters shall decide it should be placed.

This action was decided upon after the voters placed a request before the Board of Trustees saying that, before voting on a bond issue of $121,000 they would like to know where the pier is to be, and to have some assurance that it will not be placed at an undesirable point.

The question of the location of the pier will be decided by either a straw ballot or by petition to the Board of Trustees. At present the site most talked of is Pier No. 1, now owned by the Pacific Electric. This property can be purchased for $17,500, and $5000 to remove an oil pipe line.

A committee, consisting of Trustees Thompson and Hembree, has been appointed by the board to confer with the Pacific Electric officials relative to the tentative proposition of purchase the pier. The company also desires to reserve concessions now on the pier.

The committee is instructed to inform the company officials that the city will not buy the pier, but merely the approach to it, will not pay anything for removing the pipe line, will not grant the company any concessions on the proposed pier, but will permit the company to retain its water pipe line for the bath house.

FLAGSHIP WINS TARGET HONORS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 27.—The United States cruiser San Diego, flagship of Rear-Admiral T. B. Howard, commanding the Pacific fleet, stands first in turret gun and torpedo practice in the United States navy. This result was attained by the San Diego in the target practice concluded Thursday night on the range near the Coronado Islands. The standing was announced today by Lieutenant-Commander F. N. Freeman, executive officer of the San Diego.

In the elementary practice the North Dakota of the Atlantic fleet made a final merit mark of 60. The new dreadnaught Texas of the same fleet earned a mark of 49, giving it third place. The San Diego is second with a mark of 53. The figures for the San Diego was worked out from the scores made by the South Dakota and Texas, which were available to the officers of the warship for the purpose of determining its standing.

In the turret-gun practice with eight-inch guns the crew of the forward turret made 100 per cent. of hits, being more than three and one-half hits per gun per minute. The performance gives the crew the Spokane cup, held last season by the Arkansas. The high scores made won about $2000 of the navy prize money which will be distributed among the crews.

BAKERSFIELD MANAGER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Feb. 27. — J. R. Williams has become the first City Manager of Bakersfield under the new charter now in effect. His term of office will last only until the first election is held, which will be seventy days hence. Williams was chosen by the old Board of Trustees, which is holding over only until the election is held. He was himself a member of the board, from which he resigned to take the office of manager. The board fixed the salary at $250 a month. At the same time the board elected Trustee F. L. Gribble Mayor to succeed the late W. V. Matlack, and chose L. V. Olcese to Matlack's place as Trustee. No successor to Williams as Trustee has yet been chosen. The board elected all the old officials to serve until the new Council takes office.

Ocean Park.

WOOD CHOPPERS USE TWO WAYS OF SWINGING AXE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OCEAN PARK, Feb. 27.—Shivering under the blasts of the ocean wind that sweeps down the coast with chills to the marrow, a lone deputy constable is standing guard over a wood pile out on the sand between the promenade and the water's edge. He watches over the pile of sticky split wood, but not a stick is allowed to burn, for the whole pile is under attachment.

Mrs. Dorothy A. Johnson McCarthy, who at the present time is awaiting the outcome of her suit in the Superior Court against Rev. C. S. Maddox, pastor of the Baptist Church, on charges of libel, is the defendant, and the men who have hauled up the piles that were wrecked by the storm last week are the complainants.

Two men sues for groceries. Another for wielding the axe; while another bent his back to the crosscut saw. All need the money, yet they cannot collect it, so they say. One husky chopper said that he had worked on the wood pile for nearly a month and had about $38 due him, and had so far been paid only about $10.

E. H. Carter, a colored teamster, filed the first complaint on the 16th inst. for $31, the charge for hauling up the piles which were washed in by the high tides. The attachment was released on promise of Mrs. Johnson McCartney to pay, but later Constable I. W. Minger had to reattach the shifting pile of timbers, on the 26th, in Judge A. A. Weber's court.

The next man up was A. H. Bradley, a grocer of Santa Monica, who wants money due him for groceries and other goods, and, he says, "I am a laborer, just the same as the men who chopped the wood, and I need the money."

And as a result of the attachment made today the wood pile on the beach will not diminish for a few days. The wood has been selling rapidly and the men who were chopping it saw the cash come in, but failed to get their share, they say.

"Me for 'GETS-IT' When I Have Corns"

Simple as Saying It; Never Fails.

It does your heart good to see how easily and quickly any corn comes out when you put "GETS-IT" on! And then when you've gone along for years trying everything, when you've sat up nights wrapping up your toes in bandages, smearing on salves that rub off or swell up the corn, pasting on cotton plasters that make corns pop-eyed, slaughtering your toes with razors, jabbing them with knives and pruning to the quick with scissors—and then you put on 2 drops of "GETS-IT" and see your corn fall right off—why, it just looks like a miracle. Just try it. "GETS-IT" never fails. No pain, no trouble. Use it for any corn, callous, wart or bunion.

Demoralizing False Alarms.

Traffic was demoralized, and practically all of the down-town fire apparatus was called out yesterday afternoon by two false fire alarms, one from Eighth and Hill and the other at Sixth and Hill streets. The two alarms were sounded at fire headquarters within five minutes. A "false alarm fiend" has for two weeks been confining his efforts to the outlying districts of the city. The ringing of the alarms yesterday caused the business section to be without protection against fire almost ten minutes, while all of the apparatus was tied up in the maze of congested traffic along Hill and the intersecting streets.

BRINGS STIRRING MEMORIES OF WAR.

MAN WHO TOOK MONEY TO HELP AMERICANS IN EUROPE VISITS HERE.

James L. Wilmeth, chief clerk of the Treasury Department of the United States government, was a visitor in Los Angeles last night, leaving this morning for Washington on his way from the San Francisco exposition.

Mr. Wilmeth was the man appointed by Secretary McAdoo to take charge of the appropriation made by Congress to help the American citizens stranded in Europe at the outbreak of the war. Within twenty-four hours after the appropriation was passed Mr. Wilmeth was en route for London on the Tennessee, having in his charge two distinct funds; one the government money to be expended on any American in need of financial aid, amounting to $1,500,000; and the other a fund sent by private individuals to friends and relations in the war zone, aggregating between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Mr. Wilmeth was not only made custodian of these funds, but he was also authorized to establish a force with headquarters in London, a clearinghouse where all financial aid was systematized and centralized, and where information could be secured as to the location of Americans throughout Europe, and aid given them to reach their homes.

Many interesting experiences, some humorous and some pathetic, came under his observation during the three months he spent in London, Berlin and The Hague. He was in Paris at the time the French government was removed to Bordeaux, and was the means of rendering aid to many Americans in France at that stirring period. At The Hague Dr. Van Dyke, United States Minister to The Netherlands, had, upon his own responsibility, authorized a bank to advance $20,000 to Americans in need, and of this sum Mr. Wilmeth has been able to collect and refund to the government all except $2.50, so he thinks well of the honesty of those who were helped to reach home.

Stock, formerly of Medford, Or., has just started a bungalow in the tract and A. S. Svenson is about to start a home.

Peruna for Colds

Stubborn Cough

Cold on the Chest

Thick Yellow Sputum

Mr. H. E. Waterman, Brooklyn, Wis., writes: "I had a very peculiar cough for several months, the result of a cold on my chest, and I finally became aware that I had catarrh of the bronchial tubes. Every night and morning I would cough and raise a thick, yellowish matter which was very disagreeable. I took medicines which were prescribed for me, with little or no effect, and as my trouble grew worse and worse I became very much discouraged. The druggist advised Peruna, and as I had noticed it advertised quite freely, I thought I would give it a trial. I soon found that it was doing me a great deal of good, and I took only a few bottles before I was perfectly well. I feel very thankful to Peruna."

Those who object to liquid medicine can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

DO YOU BELIEVE IN LUCK?

The popularity of Good Luck Charms or Talismans was never so great as it has been since this war. The miraculous escapes of some of the Indian soldiers who are now fighting in France, and their getting off with some trifling wounds in their arms, has to a great extent satisfied the doubting ones that there must be something good in the Talismans which most of them carry around their necks.

These "Ki-Magi" Amulets are rather rare in this country, but an enterprising importer of antique curios has succeeded in collecting a few of them and will send one postpaid to anyone upon receipt of one dollar or a collection of seven All Good Luck Amulets for business, speculation, etc., for three dollars. If you wish to secure these Talismans write at once to Sheriar, Dept. 7-R, No. 5 Groenedal Str., The Hague, Holland. Be sure and affix a 5-cent stamp on your letter.

(Official Report.)

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Feb. 27.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 30.08; at 5 p.m., 30.05. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 52 deg. and 60 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 90 per cent.; 5 p.m., 9[illegible] per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., north, velocity 5 miles; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 8 miles. Highest temperature, 69 deg.; lowest, 50 deg. Rainfall for season, 14.56 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS. — The weather in the New England States remains under the influence of the depression which is located over the North Atlantic coast, but the temperatures are slowly falling owing to the proximity of the Canadian high area. Freezing temperatures are general from Tennessee and New Mexico northerly and from Nevada and Idaho eastward. Snow is falling in many places in Idaho, Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas. The western low area drifted toward Texas, where it is stationary. Moderate precipitation resulted in Arizona, Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana. The heaviest rainfall, 1.86 inches, is reported from Galveston. Rain is falling along the Pacific Coast from Seattle to Eureka. Aside from intervals of cloud, the weather in Los Angeles and vicinity will continue fair for another thirty-six hours.

LOCAL FORECAST.

For Los Angeles and vicinity: Generally fair Sunday; northwesterly winds.

For California south of the Tehachepi: Increasing cloudiness Sunday.

STATE FORECAST.

Deputy City Prosecutor Resigns, Another Appointed — Withdrawal Requested or Made of Free Will?

Samuel Garrett, deputy City Prosecutor, resigned his position yesterday afternoon and Frank W. Richards, a local attorney, was appointed in his place by City Prosecutor Williams.

According to Mr. Garrett, he was asked to resign by Mr. Williams. He was appointed shortly before the resignation of George L. McKeeby. Mr. Williams denied the statement of the former deputy and said that he was welcome to stay as long as he desired, but resigned to go into private practice.

"I have no criticism to make of Mr. Williams's action," said Mr. Garrett. "I believe it is his intention to get all the men out of office that served under Mr. McKeeby and I am among the few that were left. I will be glad to go back into private practice."

ACCUSED, SHOOTS SELF.

Brooding over financial troubles, Edward J. Ferlin, 28 years old, a blacksmith, shot himself in the head with a revolver late yesterday afternoon and is dying at the Receiving Hospital, according to Dr. Roome, who examined the wound. The tragedy occurred near Markham and Tropico streets, a few blocks from the Ferlin home, No. 2117 Baxter street.

Mr. Ferlin had been employed until a few days ago in a blacksmith shop at Vernon. According to F. F. Ferlin, his brother, he was discharged and then rehired. Later trouble arose over collections and Ferlin brooded over what he considered aspersions on his character.

The Better Way.

[Rochester Herald:] A cotton dealer in Galveston, angered by the boosting of ocean rates, bought two steamships and is loading them with cotton for Europe. That shows a better spirit than sitting down and whining because the government won't do something for him.

THE COLONIAL MINUTE MAN.

Now Claimed They Were the Same Class as the Soldiers of Present War.

[New Republic:] We have all been taught in our school histories that the minute-men of Lexington were a disorderly mob. Emotionally we are convinced that no such ragtag and bobtail could have been an American citizen need do is to put down his gun and shoot the first tumultuous invader of our shores.

Let us examine the historical evidence that underlies this myth. What was the real matter of fact, were the minute-men of the revolution? They were called out at large whom the provincial congresses and the committees of safety of 1774 instructed to hold themselves in readiness to shoot. They had had no military training, no practice except in shooting at the mark and small game.

They went down to defeat in the first feat; they were chronically ill-armed and supplied with ammunition; they were hardly more than an armed mob. Until men like Lafayette and Steuben took them in hand, and drilled out the ragged and unnecessary hardihood, and made them into seasoned troops, they were not well within the modern definition of snipers and franc-tireurs. The British army of invasion would [illegible] shift to such roadside [illegible]

After Four Years.

LAST OF INDICTED DYNAMITERS NOW IN JAIL IN LOS ANGELES.

Caplan Says He Would Kill the President Tomorrow if Commissioned To— Schmidt Flippant in Talk. Johannsen Hires Defense Lawyer.

MATTHEW A. SCHMIDT AND DAVID CAPLAN, the last of the labor-union officials under indictment for dynamiting the original Times Building October 1, 1910, and murdering twenty loyal men, were brought here yesterday. Schmidt is in the County Jail cell formerly occupied by J. B. McNamara, and Caplan is in Ortie E. McManigal's old cell. Both blame their arrest on a woman. Caplan says he is innocent. Anton Johannsen is active in the case.

Caplan, who was arrested in Port Orchard, Wash., reached Los Angeles under heavy guard shortly before noon. He was rushed to the County Jail in Sheriff Cline's private automobile. Ten minutes after his arrival Anton Johannsen, general organizer for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, called on Caplan. Strict orders had been given forbidding Caplan to talk to anyone but his attorneys for the first few hours of his incarceration. There was a slip somewhere and Johannsen walked into the jail and started a conversation with Caplan in a dark corridor.

The Chief Deputy District Attorney observed in the jail and noticed Johannsen whispering in low tones to Caplan. He touched the laborite boss on the shoulder and requested him to depart. Johannsen left the building. He laughed and gloated over the fact that he had reached Caplan "before the ——— muzzled him."

JOHANNSEN'S TALK.

Johannsen, with a strong odor of liquor on his breath, boasted that neither Caplan nor Schmidt would "come across." He viciously arraigned Clarence Darrow and declared that "Caplan and Schmidt will have a human being for a lawyer and not a sentimental ———." He said "Darrow is a ——— and would have been convicted if it hadn't been for some of his friends. He got off lucky, and he knows it. He is against everything but himself."

"These ——— are crazy if they think either one of these fellows will come through," continued Johannsen. "Their philosophy will keep their mouths shut. I got it straight that Schmidt made a dub out of Burns in New York.

"They don't want Caplan or

MELVILLE CLARK APOLLO Player Piano

Musically Perfect

The Apollo has a beautiful singing tone of unsurpassed quality. Some experts claim that this tone stands as a challenge to all other masterpiece pianos.

It is the one player-piano that has charmed music lovers away from the belief that music to be real must be played by real human fingers, therefore—

If you view your new player-piano purchase in the light of a permanent investment, you never will permit yourself to buy until you dig under the surface for the facts—note these exclusive Apollo features—

The Metronome Motor—the Dynastyle—the Solo—the Down Touch—you'll find them all in the Apollo.

This advertisement can at best tell only a part of the story—the rest is in the music of the Apollo itself. Accept our invitation to call and let us give you a practical demonstration. Then decide.

CARRY AWAY WHOLE STORE.

Thieves with Truck Even Take Vegetables on Display in the Window.

Thieves carted away a whole store Friday night. They drove a truck to the rear of the grocery of J. H. Rykoff at No. 502 Amelia street, and loaded the truck to capacity.

When Mr. Rykoff opened up the place yesterday morning, he thought he was in the wrong store. The interior was as bare as his hand. Even vegetables he had had on display in the window were missing. A barrel the thieves had taken from the cellar but had been unable to get through the window, remained. There was little else worth mentioning. The stock was worth $2000.

FARMS CARVED FROM DESERT IN SOUTHWEST AT SO MANY A DAY.

Reclamation Work Now Under Way Deals in Areas the Size of Many States and Creates Land Values in Lumps of Hundreds of Millions at a Time.

WHEN GOD MADE THE DESERT He flung down a challenge to Man. This challenge Man accepted on the banks of the Euphrates ages ago. But all that Man did in past ages to make the desert fruitful sinks into insignificance beside what is being done today in the Southwest, where the U. S. Reclamation Service and private interests are carving out rich farms from sagebrush at the rate of four a day—an achievement of tremendous import.

projects are so typical of present and intended masterful solving of problems of disarranging nature's plans so as to unleash locked-up stores of water for putting fructifying life into desert soil.

All told in a rather circumscribed Southwest today—Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico—800,000 acres of land are being brought under irrigation at a cost of $20,000,000. 655,260 acres of which are under government reclamation projects.

More salient is that 13,425 farms, it is estimated, will be carved out of the acreage being reclaimed by the government alone; elbowroom, a living, and something more for nearly 70,000 persons. And the work is but in its infancy, for the Reclamation Service dates back only to 1906, and the limits of its activity are only those of human ingenuity.

For instance, it is estimated by Frank Adams, irrigation manager in charge of work in California for the United States Department of Agriculture, that there are 6,079,325 acres of land in Southern California alone susceptible of irrigation and but 745,486 irrigated.

AT OUR DOOR.

An addition to the irrigated area, however, is to be shortly made at our door through plans of residents of San Fernando Valley, working with the city, to apply aqueduct water to 90,000 acres of land in the sunlit valley at a cost of over $2,000,000.

Aside from government projects, this San Fernando irrigation scheme is the most important now under way or shortly to be started in the Southwest. But the fact that the San Fernando Valley cannot be called desert in any sense of the term—has, in fact, been accustomed for a century to produce bountiful crops without other irrigation than that from the sky—prevents plans for its better watering from being accepted as typical of work along this line in the Southwest as a whole.

Moreover, in Southern California, climate has been an asset that has gone a long way towards securing capital with which to solve agricultural problems, though government aid is now being sought for work in the Victor Valley and portions of the Mojave Valley. Consequently, the outstanding reclamation projects in the Southwest at present are those of the government. They are numerous and striking.

Take the Colorado River project. Aside from the Cyclopean dam that has been thrown across the river, another engineering problem of moment in connection therewith is the mammoth syphon that carries the water from the California canal to the Arizona side of the river, for the topography of the land back of Yuma is such that there was no feasible canal route on that side of the river.

UNDER ITSELF.

Sunk in some cases 130 feet below the surface of the river, is a fourteen-foot steel tube. This tube is 930 feet in length and it accomplishes the unique purpose of carrying the Colorado River's own water under itself. By a unique clarifying scheme at the Laguna dam headings, the water is drawn off with but a small supply of silt in solution. A portion of it is preserved, a mathematical proportion, moreover, as this silt is depended on to keep the reclaimed acres perpetually self-fertilized. It is the silt of the Nile, in other words.

Drawn from a drainage basin of 229,000 square miles of area, including seven States, the water of the Colorado River diverted at the Laguna Dam is now being used on 17,000 acres of land in the Yuma Indian Reservation in California, and 20,000

Alleged dynamiters and murderers and last of the gang to be captured, who were brought to Los Angeles yesterday, the former from New York and the latter from Seattle. They are under indictment for the destruction by dynamite and fire of the original Times Building, in which the lives of twenty loyal men were sacrificed.

ELECTION SUIT FAILS UTTERLY.

JOE SCOTT'S RE-AMENDED COMPLAINT FINALLY THROWN OUT OF COURT.

When Joe Scott for the third time failed yesterday to allege sufficient cause of action in a complaint filed for Virginia M. Clopton and others asking that an election of the Los Angeles Investment Company be annuled on the ground of irregularity the case was thrown out of court by Judge York. The general demurrer of the defendants was sustained without leave to the plaintiffs to amend.

The complaint presented yesterday was materially different from those which were found defective at previous sessions. Those alleged that all votes cast after 6 o'clock p.m. on the day of the balloting were illegal. Yesterday the plaintiffs advanced the contention that votes cast after 10 o'clock the following morning should be thrown out, alleging as a reason that a motion was made to close the polls at that time and that the president of the meeting refused to put the motion.

L. W. Jutten and W. K. Tuller, for the defendants, argued that this is not a case where any stockholder was deprived of a vote and contended that unless it could be shown or alleged that votes cast after the hour named affected the result no adequate cause of complaint could be made. Judge York sustained this position.

A recess of twenty minutes was then taken to give the plaintiff's attorney opportunity to amend. When court reconvened Mr. Scott stated that the plaintiffs would adhere to the complaint as it then stood. Special demurrer of the defendants was withdrawn and the general demurrer was sustained. Mr. Scott will take the case to the Supreme Court.

[Joe, acting as his own attorney, has brought two libel suits against The Times in the past three weeks. Huh!]

HAPPY COLLISION.

Long Lost Brother and Sister Meet at Hotel Where Both are Employed.

A brother and sister who were separated at the time of the San Francisco fire and have conducted a wide search for each other in vain bumped into each other at a corner on one of the floors at the Alexandria yesterday. Both had been employed at the hotel for several months without either being aware that the other was under the same roof. The happy young persons are Eddie Ward and Myrtle Ward. He is a bellboy and she is employed in the linen room.

There had been a call from a guest on the eighth floor for ice water and Eddie was making fast time down the hall when a girl with an armful of linen turned the corner.

"Excuse me," begged the bellboy after the collision.

The girl didn't reply but just looked at him. Then one exclaimed "Myrtle!" and the other "Eddie!" She dropped the linen and he put down the pitcher of ice water for the embrace that followed.

Spanning the Colorado River, ten miles north of Yuma, the government, some months ago, completed work on the key unit of a diversion project whose cost to date, with 271 miles of canals and laterals, has been $7,054,947. It is the Laguna Dam, masterwork of the Reclamation Service, 4780 feet in length, forty in height, 260 feet in width up and down stream, and composed of 441,732 square yards of material.

From its headgates, two canals branch out, one on the Arizona, the other on the California side. These at present carry water to 90,000 reclaimed acres, land that, within even the memory of many who are scarcely of school age, was formerly as barren, as desolate as that through which the children of Israel wandered, "going up out of Egypt."

Eventually, the reclaimed acreage will be extended by 40,000 additional acres, creating, all told, as the Reclamation Service figures out, 4000 self-supporting farms. True, some may be disposed to point out that in the Imperial Valley, 330,000 acres of the "desertest desert" have been reclaimed by private interests and made taxable to the extent of $75,000,000 or more.

A LEVIATHAN.

But the counter-objection to comparisons predicted on this Leviathan among reclamation projects is that it is not typical of what has been done in the Southwest, and will be increasingly done, to carve homes from desolation. It is in effect an isolated phenomenon, something in the way of wonder works that will probably never again be paralleled, while the Yuma, the Salt River, the Rio Grande

"Silver Sheen."

FROM OVERALLS TO SPLENDORS.

Every Man on Oil Lease to Wear Tailored Suit.

As Reward for Bringing in Paying Well There.

Woman Owner Fills Promise to Twenty-eight.

By the grace and profit of an oil well that flows 650 barrels a day, twenty-eight men of Armsworth, the entire male population of the village, will appear smartly dressed in tailored suits of "silver sheen," every man alike. Together they will appear in church in Coalinga, and after church, they will stroll along the street of that town, the most unique parade of Easter styles that California has ever known.

The patroness who provides the suits is Mrs. Kate Armsworth, an English woman, who had oil holdings of value in the Coalinga region. Recently, luck has not been attendant upon her. One well was drilled on the lease, and it provided less than 100 barrels of oil each day. Another well was provided, and that furnished less than 200 barrels of oil a day. And then the third was drilled, and is was but little better than the second.

Conditions in the Armsworth finances made it necessary that a successful well develop soon. So activities upon a fourth were begun. As it neared completion, indications of oil were encouraging. As every oil man said, the thing looked good. But others had looked good. As the day for the final development came closer, Mrs. Armsworth became nervous.

THE PROMISE.

Wednesday she went to the derrick and asked how things were progressing.

"It looks like a cinch," the superintendent said.

"Boys," said Mrs. Armsworth, and she spoke so all could hear her, "if this well goes over 500 barrels a day I'll buy the best tailor-made suit I can get in Los Angeles for each of you."

"That means every man on the holdings," Mrs. Armsworth defined.

Thursday morning the well came in. It came with a gush and then settled down into a steady flow of 650 barrels.

And Friday, Mrs. Armsworth took a census of the male population in the little settlement of Armsworth, as the place is called. Her pay roll said but twenty-six men were there, but the actual count developed twenty-eight, and she let the two stowaways come into the sartorial splendor that is to develop for Easter Sunday.

Then Mrs. Armsworth came to Los Angeles to select the material for the clothes. As she strolled along Spring street she saw gray materials on display in the drapers' windows.

ITS REDEMPTION.

Then she walked into a shop and said to the man who received her: "I want to buy twenty-eight suits of clothes."

He looked at her sharply.

"A suit of clothes did you say, madam?"

"I want to get twenty-eight suits of clothes," she said again, "and all of the same material."

The clerk asked to be excused. He went to the telephone and summoned the proprietor, who was at his other store.

"There's a woman here who wants twenty-eight suits of clothes all alike, and I thought I'd call you before I called the police."

The proprietor went to investigate and remained to sell. Mrs. Armsworth selected a shade of material called "silver sheen," which is considered very fashionable. She bought four bolts of it, material enough for twenty-eight suits, and a tailor leaves tonight to take the measurements.

The contract Mrs. Armsworth made provides that the suits shall be delivered before Easter Sunday, that the gladness of raiment may be displayed that day in Coalinga. And she has named the new and profitable pell "Silver Sheen."

Trinity leaders.

Rev. R. P. Howell (top,) presiding elder of the Los Angeles district, M. E. Church, South, and R. C. Mitchell, president of the Board of Stewards of the "million-dollar church," who will help direct an "extension" campaign which will add several new features to the work of the unique religious institution. The movement will begin with a banquet Tuesday evening which will be attended by a number of prominent citizens.

Mrs. Kate Armsworth,

Selecting "silver-sheen" goods yesterday in a Los Angeles store and arranging to have her workmen well tailored for Easter, thus fulfilling an unusual promise.

CHURCH PLANS TO EXTEND SPHERE.

MEN OF TRINITY TO START CAMPAIGN WITH BANQUET TO TWO HUNDRED.

An extension campaign which will add several new and important features to the work of Trinity Church and will involve the raising of a fund of $75,000, will begin with a men's banquet at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the banquet hall of the church. Invitations have been issued to 200 men, many of whom are prominent in business and professional life in Los Angeles.

The campaign, which has a number of unique features, will be managed by a committee composed of Rev. R. P. Howell, presiding elder of the Los Angeles district, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, chairman; Rev. Charles C. Selecman, pastor of the church, and J. Landrum Graham, lyceum manager for the church. The committee will have the assistance of R. C. Mitchell, president of the board of stewards, and other church leaders.

Mr. Selecman will preside at the business part of the meeting Tuesday evening. Bishop R. G. Waterhouse will be toastmaster at the banquet. Following are the names of the speakers with their subjects:

Ex-Lieut.-Gov. A. G. Wallace, "All Things are Yours;" Senator F. P. Flint, "Los Angeles Leads;" J. G. Warren, "The Church and Social Service;" Ben Pearson, "The Other Fellow;" A. B. Cass, "Conservation of Humanity;" Mr. Selecman, "The Downtown Church," and Mr. Howell, "Our Opportunity."

Following the campaign, the social service department will be strengthened. Free daily organ recitals will be given, probably at the noon hour. The present series of Sunday afternoon sacred recitals will be continued and a fifteen-number lyceum course will be added.

Beginning March 13, a chautauqua to last one week will be given. Following will be some of the talent: Bishop Hughes, Bishop Bell, Dr. Locke, Rev. Matt S. Hughes, Rev. William Lee Greenleaf, Helen Keller, Woman's Symphony Orchestra and Los Angeles Oratorio Society.

"Trinity was not erected to foster any narrow sectarian idea or for the purpose of serving a select few, but to minister to the whole city," Mr. Howell declared yesterday. "This makes our work take much of the nature of a public enterprise. As a result of the extension movement the work of the institution, now broad, will be broadened."

POLITICAL TIPS.

President Wilson is said to be looking forward with relief to the adjournment of Congress this week, because of the danger of international complications on the account of the action of Germany and England. He fears that in the event of an American ship being destroyed with loss of life some hot-head in Congress like Hobson will demand such immediate action that it will seriously affect the neutral position of the United States. Under the circumstances there is no danger of an extra session of Congress, and the business of the country will therefore have an opportunity to obtain a little rest. Congress has been in practically continuous session since Wilson's inauguration.

The defeat of the primary bill in Illinois after Mr. Bryan's threat, was a hard slap at the Chautauqua statesman. It was also a bang at Senator Kern, who telegraphed the Legislature that "the greatest Democratic President since Jefferson urges it; Bryan, the best loved American Democrat, advises it." Neither Kern, Bryan, Wilson or any other influence prevailed. The proposition was defeated and defeated badly.

The friends of Gov. Willis of Ohio, who are pushing him forward as a Presidential candidate, have advised him to make a tour of the country in the dual role of an Ohio product and a candidate for the Republican nomination for President. The proposition is to fit up a special train with specimens of live stock, grain and fruit and send it to the San Francisco exposition, stopping at towns on the way, and let Willis be a side exhibit to prove that Ohio raises something besides live stock and agriculture products. As Willis is a big, broad-shouldered man of 250 pounds weight he would certainly make an attractive part of such an exhibit.

The voters of Oregon evidently do not appreciate the franchise or it would not be necessary to attempt the enactment of a bill to provide for compulsory voting. Such a bill is now before the Legislature and provides that a permanent card index of all registered voters be made, and that a man remain a voter so long as he exercises his suffrage. If he fails for two years to do so, the county clerks are to be required to drop his name from the registration list. This automatic disfranchisement might have a good effect, and the people of other States will be glad to watch the result. Let Oregon go ahead with the experiment.

Many a freak thing has come out of Kansas, but the most freakish proposition is now trying for a chance to be presented to the Legislature of that State. It provides for the creation of a board of farmers' supervisors, who are to see that each farmer provides a bathhouse equipped with hot and cold water for the benefit of the farm hands, including a bathrobe and slippers for each man, and that each farm hand shall take a bath at least once a year. In the summer time awnings are to be provided in the fields, so that no farm hand shall be overcome by the heat. Each farm hand is also to be provided with an individual drinking cup and tooth brushes, and water must be served from sanitary water pails. There are several other "up-to-date" provisions in the bill, which would require every farmer to have a kind of millionaire revenue in order to provide everything for the protection and comfort of the poor farm hand who will be forbidden to work more than eight hours a day.

In the city of Boston, Mayor Curley has asked the Legislature to revoke all authority which the city possesses to borrow money, except for rapid transit purposes, and permitting an increase in the tax rate of $2, the additional tax levy to be used for purposes for which loans are now authorized. The city is now paying $5,000,000 interest a year, and the Mayor says that if the city goes on in the way it has been, it will have paid out in eight years, in interest, on the increased debt an amount equal to the $2 increase in taxes, but in the plan he proposes, the city will have discharged all its debt, except that outside the debt limit, in fifteen years, and will be debt-free, and on a sound financial basis. The proposition is a radical one, as municipalities have been in the habit of letting future generations pay a portion of the improvements made for their convenience and necessity.

The first veto written by Gov. Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania clipped $100,000 out of the general deficiency bill of $575,000. Among the items included were reductions in the executive department as well as the legislative and administrative branches, among which items was the entire appropriation for additional officers and employees of the House and Senate, $25,000 for each, which he bluntly dismissed as unnecessary. The Legislature now knows where he stands on the question of graft.

The difficulty experienced in fixing up an equitable scheme of taxation is emphasized by the removal of Charles R. Crane from Chicago to his summer home at Woods Hole, Mass., because of the taxes that would be assessed upon him this year had he remained a resident of Chicago. Heretofore a large part of his wealth has been invested in the stock of the Crane Company. Stock of this character is exempt from taxation, but recently he changed his stock to bonds of the company, which are taxable, and he found that if he remained a resident of Chicago, his taxes would have been as much as his income, so he has moved out of the State. Last year he paid $30,000 in taxes, which amount will be lost to the Chicago treasury hereafter.

Recently Mr. Bryan put his private secretary, Manton M. Wyvell, into the job of counsel for the International Commission with a salary of $5000. Congress has now refused to appropriate any money for Mr. Wyvell's salary, and it looks as if the Secretary of State would have to try again for a fat job for the young man.

President Wilson is quoted as saying that the present tariff law thoroughly satisfies him, from which it would appear that he will not favor any change, even though bonds have to be sold to replenish the revenues of the country. Such an event happened during the Cleveland regime when the expenses of the country far exceeded the revenues.

The Nebraska State Senate wants to know why the Lieutenant-Governor should put his 11-year-old son into the job of page with the salary of a clerk, $3 a day. Moreover the compulsory school law of the State is violated by the Lieutenant-Governor's action.

The women voters of Chicago are in trouble, because they must tell their age when they register as voters, and it is said that thousands will refuse to register for that reason. The right to vote is thus of less interest than the suppression of knowledge of the age that is concealed beneath the powder and rouge that adorns the cheeks of a large proportion of the women of today. And yet the women are expected to be a balance wheel in political matters.

It has not been customary in Massachusetts for a defeated candidate for Governor to be a candidate a second time, but it looks as if Samuel W. McCall will violate this precedent. He accepted the nomination by the Republicans last year when defeat was evidently certain, but he made so good a run that the most prominent Republicans in the State are asking him to again be a candidate this year when the prospects for a Republican victory appear very certain.

A rumor comes from Washington that a movement is on for the hyphenated Americans to form organizations to fight the present administration, because of its attitude on neutrality toward the warring nations of Europe. Thus the war is to be injected into politics and we are to be given tangible evidence of the character of loyalty of the naturalized Americans, who have come to the United States for the betterment of their condition.

It isn't strange that the big men of Los Angeles do not seek the job of Mayor. What might commonly be regarded as a "big" man is not anxious to take the position except at great sacrifice to himself, because of the fact that it holds no power for him, gives him less authority than a Councilman, and in fact makes him nothing short of a figurehead.

If we were to run a beauty contest for Mayor it would be more in conformity with the requirements than to merely elect.

Self-constituted committees have interviewed many prominent citizens and each prom. cit. turns them down or takes the matter under advisement with the fullest intention of turning the proposition down later.

The men who will finally aspire to the Mayoralty are divided into two classes—those who are seeking the job and those whom the job is seeking. The latter are hard to catch, with the place no more than an honorary one. The charter surrounds the office with such limitations as to make it impossible for a Mayor to assert himself upon any vital question, or to take the initiative upon any live problem that confronts the city. Wherefore, no really big man wants to stand as the titular head of the city government and have it said that such and such a thing was done during Soandso's administration when Soandso had nothing whatever to do with it.

The field of applicants is limited for that very reason. So far, we have only three avowed candidates—one a Chief of Police, another an undertaker and the third a printer. The Chief of Police has made good as Chief of Police; the undertaker no doubt has performed many last sad rites with skill and sympathy, and the printer very likely has an excellent record for correcting typographical errors—but whether any of them would make a good Mayor, even with limited authority, is something else again, as Mawriss would say.

Mister Whiffen has been on the point of announcing his candidacy all week long, but some mysterious influence, or lack of it, has caused him to remain non-committal. Finally, a broad and public hint was given him to run for the Council again and as this hint came from sources that he would naturally expect to furnish his support, it started the tongues of the political gossips clattering.

Bro. Whiffen has an insatiable lust for the Mayoralty. It would be the height of his ambition to sit behind the mahogany desk in the executive chamber where at various times he has relieved Mayor Rose. But as much as he wants the job, he wants to extend the power of the Mayor more. He wants a new charter and into it he hopes to see written enough chapters to clothe the Mayor with sufficient power to make him a mighty factor in the conduct of the administration.

But Bro. Whiffen is reluctant to announce his candidacy, or has been up to date. His well-known record for flip-flopping on important questions no doubt governs his reticence on the Mayoralty, because if he should announce his candidacy and then discover that he should support some one else, it would be rather embarrassing to him even if it were not inconsistent with his somersaulting record.

To his friends he answered the public hint thrown at him yesterday by saying that no matter what he does he will not run for the Council again. He may even flip-flop on that.

One of the reasons for his delay in the matter of announcement may be found in the efforts of a great many persons to bring L. H. Valentine into the Mayoralty race. Mr. Valentine was head of the Power Bond Election Committee and it has been evident for some time that the forces which compose the same political group to which Mister Whiffen belongs have been engaged in a strenuous effort to bring Mr. Valentine into the limelight.

Another movement has been on to induce State Senator S. Stanley Benedict to run for the Mayoralty, but like Mr. Valentine, he has not yet indicated his desires in the matter.

Neither Senator Benedict nor Mr. Valentine was mentioned in the original list of thirteen candidates and neither may yet have reached that point where they are considered possible candidates, yet they figure in the apparent effort to shelve Mister Whiffen.

On the other side of the political fence, a determined campaign has been waged for some time to induce W. C. Mushet to run once more for Mayor. A committee has been to see Mr. Mushet and he has promised to think it over.

And there it rests.

Meanwhile, the other "possibilities" are remaining in the background. Everyone seems to be waiting for a cue, no one holds the book and the call boy is fast asleep. Experts—and every one who talks politics, prides himself upon being an expert—declare that a "dark horse" will come galloping along in a few days, who has not yet been mentioned in connection with the Mayoralty. Whether he will finish first under the wire is a matter of wildest speculation.

From present indications the latter part of the coming week will find a covey of Councilmanic candidate fluttering over the field. The most conservative estimates of the number of candidates place the aspirants at fifty. For the Board of Education, there will be a veritable horde of candidates, and the indications at present are that the fight for seats on the board will overcast the interest in any other race.

"JITNEY" BUS LAW PASSE...

Council Adopts the Measu... with Apologies.

Association Men Withdra... Referendum Threat.

Veto by Mayor Regarded a Possibility.

The "temporizing" jitney bus ordinance was adopted with apologies by the City Council yesterday without amendment from the draft approved by the committee of the whole Fr...

The ordinance was presented thirty days after it is signed and published.

Four amendments proposed by the jitney bus interests at the last moment were turned down when the Council was agreed that the ordinance was not pleasing to any one of the interests affected by jitney bus regulation. The ordinance was presented to Mayor Rose for his signature yesterday. The Mayor recently recommended an ordinance that would regulate, and it is not unlikely that he will veto the one now in his hands. He said yesterday that he will take the ordinance up section by section on Monday and if he doesn't think it meets the requirements of the situation he will probably veto it.

THREAT WITHDRAWN.

Vice-President Hagan and other officers of the association of drivers and owners stated at the end of the Council session that no referendum would be invoked and that the former declaration to that effect was ill-advised and without authority. Mr. Hagan made the threat himself Friday night, when some of his own amendments had been turned down by the committee of the whole. The association will meet Monday night to discuss the ordinance.

An eleventh-hour attempt on the part of James Snickerson, No. 1647 Alvarado street, to compel all jitney drivers to carry chaperons to protect young girls was not taken seriously by the Council.

"We may regulate the jitney bus traffic," said Councilman Conwell, "but the traffic will have to yield to the higher law, a merciless, inexorable law which governs the destinies of business. It is a physical impossibility to operate the cars, as at present operated, at a profit. The owners tell us that the passengers on the running-boards are the profit of the business. The truth is these passengers are a loss, for they destroy the lights and cause an expense in repair and maintenance that will greatly offset the gross revenue. The jitney is here to stay, but its destiny is a rapid transit de luxe and not a five-cent proposition by any means."

Operators must obtain permits from the Board of Police Commissioners at $60 a year, payable quarterly; must submit to examination and must have "good and sufficient" bond of $5000; each driver must file a photograph of himself with the board, with identification card; each permit shall set forth the route to be traveled by the bus, and every driver must conform to that route, except that he may deviate three blocks either way to deliver passengers to their homes; all cars shall carry non-skid tires and shall use non-skid chains during rainy weather; traffic ordinances generally shall be obeyed, and in congested districts bus drivers shall stop forty feet from intersection to discharge or take on passengers, and twenty-five feet at intersections where cars turn on or off the street; the tonneau of the car must be illuminated; a standard sign shall be carried stating the car's destination and fare charged; banners may be carried on the sides or rear of car or hood; drivers may deviate from their regular routes in the case of large public attractions; passengers may stand on the running boards of cars; no "color line" shall be drawn; hand baggage must be held on the laps of passengers.

Violation of any of the provisions of the ordinance shall be punishable upon conviction by a fine of not more than $500, or six months in jail or both such fine and imprisonment.

That the Councilmen engaged in wrestling with the problem have been facing politics, owing to the approach of the city election, is a charge pretty generally made.

PLAYING POLITICS?

W. W. Mines, president of the Los Angeles Realty Board, said yesterday: "If it were not for the fact that election is near at hand, I believe this whole business would have been regulated and I have been satisfactorily regulated before this, and it is therefore up to those who have the authority to so regulate these concerns to quit playing politics."

A statement from John R. Powers contains the following:

"Inasmuch as the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, Los Angeles Realty Board, together with our down-town property owners, hotel proprietors, manufacturers—in fact, all of our most representative men—have voiced their sentiments and in no uncertain terms the jitney outrage, and after the committee of the Council, appointed to regulate this matter, has seen fit to absolutely ignore all of these sentiments, the prospects for a recall and initiative look very bright.

"What has become of Chief Sebastian's rule to the effect that all jitneys must stop in the middle of the block? Why wasn't this rule enforced? Have the Chief and Councilman been so chummy with the jitney crowd? Their speeches at the various meetings soliciting votes are but one thing—politics.

"When a deaf and dumb jitney driver was granted a license to operate a jitney bus on the streets of Los Angeles everybody's eyes must have been opened by the prospect of a few promised votes and when this same jitney driver has a collision with the rear of an automobile because of his inability to hear the gong, I believe the time is ripe for a general protest from the citizens. Anyone curious enough to look this matter up can do so at the police station. His license was No. 2180."

Charles C. Naumann, with Thomas B. Varney Company, reported that his six-passenger Auburn automobile was stolen. The car was later found practically a wreck. A Stephenson avenue jitney sign was found on the windshield. Upon investigation Mr. Naumann found that it had been operated on the city streets for more than three weeks. He states that a number of cases of stolen cars being operated as jitneys have been called to his atten-

"Ville" Suits, Coats, Dresses
Reveal Authentic Modes for Spring

VILLE DE PARIS
317-325 SO. BROADWAY — 312-322 SO. HILL STREET
A. FUSENOT CO.

The many pleasing comments that our Fashion Show displays elicited last week, while very gratifying, were not surprising. Our Spring collection of ready-to-wear Suits, Coats, Dresses and Dancing Frocks was never more carefully selected, nor attractive.

The question of the hour—Where shall I buy my new Spring apparel?—was definitely settled in the minds of "Ville" patrons as they viewed our beautiful displays.

Smart Spring Suits
$25.00, $35.00, $37.50 and up to $85.00

"Ville" models in suits express the latest fashion features. Our showing includes not only smart novelty effects, but a splendid collection of practical models.

New Spring Suits $25

The aim of the "Ville" is to offer the best suits obtainable at this popular price. Excellent models are shown in black and white shepherd checks, gabardine and mannish serge.

Fine Spring Suits
$35.00, $37.50 and up to $85.00

These higher grade suits are extremely modish and possess the most advanced ideas from the foremost makers of fine suits. Full flaring, circular skirts; coats in Empire effects, short and medium lengths. Made from a variety of fashionable fabrics, including: gabardine, serge, poplin, tweed, homespun and shepherd checks.

Three-Piece Suits
$37.50, $65.00, $100.00, $125.00

Ultra-fashionable garments, designed to please the most refined tastes. Developed in plain or checked taffeta, or Faille Francaise silks; in modish Spring colors.

Charming Silk Dresses
$25.00, $29.50, $32.50 and up to $75.00

The new Spring dresses are especially attractive. Wondrous, are the changes in styles, this season. The flaring, circular skirts have made their debut, and with its logical accompaniment, the tight-fitting bodice, bring visions of bygone Colonial days. Our showing includes dresses made from taffeta silk, Gros de Londres, crepe meteor, crepe de chine.

Fancy Dancing Frocks
$24.50, $27.50, $32.50, $45.00

Fascinating frocks made from plain or figured French taffeta silk, Gros de Londres and satin charmeuse. Chic Colonial models. Some have three or four ruffles around the bottom of the flaring skirt.

New Wool Dresses
$11.50, $15.00, $17.50 and up to $25.00

Spring models made from wool serge, gabardine and poplin. Green, sand, Rocky Mountain blue and navy are the most fashionable colors; also black. Many have the Empire waist line, some are designed with bolero effect. High necks, military modes with touches of braid are popular.

Modish Spring Coats
$15.00, $20.00, $25.00 and up to $70.00

Our extensive assortment of coats embraces the newest models, such as Empire and loose effects, with or without belts, full flaring skirts. Made from Scotch mixtures, checks, plaids and covert. Including models for auto, street and general utility.

Your order will receive the same courteous attention, as if here in person.

Corduroy Coats $16.50

Corduroy Coats are very smart this Spring, particularly in white or sand color. These are in box model, lined with messaline. The belt is a little above normal, giving a semi-Empire effect. We also show in a better quality corduroy, white with a hair line of color, at $32.50.

VERY IMPORTANT!

Sale of Fine Laces

LACES Worth Up to $6.50—Sale Price $1.50

LACES Worth Up to $12.50—Sale Price $2.75

Sale Prices Average Less Than Half Price

A large importer in New York received a delayed shipment of these beautiful European laces, but as the sets were incomplete—and under present conditions abroad there was no possibility of securing the balance of the order, our buyer was fortunate in securing the lot, consisting of about 550 yards, at a mere fraction of its real worth.

The collection is extremely beautiful and fortunate indeed are those who secure these fine laces, at such wonderful savings. There are exquisite bands and flouncings, in black, cream or Paris shade, beautifully embroidered in colored silks or tinsel; also white Princess lace flouncings in different widths.

LACES Worth Up to $6.50 at $1.50—LACES Worth Up to $12.50 at $2.75

San Diego Exposition

Panama California

California's Conquest

California's Conquest of Peace Is Complete

Her two great expositions—San Diego and San Francisco—have brought the people of the earth to her feet in ardent adoration.

To Southern California, the world pays homage for its wondrous beauty—its sunshine and flowers, its opportunities and its warm welcome, as exemplified in the Panama-California Exposition at San Diego.

Five hundred miles to the north, San Francisco, only yesterday rising from her ruin and sorrow, now majestic in her magnificence and splendor, commands the admiration of all men for her world-wide achievement.

Thousands of us who live in Southern California do not realize what this land of promise holds for us and our Eastern brothers.

We are slaves to today. Our vision is distorted by the routine of our daily duties.

For such of us—as well as for the tired and worn-out man of the East and Middle West—was San Diego's exposition builded.

Here, California's treasure-house of opportunities is thrown open for your intimate study. Here may you apply what nature has done for California to your own life.

The trip to San Diego involves only a nominal expense—ten or fifteen dollars, and a couple of days.

Every cent and every moment spent in such a trip will come back to you many fold.

Come down now, while nature smiles her sweetest welcome. You will gasp with astonishment at the beauty of the exposition as all others have done. You will learn much about our country and you will have more wholesome fun than you have ever had before, on "The Isthmus."

DAILY AVERAGE HIGHER.

Clearings for February Show Improvement Over Last Month, Evidencing Better Business.

Bank clearings for this month aggregate $75,000,000. The total appears smaller than usual, on account of the larger number of holidays, but the daily average clearings exceeded January by over $100,000. This is an indication of the steady improvement in the volume of local business since the first of the year.

Clearings for the past week aggregated nearly $19,000,000, and yesterday's total was $3,643,673. Clearings for the present month are less than for the same month last year.

LEAVE THE SERVICE.

Three Federal officials severed their connection with the local service yesterday. James M. Sheridan, special assistant to the Attorney-General; Herbert Preston, an assistant in the office of the special agent of the Department of Justice, and Harry R. Archbald, third assistant United States District Attorney. Mr. Sheridan was transferred from the field service of the Interior Department more than a year ago, to clean up sixteen contested land cases involving the legality of patents issued by the government. All three men will begin the private practice of the law.

MAYOR BUSY ON EXPENSE ITEMS.

COMES OUT SHORT ON TRIP TO THE EXPOSITION.

Must Itemize His Expenditures to Pass the Scrutiny of the Finance Committee — Harbor Commission Saves Money on Rock Bid at Terminal Island.

Mayor Rose was early at his desk and more industrious than most Mayors, yesterday. The reason for it was the laborious task of making out an expense account that will pass the inspection of the Finance Committee of the City Council.

The Mayor was given $500 for pin-money when he went to San Francisco a week ago, but the money was turned over to him with the understanding that he make an itemized statement of every cent he spent.

It has been the rule that when city officials are given expense money they return with the money all spent. Mayor Rose is very likely owing himself money on this trip, but since he represented Los Angeles and, from all reports, did a very neat job of it, he may not be required to turn any money back or wipe out the debt with himself.

On his way home, Mayor Rose began to figure up his expense account, and when he arrived he found that there was a considerabl portion of that $500 unaccounted for. He arrived at his desk something after sunrise yesterday and by the time the lesser city officials began to arrive, the executive's chamber was a shambles of mutilated figures, multiplication, addition—everything but subtraction.

A little item of $2 spent for baggage had been entirely overlooked in the original calculation, and even with this added amount, the Mayor found his itemized account something like $60 short of the $500.

The itemized statement will be presented to the Finance Committee Monday morning.

MONEY IS SAVED.
CONTRACT AT HARBOR.

The Harbor Commission saved the city $20,000 yesterday by turning down a bid for rock filling that looked very good. Although it looked good, and the commission was in the humor to award a contract to the bidder, a delay in action of a few days brought forth a much better one.

The commission awarded a contract to Russell-Greene-Foell Company, to place 97,000 tons of rock in the jetty at Fisherman's Harbor on Terminal Island. The contractors agree to place the rock in the jetty for $1.13 a ton.

Last week the lowest regular bidder for this work was another firm which agreed to deliver the rock f.o.b. cars San Pedro, at $1.14 a ton. The Harbor Commission, finding this the lowest bid, was about to award the contract, but decided to delay action.

The cost of placing the rock, it is estimated, would be about $20,000.

The work will be done at once and a better protection of the Fisherman's Harbor on Terminal Island will be the result.

CLEARS HARBOR TITLE TO CITY.

SEPULVEDAS LOSE SUIT INVOLVING MANY MILLIONS.

Old Land Grant of Three Hundred and Forty Acres of Submerged Property Belongs to Los Angeles, Court Decrees—Can Now go Ahead with Improvements.

Heirs of the Sepulveda family and Edmund Burke, an attorney, as assignee of a half-interest, lost their suit to recover from the city of Los Angeles tide and submerged lands at the harbor, covering 340 acres and valued at $14,000,000 upward. The suit, which was tried last June, argued in July and briefs filed in December, was decided by Judge Myers in favor of the city, yesterday.

The suit was to correct a survey or, as Attorney Burke put it, to control a description in the patent granted by the United States government to the Sepulvedas in confirmation of a Mexican grant of the Rancho Palo Verdes issued nearly half a century ago, pursuant to a survey made a decade of years previously.

The Sepulvedas claimed the land under a Mexican grant of 1847 which was included in the decree of confirmation, but excluded in the survey made. The court upheld the city's title to the land. This removes the cloud on the title and permits the city to go ahead with its harbor work.

The suit was originally brought by the heirs of Juan and Loreto Sepulveda. The land lies between San Pedro Ferry and Wilmington, and in view of the harbor improvements it became immensely valuable. As a matter of fact, the court was unable to accurately say how many millions the tract is worth.

Help the Stomach Digest Your Food

When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. It does not gripe or cramp, but acts easily and pleasantly and is therefore the most satisfactory remedy for children, women and elderly persons. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

ROEDER ESTATE.
EXECUTORS FILE WILL.

The will of Louis Roeder, a pioneer wagon manufacturer of Los Angeles, who died on the 20th inst., was filed by the executors, William H. Workman and Carl Entenmann, yesterday. The petition for the probate of the will values the estate at $250,000, but previous to his death Mr. Roeder had organized the Louis Roeder Estate Company. His holdings are estimated at $1,000,000.

Legacies of $500 each were left to the president of the Deutsche Hospital Verein of Boyle Heights; president of the Pioneers' Society of Los Angeles, and president of the German Ladies' Benevolent Society of Los Angeles; $250 to the president of the Associated Charities of Los Angeles and the chairman of the Relief Committee of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Emily M. Tieman of New York City, a daughter of Mr. Roeder's uncle, receives $500, and $250 each is given to his godchildren, Louis Roeder and Wesley Dodge.

The eight children of Mr. Roeder's son, Henry, and his daughters, Caroline and Wilhelmina, receive $2000 to remain on interest. When they attain the age of 21 years, they receive one-eighth each.

Henry Roeder, a son, receives $8000; Elizabeth R. Dodge, a daughter, $3000, and Caroline R. Johannsen, a daughter, $3000, and Louis Roeder, Jr., $23,438. The children receive in addition five-sixths, being the residue of the estate, excepting the 249 shares of stock. This stock is to be held in trust by Elizabeth R. Dodge and Carl Entenmann, for Ann Roeder, a daughter.

The legacies to the various organizations named in the will are in memory of Mr. Roeder and his wife.

WANTS THE MONEY.
SUIT AGAINST DOCTOR.

R. I. Gardner filed suit yesterday to recover from Dr. C. P. V. Watson $3000 which figured in an effort to tide over the fortunes of the California Fruit Growers' Association in 1906 when Dr. Watson was president and one of the largest stockholders. Mr. Gardner alleges he contributed the money and received stock in exchange. He was to be repaid the money when he surrendered the stock.

In 1907 Mr. Gardner transferred his stock to Dr. Watson and received from him 1000 shares of stock of the Queen Mining and Development Company. It is alleged that Dr. Watson would take the stock back and refund the money on demand. Such a demand was made whereupon Dr. Watson acknowledged the debt in a written agreement. Mr. Gardner says Dr. Watson has funds and he wants his money.

OVER SEWER SYSTEM.
WOULD DECLARE IT ILLEGAL.

A suit to declare the warrant and diagram for the Arroyo de la Brea storm sewer system illegal and to restrain the City Treasurer from signing the bonds, was filed by Clara Shatto, the Andrews Boulevard Company, the Rampart Boulevard Company, the Union Escrow and Realty Company and other defendants against the City Clerk, City Treasurer, Board of Public Works, James Kennedy, Frank C. Paine, and Herbert Wetherspoon yesterday.

The ordinance for the system was adopted by the City Council December 1, 1913. R. C. Lowell was awarded the contract at $645,102. It is alleged he illegally included in his bid $7670 for doing sanitary sewer work and certain prices a square foot for regrading, repaving and reguttering. The contract was assigned to James Kennedy, who assigned it to Paine and Wetherspoon for money due from him to them. Mr. Kennedy completed the work.

The complaint sets up that the assessment district was divided into four zones and one general district. An arbitrary assessment a square foot was levied and this assessment is declared an invasion of the property rights of the plaintiffs. The aggregate amount of assessment on the lots of the plaintiff is $12,000, and they will be declared delinquent March 1, unless the city is restrained.

COURT PARAGRAPHS.
PROCEEDINGS IN BRIEF.

SUIT OVER PORTRAIT. Alleging that Sarah A. Winter had refused to comply with the terms of a contract which called for a portrait on steel for which she was to pay $350 on receipt of proof of impression, the National Americana Society sued her yesterday for $650. The plaintiff was to print, copyright and insert a number of impressions in its publication, "American Families of Historic Lineage," Mrs. Winter to furnish the data within twenty days of the date of the contract, namely, yesterday.

ACTS AS JUDGE. A. I. McCormick, formerly United States Attorney, sat in as judge in Judge Finlayson's court yesterday in the case of the Woodruff-Griffith Company against E. R. Odell and A. Longoria. A matter came up which the attorneys in the suit were anxious to dispose of.

INCORPORATIONS. Hoover Social Club, incorporators G. F. Rollins, Leopold Hess, Forrest E. Youngquist, Henry E. Gunther and George H. Armburster; Friends' Church of Huntington Park, incorporators William P. Hunnicutt, Joseph J. Andrews, George T. Stanley, John D. Greenmayer and Raphael F. Carter; Nu-System, incorporators Maurice M. Cohen, Michael C. Leves and C. E. Cohen, capital stock $10,000, subscribed $30.

SCRAP OVER RANCH. A suit to determine whether Mrs. Fe Burbank Sabichi owns the Ballona ranch or whether, as her husband claims, it is community property will be fought out in the courts. Mrs. Sabichi filed a quiet title suit against Louis M. Sabichi yesterday. They were married at Chicago November 16, 1908. She claims ownership of the ranch since February 14, 1910.

REAL WAR BREAD FREE.

A unique merchandising stunt is announced by the Owl Drug Company in its advertisement in The Times today. While many thousands of Los Angeles citizens have read about the new war bread, few, probably, have had the opportunity of eating it. This German war bread is nothing more than the substitution of rye for wheat, with a generous addition of potato flour, with probably a handful of wheat thrown in for good measure, and the whole spiced with caraway seed. The German army is fed by bread which is supposed to give a more concentrated food value and is especially devised for the nourishment of men under great physical stress. The population at large, however, is using the bread which the Owl Drug Company proposes to give away tomorrow.

MILK WAR MAY LOWER PRICES

Dealers Announce Cut and Producers Object.

Threaten to Build Creamery of Their Own.

Consumer Likely to Benefit in Any Event.

Splash goes milk! The producers and dealers are having a little mix up. Because the dealers have announced a necessary cut in the price to the producers, a number of them have formed an organization called the Southern California Dairymen's Association and threaten to establish a large creamery in Los Angeles to compete with those privately owned and also the one already operated and controlled by more than 100 producers, who are to have no say in the new organization unless they stay away from old affiliations.

The call to the milk producers was sent out by several of their number two weeks ago and it was announced that the proposed organization should include all dairy interests, whether operating through Los Angeles creameries or independently. C. M. Wheeler of Gardena was named the president of the organization, and at the second meeting in the Burbank Hotel it was announced that the new organization did not care to have in its membership any milk producers connected with local creameries or with any marketing organization.

An endeavor to make the affair of the meeting a secret failed, and it leaked out that a committee of new dairymen was appointed to visit the operators of dairy farms in a radius of fifty miles and invite them to join the new organization for the purpose of operating an association creamery and disposing of their own product, thereby preventing the cut in prices which goes into effect tomorrow, as announced by the Los Angeles Creamery Company, the Crescent Creamery Company, the California Creameries and all of the others of any size.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The reduction in price is 10 cents per 100 pounds of milk. Quotations on milk have ranged from $2.60 to $2.80 per 100 pounds, the latter figure being for 4 per cent. milk, or 10 pounds of butter fat to the 100 pounds of lacteal fluid. The new price to the producer will range from $2.40 to $2.30.

The small dealer, grocer and milk peddler will receive the immediate benefit of this cut. The price of milk bottles in the past has been 7 cents and on quarts 8 cents. Beginning tomorrow morning, the prices will be 3½ cents on pints and 7 cents on quarts. Whether the consumer will be able to buy milk at 8 or 7 cents a quart in the future is a matter for decision by the small dealers, who may not care to share their profits.

If the new Southern California Dairymen's Association actually enters the field as a selling organization, it may mean a milk war, the first in which Los Angeles has ever been involved. The creameries are prepared for this and their officials declare that only their efforts to secure fair profits for the producers in the vicinity of Los Angeles have prevented a cut long ago, and that the producers within a short radius of the city care to spoil present business arrangements, they will help to supply Los Angeles with milk.

EXPRESS RATES LOWER.

"The recent adjustment of express rates may be the direct cause of the lower prices which are announced," said D. M. Dorman, president of the Reduce Exchange of Los Angeles and general manager of the California Creamery Company. "Just as an example I would cite the fact that the old rate from Riverside to Los Angeles on a ten-gallon can of milk was 55 cents and is now 21 cents. Similar reductions were made from all points in California, with the result that milk producers of the San Fernando Valley, Antelope Valley, Chino, Perris, Redlands, Ventura, Oxnard and other places, all receive membership here. The result has been a surplus of milk and the cut is such that it cannot be governed by local conditions.

"Up to the present time we have tried in every possible way to conciliate the dairymen in the neighborhood of the city and have held off the reduction for about three months."

George B. Miller, general manager of the Mutual Dairy Association, an organization comprised of more than 100 paid-up members, which has been operating for about four years in Los Angeles, declared that the new reduction could effect no difference in the situation. "There is a surplus of milk and lower prices are bound to follow," he said. "With our members' organizations on prices are ever made we manufacture our products and contribute our milk to the best of our ability.

"The proceeds all go to the producer and after the cost of operation, shipping and other incidentals have been deducted, the members get their dividends, the same as members of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange or any other organization of that kind."

WOULD ACCEPT SENTENCE.

Swindler Says Otherwise He Will Be Adjudged Guilty of Contempt of Court.

Judge Bledsoe yesterday received Henry Siewert, the "buffalo" and "Lincoln" penny king, who is in the County Jail, after a verdict of guilty on the charge of impersonating a Federal officer. Siewert was to collect money collecting $1 for a pamphlet alleged to be issued by the Government, telling how to detect counterfeit money, and furnishing selected information on the subject of coins, the above-mentioned nickels and pennies for which he claimed the public would paid a premium.

Siewert is an old offender and a smooth talker. When he told the court that he would be willing to go to jail instead of the penitentiary the aged sinner remarked that he would accept the suggestion of the court rather than to refuse to do so might render him amenable to the charge of contempt.

ALWAYS IN DEMAND.

The traveling salesman is with us yet, in spite of the manner which the world has of organizing and syndicating itself. The delight of the drummer is his personality. He has a way of visiting and convincing his trade which no amount of co-operation and printers' ink has as yet been able to set aside.

FILIBUSTERING DEFINED.

"The courtesy of the Senate" is defined by Senator Thomas of Colorado to be "the use of brute force personified in the ability of those opposing needed legislation to obstruct through the exercise of their powers of physical endurance an ultimate determination of the business as they want it to be."

But how about brute force used to compel pie-biting Democrats to vote against their convictions in favor of the ship-purchasing bill?

A SANE EDITOR.

It is the pleasure of Los Angeles at this time to extend its hospitality to George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Lorimer has succeeded in steering his journal afar from the reefs of sentimentalism, dogma, fanaticism and heresy. He has made it a clear stream of American entertainment. He has given it both policy and politics, yet kept it from bitterness and radicalism. He has been a good manager and has earned popularity which the country at large has accorded his enterprise.

MURDER DOESN'T PAY.

The conviction of Lomax for murder shows once again what everybody should long ago have learned—that violence doesn't pay in settling a quarrel. All the satisfaction that Lomax got out of making a corpse of an enemy was dissipated weeks ago when he passed into the shadow of the gallows. Long and painful years are ahead for him in the penitentiary, a ruined life, the unceasing anguish of his family—all that and more he must pay for the hot-blooded moment when he closed an argument with murder.

WE HAVE, AND ARE PROUD OF IT.

A disgruntled theatrical manager, disappointed that he failed to make a million dollars out of his fluffy-fluffy chorus in Los Angeles, rose up in anger and pronounced that we have a "jay town, a cafeteria town, a victrola town," thereby thinking to cover us with shame. Not so. For he merely used the Barbary Coast vocabulary to say we have a town where the restaurants are not "holdups," and a town where the people are home-loving and would rather listen to their own music box than the ragtime chorus of a "leg show."

GETTING MARRIED.

A prominent young couple in this city announced their engagement one day and married the next. That was just as sensible as it was romantic. There is a heap of agony put on weddings that might as well be escaped. On the other hand a girl only gets married once, and if she wants to turn it into a party she should have her way about it, especially considering the pleasure it gives to her friends. There is nothing necessarily vicious about a wedding, and people ought not to be so afraid of one. As for the future, well, it must naturally take care of itself. Probably the great truth about marriage is the spiritual fact. When a union amounts to this, the people concerned cannot imagine life on any other terms. They cannot remember when it was not, and cannot think of a separate existence. A marriage often surprises the friends of the happy victims, but they themselves are never surprised.

THE LOGICAL DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE.

It is understood that after recent conference with President Wilson, the executive committee of the Democratic National Committee decided to make the next Presidential campaign on the "prosperity record" of this administration, with Mr. Wilson as candidate for re-election.

It is said to be planned that the President shall make a number of speeches on his way to and from the Pacific-Panama Exposition, in which, presumably, he will say more about the "eve of unprecedented prosperity," and claim for the Democratic party, as he did at Indianapolis, credit for all business improvement that has appeared, and may yet appear, in spite of the adverse effect of Democratic policies and methods of procedure.

This plan will please Republicans throughout the country. President Wilson has insisted upon directing the proceedings of Congress, and succeeded in doing so until he encountered revolt against his Socialistic ship-purchase bill; it is right that he should bear the judgment that the people of the United States will pass upon his deficit-creating administration. Therefore, he should be again the Democratic candidate. He has already let it be known that he does not feel any restraint from the single-term plank and promise of his party's Baltimore platform—the platform upon which he slid into office, solely by reason of Roosevelt's treacherous split of the Republican party. There is therefore no reason why he should not be renominated.

AGAIN, WARE HAWK!

There are some publicists who are oblivious of the teachings of history, who cling to the theory that permanent peace between nations can be secured by treaty, and who look to a Hague conference to end the conflict that now devastates Europe.

Eight months ago there was a treaty in existence between England and Germany by which the neutrality of Belgium was guaranteed. In consequence of the assurance imparted by this guarantee the bonds of Belgium sold on the bourses of Europe at a higher price than those of Great Britain, France, or Germany. At that time Belgium was a hive of industry. It had but a small army and practically no navy, and the taxes levied upon its people were comparatively trifling.

Germany tore into shreds the "inviolable" treaty of neutrality, and marched its armies into Belgium without any pretext of right or any excuse other than that it was more convenient for her to reach France by this road.

As a result, Belgian bonds are no longer quoted in the stock markets of London or Paris. Private property in Belgium has been burned down, and blown up, and almost ceased to exist, and thousands of the people of Belgium are homeless and hungry.

The United States may, and doubtless will keep out of the war now raging in Europe, but it will owe its immunity to other factors than any treaty with any of the warring powers.

One of those factors is our geographical position which makes it impossible for a foreign foe to reach any interior city. On the seas we are weak. We have 217 war vessels, all told, while Japan has 185, Russia 220, Germany 302, France 479 and Great Britain 626.

At the outbreak of the present war the armies of the leading powers on a peace basis were, Germany 620,000, France 560,000, Russia 1,360,000, Austria-Hungary 360,000, Great Britain 254,500, Japan 250,000.

The regular army of the United States on June 30, 1914, consisted of 4701 officers and 87,781 men. Of these 26,500 men are in service outside of the continental limits of the United States, 758 officers and 17,901 men belong to the coast artillery, and are therefore stationary in coast defenses, and 1008 officers and 18,434 men belong to the staff, technical and non-combatant branches of the army, leaving in the continental United States in the mobile army 1495 officers and 29,405 men, one-eighth of the peace strength of Japan, one-eighth of the peace strength of Great Britain, one-twelfth the peace strength of Austria-Hungary, one-twentieth the peace strength of Germany, one-eighteenth the peace strength of France, and one-fortieth the peace strength of Russia.

The war strength of Germany and Austria-Hungary is 6,000,000 men, that of the allies 9,000,000 men.

In the improbable but not impossible event of a conflict with any European power we could probably by calling upon the State militia and upon volunteers, place in the field in six months 2,000,000 or more of drilled and disciplined troops the equal of any on earth. But what would the enemy be doing during that six months? Would they be waiting for us to get ready to whip them? Would they not be entrenched in Portland, and Boston, and New York, and Baltimore, and Savannah, and Galveston, and Los Angeles, and San Francisco and Seattle, with those cities looted or burned and dynamited if they failed to respond with billions of dollars to the demands of the enemy.

The proverb that "the best security for peace is the most tremendous preparation for war" does not state a truth if the proposed war is aggressive—if it has for its object power, plunder and extended rule. But as applied to a defensives war it is a true proverb. If the altars and firesides of a nation are menaced they can best be defended by such warlike preparation as will discourage and deter an assailant.

Europe is blazing in the flames of a great conflagration. Who can say that some mad incendiary may not endeavor to apply the torch of war to our own temples? Will our Congressional Neros continue to fiddle their petty strains in the presence of the awful possibilities that confront us?

THROWING DOWN THE BARS.

In the discussion of proposed legislation before the lawmakers representing Southern California, some measures of importance have necessarily been omitted, for lack of time if for no other reason. One such measure, and one of which little has been heard, provides for revising the law relating to the practice of optometry.

The public is vitally interested in this matter. Almost every person over 45 years of age wears glasses. The abundance of sunshine, so welcome in other respects, is nevertheless especially trying to the eyes of the residents of Southern California, and more glasses are worn here in proportion to the population than perhaps in any other part of the country. And it not infrequently happens that persons who have worn glasses in the East or elsewhere find it necessary, on coming here, to be fitted with new lenses because of the greater intensity of the light.

The eye is one of the most delicate organs of the body. Mistakes in its treatment are likely to be disastrous, if not fatal, to the sight. Tampering with it by unskilled persons is too perilous to be tolerated.

A good law has been in effect in this State for more than ten years. This law provides for the examination of all applicants for license to practice by a board of competent optometrists. It has been in the main well enforced and its spirit well carried out. The requirements for license have been gradually advanced until the opticians of this State have come to be recognized as equal if not superior in skill to those of any State in the Union. In fact, very few of those who come here from other States are able to qualify without considerable study.

But now it is proposed to change this law radically and rob it of its most essential element of safety. An amendment now pending makes it mandatory on the State board to issue a certificate without examination to any candidate from another State who shall make affidavit that he has studied one year in a reputable school of optometry, or that he has practiced optometry for three years in another State. No mention is made of any attainment in such school or of the character of the practice performed. The man, woman or child who says he has studied a year in a school such as specified, or, it may be, has sold spectacles on the sidewalk for three years, can demand a certificate entitling him to examine eyes and fit them with glasses by filing an affidavit and paying the fee.

Such a law, it will be seen, would throw down the fence to unskilled practitioners and fakers, rob the State of its high repute as foremost in the skill which it provides for the care of the eyes, and subject all who wear glasses to peril.

SEGREGATING FIRST OFFENDERS.

Jails are unpleasant necessities of civilization. As long as people fall sick physically they will require hospitals, and as long as they fall sick morally they will need jails.

But while we specialize carefully in our treatment of diseased bodies, we specialize carelessly in our treatment of diseased souls. We have separate institutions for the blind, the deaf, the tubercular, the crippled, the fever-stricken; but we lump pickpockets, burglars, embezzlers, old convicts and young offenders in one comprehensive penitentiary. And while this is comprehensive in the way it swallows them all up, it is quite incomprehensible how it is going to digest them.

Now we live in a crowded age; we believe prevention is better than cure, and we have universal education as an antidote for crime. But like antitoxins and serums it doesn't always "take." Moreover, we do spend much effort and money to make penitentiaries a school for reform as well as a place of punishment. We still, however, are guilty of a glaring indiscretion, that is if we consider the reform of the criminal to be as important as the correction of the crime.

We mix first offenders who generally are soft and pliable with old offenders who usually are hard and inflexible. And the last state of that young offender is thus liable to be worse than the first.

Jails are a financial burden on the community. We want to keep the attendance down by keeping the attention up. Public attention has lately been directed to the subject of treating first offenders. We reduce the attendance by making crime harder and regeneration easier. If mixing young offenders with hardened jailbirds turns the former into constant transient guests of the State penitentiaries, it might be more economical, to say nothing of being more humane, to build a special jail for first offenders.

At present our jails are overcrowded. Since we must before long with our rapidly-increasing population provide more jail accommodation, why not build a special institution for first offenders where they can be treated and corrected outside the vitiated moral atmosphere of hardened crime?

We already have reformatories for boys and girls under age whose moral lapses bring them into the clutches of the law. Many over-age first offenders could doubtlessly be saved from a permanent criminal career were they treated as special cases isolated from the environment of the hopelessly unregenerate.

Purgatory may save souls from hell—a half-way house should be provided for the half-way criminal. Some day we shall have wide stockades embracing many hundred acres of public land, instead of closed-in penitentiaries, where lawbreakers with lots of breathing room may work in the open air close to the health-giving soil. A First Offenders' Farm would turn out a great success. It is better to turn out possible good farmers than probable bad citizens.

THE PROFITABLE DEAD.

There is a time in the lives of the most practical and businesslike when a bargain is unthinkable. No matter what our business acumen, the idea of begrudging any necessary expense for the interment of our dead is a sacrilege. And many a heart-broken widow has found her slender resources strained to the uttermost for the last sad rites, often eating up all that remains of some pitiful savings which a long illness has already depleted to vanishing point. Indeed, it is no unusual thing for the bereaved to find themselves heavily in debt for funeral expenses which become a grievous mortgage, a dead weight, a veritable millstone round the necks of those least able to afford it.

In those first dread hours of loss when the arrangements have to be made, the mind shrinks from any suggestion of stringent economy. In every heart there is a paramount wish to accord to the dead the utmost respect. And at such times the undertaker can make his own terms. And the high cost of dying is a very real and bitter experience in all too many cases. The writer has received letters from widows, from widowers, yes, and from children, too, asking that investigation might be made into this subject from a public standpoint. For the individual protest is well-nigh impossible. When the bereaved ones realize this last cruel calamity and their helplessness in the circumstances, a bitterness is added to their sorrow, "the most unkindest cut of all."

Even the plainest and most modest of funerals is a costly affair. A hundred dollars is the smallest cost, and that is a veritable fortune to many families. Usually $200 is the minimum cost for anything like a decent interment—a plain deal casket painted gray, a single hearse, a modest grave. It takes many a widow long months of frugal saving to expiate the debt, yet not a one of them could brave shocking the sensibilities, the traditions, public opinion, by demurring. Of necessity the undertaker has things all his own way. His account is never publicly disputed, no matter how great the shock of its presentation.

It is probably one of the most delicate of problems. Concerted action by the victims is well-nigh out of the question, yet there is such a vast field of injustice, such a prolific source of exploitation that the state of affairs warrants the most earnest attention of the authorities. It is a public question that must be taken up by the disinterested. If such hints as have come to our knowledge are a fair example, many a financial tragedy would be uncovered that smoulders miserably in the hearts and exchequers of those who can least afford to bear the strain.

RESTORATION OF DOBBIN.

The war has brought the horse into his own again. The automobile is great for boulevards, but when it comes to fields and trenches, to marshes and to hills, to untried trails and to the fording of streams, old Dobbin is still an essential. America has profited peculiarly by the war in this repect. Over here a few old-fashioned people have insisted on stock raising, and the last year has given them a market of profit.

SOCIALISM AND THE WAR.

[*CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

BY CHARLES P. STEINMETZ,
Consulting Engineer, General Electric Company.

WITH startling suddenness at the outbreak of the European war those international forces on which civilization had relied to maintain peace and community between the nations broke down. Even the Socialist International seemed to disintegrate, and the Socialists of the various countries joined with the non-Socialists. It would be a mistake to consider this as a failude of Socialism, but more and more, as the destruction progresses, the last year has shown that modern civilization, international finance, arbitration treaties and international law courts cannot avoid war, but that war will be stopped only by making it useless.

The Socialist International was formed before Socialism had become an idea seriously considered and discussed by all thinking men of all countries, and a power with which society has to reckon in the economic and the political field, and the International, therefore, was more critical than constructive, and its temporary eclipse, with a future reconstruction on constructive lines, should be rather an advantage to constructive Socialism.

It is obvious now that Socialism does not mean elimination of private property in money or commodities or communism, but it means the abolishment of capital, that is, of the ability of money to multiply itself without any effort of its owner. Socialism has nothing to do with religion, with nationality or with politics—except that like prohibition or woman's suffrage, it may be made a political issue, and is so in the Socialist parties of all countries. Also, it has nothing directly to do with the form of government. While we consider democracy as the highest and final form of government under Socialism, other people may be able to imagine a socialistic monarchy, or even a socialistic theocracy—and some of the greatest Popes of the middle ages were close to it, and in the clergy separated from local interest by celibacy, the Church of Rome already has an administrative organization.

Nations, as groups of people of similar race, customs and language, may persist under Socialism, but there could be no war, as there would be nothing to fight for—all the means of production are universally available to every producer, and private property is inviolate and no financial interests exist. War thus could bring about no change in anybody's conditions, and preparation for war, armaments and militarism would cease as useless.

Thus universal peace and the elimination of war is a necessary result of Socialism, but it is no more Socialism than Mr. Carnegie is a Socialist, and within our present capitalistic society Socialists may well differ whether and how far war armaments and military preparation may be necessary.

The Socialist International—especially in those countries where Socialism had not yet advanced to the power of carrying out a constructive policy—had taken a stand against preparation for war under any condition, and been anti-national rather than international, and, therefore, when the nations of Europe considered—whether rightly or wrongly is not for us to decide—that their vital interests required decision by war, and nationalism ran high, the International was eclipsed, and the Socialist parties of the different nations went their separate ways. But they are still Socialists, accepting the economic doctrine of Socialism.

There will probably be a number of attempts to reconstruct the old International as an anti-national by accentuating these features which have been its weakness during the present crisis, but these in my opinion must remain abortive. Socialistic ideas have now advanced too far to be satisfied with a mere negative programme of anti-nationalism, anti-war, anti-militarism, etc., and a constructive programme is demanded. Thus the Socialist International will be reformed on the single principle of economic Socialism, dealing with the International—but not necessarily anti-national—aspects of the constructive work of Socialist reorganization of society, without scattering its efforts and wasting its energy in fighting against things which are unavoidable under capitalism, but which could vanish as a matter of course with the socialization of society, such as war and militarism, etc. Then, by combining the constructive forces of all the nations, such an International will be a power controlling the destinies of the world.

ASKING QUESTIONS.

"Go, get a pail of water, kid," said Jeremiah Jink; for, wearied by the work he did, he longed to have a drink. The kid, John James, he just had hired, to do the daily chores; to see the furnace was kept fired, and head off noisome bores. "Oh, shall I get it at the well," said he, "or at the spring, or at the creek in yonder dell, where cheerful bullfrogs sing? Or shall I tap the hydrant's flow, or seek some quiet drain, or shall I to the cistern go, the moisture to obtain? And shall I take the twelve-quart pail, or yonder china urn, to bring this jag of Adam's ale, for which you seem to yearn? Oh, had I better take the lift, or down the stairway go? Before I on this journey drift, these things I'd like to know." "You take your bonnet," said the boss, "and kindly fade away; that youth will never come across who questions asks all day. When you are told to do a thing, you shouldn't scratch your dome, and ask conundrums—you should spring to fetch the bacon home. The lad who would to honor rise, and travel with the best, must use his brain and hands and eyes, and give his tongue a rest."

Goodfellow at Home.

[National Monthly:] Mr. Goodfellow had dined out six nights in succession. On the seventh he turned up at home for the evening meal. When he was seated Mrs. Goodfellow rose in her seat and, addressing the other occupants of the table, said:

"Children, we have with us tonight a guest of whom you have all heard, even if you do not personally know him. He is a man who has a reputation for conviviality and cheer in every club and cafe in the city, and this evening we are to have the honor and pleasure of being numbered among the admirers of his brilliant and entertaining qualities. Therefore, it is with the greatest pleasure that I present to you—your papa!"

And Goodfellow has had a grouch ever sin—

PRODUCERS MAKES A GOOD SHOWING.

UNION SUBSIDIARY REVEALS NET OF MILLION AND A HALF DOLLARS.

An excellent showing is made in the annual report of the Producers' Transportation Company, the highly profitable subsidiary of Union Oil, received by stockholders yesterday. Net earnings for 1914, as revealed in the statement of income, were $1,411,420, comparing with $1,291,147 for 1913. The excess over dividend requirements last year was nearly $1,000,000.

Total liabilities of the company as of December 31 were $2,547,093, compared with $2,906,009 at the end of 1913. The principal item is $2,450,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds. The bonded debt was reduced $350,000 during 1914.

Receipts of oil in 1914 by the company, whose business is the transportation of the product, aggregated 14,878,645 barrels. Deliveries to tank steamers amounted to 13,405,927. The storage of the company was increased from 9,012,968 to 10,485,686 barrels.

The income account reveals earning from transportation, storage, etc., of $2,474,711, from which is deducted general expenses, $457,265; interest charges, $118,392; provision for depreciation, $487,624, leaving the profit for the year carried to surplus account of $1,411,430. It is stated that for the purpose of increasing the storage facilities of the company and providing for other needed equipment there was invested during the year out of earnings the sum of $1,411,369 in additions to the plant.

The only reference to dividends is in the last paragraph which reads as follows. The surplus revenue of the company will be employed in meeting the annual sinking fund requirement of $350,000 on the company's bonds; in necessary extensions and additions to the company's properties; in building up of strong reserves, and while conditions justify, in the payment of usual dividends.

During the past year the dividends have been paid at the rate of 1½ per cent. per quarter, and aggregate over $400,000 annually.

The total plant investment and current assets aggregate $7,394,149 (before deducting reserve for depreciation) in addition to bond guaranties, rights of way, franchises, etc., according to the report.

GOLDEN RULE IS WAY TO PEACE.

NOTED SWEDE ADVANCES SIX MEANS OF ENDING ALL WORLD TROUBLE.

Hon. August Schvan, former Chamberlain of the King of Sweden and secretary of the Royal Commission for reorganization of the diplomatic service after the break with Norway, and holder of other important posts throughout Europe, was the speaker yesterday at the City Club. His exposition of the subject of "The Foundation of Permanent Peace" was given under the auspices of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace.

Six cardinal principles are laid down by this speaker as a peace plan which he declares is "logically unassailable." These are nationality, universal free trade, world citizenship, an international supreme court, an international police and maritime police fleet and general disarmament.

The speaker prefaced his address by giving an outline of his experiences in militarism, stating that he was brought up in a military atmosphere and took to the army when he was but 18 years of age; that he had early become a student of the peace problem and urged that Sweden raise its oppression from Norway, and that he had been called a traitor to his own country because he advocated Swedish alliance with Norway—which has since taken place. The speaker stated that for five years he had been studying the subject of disarmament of nations.

"History is now instilling a great reverence for the past," said the speaker, "and the inanity of the present day is shown in our willingness to admire and revere things that have been done in the past, especially the deeds of war. We think that the essence of culture is located in the past, and do not properly take into consideration the possibilities of today. These possibilities are neither national nor international—they are cosmopolitan."

The speaker then outlined the development of war, from the tribal quarrels down to the terrible conflict that now engulfs Europe.

"There are no longer any ungrasped territories which the established nations may contend for," continued the speaker. "Today, for the first time in human history, our environment is universal. We have reached the planetary epoch.

"Our economic conceptions of today date from the time when we had no touch with the other general countries. Yet today a man draws upon the resources of the whole world for almost his daily supplies.

"Nations have unanimously declared that they do not want to go to war, but they then declare that circumstances are stronger than this sentiment. It fills me with anger, with wrath, to hear Mr. Asquith and Mr. Bryan declare that they sigh for peace and then declare they are incompetent to stop what they declare should not exist.

"The reason the movement for disarmament has failed is that it has not reached the bottom of the evil. All the governments of the world should be placed in such a position that they have no more power in this line than has the municipality. If we have universal peace we must do away with the old conception of the nation and the state. The interests of the state and nation now are so great that no international agreement is honored in case of war.

"The simple cardinal principles that will accomplish universal peace on a plan that is logically unassailable include nationality, universal free trade, world citizenship, international supreme court, international police and an international maritime police fleet, and general disarmament, except such as may be necessary for the international policing.

"National governments must stop strictly at the borders if we are going to have peace. When a man goes into another country he becomes a world citizen. Universal free trade will be the greatest possible deterrent to war. A maritime police on the high seas—the common property of humanity—will conserve every interest. Our international tribunal will enforce the judgments of the international supreme courts.

"If you want to have the Golden Rule reign between individuals you must have it between nations.

"A year hence there will be millions of homes in Europe where death has entered either directly through the war or from sufferings therefrom. Europe will be ready to listen. This is the time for earnest thinking to the end that wars shall be no more."

Deputy United States Marshal Bassett will leave tonight for McNeil's Island, taking with him George Grand, who pleaded guilty to violation of the Mann Act; C. W. Lung, convicted of Chinese smuggling; Nom On, convicted of running a Chinese citizen perjury factory at San Louis Obispo, and Chester Pinanz, who pleaded guilty to an impróper use of the mails.

When Grand serves his term of one year and a day, steps will be taken by the immigration authorities to have him deported as an undesirable alien. It is understood that he has taken out his declaration of intention to become an American citizen, but as he has already pleaded guilty to a violation of law, it will only be necessary to introduce the records of the court, against which there is no defense.

"GLUECOSE TRUST" CASE.

A telegram was received yesterday from Jesse C. Adkins, special assistant to the Attorney-General, by E. M. Blankford, special agent of the Department of Justice, that he (Adkins) would be in Los Angeles on Wednesday, March 10, to examine witnesses in the case brought by the United States against the Corn Products Refining Company, a civil action, for dissolution of the corporation that is known in common parlance as the "Glucose Trust." Sixteen witnesses will be summoned and examined in behalf of the government. Who will sit as commissioner or examiner in the case, is as yet not known to the local Federal officials.

SHE HAS THE GOODS.

Girl Thinks Youth Takes Her Money; She Grabs His Coat and Finds a Watch.

Last Sunday, Marie Lopez of No. 461 Ducommun street, a cashier in a down-town department store, went to Westlake Park. In an envelope in her purse she carried $12. She met a girl friend who introduced her to a boy friend. Later in the day when the boy friend left the girls, Marie discovered that her money was missing.

Yesterday afternoon as Miss Lopez was leaving the postoffice she saw the young man and demanded the return of the money. Without offering an excuse he started to run. Miss Lopez grabbed him by the coat tails and he wriggled out of the garment and continued on his way. An examination of the coat revealed a gold watch which bore the name and address of George Newbury. This was reported to the police and resulted in the arrest of Newbury at his home on Manchester avenue. Miss Lopez holds the watch pending the return of her money or a satisfactory explanation.

GOOD LUCK INDIAN.

A wooden Indian with paint on it nearly a quarter of an inch thick is one of the most highly prized possessions of E. A. McAlpin, owner of the $3,000,000 McAlpin Hotel in New York City, who is a guest at the Alexandria. For many years the wooden red man, fierce of mien and with uplifted tomahawk, stood in front of a cigar store owned by Mr. McAlpin's father on the site of the world-famous hotel.

Mr. McAlpin believes that the statue has brought good luck to him and he guards it as carefully as if it were the work of a famous sculptor. When the hotel was completed, Mr. McAlpin had the Indian's nose patched, gave him a new coat of war paint and placed him in a conspicuous corner of the building. Mr. McAlpin is in Southern California on a pleasure trip. He will go from Los Angeles to San Diego and later to San Francisco.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh—relief comes so quickly.

MORPHINE HABIT

GET WELL!

Investigate My New No-Detention Treatment

Well-known persons CURED given as reference (with their consent)—those who have tried others only with suffering and failure.

Endorsed by the physicians who have investigated.

My Own Discovery

Made in accidental way while treating a patient addicted to the habit. No other known treatment reaches the conditions in the same scientific and common-sense manner, and free from the usual danger and sufferings. It is non-detaining treatment, but will, in my opinion, soon supplant present institutional methods when a quick cure is desired. I present this treatment to the public in this manner for the benefit of those who would seek relief. Hours, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

BORDER CITY'S ONE BIG IDEA.

Calexico Evolving Plan for a Civic Center.

Splendid New High School to be the Nucleus.

Citizens Expect to Beat Los Angeles Yet.

The little city of Calexico, just this side of the boundary between California and Mexico, has metropolitan aspirations. Calexico is going to have a civic center. No mere dream about it, either—Los Angeles does all the dreaming along those lines. Calexico means business.

Some one in the Imperial Valley town conceived the idea about a month ago. It came in the form of an inspiration. Calexico is now building one of the finest and most attractive high schools in the State. Just who first thought of the brilliant plan of making this beautiful $100,000 group of buildings the nucleus of a real, honest-to-goodness civic center has not been revealed.

Suffice to say that the whole population of Calexico is now eagerly discussing the project and that the Farmers' and Merchants' Club, the Women's Improvement Club and other civic and business organizations of the town and its vicinity are working hard for it.

Architects Allison & Allison, this city, who planned the Calexico High School, were asked recently by the Calexico authorities to draw up a civic center scheme into which the splendid new educational group would fit. The result is seen in the fine perspective reproduced on this page.

The new high school group, shown at the left of the picture, is being erected on a ten-acre site. The corner-stone of the main building was laid on Washington's Birthday, and the different structures are contracted to be completed by next fall.

It is planned that the Manual Arts building of the school, with its 100-foot campanile, shall stand at one end of a large open plaza or park and the future Calexico City Hall at the other end. The campanile will contain a set of chimes, which will peal forth a national anthem upon the occasion of the flag-raising each school morning, and which will also serve as a fire alarm bell.

One public building in addition to the high school group is already assured for the new civic center. This is the $25,000 Calexico Carnegie library, for which the City Council has already voted a $2500 a year maintenance fund and which is to be started during the present year. Other buildings being proposed are two fine churches, a Masonic hall, a woman's clubhouse, a building for general lodge purposes, a tourist hotel, a public gymnasium and bath, a building for the Farmers' and Merchants' Club and a City Hall. Some of these structures are classified by the civic center boosters as early prospects and some are admittedly far away in the future. All in their turn are to occupy their allotted places in the civic center scheme.

The city of Calexico now owns Rockwood Park, a few blocks south of the proposed civic center site, but it has been thought too small for the future public center of the place. Steps have been taken to secure through the Legislature the right to dispose of the park land, which, because of its proximity to the business center, is quite valuable, and to devote the proceeds of the sale in the purchase of three city blocks needed in the new civic center programme.

Calexico hopes to build a future municipal building that will be not only a city hall, but will contain a large public auditorium, a public market place, a city jail and a municipal garage. Sketches for such a structure have been prepared by the architects, as a part of the study for the general scheme.

The park that the city hopes to acquire is to be elaborately landscaped and planted. A large band stand is planned for a spot in the center of the plaza.

Splendid Municipal Dream that is Already Part Reality.

The starting of the sightly new Calexico High School has suggested to the authorities of the progressive little boundary city the idea of making this institution the nucleus of a permanent group of public buildings around the open plaza. Architects Allison & Allison of Los Angeles have just prepared a tentative layout for the scheme. The above drawing reveals the proposed arrangment of future structures with reference to the High School, which is shown at the left.

Farms from Desert.

acres in the Gila River Valley and 53,000 acres in the Colorado River Valley in Arizona.

When the system is extended, as now planned, 40,000 additional, practically frostless land on the mesa south of Yuma and east of the Colorado River bottom lands will be brought into cultivation. This is land splendidly adapted to the growth of oranges, lemons, grapefruit, limes, olives and vegetables.

On the land now under irrigation some phenomenal crops, vieing with those of the Imperial Valley, have been produced. For instance, the Reclamation Service reports returns of $119 per acre on fruit under the Laguna Dam project.

Incidentally, the Yuma mesa reclamation is depended on to add 500 farms this year to make up the 1000 that the government has been handing the Southwest yearly for the past five years.

FARMS HAND MADE.

Further afield, the Salt River project of Arizona is planned to bring 182,000 acres of land, or 3750 farms, under cultivation at a cost of $4,552,879; the Rio Grande of New Mexico will add 155,000 acres or 5000 farms, to the cultivated total of the Southwest; the Carlsbad of the same State, 20,261 acres, or 525 farms, and the Hondo, 10,000 acres, or 150 farms.

Thus the grand total of all land to be brought under irrigation by the six projects in the Southwest, including the Colorado River, is 655,260 acres, roughly valued, with water, at more than $400,000,000, and all at an investment by the government of about $15,000,000.

In addition, many secondary projects are being figured on by the government, which will immensely extend this area. They include the San Carlos, San Pedro and Little Colorado in Arizona, the La Plate, Las Vegas and Urton Lake in New Mexico. The possibilities of a project in the Owens River country have also been investigated by the Reclamation Service.

COMMANDERS HERE.

Will Confer With Salvation Army Officers from All Parts of Southern California—Reception.

Commissioner and Mrs. Thomas Estell, territorial commanders of the Salvation Army, located in Chicago, accompanied by Col. George French, territorial secretary, and who was formerly in charge of the Salvation Army work on the Pacific Coast, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday, and will remain here until Tuesday evening.

While in Los Angeles they will hold conferences with Salvation Army officers from all parts of Southern California and will also conduct a series of evangelistic meetings in the Salvation Army Hall, No. 121 Wilmington street.

The local officers and corps gave the visitors a public reception last night at the hall, where a special musical programme was given by the various bands and young people's societies of the corps.

Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. H. C. Lee, who have just come from Denver, are to be installed as the new provincial officers for California.

British Postmen's Walking Records.

[St. Joseph News Press:] For seventeen British postmen to have walked between them 3,646,997 miles (an average of 214,529 miles each) is a record that has probably never before been established by any equal number of rural letter carriers. The palm for distance has been awarded to Richard Williams of Cressage in Shropshire, who retired after thirty-eight years of service in the postoffice. During the greater part of that time Williams walked thirty-eight miles a day, the total distance he covered, according to his own computation, being 415,620 miles, equivalent to going sixteen times around the world.

Interesting.

TRADE CONTEST IS SENSATION.

Candidates Already Getting Right into Line.

Story of Great Prosperity Campaign Told.

Struggle is on for Varied, Handsome Prizes.

Announcement of The Times Great Prosperity and Trade Contest last Sunday created a genuine sensation among readers. Surprise and curiosity gradually resolved themselves into the keenest interest, and all week the Trade Contest Department was kept busy answering telephone calls and explaining that the co-operating business firms would be announced yesterday, and that today's paper would tell the story of its great Prosperity campaign, down to the minutest detail.

Many eager would-be contestants were not satisfied to wait until today to become real sure-enough contestants, but sent in their names at once. One and all were delighted with the plan. One petite blonde girl, who called at the Contest Office in person, evidently voiced the sentiments of many others when she remarked, "Why, that's no work at all. I'll just get busy with the telephone, call up all my friends, and tell them to save me their sales slips. I won't even to go and collect them, for I'll just have my friends mail the slips to the Contest Department with instructions to place them to my credit."

One little boy of about 5 years came in with his mother and after listening wisely to the Contest Manager's explanation as to how easy it was to become a contestant—a winning contestant, in this Trade Contest—he interrupted with, "But mother, we haven't any garage to put the car in. Hadn't we better take a Ventrola, and go to the fair instead?"

That's one of the beauties of the contest. If you haven't a garage you needn't take the beautiful Pullman. There are twenty-nine other prizes to choose from. If you don't need a piano, try to win a diamond ring. If you don't like diamond rings—there are such peculiar people in the world—go to the fair. If you don't want to go alone to the fair, win the second prize for each district and take someone with you, or if you don't want any of these things, try to win a building lot. Oh, yes! there is something to please everyone regardless of age or sex.

HOW YOU CAN HELP.

Besides winning a beautiful prize for yourself, you will be doing a real service to the community generally by helping The Times prove that Prosperity is right here in Los Angeles, just as aggressively flourishing as ever. Some people who just love to hunt for trouble (the kind who always carry an umbrella even in Los Angeles) have been predicting that the "hard times aren't over," and that "times will be tighter than ever," and one of the purposes of this Prosperity Campaign is to prove to these calamity howlers that they are wrong.

Don't spend money foolishly to prove that you are prosperous and by the same reasoning do not wear shabby shoes to prove that you are economical. The greatest extravagance of which a person can be accused is the extravagance of neglecting the personal appearance in the fattening of the pocket book. If you need a new hat buy it and buy it. If your suit is shabby buy a new one and increase your earning capacity by adding to your personal charms. The more you spend in keeping up a prosperous appearance the more you will have to add to your nest-egg at the bank. That statement may sound contradictory, but it isn't. Think it over.

From now on the struggle will be among the contestants in the four districts, which have been mapped out under the rules of the contest. The four districts will receive equal consideration in the awarding of the four grand prizes—the handsome Pullman car and the beautiful building lots in Florence Heights. After these prizes have been awarded to the two persons having the highest number of credits in all the four districts, each district will be considered separately for first, second and other district prizes.

INFORM YOURSELF.

Read the double page announcement in today's paper. Read it over two or three times and learn just how to get your credits—and how easy it is. Read carefully the list of co-operating merchants and other business houses from whom these credits may be obtained. If you are not a contestant yourself, keep your eyes open just the same and turn them over to some contestant who will doubtless be glad to ask for them before the campaign is over.

If there is any point not clear to you, call us up and ask us about it, or come in to the Contest Department and talk it over. You will enjoy the visit and so will we, even if you don't become a contestant. This is a regular get-together campaign, for better business in Southern California, and we should each do our share, be it ever so small.

Remember that no matter where you live or what your needs may be you will find just what you require among the business firms who are co-operating with us in this Prosperity Contest. If you want to spend your money, look over the list of merchants and theaters. If you want to save your money—and you should do a little of both—look over the same announcement.

But whatever you do, do not forget that this is a Prosperity Campaign, and that we need your help to make it the biggest possible success. Fill out the nomination blank today and send it in at once, either for yourself or some friend.

AGED PIONEER PASSES.

Charles P. Bisbee, a respected Southern California pioneer, died at his home before yesterday at the residence of his son, Charles L. Bisbee, No. 1017 Menlo avenue. Mr. Bisbee was born in Worthington, Mass., July 2, 1827. As a young man he went West and settled in Keokuk, Iowa, where he was for many years engaged in the wholesale grocery business. He came to San Diego in 1887, where he resided many years. He leaves two sons, Charles L. Bisbee of the Bisbee-Fishburn Lumber Company, and Ernest F. Bisbee, St. Louis, and two daughters, Mrs. A. A. Sparks, 1105 Leighton avenue; Mrs. J. Hawley, Ocean Park, and Mrs. Hubert Chase, San Diego.

All Attempted Price Restrictions by Some Manufacturers and Dealers Now Off

We tried to sell over 100 Pianos in two days last Friday and Saturday, so as to close this sale Saturday night. We found it impossible, although the store was crowded with buyers both days. That is why we are extending this sale for 2 days. We are positive by Tuesday night every piano will be sold. This enormous stock purchased from the Trustee the time of the unfortunate financial embarrassment of the Harthorn Piano and Music House, one of California's oldest and largest piano dealers, of Long Beach, must positively be sold at once. This is the residue of the costly makes sold by this well-known house. It is a chance of a lifetime, for the creditors demand immediate settlement. We must have cash. Many pianos now being sold at less than actual cost to make them. You owe an investigation to yourself. The next two days must close this sale.

NECESSITY KNOWS NO LAW

Every Piano cut in price, no matter what its advertised price may be. Come at once. $1 to $2 WEEKLY, one to three years to pay for almost any piano, player piano or baby grand piano.

Heretofore well-known makes of Pianos, Player Pianos and Baby Grand Pianos, have been restricted as to their selling price by manufacturers who spend enormous amounts in advertising through magazines, etc. Although the pianos are really reliable an unnecessary price is tacked on to them. Now that price restriction is off during the sale, for remember this is a Trustee Sale and irrespective of what the piano is worth, every instrument must immediately be sold.

The Harthorn Piano and Music Co. of Long Beach, who for nearly 20 years has been known as the house of highest quality, has met with financial reverses and it was necessary that a Trustee be appointed.

This Trustee Sale positively closes today or tomorrow sure—the demand for immediate sale of these PIANOS has sold them in large quantities and by authority of the manufacturer at LESS THAN COST in many cases.

A Statement from the Head of the House

For unusual conditions create unusual opportunities. There have been many occasions in the past whereby we were in a position to offer the finest makes of pianos at very substantial discounts but never heretofore has there been such a combination of circumstances that have made possible, or let me say compelled such low prices as have now been arranged for Piano buyers in Southern California. But the Factory Representative who is in charge of this sale for the Manufacturers and the Trustee, makes the prices and guarantees the sale of these Pianos, Player Pianos and Baby Grand Pianos.

I have been well known in the piano trade for many years and have always sold pianos I can guarantee in every way and I want to say that any person who is not satisfied in every way can have his or her money back or exchange for any one of over twenty standard makes now handled by our house. No transactions will be considered as completed unless the piano is positively satisfactory.

I do not know how to say this more emphatically. Every instrument sold in this sale must prove satisfactory to the buyer in every way, both as to quality and price, or no sale.

For many years I have carried out every obligation and every agreement to the letter and would not care to deviate from this proud record at this time or any other time.

The sale price is plainly marked, the price will be to each and every one alike. Any child can purchase as safely and as satisfactorily as the shrewdest buyer.

Most respectfully,

B. PLATT,
Pres. Platt Music Co.

All other grades equally low. We are forced by the Manufacturers and the Trustee to call these pianos used; the reason is for future protection of dealers who must obtain the regular prices. However, with a very few exceptions, none of them has ever been sold and have only been in stock six months, some less than 3 months, new direct from the factory. The few that are used are in perfect condition and guaranteed the same as new ones.

Eyeglasses Not Necessary

Eyesight Can Be Strengthened and Most Forms of Diseased Eyes Successfully Treated Without Cutting or Drugging.

That the eyes can be strengthened so that eyeglasses can be dispensed with in many cases has been proven beyond a doubt by the testimony of hundreds of people who publicly claim that their eyesight has been restored by that wonderful little instrument called "Actina." "Actina" also relieves Sore and Granulated Lids, Iritis, Cataracts, etc., without cutting or drugging. Over 100,000 "Actina" have been sold; therefore the Actina treatment is not an experiment, but is reliable. The following letters are but samples of hundreds we receive:

Mr. David Suttle, Glen Ellyn, Ill., writes: "I sent for your 'Actina,' and when it came I told my wife I would throw my glasses away and give the 'Actina' a fair show. I did so, following directions, and soon felt my eyes were getting in normal condition again, and now I can say my eyesight is as good as ever, and my headaches practically vanished."

Mr. Emery E. Deitrick, 7124 Idlewild street, E. E., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "My eyes were very weak, and my vision was so bad that I could recognize people only at short distances. Since using 'Actina' I have discarded my glasses, my headaches are gone and my vision, I believe, is as good as ever it was."

Mr. J. H. Frankfield, 522 E. 20th street, Cheyenne, Wyo., writes: "Regarding what the 'Actina' has done for me I am proud to say that I am not wearing my glasses at all. As for my catarrh it is almost gone, and I have been troubled with it for more than sixteen years.

"A great number of my railroad friends are buying 'Actina,' as you know by the orders you have received."

"Actina" can be used with perfect safety by every member of the family for any affliction of the eye, ear, throat or head. A Free trial of the "Actina" is given in every case.

Economical.

THIS CHEAPEST PLACE TO EAT.

Food Prices Lower than in Other Communities.

And at Same Time a Greater Variety is Offered.

East's Luxuries Poor Man's Provender Here.

o you realize that you can live n Los Angeles today for less than in any other community in America, at least as far as the price of foodstuffs s? And that you can at the same me have a greater variety of good things to eat than you could get anywhere else, unless you belong to the millionaire class and can afford only hot-house products?

It isn't necessary to have a fat purse to enjoy here what would be luxury elsewhere. Nor it is necessary to spend quite as much for the bare necessities of life. Eggs, butter, numerous meats, potatoes, apples and all the other staples are just as cheap, or a little less costly than in Chicago, New York or any of a dozen cities of good size.

Take that one thing you find on every table, the potato. Just think that in the month of February, the worst of winter in the East, you can buy potatoes in Los Angeles for $1.50 a hundred pounds, which is less by 50 cents than you would pay for them by the bushel in New York.

Fly in the Sacramento-San Joaquin valley they are still digging last year's crop of potatoes. And in Los Angeles they are selling new potatoes at from 10 cents a pound, retail. In Chicago new potatoes are quoted at 25 cents a pound now, and will not be a popular commodity for at least two months.

Potatoes are not as cheap as onions. You can go to your corner store and buy twenty-five pounds of onions for about 35 cents. Possibly you could get them for less if the grocer were willing them to attract trade, and he would not have to lose much himself, because the yellow onions are now selling in quantities at $1 a hundred.

APPLES A REASON.

One of the reasons for these low prices can be attributed to apples. What snalegy apples and potatoes may have in prices may be a problem for you, but this year apples are the cause for numerous low prices. In California they have been so plentiful that you can go to the market and buy them by the dozens at 50 cents a box, or you can have your grocer deliver them to you for 75 cents to $1 a box. At $1, if the man you deal with is not looking for too much, you can get several other varieties of apples.

In the East you could not touch a box of the same fruit for less than double the price, even though the fruit were plentiful. It is this plenty of apples that has caused increased consumption. Even this may fail in the end to sell all the 1914 apples in storage here. And consumption of apples at the expense of the popularity of the potato has kept potato prices low.

You can buy a box of oranges for $1.50 to $2 here, which is what the wholesale dealers are paying back in the old home town. Grapefruit may cost you as much as $2.50 per box, if you want the best and are entertaining friends who are fond of the fruit. By the dozen, all citrus fruit is from 10 to 20 per cent, lower in cost here than anywhere else in America.

Today you can buy fresh ranch eggs in Los Angeles for 25 cents, and in a few places they are quoted as high as 33 cents. If you lived in New York that product would cost you 35 cents. The retail price of butter is about the same throughout the country now, 35 cents a pound for creamery extras. Sugar, salt, flour and cereal products sell at the same prices here as in most other communities.

Asparagus you can get now for 25 cents a pound. If you were in the region where only hot houses produce asparagus it would cost you $1. You can get fresh artichokes at three for 25 cents here. Elsewhere they would cost you as much as 25 cents each. Beets, turnips, onions, radishes, parsnips, carrots, leeks and spinach are available at three bunches for 10 cents. Many of these things can't now be bought in some places, and when they may the price exceeds that of the grocery 25 to 50 per cent. You have fresh celery, cucumbers, tomatoes and other winter delicacies without spending a small fortune.

Strawberries are obtainable here at from 15 to 20 cents a basket now. In the East only the very finest hotels and restaurants could find you a box of strawberries. Then the dish would run 50 cents or $1, according to the service that goes with it.

We have guavas, which are scarcely known in the East, and that will please the palate of a family of four costs at an outlay of 10 or 15 cents.

Of the meat situation pages might be written. Quoting the representative of one of the largest packing concerns in America, who has been watching conditions in Los Angeles for some time past, it is possible to say, and envy in his remarks, because Los Angeles sells meat cheaper than the greatest packing centers in America.

"This is the cheapest beef center in the United States," he declared, "not only to the amount of cattle that is shipped in, but to the fact that dealers are so everlastingly at it continually after the business that they have cut prices to the lowest possible margin of profit."

What is true of beef, he declared, is also true of pork. During the past few months California farmers, because of high prices of grain, have rushed their stock to market as fast as fit for consumption. The result has been several declines and pork is lower today than before the beginning of the European war, despite heavy shipments of the cured product from Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Utah and Arizona shipping pork and hams to Los Angeles markets, prices, no matter how high they may go throughout the nation, will always be from 2 cents lower here than in most other communities.

Investigation proves that not only is it more economical to buy food products of all kinds in Los Angeles, but the variety throughout the year is far greater on account of semi-tropical conditions, which enable an all-the-year-round production. Careful investigation by a family of four who recently arrived from Chicago, proved that they could save 25 per cent. on their living here, which means that much more for investment, for amusements, for clothing and all the needs and advantages money can meet.

Known as Wealthiest Man in Canada.

William Molson MacPherson,

Who owns and directs eighty-nine banks, and is president of the Dominion Steamship Company. He says the silver lining in the European war cloud is the fact that it makes Canada the food garner of England through the gigantic development of her agricultural resources. Mr. MacPherson is at the Huntington.

Optimism of the North.

LAND WHERE WAR IS NOT KNOWN AS HELL.

"THE silver lining of the European war cloud for England, and incidentally the United States, is the development of Canada," said William Molson MacPherson, rated the wealthiest man north of the United States boundary, yesterday at the Hotel Huntington, where he is spending the winter. "Financially, Canada is facing the best era of prosperity she ever enjoyed. The war has not harmed her. It has done her good, and will do her much more good. While her stocks and bonds, like others, are not selling well in England, due to the war, they are meeting a good demand in New York and will continue to do so.

"Owing to the great demand by England for food products, she has to turn to her provinces for aid. Canada is the place. This year will witness the breaking in of 25 per cent. more tillable agricultural land, the harvesting of millions of bushels of grain and the raising of many hundred thousand horses, cattle and sheep."

Mr. MacPherson owns and directs eighty-nine banks in Canada, is the president of the Dominion Steamship Company, the American correspondent of the Bank of England, and practically the financial backer of the Canadian government, and he knows. Incidentally this great financier is known to many of his friends as "the Rockefeller of the North." He arrived at the magnificent hotel on Oak Knoll a few days ago with his daughter, Miss Veda MacPherson. Here they will remain until spring arrives at their home at Quebec.

"Before the war, we, too, were bothered with the question of the unemployed. It is not so now. Canada is a-stir. Many men enlisted and went to the front. The news dispatches often tell how they gallantly fell in defense of the flag. More are going. But others, seeing wherein they can do good service for their nation by providing supplies for those in battle are going into farming. My banks, known as the Molson system or chain of banks, have loaned much money this year to those preparing to either enter the farming industry or to increase their acreage. Farm products are bringing a good price, and will probably bring more. This will bring a great deal of money into the country. American industries will benefit by this, for much of this money will find its way southward for manufactured products of all sorts."

Continuing Mr. MacPherson pointed out in various other ways, similar to those advanced recently by Robert S. Lovett, head of the Southern Pacific system, how American securities will meet with greater demand as the war advances, and at its conclusion.

"Let 'Er Go."

VICIOUS HORSES; DARING RIDERS.

GREATEST RODEO IN THE WEST TO BE HELD HERE.

Beginning First of May Deeds of Daring as Seen in the Old Southwest will be Enacted for Enjoyment of Exposition Visitors—Will Enlarge the Stadium.

Nine afternoons of breath-baiting thrills.

Thus may be described briefly the first number on the entertainment programme prepared by the 1915 General Committee for the hundreds of thousands of tourists who will visit Los Angeles during this year.

Beginning May 1, deeds of skill will be performed here by the pick of daring men from the plains and deserts of seven States and Territories.

In the great Stadium at East Thirty-fifth street and Hooper avenue, hundreds of men and women, often at the risk of life, will meet in combat the wildest horses and the most dangerous cattle that ever have been brought inside an inclosure to afford a spectacle. It will be the greatest rodeo ever held west of the Rocky Mountains, which is equivalent to saying the greatest in history.

From all parts of Arizona, New Mexico, from parts of Northern Mexico and from as far as Utah and Colorado, now are being gathered the animals which will be used in these exhibitions. Already, some of the most vicious horses in the Southwest are on their way to Los Angeles. By the latter part of March the number of such equines here will be the largest ever brought together.

The nine-days carnival of skill against strength will be the principal feature of the first days of the fiesta month.

The contests, as they will be held, without a suggestion of theatricalism, will give the eastern visitor such a vivid and lasting impression that he will learn more of this phase of the life of the old Southwest than perhaps could be gained from any other source.

Chief among the contests will be roping and riding, stage-coach races, pony express races and relay races. Dare-devil feats of horseman-ship will be numerous.

It is the belief of Chairman Motley H. Flint that the size of the prizes will assure bringing out all the innate daring and skill possessed by the range riders, the most venturesome of whom will appear here.

The rodeo also will have a historical element, as it will portray a phase of southwestern life fast disappearing.

J. R. Raley, of Pendleton, Or., who has been engaged by the committee as director of spring pageants, will have charge of all details in connection with holding the rodeo. He has opened an office at No. 8033 Trust and Savings building.

The Stadium, which the committee bought from the City Board of Education, will be improved to increase its seating capacity to $25,000.

Mr. Raley pronounces the structure, with these improvements, an ideal one for rodeo purposes. In form, it will be made a perfect circle, like the "Bowl" at Yale, and from every seat a full view will be possible of everything that takes place in the arena.

TRAINING SCHOOL PLANS.

Programme for Instructions at Y.M.C.A. for Parents and Teachers Is Announced.

The seventh lecture in a course on "Jesus and the Social Question" will be delivered tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock at the Y.M.C.A. by Dr. George F. Kenngott. His subject will be "Jesus and Industry."

This is a portion of the programme for the Training School for Bible Workers, which is open to parents and teachers.

In the elementary teachers' section Mrs. B. E. Bassford will teach a model junior grade lesson. Mrs. Jean Hobart of Minneapolis will speak on "Story Telling." Miss Blanche E. Wachob will conduct a conference for "'teen age" teachers on "Through-the-Week Activities" for boys' and girls' classes. Prof. J. G. Hill will speak on "Habit," and Mrs. J. S. Norville will give the second lecture on "How to Do Personal Evangelism."

TO STRENGTHEN COMMON BOND.

BRITISH-AMERICAN LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED IN THIS CITY.

For the purpose of strengthening the bonds of friendliness between the United States and Great Britain, the British-American League has been successfully organized with headquarters in this city, with a general committee of sixty-seven representatives of Los Angeles county. Many influential local residents are included in its membership.

The following officers and Executive Committee have been elected: Edmund Mitchell, president; John Alton, vice-president; Edward P. Bailey, secretary and treasurer; Cyril Bretherton, A. M. Chaffey, John T. Gaffey, J. Norman Kerr, W. W. Kirk, J. J. Willacy and F. Winstanley.

The principal objects of the league are as follows: To commemorate the 100 years of unbroken peace between the British Empire and the United States; to strengthen the bond of friendship and reciprocal interests which united the two countries, and to promote their common ideals of liberty, justice, the sacredness of treaties, protection for the weaker nations, the abolition of war, etc.; to bring together men and women of British birth or descent resident in the United States, to stimulate loyalty to the land of their adoption; to counteract by dissemination of appropriate literature the work of any agency that may have for its object the provoking of difficulties between Great Britain and the United States; to provide facilities for social intercourse and good fellowship among members, thereby bringing them into a closer relationship.

The movement proved so popular that Blanchard Hall, the scene of a recent meeting of the organization, was packed and many hundreds were unable to obtain admission. The formation of a similar league at San Francisco has been completed.

Another large meeting will be held here in Blanchard Hall next Thursday to report the progress of the organization. A programme of speeches and patriotic music has been arranged. An invitation to all Britishers and peace-loving Americans to attend the meeting has been extended.

LOSS OF REPUTATION—TOTAL.

He Who "Had Showed His Strength Before Royalty" Bound by Strips of a Sheet.

The cost of a boast, made by J. Polos, No. 216 East Third street, while he was entertaining a number of friends late Friday night in a Main-street saloon, is not reckoned by Polos in the dollars and cents that he lost, but is charged up to injured feelings and a lost reputation.

Years ago, "Polos the Great," was wont to drift about the country offering rewards of greater or less size for the man who could tie him up so tightly that he could not gain his liberty; also he carried handcuffs, chains, strait-jackets and a packing box, in which he allowed himself to be nailed and then gained his freedom in front of, he claimed, in his boast, most of the "crowned heads of Europe."

Time has wrought many changes, but not in the advertising ability of Polos. He told his story with many flourishes and only left his audience when all were too tired to listen further. In the wee small hours of the morning, two men, who, to the sleepy gaze of Polos, looked suspiciously like two of his listeners in the early evening, entered his room. The struggle was brief and "Polos the Great" was tightly bound with pieces of sheeting ripped from the bed. It was late yesterday morning before his landlady entered the room and broke his bonds. His loss in money was $5.15 and to his reputation, total.

DID YOU FORGET?

If You Haven't Remembered Income Tax Collector Man, Better do so Today by Special Delivery.

The crowd of taxpayers at the Internal Revenue Office, yesterday, eager to take advantage of the last day of grace so far as dealing with the public is concerned, filled the place to the doors, and they stood in line half way down the corridor on the third floor of the Federal Building.

The office will not be open today, but the entire force of clerks, and Collector Carter will be engaged fixing up the books, and checking up the returns. Any return mailed today that reaches the offices of the Collector tomorrow, March 1, will be accepted without penalty, but then the story ends and penalties will be exacted on all the late comers. It is estimated that there will be not less than 2000 delinquents in the entire Sixth Collection District. The great majority of these will be individuals and corporations charged under the law as withholding agents.

A great many of the persons calling yesterday not only made the return required by law, but paid the tax. In fact, such has been the case ever since the rush began several weeks ago. But tax-paying time runs until July 1.

Up to the close of business Friday night, the February receipts of the office amounted to $143,000 in round numbers, and it was estimated that the figures yesterday would make the grand total, $150,000. The receipts for February, 1914, were $90,953.99; for the same month, 1913, $81,816.30.

HOW I DARKENED MY GRAY HAIR

Lady Gives Simple Home Recipe That She Used to Darken Her Gray Hair.

For years I tried to restore my gray hair to its natural color with the prepared dyes and stains, but none of them gave satisfaction and they were all expensive. I finally ran onto a simple recipe which I mixed at home that gives wonderful results. I gave the recipe, which is as follows, to a number of my friends, and they are all delighted with it. To 7 oz. of water add a small box of Barbo Compound, 1 oz. of bay rum and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Use every other day until the hair becomes the required shade, then every two weeks. It will not only darken the gray hair, but removes dandruff and scalp humors, and acts as a tonic to the hair. It is not sticky or greasy, does not rub off and does not color the scalp. You can prepare it at home at very little expense.

Los Angeles.

POET MARKHAM PAYS TRIBUTE.

Inspired by County Blossoms and City Architecture.

He Says House Building Seems Never to Cease.

Bungalow Dwellers Have Gardens of Allah.

Tribute to Los Angeles, in no uncertain tones, is paid by Edwin Markham, poet and philosopher, in his latest book, "California, the Wonderful." George Hamlin Fitch says of this new book: "Markham describes places and events in California as Joaquin Miller sings of them—as though he could not help it."

From the proof sheets of the book the following bits of "union of solid fact and soaring fancy" are culled. Of Los Angeles itself Edwin Markham says:

"The city has spread upon an amphitheater of hills and covers thirty-six square miles. Her business houses soar skyward like those of Chicago and Manhattan. House-building seems never to cease, and so the skyline is continually changing as the days advance. And the days are not long enough for the labors of the Angelenos; hence they erect huge searchlights and (with a new shift of men) continue the work through the dark hours.

"After this touch of the spirit of the growing city, do I need to say that her apartments are artistic, her large hotels are sumptuous, having a quiet elegance and beauty like the Giralda of Andalusia? I will pass these facts in order to say that her homes exemplify the individuality of many eras—Colonial, Italian, Mission, Swiss, Queen Anne. She delights especially in adaptations of the inspired Spanish Colonial, whose long low lines and tawny tints carry into the air the color rhythm of mesa and mountain. Besides this, the builder of a home takes into account the slope and contour of the land about it, ordering the foundation and proportion in a way that will fit the house into its setting, making of the work of nature and the work of man one modulated picture.

"Of course, Los Angeles must not be painted in pure rose tints; she, alas! like all cities in the world, has her warrens of the poor. Still no other city perhaps is more free of the proletariat; and, taken as a whole, her domain may be described as a vast park. The resolute energy that has transformed her 50,000 of 1880 to her 500,000 of today has not changed her character—she is still a city of homes set in the midst of gardens.

"Her interurban electric car service knits the city with neighboring hill towns, valleys and sea beaches; and this has woven all her surroundings into one vast community, and has made the pleasures and the intellectual life of the city accessible to the workers on the bee farms, on the alfalfa fields and in the orange groves, as well as to the dwellers in the bungalows and mansions of the suburbs. This electric line ("the red-car line," the people call it,) runs to forty points or more on tracks that cover 1000 miles.

"The flight of these cars is swift enough for the messages of Mercury; and they seem at times to be bearing you through a Parnassian paradise, leafy and bloomy wonderlands. Some of the homes in the outskirts, perchad on hill-slope or hidden in sequestered vale, are classics in design; and many of them are not surpassed by any manor of England, any villa of Italy, any chateau of France. And the gardens in which the buildings stand, the gardens with blossoming boughs gathered from all lands and woven into harmonies, they are veritable gardens of Allah, bowers of Avalon."

The glory of the gardens of Los Angeles county is inspiring to Edwin Markham. He tells of the 4000 square miles of territory, stretching from the seashore to the mountain tops, all with its particular charm, but says that nine-tenths of the population lives within thirty miles of the ocean and that driving out into the country is like driving through a vast and varied park, with verdure and blossoming boughs everywhere.

"In many of the gardens of California," says Markham, "there never is a time when some flower is not in bloom. Of course, there, as elsewhere, the flowers are at high tide only once a year. But there are many lesser tides and they brighten all the months. In September the gardens begin to withdraw their glory and to sleep; yet at Christmas time you will find the calla lilies, the geraniums and other flowers in full bloom.

"In March and April, while yet New England is locked in the last chains of winter, out in California the fields and gardens have broken into a foam of flowers. From a thousand orange groves blows the bridal odor that breathed over Eden. Jasmine, honeysuckle, heliotrope, wistaria, roses of every name and fame, all begin to billow and surge over porches and gates and roofs, down streets and roads, in a glory of perfume and color. Bedded flowers of every print and prank—tulips, lilies, gazanias, petunias, pansies and many another—flaunt and flare and flame. More than this, hosts of geraniums, vivid as a sunset sky, hedge the houses and the gardens, and the poinsettias in the same key file by in scarlet pomp.

"A fresh eye in Southern California always takes note of the many strange new trees gathered there from other lands. You first observe the princely fan palms that run along the sylvan roadsides. The windmill palm from China and the plumy date palm from the Canaries are members of the same family. The pepper tree, introduced into the missions from Peru, is another alien reconciled to a new country. It belongs to the sumacs, however, not to the peppers. The drooping branches suggest the weeping willow, and the berry clusters of pale crimson give touches of color to the roads through nearly all of the round year.

"From Formosa comes the camphor tree, with varnished leaves and rose-pink blossoms, and from the Himalayas we greet the poetic deodar, an Asiatic cedar, happy here by a southern sea; and the jacaranda from Brazil, alive with azure blossoms under the June sky, is also a lovely new friend.

"The eucalyptus comes to us from the other side of the world. It is a-tremble with aspiration—a 5-year-old will toss its head fifty feet into the air. Some of the older eucalypti seem determined to qualify to enter the Sequoia class; for, when only a quarter of a century out of the seed, they salute the sky at a height of 250 feet. They soar sometimes to 400 feet and beyond, giving us a sense of majestic serenity. A peculiar balsamic odor pervades the tree, and its bark (being shed and renewed continually) affords us a study in tints. The eucalyptus comes to us from Australia, who has her summer while we are having our winter; so this tree throws out her fine blossoms into our winter air, as though she would keep faith with her comrades that are blossoming in her old homeland on the southern side of the world."

Edwin Markham, who is a native of the West and who spent fifty years in California, although now a resident of Greater New York, is again in his beloved West. He is to address the Principals' Club of Los Angeles on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

COLDEST TOWN ON EARTH.

Place in Northeastern Siberia Where Rivers Freeze to the Bottom and Trees Split from the Frost.

Verkhoyansk is on the great Arctic plain scarcely more than 150 feet above the sea. Probably there would be no town at all there if it were not necessary to Russian governmental purposes to have a trading center for a region where many thrifty Yakuts may carry on their operations.

All its inhabitants, except a few officials and other Russians, are Yakuts. This does not prevent its being a place of some importance, for the Yakuts are the most progressive people in Northern Siberia, excelling the Russians themselves in enterprise, so far as Siberian matters are concerned.

In winter the rivers in the vicinity of Verkhoyansk freeze to the bottom, and the small trees have been known to snap and split from the force of the frost.

In spite of all this, Verkhoyansk is not, as one might suppose, a disagreeable place of residence. It is preferred by many Russian officials to many more southern and warmer posts. Its atmosphere in winter is always clear, and for the little time that the sun is above the horizon its beams are unobstructed. The air is still, and no blizzards or drifting snowstorms make life a burden to the inhabitants.

The Siberian dress completes the comfort of this Arctic city. It consists of two suits of fur, an outer and an inner suit. The inner suit is worn fur side inward, the outer fur side outward. With his hood down and just enough space left to see out of and to breathe through, the Verkhoyansker is a great deal more comfortable in a temperature of 80 below than many an American in his cloth overcoat in a temperature of 5 above zero.

An Army's Eyes.

[London Answers:] When people read that armies are engaging each other at 2000 yards' distance they are apt to imagine that the combatants can see each other; but, as a matter of fact, they cannot. At that distance it is impossible to distinguish between a man and a horse, and even at 1200 yards, especially where there is any dust, it requires the best kind of eyes to tell infantry from cavalry.

At 900 yards the movements become clearer, although it is not until they get within 750 yards of each other that the heads of the columns can be made out with anything like certainty.

Infantry can be seen in the sunlight much more easily than cavalry or artillery, because less dust is raised. Besides, infantry is distinguished by the glitter of the muskets. At 2000 yards, however, everything is unsatisfactory.

POLITICIANS SURE TO LOSE.

City Manager Farish has Best of Investigation.

Legislative Session is Nearly Over with Nothing Done.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Feb. 25.—The inquisition on City Manager Farish is almost at an end, with Farish very much in the clear, except on a number of matters wherein he possibly showed poor judgment. The investigation has developed a few things, however. One is that a commission form of government has proved a bit more expensive than the other kind. Another is that the City Commission is hankering after the power of the manager. A third, very plainly shown, is that the prosecution was started by certain political influences that want to get back in the saddle. Leading counsel for the prosecution is former Gov. R. E. Sloan, while former Chief Justice Baker and former United States Attorney Alexander represent Farish. The City Commission is assumed to be sitting in judgment, but out in front at all sessions of the hearing is an even more critical jury, representatives of the Woman's Club, which already has rendered a verdict for the manager.

Farish, in his own behalf, categorically has denied about every charge made, though he is willing to admit "firing" a policeman who "beat up" the young son of Editor C. H. Akers of the Gazette and thereafter hammered the father when he came around to inquire about it. Employment of a number of possibly unnecessary extra men in the police department was explained as having been upon the application of one of the complainants, former Chief of Police Brisbois, about the time some Mexican revolutionists sought to accumulate some arms in Phoenix with which to march southward.

It developed that there had been much complaint over the appointment of the new Chief of Police, not only because of his Democratic affiliations, but because, as explained by Brisbois, he had found Brawner in a gambling game. Farish told he had not been obeyed when he told Brisbois to stop gambling at certain specified places, including the Arizona Club and the Adams Hotel. An attack on Farish concerning a new contract for electric lighting brought out the fact that the tariff to the city had been reduced by Farish from 5 cents per kilowatt to 2½ cents. This result seems to have been arrived at by the process of intimating to the lighting company that the city might generate its own electricity at its pumping plant.

LEGISLATURE IS SLOW.

The Arizona Legislature is drifting toward the last fortnight of its sixty-day session with very little done thus far, with not an important bill passed and not an appropriation bill completed. Already there is consideration of the possibility of an extra session. In the place of the drastic prohibition bills that have been rejected, has been introduced another which little more than repeats the language of the constitutional amendment, but which eliminates from the prohibition pure grain alcohol when used by educational and scientific institutions and under the orders of licensed physicians, as in the compounding of medicines.

The Legislature is trying to find a legal way for virtual abrogation of the old age and mothers' pension law, lately passed under initiation. This law is now under fire in the Superior Court in an action brought by the Taxpayers' Association, with the State Board of Control named as defendant. An injunction is sought to prevent the board from certifying approval of pensions which have been asked by persons in different parts of the State. From Globe has come the application of a woman with five children, to whom, under the law, would go a monthly payment of $45.

INVESTIGATING SIMS.

The House of Representatives has beaten the Senate in a race toward investigation of Penitentiary Warden Sims, who is charged with neglect of duty in failing to execute Diego Villalobo, sentenced to be hanged January 8. The warden has been brought on the carpet before the House Committee on Public Institutions. With him came the Governor, with whose approval he is supposed to have refused obedience to the court mandate. Representative Christy, acting as prosecutor, recited how the people had declared against the Governor's wishes for the abolition of capital punishment and how the law was plainly mandatory upon the warden. Warden Sims did not deny his failure to take action, but said, "I thought the prisoner had a right that others had had and I executed my best judgment." He did not call on the Attorney-General and had notified the County Attorney only that he had not complied with the law. Villalobo since that time has been resentenced to hang March 19. Sims has been quoted as announcing there will never be an execution in the State Penitentiary while he held his office and it was suggested at the committee meeting that he might resign before the fateful 19th came around. The power of reprieve has been taken from the Governor, though probably not in legal manner.

CONVICTS WANT RIGHTS.

Complaint has come that the rights of ten certain convicts have not been recognized by the new Board of Pardons. These men are "honor convicts," who for some time have been engaged, unguarded, on the betterment of the Roosevelt road through the Superstition Mountains. For such work an allowance of double-time credit on their sentences was guaranteed them. They want to know whether the new board is going to acknowledge the warden's contract with them.

Possibly on the ground that already taxes are too high, three Arizona counties, Maricopa, Yavapai and Pinal, have failed to extend the tax levy to cover a redemption fund for the retirement of the State funded debt. Yavapai county, which has heavy railroad bond indebtedness, has failed to make the levy for two years past, it being claimed that the national government had set apart certain lands in the State to be sold for just such purposes and that, if the State officials failed to sell the land, their default should not be charged up to the counties.

Atty.-Gen. Wiley E. Jones has decided that the entire expenses of a public official while traveling legally can be added to his expense account, this including tips.

BRITON GONE, DREAM SHATTERED

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Feb. 24.—Prescott mourns the departure of an Englishman, who came here with a proposition to buy the United Verde mine for a paltry hundred million or so, who represented himself as a mining engineer with a salary of $25,000 a year, as the son of Lord Avondale, a nephew of the Duke of Hamilton, a Thirty-third Degree Mason, a former British Consul in Mexico and as a military man, with many years of service as a major in both the British and United States armies. He had drifted in through Southern Arizona and at Deming, N. M., had represented himself as a remount agent for the British government and had contracted for the delivery of 10,000 horses. Here the principal damage done on the strength of his titled connections and, wealth was an engagement to marry a young woman whom he met at the Congress Hotel.

WILD BEASTS DESPERATE.

The long-continued snows in the mountains of Northern and Central Arizona are driving mountain lions into the valleys. In the vicinity of Walnut Grove nearly all the range colts have been killed and about 20 per cent. losses have occurred among the calves. Made bold by hunger, two huge lions lately followed home Clark Wingar, who had ventured out mounted and without a gun. The cattlemen are preparing for a big lion hunt with dogs, intending to beat up the whole Walnut Grove section.

Among the unwelcome visitors also are bears of various sizes. From Copper Creek comes a tale of the presence of an enormous grizzly, which is known to have killed three steers and which is supposed to have headed into Skull Valley, where it will be sought by local hunters.

Kingman, the county seat of Mohave county, is preparing for incorporation, feeling the need of a better civic government in the recent prosperity brought by the operation of rich mines in its vicinity.

The Hardest Wood.

[Philadelphia Record:] Experts aver that more than twenty mahogany-like woods are now offered as true mahogany, to say nothing of a considerable number of woods cleverly stained to imitate mahogany. In view of this, at a time when the demand for mahogany is greater than the supply, unusual interest attaches to such woods as Carinjana, or Colombian, mahogany, which is acknowledged not to be mahogany, but which is so similar to it in color, grain effects and working qualities as to serve for the rarer wood.

It is claimed that while Carinjana differs widely in its botanical and anatomical character from true mahogany its close superficial resemblance to mahogany and its physical properties at once distinguish it as a high-class cabinet wood. When properly seasoned it does not warp, check or shrink, while much of the lumber is beautifully figured. It works well, takes a filler readily and can be highly polished.

WHIFFEN IS OUT FOR MAYORALTY

President of Council States His Platform.

Wants New Charter to Extend Executive Power.

Chief Sebastian Blossoms Out with Policies.

If he doesn't change his mind will be a candidate at the primaries in May—but that is a long way off.

Mr. Whiffen has been on the verge of announcing himself for weeks. He is known to have a overpowering passion to be Mayor but hesitated for some time to come in the open. This reluctance construed by many to mean that was waiting for some other candidate to appear.

After Chief of Police Sebastian, Fred Pierce and Ralph Criswell announced themselves, Mr. Whiffen declared that unless "better than that already in the race appeared, he would become a candidate.

No other candidates appeared and Mr. Whiffen sprang into being a full-fledged candidate.

Mr. Whiffen's announcement is accompanied by his platform, which contains the following pledges:

No more money for new parks until those already started are completed; fewer special assessment districts; no money for reckless schemes will resist the insidious advances of corporate and political foes of the city; improvement of harbor, prosecution of all cases to wrest title in tidelands away from claimants; plans for subways and elevated roads should be prepared; no increase in taxes; no more bonded debt; extension of civil service; for a new city charter.

CHIEF'S PLATFORM.

SEBASTIAN STATES POLICIES.

Chief of Police Sebastian, candidate for Mayor, came out with a platform yesterday. He promised to enforce the laws, to name a chief of Police of highest integrity, strictly limitation of the liquor traffic, and continuance of good police service.

The Chief promises to have sale of surplus aqueduct water to provide a sinking fund and interest on aqueduct bonds. He favors the completion of the aqueduct plants and to utilize aqueduct water for municipal power. He favors a municipal railway to Owens River and the development of the harbor generally. He favors more and better routes in the congested districts, but will support a subway, and will do what he can to provide for the unemployed. He also promises to do what he can to lower taxes and to bring about rigid economy.

He is in favor of city-county consolidation, and will give his attention at all times to the needs of the people.

Waters, has not as yet. Of course this is her term as head of the club, but developed so under her leader-the club now has a membership of over 1500) that scores of members are anxious for Mrs. Waters to accept a third term. There is no by-law which prohibits such a move, and should the club personnel by expressing themselves at the first nomination declare for her, and state a good and sufficient reason, Dame Rumor says a third term might be accepted. It is up to the club to express its wishes, and no one can prophesy what may happen before May, when the nominations are posted.

Mrs. W. S. Bartlett of the Ebell will unquestionably be given a unanimous vote for president of that body, should she consent to make the run. No one else is even thought of, and a second term under her guidance is assured, if she will but accept. A very important office in that it carries with it the chairmanship of programme to become void is that of second vice-president, so successfully and satisfactorily filled by Mrs. George P. Thresher for the past two years. No one has as yet been mentioned for the office. Three members are to be elected the first Monday in April for the election board, the executive board naming the other two, and this board shall prepare a sample ballot which shall be posted on the bulletin board from the second Monday in May to the first Monday in June—election day.

Departmental work in Ebell has enjoyed a tremendous growth, three new sections having been added this year—Browning class, Bible literature and California history and landmarks. Paid instructors are engaged for the departments of French, music, art and travel, and Shakespeare.

Channel Club.

Eligibility for membership to the Channel Club, a recent organization of well-known and talented people who meet the third Saturday morning of each month at the Clark to discuss drama in its various stages of development and enjoy luncheon, requires that the applicant must be a professional reader—and there are now twenty-two in this select coterie of congenial people. Mrs. Alice Hunnewell, a charming woman of broad policies, heads the list of officers and presides at the monthly luncheons, which are becoming an enjoyable feature of club life. The "Channel", is the long arm which connects the interpreter and audience. Mrs. Bessie Bartlett-Frankel talked entertainingly and instructively on musical melodrama at the last day.

D.A.R. Guest Day.

At the home of Mrs. C. B. Booth, No. 1515 Garfield, in Oak Knoll, the South Pasadena Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution will be hostesses to guests, tomorrow afternoon.

Art and Travel.

Under the capable guidance of Mrs. C. Q. Stanton, curator, the art and travel department of Ebell gave their monthly luncheon and bi-monthly programme Thursday. Miss Helen A. Brooks gave an intensely interesting talk, with pictures thrown on a screen, illustrating a trip to Mt. St. Michel—that wonderful shrine erected upon a foundation of rock, in honor of the saint who overcame evil; Mrs. B. W. Zens, who has lived much abroad, gave a delightful talk on "Picturesque Normandy," interweaving history of William the Conqueror with present-day interests, and giving a glimpse into the life and conditions of the country of the "white cotton nightcap." Mrs. W. W. Homan, who had charge of the luncheon, further accentuated the subject of Normandy by decorating the tables with apple blossoms and arranging talks apropos, Mrs. Wright of the Hollywood Woman's Club, Mrs. Stetson, Miss Coleman and others adding to the pleasure of the guests.

Highest Office to Prominent Los Angeles Clubwoman.

Mrs. Maynard Force Thayer's friends—and they are legion—are showering this prominent and charming clubwoman with the happiest of felicitations over her re-election to the highest office the California Daughters of the American Revolution can bestow, the honor having recently come to her at the conclusion of the seventh annual State conference, held in San Francisco. So eminently satisfactory has been her past year's regime and so favorable an impression has Mrs. Thayer's ability and personality made with the ladies of the entire State, that her election was uncontested.

In her address, Mrs. Thayer made a forceful plea for co-operation in an effort to help raise the standard of honesty and reverence in the United States, declaring that the lack of high ideals among the citizens was one of the greatest dangers to the country's future.

Every chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution in the United States, the Philippines and China has been invited to the San Francisco exposition, and a fair share of the 80,000 women of the national organization is expected. With the exception of Sunday, the ladies will keep open house, and plan to offer a comfortable rendezvous for resting and hospitality, with tea, for the visitors.

Friends of the Wild Birds Active.

Women of the Southland are directing every effort to befriend their feathered friends, these days, having sent out the past week through the California Audubon Society secretary, Mrs. Harriet Williams Myers, a protest to all club women against the passage of Assembly Bill No. 1408, which aims to take protection from the meadow lark, robin and California blackbird from November 15 to March 1. "Surely the people of California do not yet need to eat their song birds," says the bulletin just issued. They also ask a concerted effort to be made for the passage of bill No. 1442, which prevents the sale or shipment of game in the Fourth Fish and Game District. The California Federated Women's Clubs has approved the measure.

For Ebell This Week.

Mr. Kiyo Sue Inui, lecturer, writer, journalist and the general secretary of the Japanese Association of America, will lecture before the general assembly of Ebell, tomorrow afternoon, upon "Japanese Civilization."

The calendar for the week at Ebell shows the coming events:

On Monday morning the Browning section, with Mmes. Thomas B. Stowell and Sidney J. Parsons curators; on Monday afternoon the parliamentary law; Tuesday morning, the class in expression; Wednesday morning, drama; Thursday morning at 10, Rose D. Kerschbaumer, M.D., will talk before the books and conversation department upon "Russian Women of Today and Their Work," while Mrs. W. S. Bartlett will tell of "The Czars and Palaces of Russia," and Mrs. Zoe Ballard Fuller will give a reading, "A Russian Folk Tale." Dr. Rose Kerschbaumer is a professional woman of the city and born in Russia, and the whole programme promises to be of unusual interest. Mrs. G. W. Reyburn will have charge of the post-luncheon. Mrs. John Stearns Thayer is curator for the books and conversation section.

At the Friday Morning Club the coming week "A Small Boy and Others" (Henry James,) by Mrs. Everett R. Perry, and "Notes of Novelists and Some Other Notes" (Henry James,) by Mrs. W. D. Dodd, are the subjects for the main programme, and are causing pleasurable anticipation.

On March 3 is the Book Committee luncheon. Books of travel are to be discussed.

HOPES REALIZED. CLUBHOUSE OPENED.

The Women's Twentieth Century Club of Eagle Rock opened its beautiful new clubhouse to their members and their friends last Thursday, and dedicated it to the use of the residents of the valley for their moral, intellectual and educational advancement.

The new building is beautifully situated on Colorado boulevard, where it commands a splendid view of the whole valley and where it can be seen by all those who pass through the little city either by street car or automobile.

It has a large auditorium with two smaller auditoriums, which can be used separately or can be made a part of the larger room. The kitchen and banquet hall are beautifully finished and contain all the necessary equipment for entertaining large gatherings.

The exercises were opened by a prayer by Mrs. H. L. Hoyt, which was followed by the president's address by Dr. Myrtle Phinney. On behalf of the contractors, Godfrey Edwards congratulated the ladies upon the happy completion of their task and, extending the best wishes of their friends, presented the keys of the building to the officers of the club.

A short history of the club, its trials and tribulations, as well as its pleasures and hopes, was given by Mrs. William J. Cook, who was one of the original members. The story showed that the first entertainment to raise funds for the building of a clubhouse was given about eleven years ago and the work has been carried on with more or less enthusiasm from then until now, when their dream has come true.

The musical number of the evening was furnished by Misses Erna and Frances Herzog. They sang the duet for soprano and contralto voices, "Absent," and for an encore gave the duet from the "Love Tales of Hoffman." These young ladies are very popular with music lovers of the valley. They were accompanied by their father, Louis Herzog.

The exercises closed with the reading of an original composition by Mrs. Blonda Banks Colburn, entitled "The Inglenook."

The committees having the work of erecting and furnishing the building were commended for their good work by Mrs. A. M. Dunn, who also presented the chairman of each committee with a basket of beautiful flowers as a token of the appreciation in which their good work was held.

Highland Park Ebell Club.

"To have coincident Tuesday morning, glorious sunshine and the first robin redbreasts on the lawn, certainly spells a good word for this morning's programme," said Mrs. Frank Trask, president of the Highland Park Ebell Club, as she gave over last Tuesday's meeting into the hands of Mrs. C. W. Foote, curator of the books and conversation section.

Miss Belle Beatty, previous to her discussion of "Social Forces in England and America," by H. G. Wells, indexed three of the best-known English writers. "Bennett," she said, "tells of life as he sees it—photographically—and drops it. Galsworthy tells of life as he sees it—optimistic—confused and unpleasant—but suggests that, if one thinks it worth the trouble, a remedy may be found. Wells tells of life as he sees it—optimistic—and suggests, in most cases, a remedy for the things that offend." Miss Beatty closed her remarks with the statement that, while she agreed with all the facts presented by Mr. Wells, she could not agree with all his conclusions.

Mrs. J. W. James gave an interpretation of "Seen and Unseen at Stratford-on-Avon," by W. D. Howells. Mrs. R. W. Snell gave a review of "Hagar," by Mary Johnston, which she said was not a novel, in the real sense of the word, but a series of episodes unified by the theme, the woman question, and should be read as an argument, not a story, if one would get the best good from it.

Next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Cyril Dwight-Edwards will give his postponed song recital.

Hollywood Woman's Club.

The Woman's Club of Hollywood enjoyed last Wednesday an interesting and instructive address on "Home Economics," by Miss Ednah Rich, president of the State Normal School of Home Economics and Manual Arts at Santa Barbara, and chairman of the home economics department of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs. Miss Jessica Lawrence spoke at Mrs. Gardner's civics section, during the hour preceding the general meeting, giving a review of Root's "The Citizen's Share in the Government."

The regular monthly business meeting occurs next Wednesday, March 3. This is also the regular luncheon day and Mrs. Campbell's House Committee announces that the Heinz Company, pure food products people, have offered to furnish part of the cafeteria luncheon at 1 o'clock. Hostesses for the day will be Mmes. J. F. Redhead, C. J. Reinhard, Henry J. Roche, E. E. Roessler, T. F. Hessert and E. L. Hedderley. A meeting of the Shakespeare section is scheduled for next Wednesday, to be held at the home of Mrs. H. T. Wright, No. 1771 North Cahuenga avenue, at 10:30 o'clock.

Wednesday Morning Club.

Wednesday last, the anniversary of Dickens's birthday was celebrated by the Dickens section of the Wednesday Morning Club at the clubhouse with sketches from "David Copperfield." Mrs. G. S. Housh, director of the section, gave a resume of the book and introduced the scenes which were splendidly portrayed by the members in costume before a crowded house. There was real enthusiasm over the acting. David, as a boy, was represented by little Eleanor Zahn in a charmingly natural manner and was deservedly applauded. Others in the cast were: The Doctor, Mrs. D. S. Waterhouse; Mrs. Copperfield, Mrs. A. K. Smith; Peggotty, Mrs. Hector Zahn; Betsy Trotwood, Mrs. Lillian Sanborn; Janet, Mrs. Paul Zahn; Mr. Dick, Mrs. H. Wall; Miss Murdstone, Miss Sharp; Mr. Murdstone, Mrs. J. Hogg; Mrs. Micawber, Mrs. Tilley, whose baby grandchildren played parts, as members of the Micawber family; Mrs. Steerforth, Mrs. R. A. Wynne; Rosa Dartle, Mrs. W. E. Tribit; Dan'l Peggotty, Mrs. James Calderwood; Ham, Greeba Calderwood; Little Em'ly, Marjorie Tribit; Mrs. Gummidge, Miss Pollock; David, as a young man, Miss Jeannette Hazel; Agnes, Mrs. Zensen; Dora, Miss Irene Gill; Dora's aunts, Mrs. Bullard and Miss Anna Pierce.

A bust of Dickens, in front of the stage, received a red geranium, his favorite flower, from each member of the cast. The decorations, in charge of Mrs. J. R. Hook, were red geraniums and smilax. The music incident to the play was by Mrs. F. E. Davis. Tea was served by Dickens section as hostesses.

This was one of the best-given and most successful productions given by the Dickens section. The costumes were true to the period and very beautiful.

Tuesday Afternoon Club.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club of Glendale held a parliamentary contest last Tuesday morning. Mrs. Gleason, district chairman, was present. Mrs. McNutt of Glendale, winner of the contest, will represent the club in the parliamentary contest with other clubs of the district at Long Beach next Wednesday. Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, president of the Glendale club, will be one of the speakers at Long Beach.

The legislative section met in the afternoon and was addressed by Mrs. E. K. Foster of Los Angeles on the "Personnel of the Present Legislature."

The programme for the afternoon was in charge of the new vice-president, Mrs. Daniel Campbell. It was a patriotic afternoon, the programme consisting of a violin solo by Miss Frances Payne and the Girls' Glee Club of the High School, dressed in red, white and blue. Capt. Wells, honorary member of the club, read some original verses to the flag and Rev. W. E. Edmonds gave an address on "Patriotism."

D.A.R. Meeting.

The Los Angeles Chapter, D.A.R., will be entertained next Wednesday by Mrs. Charles H. McKevett and Miss Marla Stowell at the home of the former, No. 4025 West Adams street.

Mrs. C. C. Cottle, the Regent, who has been ill for several weeks, is again able to be out, and will preside over a board meeting at 1:30 o'clock, which will be followed by the regular meeting. Mrs. Charles H. Baker and Mrs. Trabue Van Culin, delegates to the recent conference at San Francisco, will make their reports, and there will be an address by Mrs. Charles Cregloe of Indianapolis. Miss Mary Richards Gray will read an original story, and there will be a musical programme.

Mrs. Joseph Pajeau, Mrs. Charles F. Quillian and Mrs. James W. Johnson have opened their homes on three different afternoons to sew for the Maternity Cottage, the chapter having voted a sum of money for the purchase of materials which, under the deft fingers of the members, have been fashioned into warm little garments.

Business Woman's Club.

The regular meeting of the Business Woman's Civic Club will be held tomorrow night in the lecture hall of the Los Angeles Public Library. The programme at 7:30 o'clock, will be "Work of State Bureau of Labor Statistics," by John J. Tobin, Deputy Commissioner, and the "Work of the Municipal Free Employment Bureau," by H. C. Donoho, superintendent. Miss Isabel L. Daugherty, chief clerk, will give a short talk on "What the Municipal Free Employment Bureau is Doing for Women."

Miss Margaret Brennan and Miss Helen Fitch will lead a hiking party to Griffith Park and Mt. Hollywood today. Members and friends will meet at Hill-street Station at 10:30 o'clock. Before starting up the mountain everybody will feast on a real picnic lunch.

South Pasadena.

Peace Day was celebrated at the regular fortnightly meeting held in their clubhouse last Wednesday afternoon by the Woman's Improvement Association. Mrs. Frank A. Stephens, who is chairman of the Peace Committee of the District Federation was in charge of the programme. Lorin A. Handley, president of the Board of Public Works of Los Angeles, addressed the gathering on the general subject of "International Peace." The music of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. R. J. Babcock, who introduced Miss Jessica Reed. She was accompanied by Mrs. James Hall of Los Angeles, and gave several groups of Chadwick and McDowell songs.

The afternoon was preceded by the regular monthly luncheon, and special guests of the club were Mrs. H. A. Cable, president of the Los Angeles District Federation; Mrs. D. M. Cate, vice-president; Mrs. Lloyd Harmon, recording secretary; Mrs. F. E. Wolfe, chairman of social and industrial conditions; Mrs. Seward Simons, Mrs. I. W. Gleason, parlimentary usage; Mrs. Ella Durley, Press Committee; Mrs. A. B. Clark, philanthropy; Mrs. J. J. Steadman, University Clubhouse loan fund; Mrs. M. B. Jones, Glendale; Mrs. T. M. Walker, art; Mrs. Winterer, Miss Dorothy Willis, Mrs. Haines W. Reed, editor of the Club Woman; Mrs. Charles Robinson, forestry; Mrs. C. H. Ritchie, Dr. Maud Wilde, public health; Mrs. Florence B. Schoneman, federation emblem; Mrs. Edwin Brainerd, waterways; Mrs. Malone Joyce, legislation; Mrs. Frank Caldwell, historian; Mrs. Frank A. Stephens, peace, and Mrs. Harry E. Bentley, a prominent Illinois club woman, and a member of the Illinois State Board. Toasts were given during the luncheon hour by Mrs. Woodruff on "Peace;" Mrs. D. M. Cate on "Federation;" Mrs. Bentley on "Federation and Peace;" Mrs. C. H. Ritchie, "Civics;" Mrs. A. Hill, "Club Extension," and Mrs. Stephens, "Peace."

Delegates elected to attend the District Federation of Los Angeles at Long Beach from March 2 to 5, inclusive, were Mrs. Leo Longley, Mrs. E. H. Rust, Mrs. Jonathan Dodge and Mrs. E. E. Thompson.

The president, Mrs. G. W. Burt, entertained the members of the Lincoln Park Study Circle Monday afternoon at her home, No. 1025 Orange Grove avenue. Roll call was answered by "incidents and travel." Miss Leah Moohn read a paper on "The Great Northwest"—this followed by a discussion. Mrs. Marie L. K. Glover rendered a piano solo, and in commemoration of the day—Washington's Birthday—played the accompaniment while the members sang "America," closing the programme for the afternoon.

Mrs. D. Z. Gardner was appointed as a delegate to the convention at Long Beach to represent this club. Next Monday afternoon the club will meet with Mrs. Emily Dobbs, No. 700 El Centro street.

Outlook Association.

Members of the large campaign committee for the National Marketing Commission of the Outlook Association will meet tomorrow morning at the headquarters, No. 424 South Broadway. Several letters received recently from Washington are direct in their statements that so much interest attaches to the proposed bill there is small doubt that it will be carried by the Sixty-fourth Congress, even though complications at the close of the present session may prevent its obtaining favorable action now.

Mrs. D. C. McCan, chairman of the committee, has been successful in the initiation of the campaign and has aroused an interest in the organization which is nation-wide.

A newly-organized women's civic club at Orange is so interested in the question of the National Marketing Commission that it is sending to Los Angeles for a speaker, and F. D. Flint of the Outlook Association will explain the proposed bill to the members of that organization at its clubhouse tomorrow afternoon.

The Whittier North Side Growers also organized recently to aid in creating interest in the bill. A. G. Wright of Fullerton has been appointed as chairman of that district.

Inglewood Women's Club.

Last Tuesday was devoted to the subject of immigration by the Inglewood Women's Club. An open discussion of the topic proved very interesting as opinions varied greatly as to the best manner of regulation. The discussion was led by Mrs. G. W. Crozier in a resume of the immigration laws of the United States, and Mrs. L. K. Wilson gave a clear and thorough interpretation of oriental exclusion. Delegates to the district federation at Long Beach are Mrs. G. M. Green, Mrs. W. H. Burden and Miss L. E. Hanover.

Woman's City Club.

The subject for discussion at the Woman's City Club tomorrow will be "Restricted Versus Wide Distribution of Surplus Aqueduct Water." Mrs. S. C. Graham, president of the City Club of Los Angeles, will be the speaker.

CHILDREN ROMP IN CLUBROOMS.

LITTLE GUESTS OF ELKS ENTERTAINED, FED AND MADE HAPPY.

Next to Christmas, yesterday was about the best day in the year to several hundred little children fortunate enough to be the guests of the Elks in their clubhouse on the hill. Great wide rooms with slippery floors received them, and many clever people who are not without reputation in the theatrical world, entertained them, and mounds of ice cream with dainty little cakes were the crowning supply of things desirable.

The old elk that is an honored relic in the clubhouse was converted into a mount, and ridden for endless thousands of miles. Sometimes he carried one rider and sometimes ten, and there was that wild moment when a dauntless youngster crawled between the treasured antlers and sat there during a mad scramble through the forest.

The billiard tables became bowling greens for the little ones. The ivory balls that are trained to tour about the table on skillful schedule were tossed about with shouts and inaccuracy. The bowling alley was a slide, and the gymnasium a paradise of curiosities.

Two kindly men who know the hearts of children, Charles Morgan and "Deacon" Pyle, were on the receiving line, and when the assembly had gathered, led them into the audience hall where the recruits from the local theaters performed for the guests. It was a lark for the stage people also, for they played pranks that children enjoyed, and sang songs that appealed to the little ones.

Throughout the afternoon, the ice cream and cakes were distributed.

The affair is an annual one with the Elks and is becoming one of the most cherished of the events the order observes.

WHY THEY FORGET.

Lectures on "Psycho-pathology of Every Day Life," by Hayden Rochester, M.D., psycho-pathologist, will be given under the auspices of the Southern California Association of Applied Psychology at its headquarters, No. 401 St. Paul street, day after tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and 8 o'clock in the evening. The lecture will explain why people make mistakes and forget.

FRECKLES

February and March Bring Out Unsightly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

The woman with tender skin dreads February and March because they are likely to cover her face with ugly freckles. No matter how thick her veil, the sun and winds have a strong tendency to make her freckle.

Fortunately for her peace of mind the recent discovery of a new prescription, othine—double strength—makes it possible for even those most susceptible to freckles to keep their skin clear and white. No matter how stubborn a case of freckles you have, the double-strength othine should remove them.

Get an ounce from your druggist and banish the freckles. Money back if it fails.

Mission Acres Tract—the Heart of the Famous San Fernando Mission Lands—Full Acre Homesites $495

—$50 Cash—1 per cent. per Month

The land that hundreds have been waiting for—the land at the mouth of our famous $30,000,000 aqueduct—the only suburban acreage on a rapid-transit electric car line and a great asphalt automobile boulevard that can be purchased in acre parcels for as little as $495, and in parcels of 5 and 10 acres or more for even less money—GOES ON SALE THURSDAY, MARCH 4TH!

This land surrounds the historic old San Fernando Mission. It is the land selected by the old Mission Fathers because of its fertility and adaptability to all types of citrus and deciduous fruits, vegetables, berries, etc. This is the "Chosen Land" of the old pioneers who knew—who came first—who were able to select the best. The intensive development of these lands has been retarded only by a lack of abundant, cheap water supply. Now the waters have come. The greatest water supply in the Southwest has come to this historic old garden spot. The development of little garden farms, citrus and deciduous fruit orchards, poultry ranches, country estates and business and professional men's suburban homes will be rapid. The prices of land are lower than the lowest you'll find elsewhere for the same type of advantages—magnificent electrolier-lighted, asphalt boulevard, electric car line, stately high schools and grammar schools, close proximity to cities of San Fernando and Van Nuys—a community of beautiful homes and estates, commanding unsurpassed view of valley, foothills and mountains.

In this section is Mr. Frank Wiggins' (of Chamber of Commerce fame) wonderful 20-acre orange grove; Mr. Stoddard Jess' (Vice-Pres. First National Bank) 40-acre lemon grove; H. E. Wilkinson's (Sec'y Cal. Fruit Growers' Exchange) 25-acre lemon grove; Althouse Bros.' 25-acre lemon grove; fruit and farm lands of California Vegetable Union; E. S. Curtis' (Pres. Pac. Vegetable Co.) 45-acre ranch; A. G. Wilson's (Foothill Nursery Co.) ranch; Cal. Truck Co.'s 70-acre stock and produce ranch, and the places of many other notables. You will be in fine company if you locate here. There's bound to be a grand rush for this wonderful land. Don't fail to attend the opening of our first unit "Mission Acres," right on the boulevard and electric line—Thursday, March 4th. Apply at once for free excursion tickets.

Free Lecture Wednesday Evening, March 3rd. By Will H. Chapin.

"How I Succeeded With Poultry"

Come Wednesday evening to our spacious lecture hall at 433 South Hill street and hear Mr. Will H. Chapin, one of the most successful poultry breeders in the United States, tell how by the application of practical business efficiency methods he developed what was started as a diversion into a big, profitable business, on three-fourths of an acre of land. Mr. Chapin will present the business side of poultry culture. The lecture will be illustrated by colored stereopticon pictures of Mr. Chapin's model poultry plant, said to be the most efficient plant of its kind in the State. This lecture is absolutely free to the public, and is the first of a series of lectures to be delivered by experts on the following subjects—poultry culture, squab-raising, Belgian hares and intensive cultivation. We are conducting these educational lectures at considerable expense. You'll get $50 worth of information at every lecture for nothing. Come early Wednesday evening and hear Mr. Chapin's answer to the question, "Can I make a living in the poultry business on an acre of ground?" Lecture starts at 7:45. Plenty of comfortable seats for all. Come and bring your friends. Tourists and newcomers to Los Angeles are especially invited.

TO HELP DEVELOP BETTER BABIES.

EUGENIC CONTEST AND TALKS FOR PARENTS FEATURES OF CONGRESS.

Under the auspices of the California Woman's Bulletin and the Woman's Alliance of the Los Angeles Fellowship, the first eugenic baby congress will be held in Los Angeles March 8 to 14 inclusive. This is not to be an ordinary baby show, but a congress devoted to educational advancement of parents and to assistance in rearing better babies.

Mrs. L. L. Livingstone, one of the foremost lecturers in America on the subject of healthy children, will deliver a daily talk at the Mozart Theater, where the congress will be held. Motion pictures showing the development of children will be exhibited. A committee of local physicians will appear and assist in the judging of all the children entered.

Children from the ages of 6 months to 5 years are eligible to compete for ribbons and medals. The judging will be along strict lines as established by eastern eugenic societies and standardized by the Woman's Home Companion. The score cards detail the history of the child, giving considerable data as to the parents. A chart testing mental development and all physical measurements is also employed.

The physical examination calls for conditions of the head, hair, eyes, nose, throat, arms, skin, teeth and other portions of the anatomy and a good marking will also rest with the department of the child while passing through the examination. Oral examination will play an important part in establishing the child's mentality.

The registration of the children by mothers can be made now at the headquarters of the congress, No. 630 Higgins building. Among the special features of the congress will be one or more talks by Mrs. Nathan Straus, who has consented to discuss pasteurization of milk by home methods. Dr. M. Evangeline Jordan will speak on teeth.

IN NEW QUARTERS.

Management of German Newspaper Receives Congratulations at Reception Attended by Many Friends.

Formal opening of the new offices and plant of the Germania, the oldest daily German newspaper in the West, was an affair of yesterday afternoon and evening. The publication now occupies the entire ground floor and basement of the building at North Broadway and Franklin. The president and managing editor is Max Socha, who, with his associates, yesterday was recipient of many personal well wishes and beautiful floral offerings.

The various officers of the company, including Roger M. Andrews, vice-president; Erich A. Kurths, secretary and business manager, and John Luckenbach, treasurer, are all provided with beautiful quarters on the first floor, these finished and furnished in mahogany. The linotype department and small presses as well as the business offices of the paper are on this floor. In the basement are located the six double-deck Gordon and one smaller press and the stereotyping-room.

Several thousand German residents of the city attended the opening and were conducted through the plant. An orchestra furnished a musical programme.

CONFERENCE ENDS.

Legislators Listen to Advice from Many on Mass of Bills Now Pending at Sacramento.

After listening to advice from experts on subjects ranging from a negro colony in Tulare county to revisions of court procedure, the legislative conference which has been held for two days at the Chamber of Commerce, came to an end last night. Chairman Stanley Benedict announced that no further sessions will be held owing to the poor attendance of lawmakers from the eight Southern California counties.

Yesterday was women's day at the conference and many matters affecting women, and now pending at Sacramento, were discussed. Mrs. Seward Simons directed the discussion for the women, most of the measures having the indorsement of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

Bills providing for birth registration, compulsory education, permitting women to serve as jurors, home teachers' bills and regulation of child labor were generally indorsed by the women. The child-labor feature was presented by H. H. Duryee of the National Child Labor Bureau, who directed his remarks mainly to the support of the so-called north-south bill which centralizes the regulation.

Other measures discussed were the necessity for an appropriation of $60,000 to build a roof over the Armory at Exposition Park, the establishment of a State poultry bureau, changes in surety bond legislation, temperance measures and various school matters, the latter being discussed by Dr. J. F. Milspaugh of the State Normal School. Judge Jackson argued for amendments to the code of court procedure, and Force Parker talked in favor of the act regulating the sale of poisons which would allow the grocers to sell ant paste.

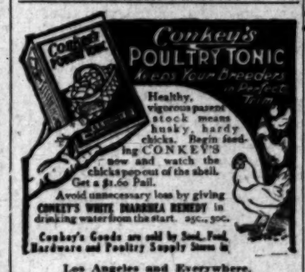
Broke Her Husband Of Drinking

An Illinois Wife Broke Her Husband From Drinking With a Simple Recipe That She Gave At Home.

That the liquor habit can be banished secretly is the claim of a well-known Peoria (Ill.) woman whose husband was a heavy drinker for years. In a recent statement she said: "I broke my husband from drinking with the following simple, inexpensive recipe which I gave secretly. To 3 oz. of water add 20 grains of muriate of ammonia, a small box of Varlex Compound and 10 grains of pepsin. Give a teaspoonful three times a day at meal time in the food, or in the coffee, tea or milk. This recipe can be filled at any drug store, is perfectly harmless and has no color, taste or smell. Any wife or mother can stop their dear ones from drinking the same as I have done and at very little expense."



Los Angeles and Everywhere.

Dynamiters in Jail.

Schmidt. Hell no. They want the so-called higher-ups," said Johannsen as he stood outside the jail entrance. "But they can't pump either one of these babies."

On the way down Temple street from the jail Johannsen met Jailer Gallagher.

Calling him to one side he asked, "Will it be all right if I send some fruit and clean handkerchiefs and things like that to Caplan and Schmidt?"

"Certainly not," replied the jailer. Johannsen then disappeared into a saloon.

Schmidt arrived at the Southern Pacific station at 2:40 p.m., Maj. Barling and Capt. Hunter of Dist.-Atty. Woolwine's office in charge. They brought him from New York City, where he was arrested the 13th inst. Caplan was arrested four days later.

Both Caplan and Schmidt were indicted with the McNamaras but were not found until the sweetheart of one of them told their whereabouts. The woman will be an important witness.

GLAD TO BE HERE?

Schmidt appeared calm and collected, and declared himself glad to be here because he had intended coming out to the San Francisc exposition. Shortly before the the Sunset Limited reached Los Angeles "Schmitty" telegraphed his sister, K. C. Schmidt, care of C. Darrow, Chicago, that "I am on my way to the fair; will see you soon." The C. Darrow addressed is Clarence Darrow, who was nearly convicted of bribery in connection with the McNamara trial. It appears certain that Darrow will not defend Caplan and Schmidt if Johannsen, P. H. McCarthy, Tveitmoe and other union-labor bosses have their say.

When Caplan arrived he said he will defend himself. He said he doesn't need a lawyer. Schmidt also declared he doesn't want any "shyster of a lawyer hanging around." Anton Johannsen apparently differed with the accused murderers, for he engaged the services of H. H. Appel to look after the interests of the two.

Caplan said he had met Johannsen on several occasions. Johannsen said he knew Caplan slightly. But when it came to the legal angle, Johannsen thought it fitting and proper to hire a high-priced attorney. He also said other attorneys will be employed. "They will have the best defense money can buy," he said. He did not mention Joe Scott.

HE'D RATHER NOT.

Caplan said he was living under an assumed name in the little island on Puget Sound.

"What for?" he was asked.

"I'd rather not answer that question," he replied.

A few minutes before he said he would tell everything and made it appear that he had nothing to conceal. He also said his wife and family live in San Francisco.

"Why didn't you take them up on the chicken ranch with you?" was the next query.

He refused to answer. He said he was in Los Angeles at the time of the Times Building horror, but declared he knew nothing about it "except what I read in the papers."

He denied knowing the McNamaras, but admitted knowing Schmidt and McManigal. He denied that he has a large sum of money cached near Port Orchard. He said he is a poor man. He said he is a Jew and was born in Germany.

STRIKING CONTRAST.

Caplan and Schmidt present striking contrast. Caplan is like the typical anarchist. He has a dreamy, far-away look about his large black eyes, covered with bushy eyebrows. He is 46 years old, about 5ft. 7in. tall, and weighs about 160 pounds. He has broad shoulders and massive hands. He has been a barber and an iron worker. He admits he is an anarchist, but not a dynamiter or murderer. He said he passed most of his evenings on the isle reading books on socialism and anarchy. He told Guy Biddinger, a Burns operative, on the train coming down, that "If I should be commissioned to kill President Wilson I would do it tomorrow for the good of society and the cause. But I am not a murderer at heart. I despise a murderer and dynamiter."

"Punishment of crime will not remedy conditions of our present society," he told Mr. Biddinger.

"Inasmuch as society insists upon placing the cart before the horse by murdering legally the criminal instead of remedying the conditions that make the criminal, society is responsible for crime," is another pet thought of Capian.

"The crimes of anarchists are not for the purpose of harming the individual," he said, "but are for the purpose of calling public attention to our beliefs and philosophy."

After Capian had talked half an hour of this brand of philosophy, he quieted down. He appeared nervous and his black eyes shifted whenever he was talking to anyone. There is but a narrow bridge between his eyes.

Schmidt fits the description mailed broadcast at the time the indictment was returned by the grand jury. His left eye is glass. He is nearly six feet tall and weighs about 185 pounds, stripped. According to the officers, he is a good specimen physically. He is

Enrique B. Cota,

Commissioned by Gen. Carranza to take over the government of Lower California and break the power of Gen. Cantu. He is here en route from Mexico City to Ensenada.

24 years of age and was arrested on his birthday. He has a stubby blond mustache and light, wavy hair. He stands erect. His eyes are close together, like Capian's.

HE IS FLIPPANT.

Schmidt was flippant, mouthy and profane. He referred to Burns as a "big boob" and declared "they'll have a hell of a hard time getting anything on me or out of me."

He asked the reporters to be sure and spell his name "S-c-h." He admitted he has "no use for The Times." He said "society is in a hell of a state and needs fixin' badly." He refused to say where his parents live or where he was born. He said he is of German descent.

He admitted he knew Caplan and knew there was an indictment hanging over him, but declared he had made no effort to escape. Caplan said the same thing.

Caplan and Schmidt will be arraigned early this week before Justice Brown.

There was no demonstration of any sort when they were taken off their respective trains.

SO WOMAN WINS TITLE TO VALUABLE MINING PROPERTIES.

A strange compact, born perhaps of a premonition of death, made beneath a mahogany tree in the wilds of Inyo county, played an important part in a mining suit decided in favor of Mrs. Kate J. Wells, widow of the late A. W. Wells, in the Federal Court yesterday. It was this agreement made with her son, Burgess Robinson, some seven years ago, shortly before he lost his life as a result of an accident, that spurred Mrs. Wells on to fight for the possession of the Ironside and other gold claims, located 10,000 feet above sea level in the Inyo mountains.

The mother and son, who had just turned 21 years of age, were on their way to the mine to do their assessment work. They had just finished their dinner when young Robinson exacted from his mother a promise that in the event that anything should happen to him she would continue to develop the mine. Little believing that death would shortly follow the strange pact, she agreed, at the same time exacting a similar promise from him.

Ever since the son's death legal strife has been waged in the Inyo county courts and in Los Angeles for the possession of the property. The latest action has been brought by T. F. Turner against Mrs. Wells and the Ironside Mining Reduction and Leasing Company now operating the property.

The story of this suit is the narrative of a "grub-stake" party, made up in Rhyolite, Nev., in 1907, when Turner, A. W. Wells and J. F. Creel, one of the best-known mining men in Southern California, made a compact under the terms of which Turner and Creel were to furnish the money for a prospecting tour among the mountains of Inyo county, and Wells was to do the prospecting work, the understanding being that all mines discovered by Wells were to be taken up in the joint name of all three men. On May 15, 1912, Creel sold out his interest in the hazard to Turner, and the action was brought by Turner to recover a two-thirds interest in the property, located in what is known as Beveridge mining district, and consisting of the Catch-'em Mac, Garner Fraction, Golden Rule and other claims, that, according to the averments of the complaint, had yielded Mrs. Wells more than $100,000 in gold and silver ore.

It appeared from the testimony that a number of mines were located by Wells, and entered in the joint names of the three partners, but that the property in the controversy, consisting of a number of rich mines, was located by Burgess Robinson, a son of Mrs. Wells, and that the mother furnished the money and the stuff for the prospecting. Later on, both Wells and Robinson died, and the mother succeeded to the holdings through her son.

In deciding the case for Mrs. Wells, Judge Bledsoe said the only testimony in favor of the contention of Turner was a letter written by Wells, just before his death, in which he declared that the mines claimed by his stepson and wife really belonged to the members of the first syndicate, that his wife and Robinson had formed a conspiracy to secure the property. The court remarked that this letter was unverified by affidavit, and in his opinion arose out of the strained relations that existed between Wells and his wife, just before his death.

Cubic Foot of Gold.

[Boston Globe:] The specific gravity of any substance is the number of times its weight contains the weight of an equal volume of water. Since the weight of a cubic foot of water at its greatest density is 1000 ounces, or sixty-two and one-half pounds, the weight of a cubic foot of any substance is found by multiplying 1000 ounces avoirdupois by its specific gravity. As the specific gravity of gold is 19, a cubic foot of gold will weigh nineteen times 1000 ounces avoirdupois, which is 1187½ pounds.

GOING TO END CANTU'S RULE.

Plans to Assume Control in Lower California.

Carranzista Governor Here from Mexico City.

To Tackle Job in Ensenada in a Few Days.

Equipped with authority from Gen. Carranza to take the reins of government in Lower California and break the power of Gen. Estevan Cantu, Senor Enrique B. Cota arrived here yesterday. Today he will issue a circular to Mexicans on both sides of the line and to foreigners in Baja California, declaring he will protect personal and property rights and insure law and order in that state.

Senor Cota came by way of Vera Cruz from Mexico City. He says he will be in Ensenada, the traditional capital of Lower California, "in a few days." And he intimates things will stir when he gets there. The new jefe politico also says the power of Cantu, who owes allegiance only to himself and the government he heads, is due to crumble. He announces his mission is to establish a new administration, to conduct affairs honestly and to expel certain persons deemed undesirable for the maintenance of law and order, presumably including Cantu himself.

"Gen. Cantu," he says, "is a bluster—nothing more. Ensenada is the real capital of Lower California, in spite of the fact that Cantu has declared it removed to Mexicali. I will administers affairs from there. I have perfectly definite instructions and will proceed according to them, but I prefer to say nothing just now as to what I will do when I reach Ensenada."

Cantu, the man who is running things just now in the Mexican state is at Mexicali with between 600 and 700 troops, according to Senor Cota. At Ensenada, he says, is a garrison of only eighty men.

It seemed that every resident of Southern California between the ages of 15 and 85 was waiting for that job, and at the rate they could extract only $30 a week from it, at the rate of 60 cents an hour.

A single room, the one about which tulips, was selected for the investigation of musical talents.

"Come on, one of you," called Mrs. Edwards, and she beckoned. The great day when all shall rise will never bring a more spontaneous movement than did that summons. Every chair in the assembly room and every pair of feet carried a body and then, although their souls were filled with music, their feet were filled with haste, and they bolted for the door, neither musically nor with dignity, but with effect, for they clogged there, and Mrs. Edwards extracted a thin girl from the fray and escorted her towards the piano.

SOME BATTLE.

"I'm scared," said the first applicant.

"Remember the Maine," said Mrs. Edwards. "I don't blame you, that was worse than the battle of Manne."

"I'm so frightened," she repeated.

"Play a war song," suggested Mrs. Edwards, and the search for tunes was on.

A large girl with a muscular right arm and a thickening eardrum, and an affinity for the hard, hard pedal was in motion. She inoculated the piano with shrieks and alarums, and swayed and fought all over the keyboard. She plagued the high notes and battered the low.

"Beg pardon," said the girl.

"That was all right for the charge," said Mrs. Edwards. "Now play the retreat, something soft and low and mournful."

The applicant interpreted that to be the song, "Sweet and Low," and with the aid of frightened fingers and throbbing biceps, she made it as many parts music and ninety-one parts noise.

Then came a small girl with large eyes and a shy manner. She sat primly and her feet nibbled at the pedals. She pinched all the notes and when Mrs. Edwards asked her to play the "Star Spangled Banner," the tune was a friendly and gentle nursery ditty.

One young girl in blue with an artificial coiffure, who explained that she had vast experience in playing for the public schools, balked at the national anthem. She had heard them, she said, but never played them. "You never hear them any more," she explained. "No," said Mrs. Edwards. "That must be echoes that come to my ears."

And the straight test was given to her to play "America," and after five attempts she gave it up, likewise "Dixie" and "Star Spangled Banner."

TOO MUCH SALOME.

One woman less than 30 years old with feet that were nothing less than catastrophes, insisted on playing oriental music. For a waltz it was "Salome," and for a two-step it was some other wiggle, and then when asked to give a march, she started in on the Harem."

"This is a pine floor and not the isle," explained Mrs. Edwards, "and there are desks and not lotus leaves."

Among them came a tall, slender girl who slouched to the piano. Her attitude was much that of the wind fighter in the fourth round of a fight. She sat far back and the regular effect was noticeable. But her fingers were long and slender and delicately pointed. And she played waltzes, and all the world waltzed, and a march was an order and her two-step a fascinating beckon. Mrs. Edwards asked her to play some old songs, and for twenty minutes they remained together at the piano, the fierly woman who loved music and the young woman who felt it. And she sang old and gentle songs, oblivious to the lunch bell and ignorant of the clock.

But that girl was too artistic, too highly-tuned for the work, for her fingers could not stand the pending that the job demands. The work calls for muscle with the music to emphasize the rhythm for the youngsters in the drills and songs. Several of the applicants already had could play splendidly, interpret anything, remember anything and play anything at sight. And after names were written the magic word "crackerjacks." All day long the examination continued under the civil service regulations, the first day of several before the army of desiring to be new oppressors. The Russian cultural system may in time be applied to the Czar a park of artillery and battle.

A Greedy Feudal System.

[London Chronicle:] The Russian invaders remain in Galicia and native peasantry may have reason to rejoice. 'Both In Galicia and Russia over the border the farmer, who harvests for the great nobles, receives no wages in money. He receives in Russia the worker's share of the produce is from one-third to one-half, in Galicia, had the rings have reduced the peasant's share to one-twelfth and sometimes as low as one-twenty-fifth. The deplorable social conditions in Galicia had its origin in the extravagance of the Austrian landowners who have heavily mortgaged their estates and in many cases have sold them to the nouveau riche, who in turn joined together to reduce the peasant's share of the harvest to the lowest point. One wonders that the spirit of enthusiasm arms the Russian or the Galician in fighting the hosts of the new oppressors. The Russian agricultural system may in time be applied to the Czar a park of artillery and battle.

"Try a war song," suggested Mrs. ...wards, and the search for talent ...as on.

A large girl with a muscular fore...m and a thickening eardrum, with ...e ability for the hard, hard pedal, ...s a motion. She inoculated the ...om with shrieks and alarums. She ...ayed and fought all over the key...ard. She plagued the high notes ...d battered the low.

"Break its back," shouted Mrs. Ed...ards. "I never liked its shape, any...ay."

"Beg pardon," said the girl.

"That was all right for the charge," ...id Mrs. Edwards. "Now play the ...ext, something soft and low and ...owerful."

The applicant interpreted that gen...ous song, "Sweet and Low," and with ...e aid of frightened fingers and ...rubbing biceps, she made it assay ...e parts music and ninety-one parts ...ear.

Then came a small girl with large ...es and a shy manner. She sat ...ietly and her feet nibbled at the ...edals. She pinched all the notes, ...d when Mrs. Edwards asked her to ...ng the "Star Spangled Banner," the ...rl was a friendly and gentle nurse...ity.

One young girl in blue with an orig...l coiffure, who explained that she ...d vast experience in playing for the ...ublic schools, balked at the national ...ymn. She had heard them, she said, ...ut never played them. "You never ...ear them any more," she explained. ...Oh," said Mrs. Edwards. "They ...ust be echoes that come to my ears ...ften."

And the straight test was given for ...e to play "America," and after five ...inutes she gave it up, likewise ...ia and "Star Spangled Banner."

TOO MUCH SALOME.

One woman less than 30 years old, ...ho felt that were nothing less than ...ostrophes, insisted on playing ori...inal music. For a waltz it was "Sa...e" and for a two-step it was ...ther wiggle, and then when ...e began to give a march, she started ...the Harem."

"This is a pine floor and not the ...ile," explained Mrs. Edwards, "and ...ese are desks and not lotus leaves. ...ease."

Among them came a tall, slender ...rl who slouched to the piano. Her ...yle was much that of the win...ng fighter in the fourth round of a ...ht. She sat far back and the ...ysical effect was noticeable. But ...r fingers were long and slender and ...ll expertly pointed. And she played a ...altz, and all the world waltzed, and ...e march was an order and her two-...ep a fascinating beckon. Mrs. Ed...ards asked her to play some old ...ng, and for twenty minutes they ...ere joined together at the piano, the ...rly woman who loved music and ...e young woman who felt it. And ...e sang old and gentle songs, ob...vious to the lunch bell and ignorant ...f the clock.

But that girl was too artistic, too ...ell-tuned for the work, for her ...ng fingers could not stand the ...rain that the job demands. The ...ork calls for muscle with the music ...emphasizing the rhythm for the ...ancers in the drills and songs. ...Several of the applicants already ...ound could play splendidly, interpret ...anything, remember anything and ...o anything at sight. And after ...eir names were written the magic ...ords "crackerjacks." All day long the ...examination continued under the civil ...service regulations, the first day of ...carnival before the army of desiring is ...disbanded. And all day the piano ...thumped, and outside the birds were ...singing, and the tulips nodding and ...the old man with the peevish lawn-...mower kept humming as he cut.

Pacific Electric Candidate Leading.

Miss Sibyl Mather given a boost.

This young lady, who may be the year's fiesta queen, was enthusiastically congratulated by the other girls when found to be ahead yesterday. Miss Mather is in the center, with the corsage bouquet.

Race of Beauties.

STANDING OF THE "QUEENS."

MISS MATHER HEADS LIST FOR WEEK JUST PASSED.

Fire Department Candidate has Most Votes for the Fortnight, with Regal Pacific Electric Aspirant Running Her a Close Second. Miss King is Third.

Sibyl Mather, fiesta-queen candidate of the Pacific Electric employees and the Hotel men, with 15,105 votes to her credit, yesterday afternoon received from the Queen Contest Committee of the 1915 General Committee a diamond bracelet.

The jeweled present was awarded at a luncheon at the Hotel Alexandria at which the queen candidates and their managers were present for the count of ballots cast during the second week of the contest. The bracelet, which was donated by John Luckenbach, went to the leader for the week.

Miss Mather on returning to work as chief of the information bureau in the Main-street station of the Pacific Electric, was given an ovation by her co-workers. Girls from the auditor's office surrounded her and bore her in triumph to the office of N. B. Vickrey, resort agent for the "P.E." and campaign manager for the queen candidate.

Martha Dieterich, candidate of the fire department, was in second place for the second time, with 6500 votes. She was awarded the second prize for the week.

Miss Dieterich's total vote for the first two weeks of the contest stands at 17,000, making her the leader for the fortnight. Her nearest rival for the same period is Miss Mather, with 16,105. Third for the two weeks is Gladys Nicholson, with 15,000 ballots.

Third place in the second week's count was taken by Maud V. King, candidate of the Los Angeles Railway Employees' Association.

Others, in the order of their standings, are: Alpha O. Lamp, postal service employees, 1901; Joan H. Woodbury, Al Malaikah Temple of the Shrine, 1560; Margaret Betterley, city of Long Beach, 1049.

Ethel Elwood, the Eagles; Sara Melton, telephone companies, and Florence D. Appel, Native Sons and Daughters, were neck and neck in the rear, with 1000 votes each.

Managers for six candidates failed to get their returns in in time to make any showing for their queens. These were Laura Frances Carrillo, the Ad Club; Gladys Nicholson, the moving-picture companies; Belle Sebastian Swall, the police department; Maude Edwards, Federated Improvement Association; Leta Nash, the San Gabriel Valley, and Gertrude Staley, city of Venice.

NATURE'S PROTECTIVE SCHEME.

Birds and Animals Have a Coloration That Enables Them to Elude Vision of Their Enemies.

[Washington Star:] One of the most interesting studies undertaken by naturalists is what they call "protective coloration." This means that concealment which makes it possible for animals possessing it to remain hidden from the searching eyes of their enemies. Some of the effects are so wonderful as to be almost unbelievable.

For example, among the most gorgeous of the creatures of the air are the sunbirds of Africa, and yet even the keen eye of a hawk will fail to see these birds when they are flitting in a field of flowers.

Most species of the East Indian sloth, which lives in trees, have an orange-colored spot on their backs which makes them very conspicuous when they are seen out of their ordinary surrounding. But when they are clinging to the trees the color of their hair looks very much like withered moss, and the orange spot on their backs so closely resembles the scar made by the breaking of a branch that even great hunters are deceived by it.

The color and stripes of the tiger sometimes make the animal invisible in bright sunshine amid the dried yellow grass of a jungle. One hunter tells of following a wounded tiger, which he failed for at least a minute to see in the grass at a distance of only twenty yards. And the jungle was an "open" one. But the natives saw the beast and eventually the hunter made it out well enough to shoot it, but he could not see at what part of the creature he was aiming.

Perhaps the most wonderful effect of coloring in concealing large animals is that of the zebra and the giraffe. In the case of the latter, the large blotchlike spots on the skin and the strange shape of the head and horns, like broken branches, all make for its concealment, so that even the keen-eyed natives have been known to mistake trees for giraffes and giraffes for trees.

As to zebras, the black-and-white stripes seem to take away the idea of a solid body altogether. The two colors blend into a gray that is hard to distinguish, while at close quarters the effect is like bars of light seen through the branches of shrubs.

A great naturalist, Drummond, once found himself in a forest gazing at what he supposed to be a solitary zebra, its presence being betrayed by some motion on the part of the naturalist. Then Drummond suddenly realized that he was surrounded by an entire herd, which were all invisible until they moved.

BATS AND MOSQUITOES.

One Played Against the Other Cleared a Lake of the Malaria-breeding Insects.

[Detroit Tribune:] Bats and mosquitoes are not very friendly. When a good-sized bat wants a good-sized meal he goes out after mosquitoes. Now, there are many different kinds of mosquitoes, some of which have a striking propensity for conveying malaria, yellow fever and other kindred diseases to humans. There are so-called day mosquitoes which are known as non-infectious, while there are mosquitoes that fly only by night and which carry all manner of germs. Now, bats do all of their flying by night, too, and so, because they go out after these disease-carrying mosquitoes, they are better friends of man than they realize, in their little batty minds.

Louisiana has recognized this lack of friendly feeling between bats and mosquitoes, and has played one against the other. The State has swung its favor with the bats, seeking their co-operation in exterminating the mosquito pests. Bats now have an easy time in Louisiana. Not only are they welcomed in the State, but special houses are built them to live in. Bat roosts arey are called, and are as snug and comfortable in them as the bungalow dwellers ever thought of being in their little home. These structures occupied by the bat families are about twenty feet high. They are twelve feet at the base and six feet at the apex. The walls are slatted so as to permit the free entrance and exit of the bats, and the interiors of the roosts are fitted with wire netting to which the mammals hang.

Dr. Charles A. R. Campbell of San Antonio has attained reputation as a batologist. He is the one who discovered the enmity existing between the bat tribes and the tribes of mosquitoes and made use of it to clear a community or locality of the disease-carrying pests. He tried out his notion of having the bat forces attack the mosquito forces in the district of Mitchell Lake, near San Antonio, which was infested with veritable hordes of the destructive little insects. The plan proved a great success. Dr. Campbell estimates that one good-sized bat could devour as many as 260 mosquitoes, as a conservative figure, in one night. Into the big roosts in Mitchell Lake he put about 1,000,000 bats, so that the depredations made on the mosquito hordes would be approximately 260,000,000 nightly. He found out also that bats prey on many other nocturnal insects which are destroyers of crops if not a menace to health.

Was Just as Good.

[Chicago Herald:] A bricklayer lay ill, and the doctor, having done what he could, told the man's wife to take his temperature in the morning. Calling the next day, the doctor asked if his instructions had been followed.

"Well, we hadn't a 'tremometer' in the house," the good woman replied, "but I put a barometer on his chest and it went up to 'very dry.' So I gave him a bottle of beer and he's gone to work."

Immense.

PICNIC TOO BIG FOR THE PARK.

Annual Gathering of Iowans Overflows Eastlake.

Officials Estimate Crowd at Forty-five Thousand.

Basket Dinner; Programme of Noted Speakers.

Eastlake Park was overflowed yesterday with the annual picnic of the Iowa State Society, the largest gathering of its kind in Southern California. Most of the cities and towns within a radius of fifty miles of Los Angeles were represented in the vast crowd, estimated at 45,000 by Secretary Parsons and other officers of the association.

Parked motor cars to the estimated number of 5000 occupied all available space on the streets immediately adjoining the park. The walks in the park were not spacious enough to hold the throng, and thousands trod on the lawn.

The largest out-of-town delegations were from Pasadena and Long Beach, each estimated at 3000. Part of the picnickers from the beach city came in a special train of thirteen cars over the Southern Pacific. The smaller communities were represented by delegations, numbering from twenty-five up.

The main features of the day were the basket dinner, at noon, the literary programme in the early afternoon; the college reunions from 3 to 4 p.m., and the thousands of happy reunions between former Iowans. It is said that the prospect of meeting an old friend or relative is the main incentive for attending the monster gathering.

There was an unusual number of veterans present on account of the presence of Col. D. J. Palmer, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, who was the guest of honor. The principal speakers were former Vice-President Fairbanks, ex-Gov. Frank Jackson of Iowa, and Judge Wilbur, president of the association.

Fife and drum corps from the Soldiers' Home and from Long Beach assisted in giving an ovation to Col. Palmer. In his interesting address he spoke of the present world war and urged that the United States strengthen its defenses as a precautionary measure. He declared that he is in favor of a larger standing army, more battleships and increased coast defenses. Following the commander's address, an informal reception was given in his honor.

Mr. Fairbanks, who is from Indiana, spoke of the intimate business and social relations between the people of that State and the neighboring commonwealth of Iowa. He related some of the history of Iowa and called attention to the achievements of its thousands of distinguished sons.

The speech of Mr. Jackson indicated that he is fully imbued with the spirit of Iowa. He told of the progress of the State, its wealth and prestige among the States of the Union. Judge Wilbur discussed the plans of the organization composed of Iowa people transplanted to Southern California.

Col. and Mrs. A. B. Shaw served a typical Iowa picnic dinner to twenty-five guests, including Col. Palmer, Mr. Fairbanks, J. J. Hamilton, Mr. Parsons and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Brock. The elaborate basket dinner was served at the Polk county headquarters. The host and hostess were highly complimented for the quantity, quality and variety of the food served.

The members of the Sioux City Club served their basket dinner on tables. The former residents of Appamoose county dined together at the county headquarters.

Each county of the State had headquarters with a table and blanks for registering. The records show the name, former Iowa address and the present local address of the persons registered. The picnickers were faithful in registering. The names are filed at the headquarters of the Federtion of State Societies and are open to the public. They are used principally by former residents of Iowa who are in search of the addresses of friends and acquaintances from the home State.

ANGLICIZE THEIR NAMES.

Many British Subjects Find Themselves Under Suspicion Because of Their Patronymics.

[London Gazette:] The war, which led to the changing of the name of the Russian capital from St. Petersburg to Petrograd and the change of the name of Berlin's Englische Strasse to Deutsche Strasse, with similar patriotic changes of names in other countries now at war, has also caused scores of anglicized surnames of British subjects of German descent or extraction to be recorded in the official British government paper.

These shiftings of surname from German to English sometimes take the form of literal translation, sometimes of abbreviation or other structural alteration. For example, long formal announcement is made in each ease by David Leopold Bethel Castle, Lewis Raphael Castle, Rosetta Castle, Margaret Jeannie Castle, and Walter Francis Raphael Castle that they have taken their English "Castle" in exchange for their quondam German "Schloss," and which hereafter to be known by the name of their adoption. Carl Adolph Ludwig Bruggemeyer announces that hereafter he will be Carl Adolph Ludwig Bridgmore, while a kinsman named Ludwig Bruggemeyer goes Carl Adolph Ludwig one better by changing his name into English, both fore and aft, becoming Langton Bridges.

Sydney Samuel Birnbaum, who might have translated himself into Sidney Seymour Peartree, contented himself with merely changing his name to Sidney Bernard Burney. Charles Emmanuel Reinhardt added a Rutland to his name and became Reinhardt-Rutland, George Christian Schnorr is henceforth George Christian Shaw. Hermann Muller will hereafter be at home to his friends if they inquire for Harvey Christie Miller, and Arthur George Oppenheimer, traceable etymologically to the town of Oppenheim in Hesse, will hereafter be plain Arthur George Fowler. There are four other Fowlers by adoption recorded in the Gazette. Godfrey Emil Reiss becomes Rice, Albert Rust becomes Albert Hudson, and Charles Stafford Schultz takes the name of Charles Stafford-Stafford.

One of Our Warehouses Must Go

This is in line with our policy for years, giving our customers the savings of economical management in the way of lowered prices on goods of standard worth. Our new store at 737-741 South Hill street, erected by us on ground leased for 99 years, is designed to house our entire store and warehouse stock—therefore we shall dispense with our warehouse at 16th and San Pedro, effecting a big saving in delivery and warehouse expense.

You Get the Benefit

Our loss on these tables is more than offset by the savings we will effect by combining stocks under one roof and besides we will need every inch of floor space we can get.

Don't Wait Till the Best Bargains are Picked Off.

See our big window display showing some of the reductions and you will be convinced that quick action is necessary to share in this opportunity.

Liberal Terms Arranged.

This is not a "scare-head" sale or scheme to foist off a lot of inferior, trashy merchandise, but a genuine effort on the part of a house of recognized standing in the community to carry out plans that mean a saving of money to you, and, as such it is entitled to your consideration and patronage.

HOW MANY WOMEN MARRY.

Refutation of the Charge That Fewer Women Enter Into Matrimony Than They Once Did.

[Topeka State Journal:] In the January Woman's Home Companion Ida M. Tarbell writes a most illuminative and interesting article entitled "What Women are Really Doing." Miss Tarbell takes occasion to refute with facts, which she has gathered by making a careful study of the Thirteenth Census, some of the false ideas on the woman question which are spread by platform speakers throughout the country. The "platform" says that "less than half of the 45,000,000 women of the country marry." Miss Tarbell answers this allegation with the following statement of facts:

"If we consider the sex as a whole, regardless of age, this is true. We have in the United States now 44,629,958 females, including all from one year and under to 100 years and over. Fifty-two and seven-tenths per cent. of these—babes, maids and women—are single, that is, literally less than half of the sex are married. But drop out those not yet of marriageable age and you have a different story. There will, of course, be a difference of opinion about what is a marriageable age, but let us call it 19 or over. If we settle on that, we must drop at once from our estimate something over 20,000,000 of the sex. It puts a different complexion at once on the marriage percentage. As a fact, 70 per cent. of those who are 15 years or more old marry, and if you raise the age to 20, 80½ per cent. marry; to 25, 86.7 per cent. marry.

"But, grant these figures to be correct—it is hard even for an orator to defy a census—and still the platform cries that 'women don't marry as they once did.' The truth is they marry more freely than they did in 1900 or in 1890. There has been a gain of nearly 2 per cent. in the number of marriages of women over 15 in the last twenty years, and 2 per cent. when dealing with nearly 30,000,000, is a considerable number."

Loyalty of the Germans.

[St. Louis Star:] The loyalty and unity of the German people in support of their government in this war cannot be questioned, and, no matter how wrong others may think the government to be and how responsible for this terrible catastrophe to civilization, they cannot but admire the people of Germany for their devotion to their fatherland. The response to the appeal of the government for help by taking a loan has been marvelous. Already bonds to the amount of $1,125,000,000 have been subscribed by the people of Germany from their own savings. Foreign countries have not been called upon, save as Germans living abroad have subscribed. This is practically as much as the entire debt of the United States, and we have exactly twice the national wealth of Germany. It would be the same as though the people of the United States reached down into their pockets and paid our national debt twice over inside three months.

CATARRH TRUTH

Told in a Simple Way

No Apparatus, Inhalers, Salves, Lotions, Harmful Drugs, Smoke or Electricity

Heals Day and Night

It is a new way. It is something absolutely different. No lotions, sprays or sickly smelling salves or creams. No atomizer, or any apparatus of any kind. Nothing to smoke or inhale. No steaming or rubbing or injections. No electricity or vibration or massage. No powder; no plasters; no keeping in the house. Nothing of that kind at all. Something new and different, something delightful and healthful, something instantly successful. You do not have to wait, and linger and pay out a lot of money. You can stop it overnight—and I will gladly tell you how—Free. I am not a doctor and this is not a so-called doctor's prescription—but I am cured and my friends are cured, and you can be cured. Your suffering will stop at once like magic.

I Am Free---You Can Be Free

My catarrh was filthy and loathsome. It made me ill. It dulled my mind. It undermined my health and was weakening my will. The hawking, coughing, spitting made me obnoxious to all, and my foul breath and disgusting habits made even my loved ones avoid me secretly. My delight in life was dulled and my faculties impaired I knew that in time it would bring me to an untimely grave, because every moment of the day and night it was slowly yet surely sapping my vitality.

But I found a cure, and I am ready to tell you about it FREE. Write me promptly.

RISK JUST ONE CENT

Send no money. Just your name and address on a postal card. Say: "Dear Sam Katz: Please tell me how you cured your catarrh and how I can cure mine." That's all you need to say. I will understand, and I will write to you with complete information, FREE, at once. Do not delay. Send postal card or write me a letter today. Don't think of turning this page until you have asked for this wonderful treatment that can do for you what it has done for me.

"Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrant operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

"Follow Men and Women, You Don't Have To Be Cut Up, and You Don't Have To Be Tortured By Trusses."

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. The book and medicine are FREE. They will be sent prepaid to any rupture sufferer who will fill out the below coupon. But send it right away—now—before you put down this paper.

ROSE STAHL AT THE MASON.

Spectacular "Everywoman" Visits Majestic.

"Seven Days" to Make 'Em Laugh at Burbank.

Jolly Kolb and Dill Return to Morosco.

The play is a study of types in a small middle-western town, the plot being thickened by the introduction of three people from the big outer world. The result promises to be most amusing.

Miss Stahl has the part of Lucille Higgins, who masquerades as Lucille le Jambon, and the role is said to give her ample opportunity for her pungent comedy talents. The company includes Frank Beamish, Beatrice Noyes, Adele Adams, Raymond von Sickle, James Cody, Cherrie Carlisle, G. Davison Clark, Louis Mason, Marion Stephenson, Carl Harbough and others.

The Ziegfeld Follies follow "A Perfect Lady."

Majestic.

"Everywoman," the spectacular and dramatic morality play, is to be the offering at the Majestic this week. The production partakes of the nature of allegory, opera, drama and comedy, without belonging to any of the four classes. "Everywoman" purports to be the tale of the universal experience of womankind.

The company consists of thirty-seven principals and over 150 supernumeraries, and a symphony orchestra is employed to properly interpret the musical scores of twenty-six numbers composed by George Whitefield Chadwick.

The cast is the same which appeared here with success a couple of seasons ago. Among the names are Elmer Grandin, Emmette King, Alice Baxter, Harriet Sterling, Hubert Osborne, Hilda Paters, Marguerite Batterson and Edna Porter.

The production is said to be sumptuously staged.

—o—

Burbank.

The always welcome "Seven Days," founded on Mary Roberts Rhinehart's popular story, is the offering at the Burbank this week.

The story centers around a joyful house party and a fussy old aunt, who in the midst of gleeful doings are quarantined for smallpox. Also there is a burglar in the house at the time of the quarantine, and he is forced to dodge a ubiquitous policeman all those seven days. There is a pretty little love story of two married people, who, having been separated, are brought together by their serio-comic adventures.

The capable Grace Travers will play Bella Knowles, Beatrice Nichols will play Anne Brown, Winifred Bryson will be Kit McNair, and Florence Oberle has the funny role of Aunt Selina. Forrest Stanley will play James Wilson, Louis Bennison is Flannigan, Walter Catlett is the burglar, and William Colvin the footman; Edmund Lowe has the role of Dallas Brown, and George Rand that of Tom Harbison.

Morosco.

The popular Kolb and Dill return to the Morosco tonight in "A Peck o' Pickles." The musical comedy is a delightful hodge-podge of music, tomfoolery and pretty girls. What plot there is centers around a blind pig, a lottery joint and the troubles of the purity league. The merry-merry promises to be unusually easy to look at.

Mission Play.

Lenten restrictions do not affect attendance at the Mission Play in San Gabriel, as that production is not classed among the amusements from which strict observers of the season are expected to refrain. Bishop Conaty and other clergymen, Catholic and Protestant, have visited the playhouse since the beginning of Lent. On Washington's Birthday the bishop went back on the stage between acts and talked to the players, telling them their work was excellent. Audiences are increasing in number steadily since the opening of the tourist season.

Century.

There is to be a complete change of bill at the Century tomorrow. There will be two burlesques, said to be especially well fitted to the talent and beauty of the organization. The names of the productions are "A Night at Levy's," satirizing local conditions, and "The Mormons."

The olio includes five vaudeville acts.

—o—

Orpheum.

Ching Ling Foo and Dainty Chee Toy will continue to headline the Orpheum bill during the present week.

Mlle. Maryon Vadie and her eight girls appear in what are known as lyric dances, and there is another Terpsichorean act, by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Crane, who promise the last kick in ballroom dances.

Milt Collins, "the speaker of the house," said to be one of the cleverest of monologists; Butler Haviland and Alice Thornton in a patter and song act, "At Tourville;" Newhouse, Snyder and company, in a cycling oddity; "The Awakening of the Devil;" and the holdovers, the Paul Armstrong sketch, and Elinore & Williams in their clever piffle, complete the bill.

Hippodrome.

Dolly Burton's trained dogs and leaping greyhounds promise an especially good animal act at the Hippodrome this week, and Gruett and Gruett, knockabout black-face comedians, are also headliners.

Al Luttringer and company will present "A Girl of the West;" Gilson, Farnsworth and Leary have a comedy and harmony offering; the Straub Sisters appear in a "Girl Types" act; Loveland and Denis, violinist and vocalist, and the Aerial Bartletts in a thrilling and beautiful trapeze turn, assisted by a lovely girl, complete the bill.

Pantages.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard return as headliners to the Pantages this week in "The Luck of the Totem," said to be a vivid drama.

Vivian Marshall and her bunch of bathing beauties are headliners for the remainder of the bill, which includes also Hilliard, the talkative trickster; Quinn Brothers and Marion in singing, dancing and talking, and Helen Hamilton and Jack Barnes in new songs and jokes.

—o—

Doew's Empress.

J. K. Emmett, son of the famous Fritz Emmett, headlines the Empress bill, in "The Strongest Tie," said to be one of the most beautifully staged of vaudeville acts.

Others are Weber and Fields in motion pictures; Eddie Clark, in character parts with Clarissa Rose; The Ogden Quartette; Roy and Arthur in a burlesque juggling act, "Fun in a Dining Car;" the Three Donals in a posing and acrobatic turn, and Lon Smith and Constance Farmer, in grand opera selections.

—o—

Republic.

Dustin Farnum in a film version of "The Squaw Man" is to be the headliner at the Republic during the present week. The piece deals with the adventures of a transplanted Englishman, who takes up life in Wyoming, and marries an Indian woman.

The vaudeville section includes Ray's Mannikins, which promise to please the children, and other variety numbers.

"The Man Beast," the playlet, ends its appearance tonight.

We Need to Live.

We need to live—for life is more
Than eating, drinking, wearing.
Than seeking pleasures door to door
And hither, thither faring.
By artificial dress and speech
We teach the world to doubt us,
And cry for riches out of reach
While joy lies all about us.

We need to love—for life is more
Than drinking, wearing, eating,
The outer mortal striving for,
The inner mortal cheating.
The tinsel things of life we clutch
While skies are blue above us,
While here beside us at our touch
Are those who long to love us.

We need to learn (for life is more Than wearing, eating, drinking)
A little less of later lore
And more of early-thinking.
We need to live and love and learn
The simple things to cheer us,
To truth established to return
And learn the lesson near us.
—[Douglas Malloch in American Lumberman.

Playland favorites,
Who are acting at the various theaters this week.

Faith's Supremacy.

I opened wide the portals of my heart,
Love's coming to forestall;
Then sat me down a little way apart
Content withal.

Hope, peeping through, beheld the speeding day,
Fear crouching low.
"I always come," he said, "when Hope departs, Law plans it so."

"Nay, if you come, I go," I cried, and fled
Until I spied
Faith standing so serene and glad,
My steps to guide.

Gently she turned my feet and led me back
So calmly home.
And lo! There love and Hope in waiting sat,
And fear had gone.
—[Anna L. Derschel, in Nautilus Magazine.

Husband is Truthful.

[Houston Post:] "Does your husband ever lie to you?"

"Never."

"How do you know?"

"He tells me that I do not look a day older than I did when he married me, and if he doesn't lie about that, I don't think he would about less important matters."

Music.

ZIMBALIST AND GLUCK TO PLAY.

I. A. SYMPHONY'S PROGRAMME OF FIRST "POP" CONCERT.

Orpheus Club, Musical Matinee Club and Trinity Sunday-school Orchestra will Entertain this Week—Sessions Recital Comes Wednesday.

For his midseason artists' recitals Manager Behymer announces the coming of Alma Gluck, the distinguished and popular soprano, Tuesday evening of this week at Trinity Auditorium, while on Saturday afternoon, in the same auditorium, Efrem Zimbalist, the Russian violinist, will be heard once more, this time in joint recital with Mme. Gluck.

Alma Gluck's meteoric advancement in the musical world has added a new and interesting chapter to the history of prime donne. Despite the poverty of her childhood days, her early struggles and disappointments, Gluck possessed three great blessings—brains, a beautiful voice and a splendid health; if a fourth gift were to be mentioned one would not hesitate to mention her great charm of manner and striking good looks. However, it has not been these attributes which have earned fame for her, but the wonderful voice. A voice even from end to end, of a timber which lends itself to every degree of emotional inflection. She is a splendid linguist, usually singing in four languages during the progress of one of her recital programmes.

Special mention must also be made of the Gluck programmes, as her instinctive ability to build them to suit not only the musician but the layman, has been one of the prime assets of her every success.

Zimbalist, Saturday.

For the second extraordinary treat in this week Efrem Zimbalist, the Russian violinist, already a favorite here, will be heard in a farewell concert, a joint recital with Mme. Gluck—in private life, Mrs. Efrem Zimbalist.

The programme will be opened with the seldom-presented but rarely beautiful Vivaldi-Nachez Concerto A Minor for violin, piano and organ. William Edson Strobridge, the well-known organist of this city, has been asked by Mr. Zimbalist to preside at the organ for this number.

There will be two groups of violin numbers, while Massenet's lovely Elegy, and Braga's "Angel's Serenade," will be presented by Miss Gluck and Mr. Zimbalist jointly. A lovelier combination it would be difficult to imagine than the lyric voice of Gluck's blending with the splendid violin tones of Zimbalist in these two numbers. Also Miss Gluck will include the aria "Depuis la Jour," from Charpentier's "Louise," the opera made famous in this country by Mary Garden.

The programme will be closed by a group of seven folk songs, including the Hebrew, Italian, Spanish, French, Scotch, German and American, a group of rare merit, and one never before included on any programme. The Gluck recital programme of the second, as one will see at a glance at the numbers below, is absolutely stunning:

1. (a) Air of "Adorta," from the opera "Il Telemaco" ..... Gluck
   (b) "Ridente la Calma" ..... Mozart
   (c) "Un moto di Gioja" ..... Mozart
   (d) "Oh Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me?" ..... Handel
   (e) "Mermaid's Song" ..... Haydn
2. (a) "Du Mat. die Rob" ..... Schubert
   (b) "Die Forelle" ..... Schubert
   (c) "Die Lotosblume" ..... Schumann
   (d) "Der Nussbaum" ..... Schumann
   (e) "Botschaft" ..... Brahms
3. (a) "Bohemian Cradle Song" ..... Smetana
   (b) "Peasant Song" ..... Rachmaninoff
   (c) "Chanson Indoue" ..... Rimsky-Korsakoff
   (d) "Song of the Shepherd Lehl" ..... Rimski-Korsakoff
4. (a) "Allah" ..... George Chadwick
   (b) "Little Grey Dove" ..... Louis Victor Saar
   (c) "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" ..... Charles Cadman
   (d) "Fiery Song" ..... Kurt Schindler
   (e) "Will o' the Wisp" ..... Charles G. Spross

Organ Recital Today.

This afternoon at 3 p.m. Charles H. Demorest will give an organ recital at Trinity Auditorium. The big Trinity organ is one of the largest organs in the West and is a fine concert instrument.

As organist of the Third Christian Science Church of Los Angeles and also of Tally's Broadway Theater, Mr. Demorest needs no introduction to the people of Los Angeles. He will play an interesting programme, that will appeal both to the cultured musician and to all lovers of music, and will be assisted by Grace Wood Jess, soprano. Admission is free.

Following is the programme:

Fugue in F flat ("St. Anne's") ..... Bach
Favorite from "Mignon" ..... Thomas
Sonata in A Minor ..... Borowski
I. Allegro. II. Andante. III. Allegro con fuoco.
Songs: (a) "Know'st Thou the Land" ..... Thomas
(b) "Verborgenheit" ..... Wolf
(c) "Floods of Spring" ..... Rachmaninoff
Sketches: (a) "To a Wild Rose" ..... MacDowell
(b) "An Autumn Sketch" ..... Brewer
(c) "An Oriental Sketch" (No. 3) ..... Byrd
These three "sketches" are all by American composers. Each is characteristic of that which its title implies.
Variations on "Old Kentucky Home" ..... Lord
Three variations on the familiar southern melody are well written by an organist at present residing in the south.
"A Twilight Reverie" ..... Diggle
This restful number was written by the present organist of St. John's Episcopal Church of Los Angeles, a young man who has attained national fame as a composer.
Fugue in D ..... Guilmant
"In the Moonlight" (using chimes) ..... Kinder
This little composition is expressive of evening, its evening chimes and its quiet moonlight.
Song, "I Will Extol Thee, O Lord," from "Elij" ..... Costa
"Pomp and Circumstance," Military March ..... Elgar

Some little musicians.

Sessions Recital.

The fifth of the Archibald Sessions organ recitals at Christ Church will be given Wednesday afternoon of this week at 4 o'clock.

The assisting artists will be Louise Davison, violinist, who will play Borowski's "Adoration" and Olson's "Norwegian Melodie." She is a comparatively recent addition to the local music colony.

The organ numbers will be of Lenten character and include the Good Friday music of "Parsifal," Guilmant's "Lamentation" and Rheinberger's "Sonata."

New Music Studio.

Anthony Carlson, teacher of singing, and Jode A. Anderson, teacher of piano, opened their new studios in the Majestic building last night with the following programme:

1. (a) "Du Bist Wie Eine Blume" ..... Spencer
   (b) "Unter Sternen" ..... Weingartner
   (c) "Spirit Flower" ..... Tipton
   Mrs. Dorothy Thayer.
2. "Cantique d'Amour" ..... Liszt
   Miss Eunice Landrum.
3. Duets:
   (a) "Der Engel" ..... Rubinstein
   (b) "Angelus" ..... Chaminade
   Miss Kuhl and Mr. Carlson.
4. Rhapsody, G Minor ..... Brahms
   Evans Kirk.
5. (a) "Love Is the Wind" ..... McFadyen
   (b) "The Fairy Pipers" ..... Brewer
   Miss Jone Kuhl.
6. Ballade No. 2, B Minor ..... Liszt
   Charles Gierich.
7. (a) "When Love Abides" ..... Leighter
   (b) "Sweetheart, Thy Lips Are Touched With Flame" ..... Chadwick
   Mrs. Amy Leonardt Powell.
8. Valse, Op. 34, No. 1 ..... Moszkowski
   Miss Marjorie Nichols.
9. Duets:
   (a) "A Canadian Boat Song" ..... Beach
   (b) "Kein Feuer, Keine Kohle" ..... Helmund
   Mrs. Thayer and Mr. Carlson.

Band is Reality.

At last the Los Angeles Military Band is an actuality. Between showers, the other day, at Westlake Park, with Director L. D. McCoy and drum major "Bobbie" Burns in the van, the forty-five musicians had their picture taken and are now rehearsing almost daily for the first concert, the date and place of which will be announced in the very near future.

With the aid of the women's clubs of the city, McCoy has accomplished in a short time what many another has tried to achieve in vain for several years, and apparently there is no black cloud hovering over the future of the organization.

Every man selected by McCoy is not only a trained musician, but has had actual band experience, while Burns, who will be drum major, gained his experience in the army, in genuine military bands.

Matinee Musical Club.

A delightful programme is announced by the Matinee Musical Club for its concert Thursday of this week. Mrs. Frederick O. Jungquist will direct and a feature of the programme will be the contribution of Victor Schertzinger, whose compositions are so well known in both theatrical and music circles.

The complete programme follows:

1. Piano solo:
   (a) "Forest Murmurings" ..... Liszt
   (b) "Fantasie Impromptu" ..... Chopin
   Melicent Virden.
2. Soprano solo:
   (a) "Springtide" ..... Rhonhold Becker
   (b) "The Sunshine of Thine Eyes" ..... Metcalf
   Miss Laura Cadmus.
3. Saxophone solo:
   "Nocturno" ..... Chopin
   Frederick O. Jungquist.
4. Contralto solo
   "Quest" ..... Eleanor Smith
   Miss Alice Lohr.
5. Violin solo: (Selected.)
   Victor Schertzinger.
6. Soprano solo:
   (a) Aria from Oberon, "Ocean, Thou Mighty Monster."
   (b) "Serenade" ..... Schubert
   Marie Sweet Baker.
   (Violin obligato by Mr. Schertzinger.)
7. Harp solo: (Selected.)
   Miss Hazel Schertzinger.
   H. C. Lee at the piano.

Mr. Schertzinger, noted violinist, lately of New York and Chicago, to play own compositions.

Orpheus Club Concert.

The Orpheus Club will give its second concert of this season at Trinity Auditorium Thursday evening of this week.

The soloist on this occasion will be Lillian Ammales Smith, pianiste. This artist is a young woman, born in Los Angeles, who studied five years with the great Leschetizky and afterward toured Europe playing with some of

A Sale of Newest Styles

At the New Paris With Prices Special

¶ And styles for all — whether your pocketbook dictates $15 or $150, you can be assured that the style is correct if you get it in this sale.

Smart Spring Suits and Dresses, $15

The lowest prices ever asked—to our knowledge — for garments so fine.

Suits of homespuns in gray and tan; navy serges, checks and sand and gray gabardines. Featuring newest style modes of the season.

Dresses of taffeta, serge and covert cloth in sand, navy, white rose, gray and the always-wanted black.

We want you to compare them with any shown elsewhere at $19.50 and $25.00. They are the best your money can buy at $15.00.

These Are the Very Best $25 Suit and Dress Values in the City

Paris-inspired and American creations. Each possessed of a beauty that will delight any woman's heart.

The array of suits is wide and includes the Tipperary—that exclusive new Paris style which has become as popular in Los Angeles as it is in New York. Other models feature every new color and material Fashion has decreed. And new ones are arriving daily.

Afternoon Dresses

Some of them styled much liked suits—others quaint in Bolero and jacket effects, with plaiting, ruffles and wide flaring flounces. Note the two illustrated.

Party Frocks

Of taffeta, nets and crepe de chines in white, pink, orchid, Nile and light blue. Unquestionably pretty and superlatively stylish.

Models Artistic, Exquisite, Exclusive

Right now this store fairly outshines even its own previous efforts in displays of highest class apparel.

Evening Gowns, Evening Wraps, Sport Suits, Tailored Suits, Afternoon Frocks, Party Dresses.

And best of all prices are within reach of every woman's economy.

Spring Top Coats with Flares and High Belts at $12.50

Coats designed into effects, radically new and different. You'll like them all.

The tailor's art and fabrics are features. Coats of checks of all sizes, coverts, white chinchillas and mixtures play a leading role.

Sale of New Spring Hats $5.00, $10.00, $15.00

Another one of those events which SPELLS LEADERSHIP—which demonstrates that New Paris styles are correct and that aggressive merchandising means economy for each customer.

Blouses with Convertible Collars 95c, $1.95, $3.95

A great sale of them this week. Crepe de chines, laces, chiffons and Georgette crepes. New shades and styles.

The drama is said to be a power and vivid one, and is founded on t stage drama, "The World and H Wife." In it Miss Nansen is said display her emotional dramatic pow at its best.

"The Exploits of Elaine" is t added attraction.

Clune's Broadway.

Francis X. Bushman and Ed Mayo in "Stars Their Cours Change," will be the feature Clune's Broadway during the first ha of the present week. The piece said to be an analysis of love, t action centering around a beautif woman, who calculatingly brings man to her feet. Of course, a gen ine love story follows.

Billy Quirk—and Constance Ta dage will appear in a comed called, "The Burglarious Billy;" an There is a Biograph comedy entitle "The Boob and the Magician," sai to be a laugh-getter.

Hamburger's Arrow.

"The Attorney for the Defense, with Ethel Clayton playing Rut Langate, is the offering at Hambur ger's Arrow during the first part o the present week.

The drama is said to be a stron one, centering round the employmen of one Frederick Stratton to defend supposed murderer.

"The Wrong Girl," a Vitagrap comedy, will also be shown.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

William Ruf, a gunpointer on the United States battleship Texas, ha set a new world's record for marks manship with big guns. Ruf is credited with eight straight hits with fourteen-inch gun, shooting at a moving target twelve miles away.

James Wing Chamberlain, having completed fifty-three years and seven months as a locomotive engineer on the Boston and Albany Railroad with out a demerit, has, it is believed, es tablished a record which will likely stand. His experience covered the de velopment of railroading from the eighteen-ton wood-burning locomo tives of two generations ago to the 90-ton engines of today. He has just been placed on the pension list of the railroad.

Brig.-Gen. Clarence Ransom Ed wards, who will command the Pan ama Canal defenses, has seen no little hard service. He was an aid to Gen. Wheaton and served with him in the Philippines. In 1912 he was trans ferred to the line, and later accom panied the troops to guard the Mexi can border, commanding the Sixth Brigade of the Second Division. He is a native of Ohio and a graduate of the United States Military Academy.

Private Claude Bloomfield of the Twenty-sixth United States Infantry has made a score which army men declare is the record for the United States army in machine gun firing at floating targets. At 500 yards, shoot ing at illuminated targets, Bloom field made 101 hits out of 120 shots. The whole company made 520 hits out of 1200.

Albert S. Janin, who the decision of the board of examiners in the patent office at Washington has just credited with the invention of the hydro-aeroplane, has never ridden in one, though he conceived the idea of such a machine sixteen years ago. He lives at Rosebank, Staten Island, and like all inventors of substantial value, met with nothing but ridicule for years. In 1907, he states, he completed the large model of his flying ship. "I was never able to fly," he said recently, "because I hadn't the money with which to buy a motor." So little faith had his friends in the invention that none of them would financially back the enterprise to the extent of the necessary motor.

Charles David Marx, who has just been installed as president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, is head of the civil engineering department at Stanford University. The organization has 60,000 members, and this is the first time it has conferred such an honor on a man west of the Rocky Mountains. Prof. Marx is a native of Toledo, O., and after graduating from Cornell University he went to Germany, taking a course at the Karlsruhe Polytechnicum. He was United States assistant engineer of the Missouri River improvement project, 1882-84, and prior to coming to California was professor of civil engineering at the University of Wisconsin.

Same End, Different Ways.

[Stray Stories:] "I hear your son is achieving great success in his stage career."

"Yes," replied the architect.

"I should have thought he would have entered your profession."

"Well, it amounts to the same thing. We both make money by drawing good houses."

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

King Peter of Servia, known as the "lightning monarch," is 70 years old. As to military training and experience he stands pre-eminent among all the warring monarchs of Europe.

Thomas Morris, said to be the oldest man in this country, has just entered on his 121st year. He lives at Waterville, Neb., but was born in Wales. He has always smoked tobacco and used liquor in moderation. He never attended school and never married. In his boyhood he was apprenticed to a butcher, but later changed his occupation and was apprenticed to a shoemaker. About five years ago he gave up work altogether.

W. H. Martin, aged 85, a well-known farmer, stood on his head in a store in Shepherdstown, Pa., to prove that he was still agile.

Harrison Johnston of Columbus, Miss., who recently celebrated his 100th anniversary, received a congratulatory telegram from ex-President Taft, wishing him many more years of life.

Austin Crosley Winslow of Washington will complete a century of life on March 21. He is the dean in point of years of the capital's inhabitants. He is a native of Barnard, Vt., and when he went to Washington in 1868 he was appointed assistant to the supervising architect of the Treasury, H. B. Mullet. He was subsequently employed in the navy yard and the census office.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, February 26.

Becky darling: They pointed your latest admirer out to us at the theater the other evening. Oh, my dear, he is very, very beautiful; he's a maiden's prayer if he is anywhere near as nice as he looks. From what we hear he has but one serious fault, he's a golfer. Before you let things go any further, cheria, pause and consider whether you could endure golf widowhood. It sets in directly after the honeymoon and cures are pathetically rare.

Remember, dear, that from December to June every year, your swain would devote at least four days a week to golf. All day and every day, and if by chance he tore himself away from the "bunch" in the evening he would be too tired to go anywhere and either too cross to talk at all or too jubilant to talk anything but golf, according to his luck.

This vicinity simply reeks with golf widows. It is one of the hidden tragedies of life. In some few cases wife has taken up the game in the fond illusion that in that way she can at least see her husband occasionally. But she reckons without the other golf men. For, if hubby is in any sense "a good fellow," the men claim him for their own and they regard wife as a barnacle, a leech, a general all-round nuisance, shrug their shoulders sympathetically and murmur "poor old Jack—shackled," for all the world as though complete renunciation was her only decent duty. If you don't believe me, I can refer you to scores of heartsore golf widows in this very town who regard the game as a wicked siren that has blighted their lives.

We were all down at the Virginia Country Club for that big invitation tournament last week-end—masculinity everywhere and not a one to play with. It was gloriously fine on Sunday and Monday, so dozens of smart specimens of femininity drove out to feast their eyes on the oceans of nice men. You haven't any idea what a number of charming maidens Long Beach can produce on occasion. Those two smart Farley girls, with mamma and Jack Farley's bride were all there. Even the golfers paused in their mad career to admire them. They are National Park Seminary girls, like Mildred Landreth and Pauline Mahan—that particular New York school certainly manages to turn out some peaches. Ann Farley's wonderful sienna coloring, which she carries out faithfully in the smartest of clothes, is very attractive. Alice is dark and mischievous looking, and the bride a dazzling picture of silent beauty.

Then there was pretty Katherine Baird, who is about to take up golf under the kindly auspices of Mrs. Goodhue. She began by acquiring the spiffenist orange silk sweater and cap, with a white corduroy skirt that was the envy of all feminine beholders.

Numerous charming Long Beach matrons likewise improved the occasion with their presence—Mrs. Updike, Mrs. Sellery, Mrs. Lockridge, for instance, and of course Mrs. Goodhue in one of her usual satisfying creations. Carl Knappe's bride was likewise in evidence, an entirely pleasant person with an understanding little twinkle in her eye. The men were naturally very interested in her, for Mr. Knappe had been regarded as an irrevocable bachelor for years.

The big tennis tournament was in full swing at the same time, and on the Monday they devoted one court to an afternoon tea dance, which was lots of fun. We girls all went over for that, of course. Fancy Winifred Mace being beaten by that northern boy. Many a maiden sigh oozed sympathetically for Winny that day.

What do you think of those two surprise society weddings? If that's going to be the new style, I entirely approve of it. First Aileen McCarthy to Morgan Adams, then Elizabeth Wood to Stack, the polo man. No one talked of anything else for days—both such pretty, attractive girls, too, and sufficiently socially secure to have any kind of wedding they liked.

We were so tickled at Mildred the other evening. You know that eastern insurance potentate is out here again, this time with a new gorgeous diamond ring. He showed it to Mil and asked her coyly what she would do if she had a ring like that. "Sell it and buy a nail brush," remarked Mil caustically, and the poor wretch has kept his hands in his pockets ever since.

Now, of course, he will cultivate the manicurists and the last stage of that man will be pitiable. And, you know, under all that swanky affectation he is rather a dear.

One of our pet society hostesses has a new lioness—an Englishwoman of "county family" status, with a haughty voice, pince nez and the smart appearance of a country schoolteacher in three pairs of combinations and a lamb's wool bodice, to augment a would-be modish exterior. She has been conscientiously patronizing everybody right along and gets away with it beautifully, to the inward satisfaction of society hostesses, needless to say. She is accompanied by an interesting specimen, known as a "companion." A lanky, weedy-looking girl, who learns up the latest epigrams and launches them methodically in suitable intervals of the conversation.

"No man tells the truth to a woman unless he wants to get rid of her," she remarked casually, and then informed us it was an epigram from Louise Stegler's latest book. Of course, it started the conversation along those deplorable lines, in which every one always takes such a keen interest, so the dear creature has her uses. The deceitfulness of man is such an enthralling subject.

We are all going to the Altadena Country Club today for the ladies' tournament. We shall open the fun with a luncheon party and the souvenirs are going to be just ducky. I was let into the secret yesterday. The almond cases will be scooped-out golf balls, with golf clubs cleverly arranged criss-cross fashion. That's a dear little club out there and I am so glad they have entered the association and joined the golf family properly, for it is a course that women will enjoy playing on.

Fancy Mrs. F. F. Carpenter beating Katherine Mellus at Annandale. Of course she is a good player, but everyone expected Kathy to win. It is funny how she puts up her best game against a weak player and invariably plays her very worst when she has an opponent worthy of her steel. By the way, the championship dates have been fixed at last—the Southern California at the Los Angeles Country Club March 16, and the State championship at the Midwick, April 13. It's jolly having the State event south this year. I do hope some of those smart northern players will come down for it.

The Colonial dinner dance at the Midwick is to be a very superior affair and that will probably be the last of any dimensions during Lent. After that we shall devote ourselves to outdoor sports, and to getting our hair and complexions right again.

Au revoir, darling; write again soon.

Love from BETTY.

THE WEEK.

PARTIES, RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM J. DORAN of No. 547 Harvard boulevard entertained last evening with a charming dinner-dance at the Maryland in honor of Miss Margaret Daniell, popular young debutante and society belle of this city.

The guests included many of the debutantes of the past two seasons and members of the younger set.

Among those enjoying the hospitality of the delightful hosts were the Misses Clara Baker, Virginia Wahh, Louise Hunt, Dorothy Lindley, Marjorie Wentworth, Helen Hoover, Dorothy Williams, Florence Johnson and Mary Scott; Messrs. George Reed, Arden Day, Claire Woolwine, Frank Simpson, Harry Knapp, Perry Wood, Arthur Bobrick, Graham Hunter, Van Rennsalaer, Wilbur and Howard Shephard and Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Bisscher and Mr. and Mrs. William Swift Daniell.

The table decorations were crimson carnations.

Mrs. Maier's House Party.

One of the notable events of the week was the house party given by Mrs. Mary J. Maier at her palatial foothill home, "Las Delicias," to a large party of friends from Thursday to Monday night, in honor of Mrs. George Stegmaier of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and her beautiful daughter, Kathleen, who have received so many flattering attentions during their visit to Los Angeles as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Forve. Mrs. Stegmaier in her girlhood days was one of the reigning beauties of Pennsylvania. Among Mrs. Maier's distinguished guests at Las Delicias were the Marquis Maloney and his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Osborn of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Sickel and Mr. Sickel and Mrs. Campbell and Miss Herrington, who are popular visitors for the winter at the Hotel Maryland, together with a number of Los Angeles friends of the Maiers, all making up a happy group. Mrs. Maier and her son, E. R. Maier, entertained in their invariably royal style. There were all kinds of sports, and a fine orchestra furnished music for dancing. "Las Delicias" is one of the wonder places of California.

Visit Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Waller Chanslor and son have gone to San Francisco, where they will spend six months or a year. Society in Los Angeles will miss the charming affairs at which Mrs. Chanslor has so often been hostess.

Musical Postponed.

Owing to the illness of Miss Bessie Patton, the second concert in her series of morning musicales to have been given Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, No. 7 Chester Place, has been postponed one week.

Engagement Announced.

Miss Edna Bovard, daughter of George F. Bovard, president of the University of Southern California, gave a luncheon yesterday afternoon at Christopher's tea-room to announce the engagement and wedding date of her sister, Miss Gladys Bovard, to Charles Warren Swiggett, and the wedding date, April 23.

The table decorations were carnations and violets and favors were corsage boquets of violets.

The guests included the Misses Gertrude Bradley, Ada Parrish, Queen Masters, Elsie Thorne, Doris Coomber, Katherine Obear, Margaret York, Ella Winstanley, Albra Staley and Mary Wilkes.

Surprise Party.

Several friends of Dr. William J. Brizius, No. 4409 Bernice avenue, gave him a pleasant birthday surprise party last week. The party who paid the visit unannounced included Dr. and Mrs. Burdette S. Fray, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Quintin, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chesley, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Cadwalder, Mr. and Mrs. V. Emblem, Mrs. Edna Shubert, Dr. Fontaine, Dr. G. Harbour, Miss Helen Wirz, Miss Margaret Wirz, Miss Ada Street, Lewis Brizius, Mr. Leeander, Mr. Shufeldt, Wesley Cadwalder and Mark Shubert.

Move to Country Place.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren E. Rollins, who have been making their home at the Paulson, West Chester place, have now moved to their country place at San Gabriel.

Home from Outing.

Miss Blanch Ruby of No. 954 Hoover street has returned from a two weeks' outing at Santa Barbara.

Dancing Party.

Miss Evelyn Hutchinson, the charming debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hutchinson of Washington boulevard, was hostess recently at a delightful dancing party to about thirty of her young friends. The beautiful home was artistically decorated in red carnations and spring foliage. At midnight a dainty collation was served to the guests, who included Miss Mildred Stoddard, Miss Alma Grundy, Miss Florence Miller, Miss Marjorie Ware, Miss Lora Vale Small, Herbert A. Wood, Chester Hubbard, Roland Taylor, Earl Litpole, Jack Ferguson, Harold Grundy, Harry McMullen, Kyler Robinson and Robert Garner.

At Home to Friends.

Many charming weddings have taken place this season among which was the wedding last month of Clyde Martin and Miss Agnes Whitaker. They have returned from their honeymoon trip and will be at home to their many friends after April 1 at No. 200 Gramercy place.

For Charity.

Of prominence among the varied and extensive charitable activities of Los Angeles society's Lenten season will be those of Mrs. E. A. Featherstone, who has recently returned from an eastern trip. One field for her philanthropic endeavors is the Children's Hospital, and she has taken an active part in many of the elaborate benefits given by social folk for the help of the sick babies.

At a single one of these—the cotton ball given a short time ago at the Bryson apartments, at which Mrs. Featherstone was one of the assistants—an official accounting for receipts in excess of $300 has been made to the hospital board. Mrs. Featherstone, as a member of this latter body, is collaborating in the use of the money for fitting up a much-needed new surgical ward at the institution.

See "Mission Play."

Among the visitors to the "Mission Play" this week were Mrs. George M. Pullman and Mrs. L. V. Pullman, President Stevens of the American Locomotive Company, and W. G. Foster of New York, the head of the "Ask Mr. Foster" information bureaus.

At the Sierra Madre Club.

Many things are in the planning for the members of the Sierra Madre Club. Saturday afternoon the usual tea dansant will occur from 3 to 5:30 o'clock, and the same evening an auction bridge whist party will take place at 8 o'clock, with the same partners throughout the evening. Handsome prizes will be awarded for best scores and guests will be permitted. One of the attractive dinner dances, which have become so popular that the reservations are full long before the event, is scheduled for March 6, and a "tacky" dinner dance for March 20.

English Visitors.

Mrs. De Garman Boothe of London, Eng., with her daughter, Helen, is in Los Angeles for several weeks. They will go from here to San Francisco and return to Los Angeles for an indefinite stay. They are at the Young apartments.

Smart Bridge Luncheons.

Two smart bridge luncheons were given Wednesday and Thursday of this week by Mrs. L. L. Vogel at her home, No. 2271 Cambridge street, fifty guests being included each day. The national colors were developed in the house decorations, as well as at the small tables, where luncheon was served by utilizing the blue corn flower, white cyclamen and the crimson carnations.

Assisting ladies Wednesday included Mrs. Charles Steinbaur, Mrs. John A. Vaughan, Mrs. Frank Karr, Mrs. Standford D. Parker, Mrs. O. Vogel. Thursday they were Mrs. John Cline, Mrs. Lewis E. Ford, Mrs. George W. Maxon, Mrs. Ralph Hagan, Mrs. Charles Davis and Mrs. James Chalmers. Pivot games of auction were enjoyed each day following the delectable luncheon, with a prize for each table, a hand-painted plate, the work of the talented hostess.

High-score winners Wednesday were Mrs. W. H. Mayne, Mrs. O. F. Sherer, Mrs. James Chalmers, Mrs. L. E. Ford, Mrs. T. W. Covington, Mrs. Frank Karr, Mrs. O. C. Vogel, Mrs. Harry Hazard, Mrs. Joseph Dupuy and Mrs. E. A. Dake. Thursday they included Mrs. H. R. Gage, Mrs. Theodore Stassforth, Mrs. E. R. Fraser, Mrs. Baldwin Starr, Mrs. W. A. Morehouse, Mrs. Burkart Logan, Mrs. Frank Jay, Mrs. Frank Bryson, Mrs. Fred Gollum and Mrs. John W. Ulm.

To San Diego.

Mrs. Margaret Cottrell and her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Heimann of South Pasadena, and Mrs. A. Williams of Portland, Or., left Wednesday for San Diego, where they will spend the week-end at the Coronado Hotel and viewing the exposition.

Enjoyable Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Barnes entertained with one of the enjoyable dinners of the week at their home, No. 914 South Gramercy place, when covers were laid for the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brent, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Zemansky, Mr. and Mrs. David Beidler, and Messrs. August Marquis, Jack Marquis and Dr. Luck.

Wedding Anniversary Celebrated.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mead celebrated their wedding anniversary Thursday evening at the Huntley apartments by a dinner of twelve covers, followed by a dance, to which other friends were included. The table decorations, carried out in the rose motif, were original and novel. A large tripod of rose maline centered the table, with smaller ones at each cover, on the top of which were small mirrors (looking into the future.) Suspended from the center one was a large heart filled with camelias, and from those at each cover a small basket filled with bonbons. Hand-limned cards adorned with brides and grooms marked covers for Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Eisenmayer, Mr. and Mrs. Joe J. Mottell, Mr. and Mrs. Norton Wells, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Griffith, Mrs. H. E. Tower, Perry Whiting and the host and hostess.

Others included to the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Everhardy, Mr. and Mrs. James Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Ganahl, Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zobelein, Mr. and Mrs. Al Olcovitch, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Olcovitch, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Munson, Mr. and Mrs. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dice, Mr. and Mrs. George Kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Logan, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brent, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Millar, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. McCray, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Youngworth, Mr. and Mrs. Don Keeler, Mrs. Townsley, Dr. Emma Carson, and Messrs. J. August Marquis, Jack Marquis, George Zobelein and Hubert Eaton. The Misses Adele Tower, Josephine Kitchen and Ruby Lucille Mead presented the favors to the guests. Yellow acacia embellished the ballroom, and Porter's orchestra furnished delightful music for the dancing. A buffet supper was served at midnight.

Marshalltown Birthday Club.

Mrs. Marion Welch opened her specious home, No. 748 Garland avenue, Thursday afternoon, to the members of the Marshalltown Birthday Club, as well as visiting guests from that city. Assisting Mrs. Welch were Mrs. B. A. Rhodes, Mrs. B. F. Kauffman and Mrs. James Hall of Pasadena. Baskets of freslas and hyacinths were placed in the white enamel drawing-room, crimson carnations in the library, potted plants in the reception hall and Enchantress carnations in the dining-room, where a luncheon was served cafeteria style, to 100 guests. A decidedly pleasing feature of the occasion was the rendition of several delightful harp solos by Miss Esther Rhoades, piano selections by Mrs. Lynn Norris and vocal solos from the charming hostess. The social chat that prevailed was strongly marked by the geniality and intimate good fellowship that characterize the gatherings of this society, which includes ladies of this city and Pasadena. Out-of-town guests present were Mrs. D. W. Norris, Mrs. J. E. Lander, Mrs. G. W. McNeely, Mrs. F. R. Benedict, Mrs. F. W. Morgan, Mrs. W. A. Fandoe, Dr. Speer Gillette, Mrs. T. I. Out-of-Town Society.

WITH three brilliant dance functions over and various teas, weddings and other affairs, the past week in Pasadena has been one of [illegible]ested interest to Crown City society. With the first cafe chantant ever to [illegible]e been given in the city at the Maryland Tuesday night and several [illegible] equally elaborate affairs, this week promises to be replete with entertainment.

At the colonial ball given at the [illegible]n Hotel on February 22, the decorations were elaborate, and the costumes worn by the maids and matrons [illegible]re creations of beauty. Costumes of [illegible] long ago were reproduced in rich[illegible] of brocades, laces and silks, and [illegible]men likewise were as well groomed.

The Knights Templars ball given to [illegible]or the father of his country was [illegible]perhaps the most gorgeously reapplendent function ever given by that or[illegible]ganization, and the plumed knights [illegible]re recipients of much favorable [illegible]ment, as they gave some remarkable drills. More than four hundred [illegible]ests attended, some of them coming [illegible]m the various adjoining towns.

The cherry blossom supper dance at the Huntington Wednesday night was [illegible] a charming success, which was [illegible]ded by more than 400 guests. Decorations throughout the dining-room [illegible]re of cherry blossoms and almond [illegible]ossoms.

About the largest party [illegible]n was that of Hrs. Elwin Francis [illegible]ess. Mrs. Delmar Reynolds was [illegible]e hostess to quite a merry coterie [illegible]f friends.

A large number of society folk, all [illegible]ers of music, attended the concert [illegible]en recently at the Valley Hunt Club. [illegible]e programme was arranged by Mme. [illegible]ther Palliser, well-known soprano. [illegible]e was assisted by Mrs. Londra Pier[illegible] and Count A. E. Wachtmeister.

[illegible]r. and Mrs. Earl H. Reynolds of [illegible]Chicago, who are here for their honeymoon, were recipients of a charming [illegible]rtesy the other evening when Mr. [illegible]nd Mrs. W. J. Doran of Los Angeles [illegible]ntertained at dinner at the Hotel [illegible]aryland. Covers were laid for the [illegible]nor guests and Mr. and Mrs. George [illegible]. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Dud[illegible], Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Inglis, Miss [illegible]Margaret Daniell, Miss Helen Hoover, [illegible]n. E. J. Price, U. R. G. Wilbur, [illegible]Harry Knapp and the host and hostess Earl Reynolds is the son of George [illegible]. Reynolds, who is president of the [illegible]Continental and Commercial Bank of [illegible]Chicago, second to the largest bank in [illegible]the United States.

At a beautifully-appointed luncheon [illegible]ven by Mr. and Mrs. C. S. [illegible]Thompson, of No. 1171 North Raymond avenue, the engagement of their [illegible]daughter, Miss Margaret to Edwin Le [illegible]Gholz of this city, was announced. [illegible]Both young people are graduates of [illegible]the Pasadena High School and have a [illegible]wide circle of friends here. The house [illegible]was beautifully decorated for the oc[illegible]casion, which was attended by Mmes. [illegible]James R. Gillman, F. W. Gilman, [illegible]Frank V. Richards, Voil Curry, Robert [illegible]Davis of the Imperial Valley, Carl [illegible]Gross of Los Angeles, Robert McGregor, Howard McVitty and the Misses Violet Wood, Jennie Hindman, [illegible]Clare Hindman, Grace Hindman, Lona [illegible]Cass, Irene Markham, Ethel Rowley, [illegible]Florence Stewart, Letha James, [illegible]Blythe Roath of San Gabriel, Edna [illegible]Joyce of Redlands and Ruth White.

The Tremont Baptist Church was [illegible]beautifully decorated Tuesday evening [illegible]for the marriage of Miss Catherine [illegible]Smith, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. [illegible]Harris Smith and Lawrence Hobart of [illegible]Oakland. The bride was gowned in [illegible]ivory satin made with a long court [illegible]train. The bodice was fashioned with [illegible]rare old point lace and was beautifully [illegible]embroidered with pearls. She wore a [illegible]long veil of tulle which was caught [illegible]to her hair with a crown of pearls [illegible]and orange blossoms. Her shower bou[illegible]quet was made up with bride roses [illegible]and lilies of the valley. The brides[illegible]maids were Misses Lucile Rahn of Pasadena and Esther Love of Los Angeles. [illegible]They were green and pink charmeuse, [illegible]respectively. Kenneth Hobart, brother [illegible]of the groom, was the best man, while [illegible]the ushers were Ford Canfield, Charles [illegible]Hobart and Harley Wright of Pasadena [illegible]and Ray de Camp of Los Angeles. [illegible]Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. After a honeymoon [illegible]Mr. and Mrs. Hobart will make their [illegible]home in Oakland, where Mr. Hobart [illegible]is deputy Assessor.

[illegible]Rose Wall, the Altadena home of [illegible]Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Welles, was the [illegible]scene of a pretty bridge party Friday [illegible]evening. The rooms had been made [illegible]gay with a world of acacia blossoms [illegible]and arranged with ferns. The guests included an interesting coterie of Altadena friends. They were Dr. and Mrs. [illegible]B. Wright, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Winn, Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Melton, Messrs. and Mmes. Frank H. Long, William [illegible]Theodore Barber, A. Stephen [illegible]Carlton Brooke, George D. [illegible]Hampton Story, J. J. Mansar, [illegible]George P. Barton, Alexander Duer, [illegible]Albert Calkins, A. S. Garts, J. Robert[illegible]Dunn, Charles Mears, Mrs. Jerome [illegible]Hunt, Mrs. H. Arthur H. Woodward, [illegible]Misses Stella and Luise Noble, Thyrsa [illegible]and Amelia Barton, J. B. Story and [illegible]Noble.

[illegible]Miss Phila Miller, a charming debutante, entertained a number of friends [illegible]at dinner at the Midwick Country Club [illegible]recently. The affair was given as a [illegible]courtesy to Miss Edith Thompson, her [illegible]guest from Milwaukee, who is [illegible]now in Coronado. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. [illegible]Thompson also entertained a party of [illegible]ten at the club that night.

[illegible]Miss Kobbe, Ernest Crawford, Ben [illegible]Hale and Mr. Baer, who attained [illegible]fame as the Knights of the Rose [illegible]Quartette, will feature a programme at [illegible]the Hotel Maryland cafe chantant on [illegible]Monday evening. Badham, Miss Maye Hoffman, Miss Frances Pixley and Carl Grimes. Tables were arranged for games of auction following the dinner.

Alhambra.

SOCIETY has been happily treading its way of late midst quantities of bursting blossoms and the lilting songs of larks, and some have listened to the proverbial little bird who has whispered of a lovely blossom festival to be given when the buds are at the height of their glory by one of the best beloved matrons of society's realm. Those who know about the secret are in raptures over the promised happiness, and all the worshippers at pleasure's shrine are on the qui vive for the first word of the affair. One of the prettiest of the week's events in which blossoms played an important part in the matter of decorating was the "Chinese Party" given to the members of the Greatest Millinery Special $4.95

Of This or Any Past Season . . . .

Quality is the keynote of the Blackstone house, and quality—combined with individuality, exclusiveness and correct style—is likewise the keynote of the Blackstone Millinery.

The Fashion Show last week proved conclusively the Blackstone claim of leadership in Millinery—correct Millinery of the highest class. Now tomorrow we purpose to demonstrate to the women of Los Angeles and vicinity that we are equally well prepared to meet the demand for Popular Priced Hats by offering correct, chic, down-to-the-minute styles at prices that no Broadway establishment ever before attempted. Measured by all past standards these hats show better style, better material and workmanship than any we have seen at double the price.

In producing these hats our designers were instructed to give the same thought and effort to every detail that they give to the highest priced creations. Each model is hand made throughout, there are no duplicates, nor has any one of them ever been shown before—all fresh and new. Every new shape, trimming and shade, including Belgian blue, dreadnought gray, Newport tan, Delaware peach, Palm Beach sand and dozens of smart black and white; trimmings of the newest fancies and the pretty narrow ribbons.

Styles for the miss, the debutante, the matron and the woman of middle age.

We want every woman in town to feel that she can visit the Blackstone salon tomorrow and secure a hat that is correct to the last detail at $4.95 and up. The sale is for one day only—tomorrow.

The New Laces Are Exquisite

Whether you care to purchase or not, these new laces are worth coming to see that you may be posted on what Fashion this season has to show. All that is new and desirable is here, and in assortments to please any fancy, meet every demand.

Soft finished Filets, Chantillys, Orientals, Margots, Net Tops and French laces, Normandy Vals. and Nottinghams are shown for flounces, blouses and lingerie.

Ruffled effects and many flounces are extremely popular. Net tops are quite the thing for neck fixings, in both white and cream. Chiffons in both plain and crepe effects, white and colors are still in great demand.

SOCIETY.

P.E.O., on Tuesday at the Sexton home on South Garfield avenue. Mrs. J. B. Sexton and Miss Jeane Collins were the hostesses of the day and planned a unique treat for their guests. The house was artistically decorated with peach blossoms, Chinese lilies, and parasols, while the aroma from numerous sticks of incense filled the air. A Chinese collation served in typical Chinese style was served the guests, and gales of merriment resulted from the efforts to maintain a dignified Chinese patter during the repast. Miss Margaret Moore, Miss Leila Cockerill, and Miss Ruth Ashbrooke, attired in gorgeous embroidered kimonos, wearing sandals, added to the pleasure of the occasion by their charming assistance and the twenty guests of the event voted it one of the greatest successes of the many delightful affairs for which the organization is noted.

A distinct artistic treat was given the throng who attended the concert given by the Choral Society in the High School auditorium Tuesday evening. Prof. and Mrs. Norman Hassler were the guiding geniuses of the delightful event, and the work of the Choral Society which was assisted by the choir of the Methodist Church of Monrovia, proved the occasion to be one of more than ordinary interest to the host of music lovers whose enthusiastic applause was given at the conclusion of every number on the programme of rare excellence rendered by the artists.

One of the merriest of the celebrations of Washington's Birthday was the dance given by the fire laddies at Strifiers Hall on Monday evening. The hosts made elaborate plans to entertain their guests and the splendid music, which was followed by dancing until a late hour was thoroughly enjoyed by a large contingent of guests who thronged the attractively arranged hall during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Clapp left Alhambra Thursday for a trip which will include for Mr. Clapp an extensive trip through the Eastern States. Mrs. Clapp will be domiciled in Berkeley, where she will be at the home of her parents, and have an opportunity of visiting the Pacific-Panama Exposition.

Of extreme interest to their many friends throughout the city was the wedding on Friday evening at Oneonta Congregational Church of Miss Alice Stockham, daughter of Mrs. Cora Stockham-Skaife, to Harry V. D. Robinson, a well-known young business man of Los Angeles. The church had been beautifully decorated with a profusion of flowers and potted plants by friends of the bride. Miss Stockham was preceded by dainty Alice Stockham Bunton as flower girl and was attended by Mrs. Frank Cross of Glendale, as matron of honor. The bride was an exquisite picture in her beautiful robe of heavy white satin trimmed in real lace. Her wedding veil was caught in place by orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and maidenhair ferns. The groom was supported by Frank Cross as best man, and the impressive ceremony was read by Rev. I. Curtis Meserve. Preceding the ceremony, Hugh Collins sang "Shubert's Serenade," and Miss Johnson presided at the organ playing the "Wedding March," from "Lohengrin." A reception followed the ceremony, and the happy young couple left later for San Diego to spend their honeymoon. They will be at home to their friends after April 1. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Gates, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Percival, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lepps, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Caffrey, Mr. and Mrs. John Breslin, Mr. and Mrs. F. Getchell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Haswell, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hardacre, Mrs. Edith Kale, Mrs. Clara S. Cleveland, Miss Clara E. Miner, Miss Adah Wright, Miss Alice D. Wiley, and Charles Robinson of Los Angeles, Mrs. Lida Hood Talbot, Miss Mae Talbot, and Mrs. Helen Van Anderson Gordon of Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sharpless entertained pleasantly at dinner on Thursday evening in recognition of the birthday of their son Harvey. Attractive floral decorations gave an added charm to the occasion which was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Dallas McGregor, Mrs. M. Brodde, Edgar Medland and the guest of honor, Harvey W. Sharpless.

The Violet Club enjoyed one of the most delightful of its many pleasant sessions on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. S. Gay on South Wilson. The guests were treated to a number of charming readings by Mrs. Zella Zee Dodge, and a delectable collation was served at the close of the afternoon which was enjoyed by Mrs. A. S. Scales, Mrs. H. H. Hammond, Mrs. W. E. Cooper, Mrs. A. G. Hutchinson, Mrs. C. H. Goodson, Miss Goodson, Mrs. G. M. Vermilyea and Miss Helen Cadwalader.

Monrovia.

A MOST delightful dancing party was given by Nairn Rivers on Wednesday evening in the pavilion of the Rivers Japanese gardens, when a pleasant time was spent. After an evening of dancing the young guests sat around the large outdoor fireplace and enjoyed a hot supper. The guest list included Miss Jennie Baldwin, Miss Alice Wishard, Miss Betty Dixon, Miss Anna Castillo, Miss Lucile Lipke, Miss Elizabeth Strict, Miss Myra Alt, Miss Mildred Thomas, Miss Hilda Carter, Miss Maybelle Wessling, Miss Rebecca Thomas, Miss Marion Alt, Miss Dorothy Stone, Miss Dorothy Brown, Miss Irene Barnes of Azusa, Harold Hansen, Arden Knox, Ben Badgley, George Kirkenschlager, Harry Brooks, Oswald Gierlich, Kenneth Colburn, Arthur Combs, Arthur Evans, Glenn Moore, W. H. McCune, Bartle Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Thomas, Al Popkin of Los Angeles and Dr. Brightling of Azusa.

Dr. and Mrs. L. N. Wheeler entertained Tuesday evening with a dinner party at their home on South Myrtle avenue in compliment to Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Rowe, who are soon to leave Monrovia. Violets and ferns were the table decorations, and covers were laid for the host and hostess, the guests of honor, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Barks and Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Krutzsch.

Miss Florence Kelly entertained the members of the S.H.R. Club on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. William Boyes of South Magnolia avenue. The time was spent with needlework and cards, and at the close of the evening delicious refreshments were served. The guests that enjoyed the evening were Miss Ethel Hendricksen, Miss Bessie Thayer, Miss Alice Loops, Miss Rita Shobe, Miss Nettie Miller and Mrs. William Hilts.

Dr. and Mrs. L. N. Wheeler entertained the members of the Green Lantern Club on Thursday evening at their home on South Myrtle avenue. The living-rooms were prettily decorated with yellow acacia blossoms and after an evening of Five Hundred, dainty refreshments were served. Those present were Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth V. Price, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Renaker, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nye, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hazen, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Barks, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crandall, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Kirke Lawrence, Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Pomeroy and Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Day.

Mrs. Frank J. Cornes is spending several days with friends at Hermosa Beach.

One of the delightful entertainments of the week was given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Deknatel at their pretty new home on May avenue on Sunday evening. The rooms were artistically decorated with violets, ferns and pink carnations, and after an evening of music a dainty collation was served. The guest list included Mrs. Montie Gwynne, Mrs. James Chenowith, Mr. and Mrs. B. Beinicke, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Miller, Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Pomeroy, Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Price, Mrs. Wurzburger of New York, Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Munro, Mr. and Mrs. C. Taylor Renaker and Master Albert Seymour.

The Misses Mildred and Rebecca Thomas entertained with an informal supper and dancing party at their home on East Greystone avenue on Monday evening. The living-rooms were prettily decorated with acacia blossoms and supper was served at a long table, where covers were laid for the hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, Miss Anita Rives, Miss Gwendolyn Spaulding, Miss Dorothy Trench, Miss Dorothy Brown, Miss Waunita Rives, Miss Eva Harvey, Miss Opal Rives, Kenneth and Bartle Harvey, Al Popkin, John Reynolds, A. Arthur, Albert Spaulding, Norman Smith, Jim Hanners, Nairn Rivers, Arthur Combs. The young people enjoyed an evening of music and dancing.

The wedding of Miss Gladys Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Thomas, to Mr. Horace Ransom Young was solemnized Monday evening at the Baptist Church in the presence of 150 relatives and friends. Rev. George Lord officiated and Mrs. A. W. Hazen and Miss Aileen Northup furnished delightful music during the ceremony. The bride was given away by her father. She was charmingly gowned in white satin, trimmed in real lace, and wore a veil fastened with lily of the valley. She carried a great bouquet of bride's roses. Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held, after which Mr. and Mrs. Young left for San Diego, where they will spend their honeymoon.

San Gabriel.

SO MANY delightful affairs have been the order of the past week that the belles and beaux have been troubled in distinguishing the pleasantries of recent date from the joyous festivities that follow in the wake of the holidays. One of the most charming affairs of recent date was the luncheon and bridge party given by Mrs. Alexander Thornton of the San Gabriel Country Club yesterday in honor of Mrs. Norman Dodge of New York. Thirty-two guests were happily entertained and had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Dodge, who will be extensively entertained during her visit here. Mrs. Thornton was assisted by Mrs. John A. Bell, and by her sister, Mrs. Richard Stott, in dispensing the cordial hospitality that prevailed during the happy afternoon.

On Friday Mrs. Thornton was hostess at an elaborate luncheon at her home, which was attractively decorated in a lavish arrangement of white and yellow blossoms. Enjoying Mrs. Thornton's hospitality were Mrs. Gervaise Purcell, Mrs. Ross Hickox, Mrs. F. D. Wood, Mrs. William Orr, Mrs. Silas Burns, Mrs. J. P. Lawton, Mrs. Richard Stott, Mrs. C. H. Martin and daughter, Miss Josephine Martin, of New York, Mrs. C. T. Martin, Mrs. Carroll White, Mrs. Gilfillan, Mrs. Norman Dodge. Mrs. Richard Stott, who is a sister of Mrs. Thornton, assisted in the pleasant offices of the hostess.

The colonial tea, given by the San Gabriel Woman's Club was one of the most brilliant social successes of the year. Given in honor of Washington's Birthday, Johnson's Hall, where the delightful fete took place, was profusely and elaborately decorated with flags and greens, among which reposed pictures of George Washington and his mother. A programme of rare excellence held the enthralled attention of the guests. Miss Theodora Moorehead of Alhambra gave a number of charming solos, and a number of instrumental numbers followed. One of the most charming features of the occasion preceding the serving of attractive refreshments was the minuet which was skillfully and artistically given by Miss Lula Roe, Miss Bernice Rafferty, Miss Feliciana Cobos, Miss Miriam Roe and Earl Rafferty, Donald Wingate, John Atwell and William Crego, all of whom were attired in colonial costume. Mrs. Thomas McKee, Mrs. Witbeck, Mrs. W. H. Wright and Mrs. O. J. Chandler were stunning in their exquisite costumes and powdered hair, and the prize for the occasion was awarded Mrs. McKee. The committee whose untiring efforts helped to make such an unqualified success of the event was composed of Miss Frances Hannon, Mrs. H. J. Muller and Mrs. James Murray, assisted by Mrs. H. F. Purinton.

The home of Mrs. Earl Wakeman was the scene of a charming afternoon tea given in honor of Mrs. Sirrell Perrine of Culver City, who is a week-end guest at the Wakeman home. A delightful impromptu programme was rendered for the guests, who enjoyed the gracious hospitality of the hostess. Miss Shenk and Mrs. Perrine gave a number of charming vocal solos, and Miss Florence Oettiker played a number of instrumental selections to the delight of the guests, who were later served with delicious refreshments by Mrs. Wakeman, assisted by her little daughter, Miss Dorothea. The guests included Mrs. Chester McGee, Mrs. Frederick Richardson, Mrs. Calvin Stockberger, Miss Florence Oettiker, Miss Shenk and Miss Hester Lawman.

Glendora.

THE members of the Glendora Foothill Club entertained Friday evening their wives and friends with a progressive whist party at their clubhouse on Meda avenue. The first prize—a handsome hand-painted sugar bowl and cream pitcher—was captured by Mrs. W. Vander Sluis. Mrs. A. M. Barnhardt drew the second prize. Prizes were also won by R. S. Taylor and W. Vander Sluis. The consolation prizes were awarded to L. W. Spaulding and Mrs. Hopkins. Refreshments were served.

The elegant home of Mrs. E. F. Brubaker was the scene Wednesday of one of the most enjoyable social affairs of the season. It was in honor of Miss Dove Sauble, a popular missionary, who is soon to leave for Lordsburg to complete her course of studies, after two years of service with the Brethren Church in Glendora. Miss Sauble had no hint of anything unusual until she pressed a button, when the flood of light revealed the guests who crowded the parlors. The time was merrily spent in outdoor games, interspersed with musical numbers, contributed by the guests present. The parlors and living-room were elaborately decorated. Refreshments of cake, cocoa and coffee were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Campbell had for house guests over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McGreggor, recent arrivals from Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Azusa.

PROFUSELY decorated with quantities of asparagus plumosus and acacia blooms, the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Bell was on a gala appearance Tuesday evening when their daughter, Miss Ione, was married to Chester Alfred Bell. The prominence and popularity of the young couple made the event one of absorbing interest to the young social contingent of the city, and received the congratulations of a host of friends and well-wishers. The ceremony was performed beneath an arch of gold and green at 6 o'clock by Rev. E. F. Gates. The bride, attired in a beautiful gown of embroidered net, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. During the ceremony, during which the "Norwegian Bridal Procession" was softly played by Mrs. E. F. Gates, an elaborate wedding collation was served. Later the bride, drove away in a handsome going away suit and hat to match, and the grooms left for San Diego, where their honeymoon will be spent. They will be at home after March 20 at No. 619 Alameda avenue.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Meier was the scene of a delightful party Monday evening, when the ladies of the Afternoon Bridge Club entertained their husbands as guests. The hostesses of the occasion were Mrs. Meier, Mrs. R. R. Carter and Mrs. C. C. Hillis. An artistic arrangement of greens was used in decorating the living-room and valentine favors delighted the guests. A merry evening was spent with cards as the motif of the entertainment, and following the games, which were played at five tables, a delicious collation was served by the hostesses of the occasion, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the gay throng.

Covina.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made this week of the marriage of Fred Q. Hepner and Miss Marian Millard, both well known throughout the Covina Valley. The bride has been a resident here for several years. Both are popular among the young people of the Brethren Church.

About thirty-five of the young people of the First Baptist Church were entertained last Saturday evening at the ranch of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Zimmer, where an evening of games and informal entertainment was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. James Carey Evans arrived this week to stay for the winter with Mr. Evans's brother, Ellicott Evans.

C. O. Ross has left for a long visit to relatives in his home State of Iowa.

Mrs. T. M. Edgett entertained recently with a daintily-served luncheon in honor of her niece, Miss Ruth Early of Conrad, Iowa. Sunday evening Mrs. A. T. Sigstad entertained in honor of Miss Edith Early, her sister.

Mrs. Carrie Oberlin and two daughters, Bessie and Gertrude, of Butler, Ind., have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Coolman.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Preston of New York City are visiting their daughter, Mrs. W. H. Townsend of Naranga del Oro Rancho.

Miss Eunice Outland of West Center street is visiting her brothers in Modesto and Ceres.

Mrs. C. B. King entertained last Friday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Bradford of Omaha.

—o—

Glendale.

MRS. F. A. FIELD of No. 239 South Kenwood street, assisted by her daughter, Miss Bessie L. Field, entertained a party of relatives and friends Saturday at 1 o'clock luncheon. The national colors furnished the decoration scheme. Red and white carnations and ferns added a charm. A pleasant afternoon of conversation and reminiscences passed all too soon. Mrs. James Whitcomb Brougher and her daughter, Mrs. Walter M. Saint of Los Angeles, Mrs. Samuel P. Morse and Miss Harry W. Morse were among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver O. Clark of South Louise street, with Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Clark of Bakersfield and Mr. and Frank England of La Ramada, made the trip to San Diego, motoring down for the week-end and returning by way of San Bernardino. Mrs. England remained in San Diego.

The Cinderella Sewing Club enjoyed a pleasant afternoon Saturday at the home of Mrs. V. E. Skiles of West Third street. The rooms were decorated in red, white and blue, and the same colors were used in the table decorations, favors, place cards and every detail. A picture of George Washington's home was very effective, with tiny pine trees placed around it. The afternoon was, as usual, devoted to needlework and conversation. Club members present were Mmes. Acher, Everly, Frazee, Jackson, Kinser, Howell and Allison and Miss Jackson.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell entertained the girls of her Sabbath school class at her home, "Ard Eevin," on Kenneth road, Saturday afternoon. Twenty-two were present to enjoy the games, music and dainty refreshments. Red hearts and flowers were used to decorate the rooms and tables and one of the games was played with heart-shaped cards. A business session of the class was held during part of the delightful afternoon and the following officers were elected: President, Miss Ruth Fairfield; secretary, Miss May Sprinkle; Social Committee, Misses Alice McCoy, Mildred Lyons, Frances Payne and May Lyons; Visiting Committee, Misses Winifred Taylor, Ada Kenyon, Lynn McNutt and Jeannette McClellan. It proved a most pleasant afternoon.

Thursday afternoon Miss Louise Ferris of No. 1468 Salem street was the honored guest at a delightful birthday anniversary party given her by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ferris. The occasion was in honor of Miss Ferris having attained the romantic age of 16. Among the guests were Misses Cecilia Lyon, Kathleen Dodge, Harriet Barnes, Hazel Flower, Joyce Dominy, Helen Svenson and Christina Ferris; Messrs. Robert DeWar, William Reese, Bruce Daugherty, Milton Brown, Walter Beach, Sloan Freeman, Mansford Barnes and Fred Dodge.

The Thursday Evening Five Hundred Club celebrated with a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Robert White, Jr., First and Orange streets, Saturday evening, in honor of the visit of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Payne, who came down from their Antelope Valley ranch for a few days, and it was indeed a jolly reunion. After the dinner auction Five Hundred was enjoyed, Mrs. C. G. Farrow winning the first prize. The following guests joined in the welcome: Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Lepplemann, Mr. and Mrs. C. B.

—The Fashion Show displays have demonstrated Hamburger's supremacy to all who have visited our great Wearing Apparel Salon.

17 Styles—Women's Tailored Suits at $19.75

—This is an example of the diversity of styles. At a popular price, as low as $19.75, for instance, half-a-dozen styles are considered the average—but here are seventeen. You have also the advantage of choosing from either plain or semi-fancy models, all of which are of high-grade materials in new and staple weaves, and in the latest shades. Styles and sizes for both women and misses—the best suits we've ever offered at $19.75.

21 Styles Suits, $25.00

—Styles of the moment, among them the beautiful Tipperary suit for street and out-o'-door jaunts.

—Materials are serge, fine tweeds, checks and faille silk. These are shown in all new shades and styles, and in sizes for women and misses.

8 Styles Suits, $16.50

—For general wear we could suggest none better than these at such a moderate price. The styles are plain or fancy—all new; materials are dependable serges, checks and mixtures.

12 Styles Suits, $35.00

—Including the famous Trotteur suits, the smartest models of the season.

—Other styles are many; Norfolk effects and semi-dress models—all of which are of silk or wool materials of the better kind.

7 Styles Suits, $29.50

—Tailored and semi-fancy models that are just a bit different from others. They are of large shepherd checks, tweeds, serges and heather mixtures—very smart, indeed.

8 Styles Suits, $39.50

—Beautifully made and reflecting fashion's latest whim—they're very moderately priced at $39.50.

—There is about them the air of artistic designing, and the materials are quite the best brought out this season. Styles are many and the shades are new; all sizes.

SOCIETY.

Guthrie, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howe, Mr. and Mrs. A. Cross, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Henry and Dr. and Mrs. T. G. Lane.

One of the pretty birthday parties of the past week was given by Mrs. B. F. Cook of West Fifth street in honor of the 12th anniversary of her daughter, Miss Harriet Cook. Everything in the dining-room was in pink. Juvenile games and dainty refreshments were enjoyed. Those who were included with Miss Harriet were the Misses Gladys Peckham, Dorris Packer, Gladys McMullin, Genevieve Mulligan, Grace and Fanny Tatlow, Avis Thompson, Margaret Lacom, Garnet Peters, Anna May Flower and Fern Paters.

Mrs. V. Price Brown of No. 167 South Louise street entertained with a party Monday in honor of the birthday anniversary of her son, Earl X. Brown. Twelve of his High School friends were the guests and were seated with the young host at a table that was tastefully decorated with cherries and hatchets. A large red and white birthday cake, with tiny flags instead of the customary candles, occupied the place of honor.

The girls of the Round Table met at the home of Miss Katherine Hobbs on Central avenue Tuesday evening. Miss Irene Moffitt entertained with readings in the Irish dialect. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: Miss Katherine Hobbs, president; Miss Olive Moffitt, vice-president and chairman of the Social Committee; Miss Blanche Shea, secretary and treasurer; Miss Jean McNutt, press correspondent. Miss Esther Jones, retiring president, was presented a beautiful bouquet of violets in appreciation of her services. During the serving of dainty refreshments plans for the future of the club were discussed.

Burbank.

REV. H. L. DAVENPORT, pastor of the Christian Church, and family, are now located in the Kern house on Tujunga avenue, removing here from Santa Ana.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Doan motored to San Bernardino and Riverside last Sunday and Monday, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Carpenter of Los Angeles, who have been visiting at the Doan home this week.

Mrs. J. H. Kendall's birthday falls on February 22, and she was very pleasantly surprised when a number of her friends came laden with a sumptuous repast to help her celebrate the occasion. A birthday cake occupied the center of the table and the decorations were appropriate to Washington's birthday. She was presented with a fine electric iron. Those of the party were Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Dufur, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Grisco and J. R. Hoist.

Miss Melicent Virden of Tropico, but formerly of Burbank, was piano soloist for the Lebegott orchestra at Clune's Auditorium, Los Angeles, last Sunday, and a number of Burbank people went in to hear her play. Caesar Franck's "Variations Symphoniques" for piano and orchestra was beautifully rendered by Miss Virden and her interpretation was highly appreciated by the large audience.

Mrs. M. P. Groshing entertained with a charmingly appointed noon luncheon Saturday, at her home on Olive avenue.

Miss Frances Logan, who is teaching school at Newberry Park, was calling on Burbank friends this week. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Robert Logan of Lauer, Manitoba, who is wintering in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Scribner motored to San Bernardino Sunday, returning Monday.

The joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and Ladies' Auxiliary last Monday evening was a very pleasant affair. The men prepared a programme appropriate to Washington's birthday of songs, readings and pantomime, which was carried out effectively.

L. L. Mulvey made a flying trip to San Diego by auto Tuesday, returning Wednesday.

Laurel Canyon.

MRS. CHARLES S. MANN entertained as house guest during the week Mrs. Howard Squires and little daughter of Los Angeles.

Sam Steel Porter, manager of the Hotel San Diego, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Porter, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. E. W. Kidder gave a daintily appointed luncheon Thursday to about a dozen ladies from Long Beach, all attending the Laurel Canyon Woman's Club in the afternoon. Those seated with the hostess were Mmes. Jean G. Drake, George L. Craig, Samuel Dunhoim, Charles Wiley, Timothy A. Stevens, Laura B. Hannah, Herbert W. Coombs, Jotham Bixby, Jr., and John Satterly.

The Laurel Canyon Woman's Club enjoyed a most delightful programme Thursday at the home of Mrs. Helen M. Boehner, when Mrs. H. S. Trotter of Van Nuys spoke on "Country Life." Mrs. Trotter heartily indorses the establishment of "teacherages" as outlined by Mrs. Pennybacker, the general federation president. The music of the afternoon was an unusual treat in that Mrs. Jotham Bixby, Jr., and Mrs. John Satterly of Long Beach rendered several choice selections on the 'cello and violin. Mrs. Nye White Goodman accompanied them at the piano. Mrs. Neal Woods of Crescent Heights gave a delightful reading, interpreting a Russian court scene, and for an encore she gave Dunbar's "When Malindy Sings." Tea and wafers were served by Mrs. F. M. Rubiee, Jr., and Mrs. E. W. Kidder, who were joint hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Platt and Miss Dorothy spent the week in San Francisco. Miss Virginia, who is attending the University of California, joined them there.

Miss Sara Vale Small was house guest of Miss Evelyn Hutchinson of Los Angeles last Thursday, attending her dinner-dance that evening.

San Fernando.

IN HONOR of Miss Caroline Harding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harding, whose marriage to William T. Burr will be solemnized in the early spring, Mrs. Robert Love Fraisher entertained with a tea and linen shower Tuesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Fraisher also entertained in the evening in honor of the birthday anniversaries of Miss Margaret Herskovits and Miss Evelyn Dayman. Most of the guests of the afternoon remained for the evening function. Those doing so were Misses Wilda Carpenter, Ada Ballou, Evelyn Dayman, Callie Darnell, Bertha Bowling, Louisa Foster, Ines Harding, Margaret Herskovits, Nellie Harter, Ella Millen, Marguerite Nicholas, Faith Roberts, Louise Specht, Mildred Sprague, Hilda Weldon, Lucile Zander, Caroline Harding, Mmes. SOCIETY.

established for the ladies and the gentlemen. The members of the gentler sex carried off the honors, receiving hatchets. The gallant losers were consoled with sticks of candy. Others than those mentioned above who enjoyed the unique evening were Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Ackley, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Eigholz, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. DeRemer, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rial, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Holborow, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harding, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jenifer, Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Mackey, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Webster, Mrs. Caystile, Miss Ellen Egbert, Messrs. J. K. Hooper, J. S. Gibson, H. J. Hanna, H. H. Harding, S. G. Waite, Jack Egbert, E. T. Ingham, E. P. Rose, C. C. Troxel, John J. Wilson, Ernest Bemis, J. L. Duvall and W. T. Burr.

The surprise of Mrs. Henry C. Hubbard was unbounded when numerous friends dropped in to congratulate her on her birthday anniversary, Saturday evening. Her daughter, Mrs. Jack Egbert, had arranged the pleasant surprise. Music and cards were the pleasure of the evening. Barton S. Grant sang several baritone solos, which were much enjoyed. The birthday cake typified a large log with Washington's hatchet buried deep in the side. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rial, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Eigholz, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Fraisher, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Wilson, Mrs. Holmes Maclay, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harding, Mr. and Mrs. W. Carre, Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Mackey, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Judy, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Ingham, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Holborow, Miss Jane Parker, Mrs. J. L. Egbert, Miss Ellen Egbert, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Egbert, Mrs. Alfa White, Mrs. Anna Burr, Miss Marye Maclay, Miss Caroline Harding, Messrs. Nathan Adams, Barton Grant, Will T. Burr, J. K. Gibson, H. C. Hubbard, Miss Lillie Hawk and Charles Hawk of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Elkins entertained last evening with a delightful dinner. The dining-room was artistically decorated in pink and green. Pink-shaded candles shed a soft radiance over the scene. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Wooten, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hill, Miss Ruth Knapp, Fred W. Bommard of Los Angeles; Miss Anna Saunders, Miss Letta Westall, Miss Bertha King, Miss Pearl Browns, Messrs. Ernest Bemis, J. L. Duvall, William Scott and Ora Booth.

Watts.

SIMPLICITY was the keynote of the charming arrangements at the luncheon given Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Wangaman, Beaver street. The guest of honor was Mrs. M. Hymer of Hollywood. The table was fragrant with mignonette and covers were laid for six. After the delectable repast the afternoon was pleasantly spent in informal pursuits by the recipients of Mrs. Wangaman's hospitality, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Peters, Mrs. J. L. DuBois and Mrs. M. Hymer.

Mrs. W. F. Wilms was the delightful recipient of a hard-time party, arranged in honor of her birthday anniversary by W. F. Wilms and the Daughters of Veterans, at their home, No. 211 East Albert street. A number of their most intimate friends assembled and literally took the place by storm, which was all a surprise to the hostess. Characteristic of the occasion, each guest was clothed in his or her oldest and most dilapidated clothes. Prizes were awarded to the two who succeeded in making themselves the most ridiculous. Every one conceded the prize to Mrs. William Bryan, which consisted of a beautiful hand-painted plate. Mr. Congkey won an ebony brush, comb and shaving mug. Mrs. Wilms was the happy recipient of several handsome pieces of china from her friends and an amethyst ring (her birthday stone,) a gift from her husband. The refreshments were served on an improvised table of rough boards supported by saw horses. They consisted of wieners, hardtack, dill pickles and black coffee. At the conclusion of this elegant repast the evening was spent in music, dancing and informal pleasures that suggested themselves to the fancy of the guests. One of the treats was the violin and mandolin solos by their daughter, Miss Fern Wilms. The guests at the happy celebration were: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith, Mr. and Mrs. William Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Vorhees, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Burniss, Mr. and Mrs. Saul Adams, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Love, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Congkey, Mr. and Mrs. Vergil Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. L. Rahmey, Mrs. Luther Watkins, Mrs. May Bowers, Mrs. Laura Crouch, Mrs. Lillian Randall, A. Fields, M. Brooks and Mr. and Mrs. T. Copner and daughter, Mabel, of Redondo Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Wetzel, No. 719 Grape street, announce the wedding of their daughter, Miss Olga Vivian, to William J. Hickey of Los Angeles, Friday evening, February 26, at 8:30 p.m., at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Cassius Blair, No. 4112 Normandie avenue, Los Angeles. Miss Wetzel is an attractive and accomplished young lady, with a host of friends in this city and in Los Angeles. Mr. Hickey is employed in the Tax Collector's office, Hall of Records building. They will be at home to their many friends after April 1, at No. 536 Ezra street, Los Angeles.

About 10 o'clock Saturday evening, a "sight-seeing" automobile, filled with fourteen friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Swoiski, and well-filled baskets of good things to eat drove up to their residence, No. 748 Rosella avenue. The preparations for retiring were abandoned by the host and hostess, who entered upon their unexpected duties with a vim. Everything to make a Dutch lunch complete was served from the baskets and the hours flew in a jollification long to be remembered. Music, both piano and mandolin, and dancing, occupied the happy time until the wee sma' hours.

Santa Ana.

FIVE hundred people joined in the pleasant jollities of a colonial supper and entertainment recently given by the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church, the first feature of which was a chicken pie feast given in the immense dining-room of the church. A line of charming colonial dames with powdered hair and gowns of a century ago style greeted the guests, and other matrons and maids in similar fetching attire waited deftly on the tables that were gay with flags and cherry trees and hatchets significant of Washington's birthday. A curio-room was the next place of interest. Among the relics were a woven coverlet of the date of 1492; a tattered flag that had floated from a battleship engaged in the Civil War, and a "second day" bodice worn by a bride of a hundred years ago. Curios from China and Korea included Chinese gods, Korean candlesticks 125 years old and sacred Korean tables contributed by Mrs. W. W. Anderson, Mrs. A. R. Rowley and Mrs. F. A. Donaldson. Mmes. Anderson, W. A. Zimmerman, W. E. Ward and Elizabeth Davis presided over the interesting exhibit. An entertainment of "pieces" and music presided over by Mrs. E. L. Morrison included recitations by little Cynthia Shepherd, a medley of patriotic airs played on a "fiddle" by Miss Rosamond Norman; "Old Black Joe" sung by a male quartette including Prof. Harry Garstang, John Hawley, Hugh Osborne, and John Sauers, and two charming little ditties sung by four pretty children, Ruth and Frances Vierra, and Masters Harold Vierra and Wallace Ludwig. Mr. and Mrs. John Hawley and Mr. and Mrs. John Sauers, a quartette of recently married people, sang "Cousin Jedadiah" and a parody on "Long, Long Ago," written by Mrs. A. R. Rowley. A ladies band gave a stirring selection on combs, Mrs. W. H. Thomas, wife of a popular Superior Judge of Orange county, acting as drum major, with Mrs. Ella Parker as conductor. The programme was introduced in a witty speech by the pastor, Dr. J. A. Stevenson.

One of the very jolliest events of the social season of the new year was an automobile ride and musical evening enjoyed on Friday evening at the El Modena country home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy K. Lusk, by the members of the First Baptist choir, the Music Committee and a sufficient number of wives and husbands and friends to swell the guest list to thirty-five. Start was made from Santa Ana shortly afetr 5 o'clock and the swift automobiles conveyed the party to the foothill home of the popular organist in time for a cafeteria supper of which Irish stew, hot rolls, and perfectly brewed coffee were features most acceptable to appetites sharpened by a ride in the bracing air. The substantial repast was topped off with delicious ice cream decorated with tiny American flags; delectable cake, jellies, nuts and confections. Later a programme of music was enjoyed and new members were initiated with novel and amusing ceremonies that made no end of fun for the spectators. Those participating in the merry evening besides the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Havens, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. David Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Reeves, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Van Cleave, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wiley Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Brakeman, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Kellogg, Mr. and Mrs. Lou P. Hickox, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Benjamin, Misses Blanche and Lula Minter, Mame Y. Havens, Roxie Lee, Jennie Cobb, Hester Billingsley, Mabel Havens.

Misses Clara and Mae Walton were hostesses at a delightful luncheon during the early part of the week given at the West Pine street home of the Waltons for a party of out-of-town friends. The table was daintily appointed and places were marked for thirteen. The afternoon following was spent in diverting amusements and kodak pictures taken of the company will serve as reminders of the pleasant occasion. Those who were guests of the Misses Walton were Misses Bessie Hobson, May Wallace, Marie House, Lola Bullock; Messrs. Lorne McCay, Ralph Chase, Vernon Boyce, W. M. Greene, Orlie Badders, Charlie Bullock and Earl Pittman.

Owensmouth.

THE admission of the Owensmouth Woman's Club to the State federation was celebrated by a luncheon on Saturday, February 20, at the home of Mrs. L. C. Kimball, Jr. The decorations were suggestive of Washington's Birthday, with large clusters of red and white carnations as centerpieces. The place favors were tiny American shields, and each baked potato was decorated with a miniature American flag. At the conclusion of the menu brief addresses on topics relating to club work were made by Mrs. D. M. Cate of Long Beach, vice-president of the district federation, whose subject was "Federation and the Community Spirit;" Mrs. Charles Wiley, also of Long Beach, who spoke on "Unity in Club Work;" Mrs. H. J. Whitley, member of several Los Angeles clubs, who gave the ladies some helpful suggestions on "Co-operation." Mrs. L. C. Kimball, Jr., president of the Owensmouth club, spoke briefly of the organization of the local branch three months ago with a small membership, which has now increased to twenty-five. She referred to the fact that the club applied for admission to the State federation before it had attained the required age of three months, which has not occurred with any similar organization in the history of the State work. Those seated at the luncheon were Mmes. D. M. Cate, Charles Wiley, H. J. Whitley, L. C. Kimball, Jr., L. P. Mitchell, E. L. Hemstreet, John Haas, E. Morris, W. B. Hyden, George West, E. G. Harbold, T. A. Hull, Fred Balster, G. F. Kelly, Joseph Gerard, G. W. Burch, Frank Goodall, Jackson Tweedy, Annie Bridges and Agnes Ralph.

Pomona.

MISS ELLA M. TAMBLING, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tambling of Saratoga, Cal., and James C. Bichowsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmo C. Bichowsky, of West Holt avenue, were married at the residence of the groom's parents, on Saturday evening, Rev. William Jones of the First Unitarian Church, officiating. It was a pretty home wedding and the decorations were a profusion of pink and white carnations and ferns, the young couple exchanging vows under a wedding bell of white enchantress carnations. The bride is a charming young woman and the groom is popular among the younger business men. The young couple will reside with the groom's parents, upon returning from their honeymoon trip to San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Thurman entertained the members of the "M" Five Hundred Club at the last meeting, at their home on West Second street.

Whittier.

MRS. J. W. DODRILL announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Rebecca Dodrill, to Richard Dahlitz at an attractively-appointed dinner, given at the Dodrill home on South Greenleaf avenue, Wednesday evening. Tiny kewpies on the table pointing to a large nutshell suggested the interesting secret, and on opening the shell the secret was announced by a beautiful ring and the names of the young people. Guests at the announcement were Mrs. Dale Knox, Mrs. Floyd Spalding, Mrs. G. Woods and the Misses Ruth Crandall, Anna Dodrill, Gladys Seale, Vera Morrison, Ruth Hoag, Cecil Hughes, May Crow and Frances Crandall.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist Church 30 members of the church made merry at a celebration of Washington's Birthday Monday evening. Living picture tableaux of well-known characters, historic or characteristic, afforded much amusement. The programme was under the direction of Mrs. B. F. Bryan.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Colfort of Washington, Ind., are among the late arrivals from the East, and will spend some weeks as the guests of friends here and in Los Angeles.

The nineteenth anniversary of the founding of the local Order of Eastern Star, Lyra Chapter, was celebrated with a brilliant social event Friday, in the Masonic Temple. Guests were invited to come in costume, and much merriment and jollity resulted from the grotesque results. A delicious chicken dinner was served in the banquet hall and was followed by an impromptu programme, with dancing and other social diversions.

Eagle Rock.

THE Chara Bioa girls entertained with a Martha Washington tea on Monday evening at the home of Miss Mildred Mason on Ridge avenue. The house, artistically decorated with a profusion of cherry blossoms and greenery, enhanced the beauty of the colonial maidens and their powdered curls and patches. The same was carried out in the refreshments, and in favors which fell to the young gentlemen were colonial caps and for the young ladies, powder puffs. The Stewarts of Hollywood furnished the music.

On Saturday evening a small gathering of the younger set were entertained at a birthday dinner party at the home of Mrs. L. Schutes on Ridgeway avenue, in honor of Miss Dorothy Beath's birthday. The table was prettily decorated with little flags in white and blue flowers. Place marked places for Miss Dorothy Beath, Miss Mildred Mason, Mrs. L. Gee, F. Peterson, F. Truman, Wilbur F. Borchgrevrink.

Belle Vernon.

MISS EMILY BACHTIGER of Banning avenue and Mozart Shackelford of Clarkdale, Ariz., were married in Los Angeles Wednesday and left on Friday for their future home at Clarkdale, where the groom is employed on the Santa Fe road. Compton.

MRS. JOHN HOLMAN gave a luncheon party at her home on Friday, with Mrs. A. Mayo. Miss Isabel Taylor, Mrs. Minnie Mosse and Miss Nelle Bennett of Compton, and Mrs. Hauck of Long Beach. The day was very pleasantly spent with needlework, and a grand dinner was served at the noon hour.

Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Mercer entertained recently Rev. N. N. Bormoe and wife, L. J. Grout and wife, M. Lee and wife, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dennis. The evening was spent with games, visiting and light refreshments.

The juniors of the Compton High School gave a masquerade at the High School Friday night, and a good time was enjoyed by about 60 jolly persons. The evening was devoted to games and, of course, refreshments were not left out. Prizes were awarded to the best sustained characters and Kelsey Turner as a clown, and Verne Snodgrass as a woman were awarded the prizes. The evening was filled full of fun.

Mrs. D. M. Hathorn and Mrs. H. Anderson entertained at the home of Mrs. Hathorn, Friday afternoon, honor of Mrs. N. N. Bormoe, wife of Rev. Mr. Bormoe, of the Congregational Church. The entire program for the afternoon was carried out in the Washington ideas. Mrs. Reed Hathorn and Mrs. Harold Hight in colonial costumes received at the door and Mrs. D. M. Hathorn and Mrs. H. Anderson assisted Mrs. Bormoe in the receiving line in the form of "Uncle Sam" costume. Mrs. Alyce Hight took part in the entertainment, costumed as Martha Washington. The entertaining-rooms were prettily decorated with smilax, cherry blossoms and little red hatchets. A literary programme was rendered, the guests as numbers, Mrs. Roy Hathorn, vocal selection; Mrs. Harrington, vocal selection; Mrs. D. M. Hathorn, piano. Refreshments of jello, whipped cream and cherries were served with ladyfingers and mints in little chocolate baskets filled with Catalina pebbles were given with each plate. About forty guests were present at the reception.

Garden Grove.

THE members of the Garden Grove Epworth League of the Methodist Church were at home Friday evening with a pleasant evening event at the parsonage, where more than twenty guests were entertained in a most successful way. Fun of wholesome kind was enjoyed from the beginning to the merry evening till its closing. An initial feature of the event was the finding of hidden articles, this forming the opening putting everyone in a lively and precluding all formality. The affair was in the nature of a get-together social, giving opportunity for getting acquainted and entertaining features. The spacious rooms of the parsonage were gaily and tastefully decorated with red hearts, emblematic of the day, and streamers of red and white crepe paper draped artistically about the colonial theme, centered with a large, red heart. "Violets," a pretty song, was whistled by Miss Kora Kirk of Sunset avenue, which brought "In Roseland" as an encore. Mrs. W. F. Barnum

Santa Monica.

MRS. DAVID A. HAMBURGER entertained charmingly with a 5 o'clock bridge luncheon at her beautiful Ocean avenue Palisades home Thursday afternoon. Myriads of violets in four large cut-glass baskets were surrounded by smaller baskets, Mrs. H. Baillie, sister of Mrs. Hamburger, assisted in receiving. Those who enjoyed the delightful affair were Mmes. A. Nebeker, Frank Powell, Carl Gerhardt, Jennie Marx, A. McCann, J. Jenkins, Otto Sweet, Harry Fryman and H. C. Baillie.

Monday afternoon the Woman's Club was tranformed into a hall of the period when Washington lived. The session was in celebration of his natal day and the decorations were in keeping with that day. The afternoon programme, while brief, centered about the colonial theme. "Violets," sung by Mrs. Stephan Taylor of Nebraska, who is wintering here, was the guest of a jolly surprise party Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilkinson of Marine street. A great cake, with candles, was a feature. Many handsome gifts were presented the visitor, who shared honors with the host's brother, William Wilkinson, who is spending the winter here in preference to Florida. Complimenting the sixty-ninth birthday anniversary of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Pedley, Mrs. N. Northrop entertained at the Nadine apartments on Washington's Birthday. Carnations and green ferns were used to decorate the lobby, where a delightful musical programme was given. Mrs. D. Williamson sang, Miss Eve-lyn Lang, giving a piano solo and Mrs. C. Hoyt and Miss Helen Northrop, a piano duet. Mrs. Emma Northrop poured, assisted by Mrs. Wilkinson, and Mrs. Hoyt. Others present were Mmes. Roy Tufts, H. H. Young, Jennie Lang, Charles Bingle, Harold, Brown, Jane Lynn, Cowan, E. J. Hildreth, C. E. Hoyt, M. Bokes, Kiser, N. Scheckles, R. E. Summerland, J. T. Donnelan and Miss Greer.

OF MUCH interest this week among several social functions was a Yama-Yama dancing party given Saturday night at Whichelo Hall by Jack Richmond and Enis Wilson of Manhattan Beach. The patronesses for the affair were Mmes. Ransom, Stern, Wilson, Steward and Anderson. Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Cameron of Santa Ana, Miss Ruth Taylor of Los Angeles and Andrew Germet of Gardena. Other guests included the Misses Collise Slater, Mary Ransom, Irene Slater, Ruth Chrisman, Dorothy Connelly, Ruth Anderson, Irene Steward and Cecile Wilson, Messrs. Max Venable, Newall Steward, Ben McCourt, Stanley Blocher, Shirley Stock, Charles Aikins, Jack Richmond and Enis Wilson. Mr. and Mrs. Slater were also present.

A delightful postscript to the Yama-Yama party was given by Miss Ruth Chrisman Monday night in honor of Miss Ruth Anderson, her house guest for the week-end. Five o'clock luncheon followed a pleasant social afternoon. Several Yama-Yama guests, including the Misses Cameron, Anderson, Wilson, Steward and Ransom, were the guests at this attractive affair.

Members of the Tricoteuse Club were entertained Saturday night at an interesting and attractive Washington's Birthday affair given by Miss Emily Bone. The function was novel in many ways. Colonial dames attending with powdered hair and men in revolutionary costumes. Members of a Los Angeles glee club, who were guests, furnished several guitar and mandolin selections. A Washington's Birthday supper was served at a table centered with a cherry tree, while hatchets comprised the place cards and George Washington hats with candy in them were the favors. A plum-colored Colonial costume, worn by Benjamin T. Bone, is a family heirloom of revolutionary times.

The Five Hundred Club was entertained this week by Mrs. Harry Brolaski. The rooms were tastily decorated with pink carnations, and the afternoon was delightfully spent. Luncheon was served promptly at 1 o'clock, after which Five Hundred was played. Mrs. Frank Durlin won first prize, Mrs. Louis Cholvin second, Mrs. Brooks Moffet consolation and Mrs. Charles McGehee guest prize. Those present included Mrs. Jack Funk, Mrs. Louis Cholvin, Mrs. Frank Durlin, Mrs. Marshal Craig, Mrs. Brooks Moffet, Mrs. Charles McGehee, Mrs. Jack Erickson, Mrs. Walter McKnight, Mrs. Byron Minor, Mrs. E. J. Butt, Mrs. Richard Wolfsberg and Mrs. Harry Brolaski.

Members of the Civic Outlook Club met for a social gathering Thursday at the home of the president, Mrs. W. A. Galentine on Juanita street. Refreshments were served and a pleasant social afternoon was spent with needlework. The annual election of officers was held, Mrs. Galentine being elected president for the fourth time. Mrs. George M. Craig was elected vice-president, Mrs. W. L. Adkins secretary and Mrs. Gabrial Johnston treasurer. The vote was taken on a new form of what is known as "progressive" ballot.

Hermosa Beach.

GREATER interest is taken during the lenten season in social functions in which music is the prime factor. Presaging an increase in musical and social events is a private concert given Saturday night by Miss Isabel Morse, an accomplished violinist. Twenty-five guests were included at the musicale, which was given at Miss Morse's home, at Fourteenth street and Hermosa avenue. The guests included several Los Angeles lovers of music and about an equal number from Hermosa Beach. G. S. Thatcher, cashier of the First Bank and an able pianist, accompanied Miss Morse. Among the notable selections offered were a Greek sonata in F Major, three seventeenth century selections by Kleistler, "Meditation" from "Thais," and a romance by Dvorak. The closing number, Shubert's "The Bee," was a fitting conclusion to a musical treat.

A week-end house party was given this week by Miss Margaret Mathews and Miss Villa Burke to ten guests from Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ellington chaperoned the party, that included Miss Ruth Cass, Mr. Elliott, Arthur Babrick, Walter Burke, Jack Eisel and five others.

C. H. Potter, brother-in-law of Mrs. Dart, is the house guest at the Dart home this week, having come from Spokane, Wash. He expects to visit the beach again in summer in company with Mrs. Potter and two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Olson and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Olson, visited Mr. and Mrs. E. Bloomfield of Los Angeles Sunday.

Mrs. E. P. Dowdee, daughter of W. L. Ryan, has moved to South Pasadena, where she and Mr. Dowdee will make their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Rigdon had as their guest Monday Miss Birdie de Long of Talbert. Mrs. Rigdon and Miss De Long were schoolmates in Marion, Ind.

There will be a meeting of the W.C.T.U. Wednesday afternoon in the Baptist Church, at which time officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

Miss Ednah Rich, principal of the State Normal School of Manual Arts and Home Economics, talked on "Vocational Education and Home Guidance," under the auspices of the Woman's Club in the Methodist Church Wednesday evening. Miss Rich handled her subject in an entertaining and instructive manner. Mrs. Spencer L. Blaoget presided and introduced the speaker, and the following programme was rendered: Piano solo, Melva Rosenberger; reading, Miss Frances Howard; vocal solo, Miss Richie; piano solo, Mrs. Percy J. Jonas.

The regular meeting of the D. A. Club will be held next Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Leonard Obarr.

Mrs. Katie Stern and her son, Conrad Stern, of Mounds, Ill., arrived in Huntington Beach Wednesday evening and are the guests of Mrs. A. E. Murphy, Mrs. R. C. Parker and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Bundschuh.

MISS ELIZABETH EVANS, daughter of Rev. A. Grant Evans, and Harold Smeal, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Smeal of Park drive, formerly of Glasgow, Scotland, were the principals in a brilliant church wedding Monday afternoon at 2:30. In the presence of a large group of friends of the popular couple, in the Second Presbyterian Church, the father of the bride spoke the marriage lines.

The bridegroom is a member of the choir of the church, and the friendship between the pastor's daughter and the chorister has extended over a year's time. The aisles were arched with palm branches and blooms of many sorts made pretty the pulpit and choir rail. Mrs. R. H. Shippey and Mrs. Robert Leebrick, soloist and accompanist, rendered pleasing and appropriate selections. The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Rev. Edward A. Evans. They were preceded by Miss Hilda Smeal, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Martha G. Evans, sister of the bride. The groom was accompanied by his brother, John C. Smeal. The Mendelssohn "Wedding March" was played by Mrs. Cheney.

The Stars and Stripes were draped with the British Union Jack in a corner of the Sunday-school room, where the couple afterward held a reception. An immense wedding cake had a place on the tables where refreshments were served.

The annual luncheon of the Bellevue Club, held at the home of Mrs. Harriet Peary, was a brilliant affair. Trumpet creepers and white blossoms were used effectively in the decorations. In the receiving line were the officers recently elected, Mrs. Edward Smithman, Mrs. William Barker and Mrs. L. L. Charles. The luncheon was served cafeteria style. The color motif in the decorations was yellow and white. The programme of the afternoon was given at the home of Mrs. Capron on Obispo avenue. Mrs. Smithman read a paper on the history and objects of the club, and various other papers and discussions were enjoyed.

A prettily-appointed luncheon was given by Mrs. Thomas A. Fisher and Mrs. Dora A. Cornell of the Hotel Kennebec, the collation being served in their spacious apartments. The centerpiece of each table was a low bowl of acacia surrounded by violets. Booklet place cards were afterward used as score cards in the games which followed. Mrs. Guy Lapham captured first trophy at bridge, Mrs. E. Jacobs winning the consolation prize.

Miss Alvena McCoy, who is to be married Monday, was honored on Wednesday at a pretty party given by Mrs. J. R. Buchanan and Mrs. F. S. Pearson, the affair being at the home of the former on Loma avenue. The decorations were in red, hearts and Cupids predominating. Souvenirs were made for Miss McCoy during the afternoon.

Miss Mary Frances White of East Second street entertained twelve girl friends Saturday night with a pretty Valentine party. Each one of the guests brought a comic hand-made representation of some other member. Five Hundred was enjoyed, Miss Arlo Stephens winning the first trophy and Miss Ruth Miller the consolation prize.

A bride-elect of the week, Miss Maud Maloney, was honored at a prenuptial affair given by Mrs. Ralph Cole. The members of the bridal party were included in the honor list. The color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the elaborate decorations. Another delightful affair given for this bride was the shower given by Miss Isabel Noble of Pacific avenue and Miss Muriel James of Covina.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hamble of Gaviota avenue celebrated their wooden wedding anniversary Tuesday night, entertaining a group of friends at cards. The rooms were adorned with a profusion of violets and greenery. Wooden plates were used in th serving of a collation.

THE jolly J.O.C. girls were hostesses recently to the young men of the Baracas, entertaining their guests at the home of Miss Fern Roberts on West Chapman street. Decorations were suitable to the Valentine season, and novel features marked the evening. A surprise to the young men was the entrance of each girl alone into the reception-room, where she posed in a huge frame as a living picture. The boys were asked to guess what character each girl represented in the brief instant of posing. The costumes worn by the charming young women were varied and interesting, including those of an Indian maid, a Red Riding Hood, the Goddess of Liberty, girls of various nationalities, as well as other clever characterizations. A fortune tree, an auto romance and other merry conceits kept the company amused during every minute of the lively evening. Partners for the delicious supper served late in the evening were secured by the matching of the pieces of broken hearts. Those in the company included Misses Hazel Thompson, Juanita Ausburn, Flora Lehman, Sophia Nobs, Ruth Hull, Binda Davis, Margaret Palmer, Lottie Carriker, Ervina Bohn, Hilda Kirchoff, Elizabeth Reiling, Ruby Welch, Wilda Claypool, Buelah Peters, Pansy Prince, Fondo Roberts, Fern Roberts, Eva Fern, Mmes. V. W. Roberts, Maud Lighthall, Rosa Cassidy, Myrtle Davis, Lillian Smith, Zyipha Williams, A. Jones, Messrs. W. M. Davis, Harry Spotts, Claud Morey, H. E. Baker, L. Lighthall, L. L. Williams, D. Roberts, Arthur Davis, John Hull, J. Leighton Bascom, Albert Jones, Joe Martin, G. C. Bohn, G. J. Bombon, Arthur Spurling, Ed Stanley, C. B. Smith, R. S. Ausburn, Adolph Kirchoff, H. C. Williams, John C. Cassidy, Ernest B. Davis, Ralph Welch, Bernard Nuffer, Eugene Park, R. C. Patton and Fred McMurphy.

The lately organized Woman's Club of this city met recently at the Colonial Theater and completed its organization. The first vice-president, Mrs. Collings, presided with dignity and success, the charm of her manner being apparent in the position of chairman. The officiary of the club was completed by the choice of Mrs. W. E. Harper as treasurer, Mrs. C. E. Leach as curator and a directorate as follows: Miss Susie L. Scarrett, Mrs. J. E. Parker, Mrs. William Bathgate and Mrs. R. G. Blythe. Other steps were taken to enhance the development of the interests of the club, the meeting being an enthusiastic one. The ladies, however, were greatly disappointed in the failure of Mrs. Haines W. Reed, the brilliant young editor of the Club Woman, the organ of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs, to be present for an address which she was scheduled to give on "Federation." Mrs. Reed was detained at her home in Los Angeles by illness. It was decided to lease the Colonial Theater as a permanent meeting place for the club, and classes will be formed as fast as registrations will warrant. The club now numbers 150 members, comprising the leading women of the city, and will enter on a prosperous and useful career. Many experienced club women are on the roster, and the organization will not have to serve an apprenticeship before getting fairly into working trim, but will play a leading part in the affairs of the city almost at once.

VIOLETS and smilax lent a dainty touch to the pretty table around which a merry company of friends was seated for the informal little dinner party with which Mrs. Homer Fox entertained Sunday evening in compliment to the birthday anniversary her husband was celebrating. The favors were wee nosegays of violets and violet-hued baskets of bonbons. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. U. W. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Will Cunnison, Mr. and Mrs. John Redmond and son, John, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. George Prince of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. James Ortego of Fullerton, the host and hostess, and Master "Buster." Following the dinner the guests motored over to San Bernardino to attend the Orange Show.

Karl Ebert was host to a group of his friends in the younger set Saturday evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ebert, the young people indulging in dancing as a pastime, ere departure enjoying a light spread. In the circle of merry-makers were the Misses Flavia Hughes of Los Angeles, Evelyn and Helen Harper, Irma and Alta Rowsey, Pearl Muschewske, Elinor Woods, Thelma Isbell, Gladys York, Elizabeth Ebert, Chester Hartley, Roy Klinker, Erwin Berndt, Charlis Hartley, Lucien Newcomer, Joe Champion, Frank Shumate, Eddie Harper, Frank Rowsey, Owen Garner, Claude Davis, Lester Wurther of Los Angeles.

Supervisor and Mrs. R. L. Riley, F. H. Owen and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Andrews, returned during the week from taking in the opening of the San Francisco exposition.

Miss Nan Shofer of Los Angeles spent the holiday recess with Miss Barbara Winkleman.

Mrs. Sarah Campbell, after a visit here since November, with the family of her son, Walter Campbell, left Monday for her home in Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Willets entertained as week-end guests Mr. and Mrs. Gowan of Mackinaw City, Mich., and the latter's nieces, the Misses Otie and Katherine Callam, who have wintered in Los Angeles.

Mrs. A. D. Marriott and baby daughter left Thursday for San Francisco to join Mr. Mariott for the exposition year. Miss Marion Lantz, her sister, accompanied her north for a visit of indefinite length.

Mrs. H. K. Spring has returned to Long Beach after a visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Martha Hoit Hebberd.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred King Ausfahl, who have been in Colton since their marriage last December, are to leave Sunday for Washington, where Mr. Ausfahl will resume his work with the State Highway Commission.

Comfortable Lace-Front Corsets

Redfern Corsets

Corsets this season should be long skirted, close-fitting over the hips; shaped at the waist to eliminate the disastrous shapelessness of the past two years; three to five inches above waist; sufficiently full to provide for the diaphragm which has developed in the past few seasons of the topless corsets.

Redfern
Lace-Front Models

have long, cleverly designed skirts, inset with super-fine elastic gores, to hold the flesh but not to bind.

They are admirably shaped to mold the proper waist line, and the flexible boning, scientifically placed, gives a comfortable support that you will welcome.

The bust heights are strictly fashionable, with ample fullness for the diaphragm, and there is added comfort in the soft-top clasps and extra boning.

Our corsetieres will be pleased to fit you carefully to just the individual style your figure needs.

Both back and front laced Redferns priced $3 to $25.

Antoinette Brassieres are designed for those who care for a garment without elaborate ornamentation but who do appreciate style and fit with refined trimming.

We sell the Antoinette. Priced $1 to $7.50.

ing read by Rev. W. S. McDougal of the Presbyterian Church at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beckman. To the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" the bride and groom took places under a canopy of green before a background of calla lilies, roses and smilax. Miss Minnie Childs played the march and little Miss June Diebold, a cousin of the bride, was flower girl. The bridal gown was of crepe de chine. Orange blossoms were worn in the hair and white carnations composed the bridal bouquet. A luncheon was served at the home of Mrs. H. Romer, an aunt of the bride, and later the newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip to the San Francisco exposition, the bride being costumed in a tailored Copenhagen blue traveling suit. On return they will live in Tustin, where Mr. Beckman is connected with the Romer Mercantile Company. One of the prettiest of the pre-nuptial affairs given for the bride was a luncheon recently given at the Pig 'n Whistle in Los Angeles, with Mrs. E. J. Kieffer as hostess. The bride is a member of the Cincinnati Club, an organization whose members reside in Pasadena, Los Angeles, Alhambra and Tustin, and she was the guest of honor recently at a shower given by the club at the Alhambra home of Mrs. Diebenkorn. Lovely gifts were showered on her, not only by the club members, but by Tustin friends. The wedding guests included Mrs. H. J. Louis of Hollywood, Mrs. E. J. Kieffer, Mrs. M. E. Diebold and little daughter of Los Angeles, Mrs. C. E. Utt, Miss Minnie C. Childs, Miss Gertrude Utt and Mrs. H. Romer.

A delightful surprise party for the celebration of the birthday of Mrs. William Sharp proved one of the most pleasant social affairs of the week, a small group of friends taking possession of her home on Thursday evening. The merry crowd was warmly welcomed, and the mistress of the house heartily co-operated with the self-invited guests in making the evening a joyous one. Those who find amusement in cards indulged in several lively games, while animated conversation and interesting pastimes of various kinds entertained the remainder of the party. The visitors provided a plentiful supply of delicious eatables at the close of the evening, the merriment of the hours preceding the supper being continued over the dainty viands. Among those surprising Mrs. Sharp so pleasantly and completely were Mr. and Mrs. Adam Rhiel, Miss Mabel Rhiel, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Stanley, Mrs. J. T. Morehead, Miss Mary Belle Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kiser, Mr. and Mrs. L. Kiser, Mrs. Virginia Brookbank, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brookbank and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Taylor.

A goodly attendance of the members of the N. G. Club was held recently at the pretty home of Mrs. E. J. Heiser on Fairhaven avenue. The rooms where the company of ladies was entertained were beautified with fragrant and delicate violets, and the afternoon hours sped all too rapidly in the pleasant setting. The ladies busied themselves with dainty pieces of fancy work as they animatedly conversed over the events of the day, and as the afternoon waned the hostess served a prettily-appointed collation, a feature of which was toasted dates. Good-byes were reluctantly said, Mrs. Heiser having proved a most entertaining hostess. Her club guests included Mrs. F. A. Holbrook, Mrs. Arthur Day, Mrs. Charles Beaton, Mrs. Archie Robinson, Mrs. E. V. Stearns, Mrs. Roland Stearns, Mrs. John Rohrs, Mrs. Wiseman, Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Lee.

The artistic home of Miss Minnie C. Childs, the successful and well-known painter of water colors and china who has deserted the East for residence in California, was exquisitely decked with roses and splendid poinsettias on Thursday afternoon, when Miss Childs was hostess to the ladies comprising the Tustin Ebell literary section. In spite of the threatening weather a goodly attendance of the members marked the meeting, and the presence of Mrs. E. M. Nealley, curator of the Santa Ana Valley Ebell Society, was highly pleasing to the Tustin section, as was that of Mrs. Hubert Hubbard of Los Angeles and Mrs. C. E. Hardy of Cincinnati, O. Roll call was particularly enjoyed, as each member responded with some interesting current event. The regular line of study was dispensed with for the afternoon and "Daddy Long-Legs" was read instead, the lighter vein of literature being a welcome change. The social features of the afternoon were concluded with the serving of a daintily-spread repast, in which the appointments were of yellow, suggestive of the sunshine that is so glorious a part of California.

Puente.

AT THE home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Clabaugh in Buena Vista Heights last Thursday evening, before intimate friends and relatives, the marriage of Robert S. Clabaugh and Miss Lura B. Hoag, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hoag of Happy Valley, was solemnized. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. Shumway. Mr. Clabaugh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Clabaugh. The couple has taken housekeeping apartments in Puente.

A miscellaneous shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Clabaugh was held Wednesday evening in the new class building in the rear of the church, with a large number of class members present with invited friends. The Baraca class, under the leadership of Albert Lenton, and the Philathea class, whose teacher is Mrs. Albert Lenton, were responsible for the evening of entertainment.

THE "Merry Wives" Embroidery Club members were the guests of Mrs. H. Walter Slugg and Mrs. F. H. Manker at the home of the latter on Monday, Washington's Birthday, at an all-day meeting. A 12 o'clock luncheon was served by the hostesses, when the decorations were in red, white and blue streamers, carried from the centerpiece, which was an immense birthday cake, to the corners of the table. Four candles showed how many years this club had been organized. A grab-box from which each one received a birthday present was a feature of the afternoon. Those who were present were Mrs. W. L. Brown, Mrs. G. A. Brest, Mrs. W. C. Cline, Mrs. Paul Cushing, Mrs. D. D. Crew, Mrs. W. B. Duncan, Mrs. C. K. Francisco, Mrs. A. H. Johnson, Mrs. P. O. Long, Mrs. E. B. Reynolds, Mrs W. C. Reynolds, Mrs. C. M. Sikes and Mrs. Frederick Wing.

The wedding of Miss Elsie Vernetta Duley and Neal Gaylord Neil Hess was solemnized at the Methodist church on Saturday night, the 27th. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion by the friends of the couple. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. S. Sampson. After the ceremony the wedding party, accompanied by the relatives, met at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Duley, where a collation was served. The young couple are well-known residents of Upland and will reside here.

Ontario.

COMPLIMENTING her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Serio, who leaves today for her home in San Jose after spending the winter in this city, Mrs. C. Goodwin Frankish entertained with a charmingly appointed 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday afternoon at her home, No. 603 South Euclid avenue. An orange motif was very prettily carried out, place cards being water-color sketches of the golden fruit. A low mound of acacia blossoms made an effective centerpiece. The luncheon was served in five courses and covers were arranged for Mrs. Serio, Mrs. William H. Lindley, Mrs. Charles Henderson Ripple, Mrs. Patrick Farrell, Dr. Elizabeth J. Kline, Mrs. Mary O'Brien, Mrs. John Norman Huehn, Mrs. Edmund Hatcher Granger, Mrs. Emil Frederick Stroh, Mrs. Charles Frankish, Miss Katherine Horner and Miss Ora Stroh.

Members of the Kensington Club Thursday evening combined in a delightful fashion the celebration of the club's fifth anniversary with a housewarming at the attractive new home of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Tonneson on Eleventh street. The history of the club was given in a charming fashion by Mrs. Elwin A. Magill, while Miss Ethel Bowyer of Galesburg, Ill., who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hamilton, delighted the guests with a number of clever readings. Violets and smilax were used effectively in decoration. Towards the evening a choice and most tempting collation was served. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. F. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Phipps, Mrs. Etta Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Black, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Chilson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Elwin A. Magill, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fulton and Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Tonneson.

It was "Exposition Day" Tuesday at the Current Events Club, when the programme was in charge of Mrs. Otis Middaugh. Four interesting papers were listened to. Miss Margaret Campbell spoke on "The Growth of the Expositions," Mrs. Wolfe on Arthur Freemire on "Buildings and Architecture," Mrs. Lewis Hugo Mead on "The Painted Desert at the San Diego Exposition," and Mrs. Wilson A. Rankin on "The Hoped-for Rain on California." Two delightful whistling solos by Miss Florence Kilpatrick, accompanied on the piano by Miss Evelyn Stone, were thoroughly enjoyed.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at 7 o'clock Friday evening when Miss Zoe McKendrick became the bride of Arthur Louis Hamman, the Rev. Winthrop Allison, pastor of the Lemster Presbyterian church, officiating. The wedding took place at the home, 203 East C street, where Mr. and Mrs. Hamman will make their home, and was witnessed by a few intimate friends only.

In honor of the anniversary of the birth of their son, Kirk Miller, who is here from Washington State to visit them for a short time, Mr. and Mrs. David Millns entertained with a dinner party Sunday evening at their home, No. 303 East D street. Mr. Millns is connected with the United States Signal Service in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Shively entertained with a delightful dinner party Tuesday evening, in compliment to the pastor and elders of the Presbyterian Church and their wives. Violets and jonquils, with hatchet place cards, ornamented the table.

Chaperoned by Mrs. H. N. Snyder and Miss Thompson, a merry party of young people spent Saturday in a hiking party, with Orcutt's Canyon as their destination. The "weinie" roast at the end of the trip was accompanied by many other good things to eat, and a delightful day was spent.

A beavy of fair maidens and young men attended the ball given by the Native Daughters Monday evening, when the new dances, and some old ones, were enjoyed to the accompaniment of excellent music.

Mrs. J. A. Clark entertained a few friends at dinner, the guest of honor being Mrs. J. J. Jerrard.

The books and conversation section of the Ebell Club had for its subject, "Germany and the Germans" at its meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. W. Andrews. The most important of recent works on the subject, including those by Bernhardi, Collier, Munsterberg and Usher, were discussed.

Mrs. W. W. Pope entertained Saturday evening, for her husband, thirteen of his men friends, cards being the amusement provided. An elaborate and enjoyable supper was served late in the evening.

Mrs. Mary Lindamore was the week's hostess of the I.B.C. Embroidery Club, and several novel entertainment features served to pass a delightful afternoon.

Solors by Mrs. L. B. Bowker, readings by Mrs. J. A. Clark and duets by Mrs. H. N. Snyder and Mrs. Warren King formed an enjoyable musical programme after the lodge meeting of the Eastern Star Tuesday evening. The programme was followed by dancing until supper was served.

Rialto.

AN EVENING of whist was the pleasure planned by Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Lash when they entertained twenty-eight guests Monday. The national colors decked the rooms and a pretty combination of red and green hatchets and cherries emphasized the national holiday in all the appointments. Favors were won by Homer Lash and George Wood. A delectable two-course supper was enjoyed at the conclusion of the games.

The hospitable home was the scene of another delightful event of the week when Mrs. Lash, assisted by Mmes. C. N. Johnson and Harry Brimmer entertained a large number of ladies at the library tea given under the auspices of the Woman's Club. Embroidery and other dainty bits of sewing occupied the afternoon hours and the function proved a decided social and financial success for the happy organization.

The members of the "Royal Workers," recently organized Bible class of the Methodist Sunday-school, enjoyed a delicious chicken pie dinner when the opening meeting of the organization was held Thursday evening. Following the repast and witty toasts, with the class president, Thomas McKeown, toastmaster, a jolly informal social hour closed the evening. A charming arrangement of violets and ferns added fragrance and modest beauty to the occasion, which is the beginning of many pleasant affairs with which the class will hereafter be identified.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reddinger have returned from their wedding trip and are domiciled in their pretty home on San Bernardino avenue. Tuesday evening the members of the Epworth League motored to their home and gave them a serenade. The guests were invited to inspect the pretty wedding gifts and enjoy the hospitality of the happy couple. A repast of delicious dainties was a gratifying conclusion to the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, Jr., of Racine, Wis., Mrs. S. L. Soden and the hostess' sister, Mrs. Elliott of Los Angeles, were the complimented guests at an elaborately appointed dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Utz Saturday evening at their pretty ranch home. The ability of the host and hostess as entertainers has been demonstrated many times and this delightful event proved no exception. Places were marked for fifteen and bridge was indulged in after the dinner. Miss Helen Driscoll of Los Angeles was another out-of-town guest.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Van Frank of Danville, Ill., are the guests of Rialto relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Bates had as recent guests Mrs. W. Compton and son, Glenn, of Green, Iowa.

Miss Amanda Tinkler has as her house guest for the season, Miss Edna Reynolds of Gypsum, Kan.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Milligan are entertaining Miss Hazel Penny of Riverside and Miss Hazel Hoover of Lima, O.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wright were host and hostess to a jolly week-end house party, the guest list including their son, Herbert Wright, and Mrs. Wright of San Francisco, and Mr. and Mrs. Hozmann and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Latimer of Cleveland, O.

Fashions in Blouses for Spring:

Linen—Creamy Laces—Georgette Crepe:

Blouses, fresh, crispy linen blouses—white grounds striped rather broadly in color—are to be very good for spring wear. There are many attractive models in sand colored laces—and high necked models of Georgette Crepe are adaptable for both afternoon and "Tailleur" wear.—

—lace models—at $30 to $45:
—linen models—at $3.75 to $5.75
—crepe models—at $3.75 to $30

Afternoon Frocks:

Charming models—new—of black taffeta combined with point d'esprit, net and chiffon or entirely of taffeta. The bodice is, usually, just a transparency of net or chiffon. These models are especially "good" for their adaptability to afternoon or evening wear.

Coats for Girls:

Coats of Golfine, broken plaids, Chinchilla in invisible plaid. Models of a new cut that is essentially girlish. Checks and broken plaid fabrics are very good—one of the most interesting models is of orange and black check—cut with a decided flare:—$13.50 to $35.

Children's Wash Frocks:

Models for Spring—at $1.25 to $7.50

Wash frocks for children—in 6 year to 14 year sizes—fresh, crispy, new ginghams, clean looking chambrays, practical crepes, madras, pique, linen and drilled muslin. Both long and empire waist-lines. Interesting adaptions of suspender effects and of the new plan of buttoning the skirt to the waist all the way 'round.

—Newness in Fabrics for Spring.

SOCIETY.

stunts were enjoyed by the jolly party, who for once discarded their solemn dignity. Decorations appropriate to the season were used in the rooms, and the color scheme of red, white and blue was also carried out in the refreshments.

Mrs. J. W. Potter has been spending several days at Riverside.

A party from the Inn, composed of Misses Elizabeth Wood, Edith Culter, Grace Thomas, Mary Bartruff and Mr. W. S. Smith, motored over to Bonita High School Monday evening and witnessed the production of the little Japanese musical comedy, "Princess Ju-Ju."

Miss Isabel Holden and Mrs. Roscoe Green spent several days last week at San Diego, taking in the fair.

Mrs. Milo Twogood and Mrs. Fred Twogood of Riverside visited Miss Twogood at the Inn several days this week.

Miss Ruth Richmond spent the last week-end with San Bernardino friends.

Miss Della Goff was the guest of Miss Alta McCrea of Ontario the first part of the week.

Miss Anna K. Peterson, Miss Waite, Miss Helen Rohrer, Mrs. Laura Bordwell, Mr. Peterson and E. N. Goff composed a party which spent Monday in San Bernardino at the Orange Show.

Misses Leila and Martha Ackerman were the guests of Miss Pauline Johrus at Laguna several days last week.

Mrs. H. S. Harper, Miss H. M. Harper and Mrs. Mary Daggett of Detroit are spending a week in Claremont.

Mrs. W. O. Carrier of Waukesha, Wis., was the guest of Mrs. Mary Lyman Tuesday and Wednesday.

A theater party made up of Misses Twogood, Mears, Esther Johnston, Margaret Johnston, Hermione Smith, Clara Nielson and Helen Powell attended the Majestic Monday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Kingman returned Wednesday from Palm Springs, where they spent several weeks.

Duarte.

MRS. E. S. HULME of Buena Vista avenue entertained Tuesday afternoon with a pleasant company in compliment to the members of the Fortnightly Bridge Club. The special guests of honor were Mrs. William Hanna and Mrs. F. E. Shafer of Monrovia, who with the twelve ladies who are members of the club were received in rooms gay with spring blossoms. After the game of bridge had been enjoyed, supper was served and the guests enjoyed a social hour on the porches and in the garden.

In compliment to their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Baird of Cheyenne, Wyo., Mr. and Mrs. William Baird gave a delightful dinner Thursday evening at their country home, Mount Olivet. The hospitable table about which the guests assembled was decorated with violets and pink roses and greenery. The list of guests invited to meet the honorees were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick N. Hawes of Monrovia, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Gaddes of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Perkins of Boston and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brewster of Denver.

Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. Allan Munro of Duarte avenue gave one of the delightful parties of the week, when they entertained a score of friends at a Five Hundred party. Quantities of feathery yellow acacia in long graceful sprays was used in the living-rooms to form an effective decoration and tables were arranged for a progressive game of Five Hundred. A collation was served at the conclusion of the game. Among the guests were Messrs. and Mmes. Walter Kane Shaw, Robert Behn, Joseph Flower, Andrew Ryder, Sidney Schilling, Harrison Arms, C. H. Sarwine, Charles Anderson, E. B. Rivers, C. T. Renker, H. R. Miller, William Beardslee and M. H. Graham.

Mrs. Edgar A. Moore opened her home Thursday afternoon to the ladies of the Methodist Church for a February reception. Mrs. Moore was assisted by her daughters in receiving and entertaining about forty guests. The rooms were prettily decorated with choice flowers and greenery and music was a feature of the afternoon's entertainment.

Wednesday evening Nairn Rivers was the host at a dancing party given at the home of his parents, Los Rios Rancho. Mrs. Rivers assisted her son in receiving his guests and the jolly company spent most of the evening in the dancing pavilion. The Japanese garden and other pretty spots in the beautiful glade formed delightful places for visiting, and after the dancing had been enjoyed, a big bon fire was lighted and about the glowing embers a hot repast was enjoyed. The present were Misses Rebecca Thomas, Hilda Carter, Dorothy Brown, Marion Alt, Dorothy Stone, Maybelle Wessling, Myra Alt, Elizabeth Strick, Anna Lewis Castello, Lucille Lipke, Betty Dixon, Alice Wishard, Jennie Baldwin and Irene Barnes, and Messrs. Mrs. Clinton DeWitt attended a luncheon given by Mrs. Charles Woodbury at Pasadena Thursday, given in honor of Wisconsin friends of the Huntington family.

Tuesday afternoon a very pleasant social time was enjoyed by the Entre Nous Club at the home of Mrs. W. F. Shields. The rooms were charmingly decorated with roses and violets, and were suggestive of springtime. Special guests were Mrs. W. C. Duoghty, Mrs. H. E. Belcher of Lordsburg, Mrs. Monroe of Charter Oak, Mrs. Pierce of Davenport, Iowa, who is a guest of Mrs. J. F. Calkins; Cooper, Miller, M. W. Bennett and Miss Allen of San Dimas.

Names of Generals.

[London Chronicle:] The "French" name has come up strangely during the war, which is being thrust into Frankreich, as the Germans call it. Field Marshal French is on the British side. But yesterday came news of a General Francois, who is a German commanding in East Prussia. And then Gen. von Frank—same name if you please—has just resigned from his management of an Austrian army. Did you notice also that the leader of our dash to Antwerp was named Paris? If coincidence be anything, we should put our money on France!

Russia's Melting Pot.

[London Chronicle:] Tiflis, which the Czar has been visiting, and terming "a pearl of the Russian crown," was described by James Bryce some forty years since as "a human melting pot, a city of contrasts and mixtures, into which elements have been poured from half Europe and Asia, and in which they as yet show no signs of combining." The description holds good today, for there are said to be seventy languages spoken in the streets of the ancient city by representatives of as many nationalities.

BITS OF VERSE.

As a Man Thinks.

As a man thinketh, deep within his heart,
So, we are told, is he;
In his mind's mirror, of himself apart,
He shall his own soul see.

The fairest lily, blooming in a pool
Beneath the bluest sky,
By hot, soiled hands snatched from the waters cool,
Will droop, and fade, and die.

The purest pearl of rare and precious thought,
Dropped, in the course of time,
Into an evil mind—through fate wrought—
Is lost in mud and slime.
—[Beatrice Barry, in New York Times.

Flower of Youth.

Lest heaven be for the gentle hoary;
God, who made boys for his delight,
Goes in earth's hour of grief and glory
And calls the boys in time of night;
When they come trooping from the war
Our skies have made a new and wondrous star.

Heaven's thronged with gay and careless faces
New waked from dreams of beautiful things.
They walk by green and shining places,
And by crystal water springs.
Forget the nightmare field of slaughter,
And the fierce thirst and the sharper pain.

Forget! God smiles to see them there;
For His own Son was once as they.
They never shall be old and gray,
But of their youth will have full joy;
And in the playing fields of heaven
Shall run and leap, new-washed and shriven.

Now heaven's by golden boys peopled,
'Scaped from the winter and the storm.
Stainless and simple as he only
God keeps the boy's heart free from harm.
The old wise saints look down and smile,
They are so young and without guile.

Oh, if the soulless mothers weep,
The widowed girls, could look and see,
The country that hath them in keeping
Who went to the great war and died.
They would rise and put their mourning off,
Praise God and say, "He has enough."
—[Katharine Tynan, in the London Spectator.

OUR EARLY PRESIDENTS.

Not One of the First Ten Was Practically Anything of the Kind Beyond the Mississippi.

[Roland Ringwalt in The Lyceum Church:] Perhaps Prescott was over-rated, still, how few could claim to a small fraction of his geographical knowledge! How little the early statesmen or even the soldiers of the Mexican war days knew of this republic! Look at the first Presidents, and what would their combined knowledge of the lands beyond the Mississippi amount to in comparison with Fremont's? Its admirers looked on him as a sort of Columbus in the saddle.

Washington was a Virginia surveyor and planter, who had some experience of New England, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. John Adams' diary shows that he made a journey from Boston to Philadelphia as one of the events of his life. Jefferson's years of scientific study bore fruit in a book with the modest title of Notes on the State of Virginia. Madison was a Virginia planter who had studied at Princeton. Monroe had reminiscences of Paris, but was not an explorer. John Quincy Adams, though he knew a great deal about Europe, was not a man of the plains and mountains. Andrew Jackson, Tennessee was an Indian fighter who had marched along the Gulf and defended the Mississippi. Martin Van Buren, a New Yorker, who had been over to Europe but had not at that time been West. After his Presidential defeat he went so far out West as to Detroit and his Democratic friends thought the trip incomplete without a visit to the cabin of a Whig lawyer named Abraham Lincoln. Harrison of Tippecanoe and Tyler of Virginia make up the list.

PATROLLING THE NORTH SEA.

British Fleet Endeavors to Keep Watch of Four Hundred Miles of the Ocean.

[Pall Mall Gazette:] The number of German cruisers on the northern coast of England should be sufficient to those who think of the North Sea as a rather big lake some hundreds of real magnitude. It is not even confine its northern limits, but its moderate estimate of its area puts it at 140,000 square miles. A recent careful calculation by a German statistician gives it 548,000 square kilometers, which is equivalent to 2,311,528 square miles. To maintain a ceaseless watch and ward over the British fleet now extends to the Baltic and altogether not less than 400,000 square miles of water have to be patrolled by the scouts of the British fleet. Big as the fleet is, it is not big enough to prevent a surprise attack at some point of the 700 miles of coast line on our eastern seaboard.

To insure every square mile of the North Sea itself, from the Thames estuary to the mouth of the Thames, being kept under observation, at least, our scouting vessels would be required to work under the most favorable atmospheric conditions barely 300 square miles can be swept from the crow's nest of a cruiser; and the German fleet can select its own time and place for making heroic bombardments of our east coast towns. And in the Pacific and Indian Oceans, where for a brief period the German cruisers were at large, the sea area for their operations was over 90,000,000 square miles!

No Voice for Singing.

[Indianapolis News:] Vivian, aged 3, and Marion, age 2, were doing the street car tango. Accompanied by their mammas, they were on their way to town. They were standing in the car seats, and, of course, had added motion to their tuneful endeavors in the swaying of the car. Then they turned to a song and encore turn.

Suddenly the car stopped. The singing continued, and, of course, the attention of the passengers was attracted. was directed to the children. The concert, in fact, was at its height. Vivian stopped singing, but Marion continued.

Vivian frowned, but Marion refused to stop.

"Marion," she finally said, sternly, "you must not sing. You haven't a good voice for singing."

And the concert came to an end with the laughing of the audience.

to those who think of the North as a rather big lake some hundreds real magnitude. It is not even fine its northern limits, but its moderate estimate of its area puts it at 140,000 square miles. A recent careful calculation by a German statistician gives it 548,000 square kilometers, which is equivalent to 2,311,528 square miles. To maintain a ceaseless watch and ward over the British fleet now extends to the Baltic and altogether not less than 400,000 square miles of water have to be patrolled by the scouts of the British fleet. Big as the fleet is, it is not big enough to prevent a surprise attack at some point of the 700 miles of coast line on our eastern seaboard.

To insure every square mile of the North Sea itself, from the Thames estuary to the mouth of the Thames, being kept under observation, at least, our scouting vessels would be required to work under the most favorable atmospheric conditions barely 300 square miles can be swept from the crow's nest of a cruiser; and the German fleet can select its own time and place for making heroic bombardments of our east coast towns. And in the Pacific and Indian Oceans, where for a brief period the German cruisers were at large, the sea area for their operations was over 90,000,000 square miles!

No Voice for Singing.

[Indianapolis News:] Vivian, aged 3, and Marion, age 2, were doing the street car tango. Accompanied by their mammas, they were on their way to town. They were standing in the car seats, and, of course, had added motion to their tuneful endeavors in the swaying of the car. Then they turned to a song and encore turn.

Suddenly the car stopped. The singing continued, and, of course, the attention of the passengers was attracted. was directed to the children. The concert, in fact, was at its height. Vivian stopped singing, but Marion continued.

Vivian frowned, but Marion refused to stop.

"Marion," she finally said, sternly, "you must not sing. You haven't a good voice for singing."

And the concert came to an end with the laughing of the audience.

BITS OF VERSE.

As a Man Thinks.

As a man thinketh, deep within his heart,
So, we are told, is he;
In his mind's mirror, of himself a part,
He shall his own soul see.

The fairest lily, blooming in a pool
Beneath the bluest sky,
By hot, soiled hands snatched from the waters cool,
Will droop, and fade, and die.

The purest pearl of rare and precious thought,
Dropped, in the course of time,
Into an evil mind—though finely wrought—
Is lost in mud and slime.
—[Beatrice Barry, in New York Times.

Flower of Youth.

Lest heaven be for the graybeard heavy;
God, who made boys for his delight,
Goes in earth's hour of grief and glory
And calls the boys in from the night;
When they come trooping from the war
Our skies have made a new gold star.

Heaven's thronged with gay and sweet-less faces
New waked from dreams of dreadful things.
They walk by green and pleasant places,
And by crystal water springs
Forget the nightmare field of slain,
And the fierce thirst and the strong pain.

Forget! God smiles to see them marry
For His own Son was once a boy;
Their never shall be old and weary,
But of their youth will have great joy;
And in the playing fields of heaven
Shall run and leap, new-washed, new-shriven.

Now heaven's by golden boys invaded,
'Scaped from the winter and the storm.
Stainless and simple as he made it
God keeps the boy's heart out of harm.
The old wise saints look down and smile,
They are so young and without guile.

Oh, if the sonless mothers weeping,
The widowed girls, could look inside
The country that hath them in keeping
Who went to the great war and died.
They would rise and put their mourning off,
Praise God and say, "He has enough."
—[Katharine Tynan, in the Spectator.

OUR EARLY PRESIDENTS.

[Roland Ringwalt in The Living Church:] Perhaps Fremont was over-rated, still, how few could lay claim to a small fraction of his geographical knowledge! How little the early statesmen or even the statesmen of the Mexican war days knew about this republic! Look at the first ten Presidents, and what would their combined knowledge of the lands beyond the Mississippi amount—to in comparison with Fremont's? His admirers looked on him as a sort of Columbus in the saddle.

Washington was a Virginia surveyor and planter, who had military experience of New England, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. John Adams's diary shows that he considered a journey from Boston to Philadelphia as one of the events of his life. Jefferson's years of scientific research bore fruit in a book with the modest title of Notes on the State of Virginia. Madison was a Virginia gentleman, who had studied at Princeton. Monroe had reminiscences of Paris, but was not an explorer. The second Adams, though he knew a great deal about Europe, was not a man of the plains and mountains. Jackson of Tennessee was an Indian fighter; he had marched along the Gulf and defended the Mississippi, his service in Florida had given some idea of the Spaniards to the Far West. After him came Martin Van Buren, a New Yorker, who had been over to England but had not at that time seen the West. After his Presidential days he went so far out West as to Illinois and his Democratic friends deemed the trip incomplete without the visit of a Whig lawyer named Abraham Lincoln. Harrison of Tippecanoe and Tyler of Virginia make up the ten.

PATROLLING THE NORTH SEA.

British Fleet Endeavors to Keep Watch of Four Hundred Square Miles of the Ocean.

[Pall Mall Gazette:] The raid of German cruisers on the northeast coast of England should bring home to those who think of the North Sea as a rather big lake some idea of its real magnitude. It is not easy to define its northern limits, but the most moderate estimate of its area puts it at 140,000 square miles. With a recent careful calculation by a German statistician gives it 548,000 square kilometers, which is equivalent to 2,811,526 square miles. But the ceaseless watch and ward of the British fleet now extends to Iceland, and altogether not less than 400,000 square miles of water have to be patrolled by the scouts of the grand fleet. Big as the fleet is, it is not big enough to prevent a surprise raid at some point of the 700 miles of coast on our eastern seaboard.

To insure every square mile of the North Sea itself, from the Shetlands to the mouth of the Thames, being kept under observation, at least 50 scouting vessels would be needed, and under the most favorable atmospheric conditions barely 200 square miles can be swept from the crow's nest of a cruiser; and the German fleet can select its own time and place for the heroic bombardments of undefended towns. And in the Pacific and Indian oceans, where for a brief period German cruisers were at large, the area open for their operations extended to 70,000,000 square miles!

No Voice for Singing.

Suddenly the car stopped, but the singing continued, and, of course, the attention of the passengers in the car was directed to the children. As directed to the children.

Vivian frowned, but Marion only sang.

"Marion," she finally said, severely, "you must not sing. You haven't a good voice for singing." And the concert came to an end with the laughing of the crowd.

leading orchestras. Since then has toured the United States with great success and played with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Others assisting will be Frederick Hartmann, organist, and a solo quartette composed of Ernest I. Tibbitt, first tenor; E. P. Emerson, second tenor; C. W. Hatch, baritone; V. Campbell, bass. Mr. Garroway will accompany the club and Mr. Dunn, director, as usual.

Junior-school Concert.

Next Friday evening the Trinity junior-school orchestra will give its first concert, under the leadership of Mr. Valentine, former director of the First Methodist Church orchestra. Assistants for the concert will be the Orpheus Male Quartette, Joseph Dunn, tenor; E. B. Valentine, violinist.

A special feature that will interest the hundreds of little folks and their parents will be a junior orchestra which will march from the rear of the auditorium to the stage and play the national hymn from memory, as a fitting number to open the programme. Requests for this special number will be heard Monday and Thursday evening of this week.

Among the important numbers of the big orchestra will be Mendelssohn's War March, accompanied by Mr. Ralphe Kinsley at the organ. Mr. Valentine has arranged a trombone solo for Mr. E. Collon, entitled "Twilight Dream," with electrical light effects. Mr. E. Valentine will play Sarasate's "Jota" and has succeeded in obtaining the old Maginni violin from Henry Schulhoff to use for his number.

Symphony "Pop."

The Symphony Orchestra announces an innovation for next Saturday evening, March 6. In all the eighteen years of its activity it has never given a popular concert in Los Angeles. While near by cities have had the pleasure of hearing the orchestra in popular and semi-classic programmes, the field locally has been left to other organizations.

The next Saturday evening at Trinity Auditorium at 8:20 o'clock, the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra will play its first popular concert. The admission will be 25 cents all over the house; seats unreserved. Homer Grunn, tenor, will be the soloist, playing his favorite March Heroique with the orchestra.

The following is the complete programme:

Overture from "Midsummer Night's Dream"	Mendelssohn
Violin Solo	Bach-Gounod
"Le Rouet"	Saint-Saens
Symphony in G	Beethoven
"Concertstuck" for piano and orchestra
	Homer Grunn
"Blaue Donau Waltz"	Strauss
"Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman"	Offenbach
Tenor Solo
Homer Grunn, soloist.

Hackley Choristers.

There will be an unusual entertainment at Trinity Auditorium a week from Tuesday, March 9. It is styled a Folk Song Festival, and 150 colored children will take part. The affair will be given for the benefit of the Hackley Normal Vocal Institute of Chicago, and a portion of the receipts will go to the local Day Nursery and the Fresh Air Truth Home. It is planned to make a big chorus a permanent feature of music activity in Los Angeles if possible.

Mrs. E. Azalia Hackley, who has charge of the festival, has arranged many of similar nature in Boston, Atlanta, Dallas and other music centers and reviews from the papers of these cities warrant the prediction that she will give us something as worth while as unique and unique.

She came out here for her health and was amazed at the interest taken in choral organizations here, and has made arrangements for the coming festival.

Everything about the festival is the work of colored people. The compositions, principal artists and chorus are of the same race, and as every one is a born musician, with tune and rhythm in every fibre of his person, the music they give possesses a charm which is well nigh intoxicating.

The complete programme of the festival will be published next Sunday.

Music Last Night.

Last Friday afternoon and last evening the Brahms Quintette gave its last of this season's chamber music concerts in Blanchard Hall. It was assisted by Fred G. Ellis, the well-known baritone, accompanied by Mrs. Ebert.

The programme included two piano quartettes, one by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, the other by Edgar Stillman-Kelley, both representative American compositions. The group of songs for baritone were by MacFadyen, Gene Branscombe, Huntington Woodman and Arthur Hammond, completing an entirely American programme. This is in keeping with the great movement for further development of American music, and due prominence being given to its presentation on Brahms' concert programmes.

Miss Dillon Entertains.

Miss Jessie Dillon, the gifted composer-pianist, whose two beautiful songs, with orchestral accompaniment, written for poems by Edward Howard Chandler, were so delightfully rendered by the Lebegott Orchestra concert Sunday, by Mrs. Catharine Shank, entertained a number of guests at this home and also at her charming residence studio, after the concert, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Upton of Chicago.

Miss Dillon's studio was charmingly decorated with jonquils and ferns and dainty refreshments served. During the evening many enjoyable moments were spent in listening to a number of songs by Raoul Laparra, the distinguished French composer, who is wintering in Los Angeles with his family. These songs were sung by Mrs. Laparra and Mrs. Jane Catherwood. Mr. Laparra played a number of his compositions for piano, which were greatly appreciated.

Melicent Virden, whose artistic playing of the Caesar Franck variations with the Lebegott Orchestra had been greatly enjoyed that afternoon, gave a delightful rendition of one of Moskowski's waltzes, and Miss Dillon, the hostess, played a number of her piano compositions, also the Wagner-Liszt "Finale" from "Tristan and Isolde," with her usual skill.

Miss Dillon's guests were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. George P. Upton, Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Laparra, Mr. and Mrs. Eduardo Lebegott, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ballagh, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Makinson, Count Axel Wachtmeister, the well-known Swedish composer wintering in this city; Mrs. Catherine Shank, Mrs. Jotham Bixby, Jr., Mrs. Jane Catherwood, Miss Ella Gardner, Mrs. Edith Norton Dooley, Mr. and Mrs. James Ogilvie and J. C. Doane.

Next Oratorio.

The forthcoming presentation of Mendelssohn's "Athalie" by the new Los Angeles Oratorio Society, on March 17 at Trinity Auditorium, for many reasons deserves to be largely patronized.

Through months of incessant hard work, technical difficulties have been gradually mastered by the large choral body. Soloist rehearsals are now in full swing, and if all signs fail not, an inspiring performance may be looked for.

The principal solo part is in the hands of Molly Byerly Wilson, who will present the first half of the evening's programme in a song recital of her own. Miss Wilson is a dramatic mezzo-contralto of the first rank, whose consummate art has deeply impressed critics and connoisseurs who attended her recent private recital at the Ebell Clubhouse, and those who have been fortunate enough to hear her in a number of other highly successful appearances since that date. Her forthcoming appearance in connection with the "Athalie" production of the Los Angeles Oratorio Society is therefore eagerly anticipated by a wide circle of music-lovers in this city and vicinity.

The other soloists are Mrs. Grace Wood Jess, mezzo-soprano, and Miss Louise Sexton, soprano. Mrs. Jess is also a recent addition to musical Los Angeles. She will be heard in recital in Trinity this afternoon in connection with the organ concert by Mr. Demorest. Miss Sexton has been entrusted with the "top" soprano part on account of her powerful and rich upper range, such as is not often found in a voice so young and fresh.

Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Athalie," presents a story of intense dramatic interest, together with an abundance of variety, both in style and contents. Its chorus work teems with life and climaxes, while its solo and ensemble passages excel in lyric settings of the most exquisite beauty. Its overture and the ever-popular "Priest March" are immortal pieces of instrumental music.

Jaime Overton, Violinist.

The war in Europe has afforded Los Angeles another distinct musical acquisition, Jaime Overton, a local boy, who will doubtless be heard in recital on the violin in the near future, after which he will go to Frisco, where he is to be one of the exposition soloists. He was supposed to have been a stellar feature at the great Maine music festival, but could not get away from Europe in time.

He returns to America with a wonderful violin, a Montagnani, which is valued in the thousands. This instrument was selected for him in Berlin by Willy Hess, and is considered one of the famous master's finest instruments. His former instrument, the Guadagnini, which was crushed in the New York Customs through the carelessness of an employee, and at the time thought to be damaged beyond repair, he sold in Berlin, its tone being found uninjured by the fearful ordeal through which it had passed.

This young and well-known Los Angeles violinist has spent the greater part of six years in the music centers of the old world, perfecting himself in his art. Two years of study were spent in Paris under Franz Wlczek and two and a half year in Berlin under Henri Marteau and later Willy Hess at the Royal Hochschule, where he was one of sixteen out of eighty applicants to gain entrance to this exacting institution.

It will be remembered that upon Mr. Overton's return to Los Angeles after his first period of study in Europe, he appeared as soloist with the Peoples' Orchestra, playing the "Tschaikowsky Concerto," which is considered one of the most difficult violin compositions written.

Making his New York debut at Aeolian Hall, January 14, 1914, he achieved a wonderful success; all the New York critics being unanimous in their praise of his art. Later in the season he was engaged by William R. Chapman, a prominent eastern impresario, for a New England tour with Mme. Lillian Blauvelt, the celebrated soprano. This tour was such a success that he was engaged by Mr. Chapman for a second tour with Mme. Blauvelt through Canada.

He sailed for Europe on the 20th of last April, to study repertoire under Willy Hess and to appear in concert. On board ship he had the honor of appearing at the ship's concert with Mme. Julia Culp, the great Dutch soprano, Conrad Boss, the pianist; Karl Jorn of the Metropolitan Opera-house, and Herman Well of the Berlin Royal Opera.

Good Music at Venice.

Venice, the little town by the big ocean, is making for itself a genuine musical atmosphere; good band music every day by musicians of technical ability, conducted by a band master whose ambition and genius is well established, after a trial year of leadership in Venice. Thursday is the day given to afternoon concerts in the auditorium, when a special programme is presented, and the public invited to be present free of charge. The symphony concerts are given every two weeks, and it is surprising how the band instruments have been made to fit into the classic role of symphony production. Operatic excerpts are quite in order with band instrumentation, but the symphony is of another venture. The recent Venice band concert giving a large portion of Verdi's "Il Trovatore," assisted by able Los Angeles talent, Sig. Pietro Buzzi, was the musical hit of the season. The band interpretation, with La Monaca's baton was delightful from the start to finish. Sig. Buzzi presented Signora Buzzi, whose fine contralto voice was heard in the Gypsy mother part. "Honor where it is due," and the La Monaca Venice band is something for Venice to be proud of, and the summer season of music promises to be one of much artistic success.

Jaime Overton. Homer Grunn.

The Los Angeles Military Band.

Alma Gluck and Efrem Zimbalist.

Artists in this week's events.

Alma Gluck and Efrem Zimbalist appear in recitals Tuesday and Saturday at Trinity, while Homer D. Grunn will be soloist of the first L. A. Symphony "Pop" Saturday night. In the center is the new Los Angeles Military Band, which will shortly give its first concert, and the other picture is Jaime Overton, the Los Angeles violinist, who has just reached here from the war zone and who will appear in recital in the near future.

MUSIC NOTES.

A delightful recital programme was given Friday night at the Waldorf apartments, the contributing artists being Araminta B. Schoch, reader; Barbara Claire Taylor, harpist; Mrs. B. Y. Davis, soprano, and Harold Sellburg, violinist.

The Southern California Chapter of the American Guild of Organists will give its seventeenth recital and service at the First Congregational Church tomorrow night. The soloists will be W. F. Skeele, Harold Gleason and Theta M. Lynn. Admission is by card, obtainable from any Guild member.

Altheda Oliver, soprano of the Mae Shumway-Enderly Concert company is temporarily in the city, and will sing this morning at 11 o'clock at the regular meeting of the Los Angeles Fellowship, in Blanchard Hall.

Miss Oliver is described by the critics as a charming personality and possessed of a beautiful voice, which "makes the audience think of laughing brooks and singing birds."

The annual mid-winter meeting of the Oberlin College Association of Southern California was held last Monday evening in Trinity Auditorium building. Former students and graduates of the Conservatory of Music of Oberlin College gave a recital programme. Such prominent Los Angeles musicians as Dr. Ross M. Harris, Mrs. Bessie Chapman Moll and Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Laparra were among the performers. An especial feature was the singing of Mrs. Laparra of selections from fifteen Biblical songs, composed by Mr. Laparra, in Los Angeles during January, 1915. These songs are still in manuscript and were heard for the first time.

ROADS USELESS AROUND WARSAW.

DIFFICULT TO MOVE HEAVY GUNS THROUGH ROUGH COUNTRY.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

WARSAW, Jan. 30.—The state of the roads for a distance of many miles in front of Warsaw is such as to preclude the movement of heavy transport or artillery except with the greatest difficulty.

The trunk roads were all ploughed up and rendered useless during the earlier German advance in this direction. Troops and wheeled traffic thereafter had to move through the fields by the roadside, but rains and thaws soon rendered these unusable, so that soldiers and transport drivers had to run still more to the side. This process has continued until the roads in many places now extend to a breadth of a quarter of a mile. The axle-deep marsh which lies to the left of the newest track is littered with abandoned trucks, automobiles and refugee carts.

Although there is no fighting at present nearer than thirty miles or more from Warsaw, the distant rumble of artillery fire can almost be heard from suburban points. Staff officers estimate that over 4000 field guns are in use on this front.

REFUSE TO RETURN TO THEIR HOMES.

BELGIANS DECLARE THEY WILL NOT WORK FOR THE GERMANS.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

THE HAGUE, Jan. 31.—The Rockefeller Commission for the Relief of Belgium has had little success in convincing Belgians that the only thing for their country is the repatriation of all refugees as fast as possible.

The Rockefeller investigators reason entirely on economic and social grounds. Belgians, they say, must rebuild their homes and become self-supporting as soon as possible, else they will become pauperized for all time and lose their habits of industry. In reply, the Belgians charge that to return would be to acquiesce in German rule, and it is more important that they should starve in the ultimate hope of driving out the invaders than that they should raise food and manufacture supplies for the German army and pay taxes to support both the German civil and military administrations. To return, they say, would not be to work for themselves, but for the benefit, political and economic, of the Germans.

MYSTERIOUS HANDS WORK IN PARIS.

CIRCULARS CONTAINING ODIOUS OUTRAGE AGAINST PRESIDENT ARE DISTRIBUTED.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Feb. 13.—The government has ordered a judicial inquiry into the distribution by mysterious hands of circulars containing odious outrages against the President and unpatriotic sentiments under the title, "They deceive us and they lie to us."

The distribution of these circulars was first noticed in the southern part of France, but has now reached Paris. They are thrust under doorways, into letter boxes and every conceivable place where they are sure to be found. An official note declares that Germany is the instigator of the distribution and declares that any one contributing in any way to the spread of the allegations contained in the circulars shall be punished as a traitor.

SUFFRAGISTS ACT AS WAR NURSES.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Feb. 10.—More than 800 members of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies—the non-militant party—are now working in the military hospitals in Great Britain, and over seventy have gone abroad as nurses and doctors. The Scottish branch has in addition equipped and supplied the staffs of three hospitals, of which two are at the front and the third is ready to leave. Almost $100,000 has been raised among the members for various kinds of war relief and hospitals. Another of the union's activities has been the establishment of clubs where soldiers and their women friends spend their evenings in talking or playing games. A great deal of work has also been done for unemployed women.

WOMEN WORK IN COAL MINES.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BASEL, Feb. 13.—A Swiss subject living at Leipsic writes that the manufacturers there are handicapped by a shortage of coal, wool, leather and petroleum and by the lack of skilled help. The German papers, however, declare that trade is proceeding as usual and that the Leipsic fair will be held as usual this year. Strassburg is reported to be short of coal. The production of the mines has dwindled almost to nothing, because of all the miners having gone to the front. The work of women has been tried in some mines, without appreciable results. The gas works at Strassburg are working on an old stock of English coal.

AUSTRIAN PRESS CENSORS.

Papers Sometimes Come Out on Street Blank After Officials Get Through with Them.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—A dispatch from Vienna to the Vorwaerts throws some light on the press censorship in Austria.

Since the outbreak of war, the entire contents of all newspapers have been subject to the approval of the censors, who have absolute power to suppress any articles without regard to their nature.

The newspapers must be submitted to the police authorities two hours before they are published, and the censors may then suppress the whole paper, or order the removal of objectionable paragraphs. The result is that the newspapers frequently appear with great parts of the pages blank.

NORWAY IS SURE OF A SQUARE MEAL.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

CHRISTIANIA, Jan. 31.—The supply of corn and flour in Norway is now believed to be adequate for the country's needs for some time to come. When the war broke out the supply was at a minimum, but every resource was strained to get the necessary imports while importation was allowed by England. Each commune now has a store equal to twenty-five to thirty-five pounds a person.

PAY SICK BELGIANS FIVE CENTS A DAY.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Belgian government is distributing pay among the sick, wounded and convalescent Belgian soldiers confined in hospitals in England at the rate of 5 cents a day for privates and corporals and 10 cents for the higher non-commissioned officers. This pay, small as it is, is welcome news to the men.

SWISS ORGANIZE OLD MEN'S ARMY.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

GENEVA, Feb. 13.—The Swiss authorities are studying the organization of the male citizens over 48 years of age for military purposes. The army counts 300,000 men of the landwehr and landsturm, but there are numerous old soldiers still fit for territorial and convoy service, and patrolling, who in case of an invasion would be ready to defend their Motherland.

Polyglot Britain.

[London Chronicle:] The revival of the old custom of "Clameur de Haro" in Alderney as a proceeding in a legal action recalls the fact that Norman French is still the official language of the Channel Islands. It is rather a surprise when one begins to count the different languages spoken within the borders of the United Kingdom. How many people would guess that there are still at least five living tongues used among us? There is English in England, Welsh in Wales, Erse in Ireland, Gaelic in Scotland, and French in the Channel Isles, while Cornish in Cornwall and Manx in the Isle of Man have scarcely yet faded entirely, and in Whitechapel even the postoffice prints its notices in Yiddish.

A Continuous Fashion Show

EVERY day in the year the California Furniture Company maintains a Fashion Show along just the same lines and with just as much emphasis as characterizes the two or three days which are set apart twice a year for this special purpose.

The public is always welcome here to look, entirely regardless of any thought of buying. You will find just as many—and just as beautiful—and just as interesting home furnishing suggestions here every day in the year as you will on official Fashion Show days—and that is saying a good deal.

Here are wonderfully interesting displays of correct furniture from all the important periods—luxurious carpets and rugs—both Oriental and domestic—all the advanced ideas in wall papers and other wall coverings—and exclusive curtains—draperies—and upholstery stuffs.

Travelers have said no assemblage of home furnishings in America is superior to that of the "California." You can furnish the humblest cottage or the most pretentious mansion at the "California" most economically. Our prices are based on the closest possible margin of profit. Critical comparison of values will convince you of that. Feel free to come whenever you wish—whether you are thinking of buying or not.

SETTING THE FASHIONS AT NATION'S CAPITAL.

Well-dressed Women of Washington's Smart Society. Their Gowns, Their Hats, Their Furs, Their Laces.

BY MARGARET WADE.

THEORETICALLY, the official season came to an end on Tuesday, with Ash Wednesday, February 24, marking the hard and fast line between the gay and serious diversions of society. In view of the fact that the official season of 1915 was shorn of its most brilliant features by reason of the closed White House and the retirement from society of many of its most important members of the diplomatic circle, the line betwixt the official and the non-official is so faint as to be almost invisible, and the fashionable world of the capital will move along through the suppceed to be penitential season just as it does from Thanksgiving to January 1, when this same official season has its beginning. Diplomatic uniforms were unknown in the past winter, which likewise afforded few occasions for our own officers of the army and navy to appear in all their glory of gold lace, brass buttons and side arms.

The nonofficial character of dinner parties and receptions fortunately did not effect the elegance of attire as regards the wives and daughters of the higher officials of our own or foreign governments.

So long as dinner parties continue at the rate of six a week with the guests of honor the Vice-President, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Ambassadors or Cabinet officers, and their respective wives, the demand for smart evening gowns will continue in Washington notwithstanding Lent is on, and spring fashions the cry of the day in communities less effected by the social obligations of official life.

President Wilson's daughters, while living in great retirement so far as the social life is concerned, have lightened their mourning in a perceptible degree, which leads to the hope that the spring season may again find them participating to some degree in social life.

Mrs. McAdoo, who has taken to daily exercise in the form of a long, brisk morning walk, looks extremely well in her tailor suit of black cloth cut on the new prevailing military lines, with the jacket fastened by dull silk cords. Where this opens at the neck is seen a soft, white blouse of crepe de chine. The hat is a round, English shape, in dull black silk, with its underbrim faced in white crepe that has the softness of silk. There is also a broad collar of the same silk finishing Mrs. McAdoo's smart, little jacket.

Miss Margaret Wilson and her cousin, Miss Helen Bones, whose mourning was no less deep than that of the Misses Wilson, have taken to white gowns for house wear. Soft crepes and serges made in the long, clinging lines of the moment for afternoon, with pure white blouses and severely plain black skirts for morning wear on the street. Miss Wilson is wearing an all-black hat, small and close, with its veil of unfigured net finished by an inch-wide border of black ribbon.

A new dinner gown made for Mrs. McAdoo is of black crepe de chine of particular luster, a pitch black, but not the unbecoming dull fabric of old-time mourning customs. This is made with a train and the new flowing line in the skirt. Its close V-shaped bodice is finished in black tulle applied in tiny little frills and soft folds.

Mrs. William Jennings Bryan is wearing very good-looking gowns this winter, evidently made by a more skilled artist in clothes than that employed by Mrs. Bryan during her first year's residence as Cabinet hostess. A dinner gown worn recently is an exquisite brocade, dull orchid pink figured in small, conventional pattern in gold, pink, and dull green. This is made with a short train, and like all the newest gowns opens in front both as regards bodice and color. The bodice, cut surplice front and back, is of the brocade fitted in close lines with shoulders draped in matching chiffon. This latter material also forms the half-length sleeves. Delicate embellishment of bold embroidery marks the V line as well as the narrow girdle.

The State of Texas, which has already supplied three Cabinet hostesses, has another feminine representative in the world of smart society in the person of Mrs. Hampson Gery, whose husband has recently been appointed to a special position in the State Department. Mrs. Gery, who is young and good-looking, has made her first round of official calls in one of the smartest of toilets that was a monotone in gray from the top of her silver tissue hat to the heels of her high suede boots. The gown proper was of some heavy-corded silk-finished fabric, made in some tailored model without drapery, but with close open front tunic. The bodice followed the close line of the moment with bands of matching chiffon, embroidered in silver, giving a jacket-like finish. The sleeves were long and close.

Mrs. Gery's hat, already mentioned of silver mesh, was encircled by a band of gray velvet embroidered in silver flowers. A motor coat of fur was worn in going from house to house, but never into the drawing-room.

The short wedding dress that Paris has been exploiting for a season has made its appearance in Washington on the occasion of the recent marriage of Miss Hester Chandler and Mr. Edwin Motley Pickman, which, thus far, is the most notable wedding of the Washington winter of 1915.

Mrs. Pickman is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Chandler, formerly of Boston, but now temporarily located in Washington. Her gown, which was the sensation of the week, was short only as regarded the foundation skirt, as the tran, a real court train hung from the shoulders, lay three yards on the ground. Minus the train, the skirt was a dancing frock with the irregular hem forming four large scollops held to a presumably close-fitting foundation by clusters of orange blossoms. At no point was this foundation skirt nearer the ground than six inches.

Mrs. Carl Vrooman, wife of the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, has fully established her reputation as the best-dressed young matron of the administration circle. Mrs. Vrooman is wearing a charming dinner gown of real putty color such as most people employ only for blouses and hats. This is of chiffon and self-colored lace made with round skirt flounced from hip to hem, each flounce headed by a narrow line of small flowers in old-fashioned garden shades, harmonizing with the putty, but giving great character to the frock. Mrs. Vrooman, whose husband only entered the official life with the present season, was formerly Miss Julia Scott, whose debut occurred in Washington twenty years ago, when her uncle, Hon. Adlai Stevenson, was Vice-President of the United States.

Mrs. Hugh Scott, wife of the Chief of Staff of the army and leader of the military circle, located at Fort Myer, is winning great popularity on this side of the Potomac, where she and her husband are being continually entertained. Mrs. Scott wore at one of the recent dinners in their honor a mauve chiffon gown on long flowing lines with foundation of self-colored satin.

Mrs. William A. Cullop, of Indiana, who has proven herself once more the leader of the Democratic women of the present Congress, both in social and official entertaining, is wearing a dinner gown of white chiffon velvet that is one of the handsomest white gowns of the winter.

Mrs. George Pickett, widow of the Confederate leader at Gettysburg, is looking extremely handsome this season in a dinner gown of black satin made with train and square decolletage revealing the graceful lines of this handsome matron's figure and, at the same time, proving most becoming to her exquisitely fine complexion and masses of snow-white hair. Mrs. Pickett is one of the women who remain unswayed by the coiffure fashions, yet appears always modish and dignified with her hair massed loosely about her brow and coiled at the top of her shapely head.

Miss Elina Calderon, daughter of the Minister from Bolivia, has one of the newest visiting costumes, which she wears with particularly good effect every cold day. This is a severely plain black velvet skirt and jacket, both short-flaring and trimmed with an edge of white fur. She also wears a superb scarf of white bear, a small black hat, black boots, topped in white kid, and gloves to match.

Miss Caroline Fairchild Stewart of New York, generally voted one of the beauties of the Southern ball a few weeks ago, wore on that occasion a very simple gown of pale green taffeta made with the new full skirt, six inches off the ground, with square-necked short-sleeved bodice matching chiffon forming the slightly puffed sleeves. Miss Stewart is an absolutely perfect blond with blue eyes and slender, graceful figure.

Mrs. Archibald Davis is wearing a beautiful demi-toilet that shows the Vogue of combination even in a costume of this character. Her skirt is white silk with short train, showing a new fullness in the back with slightly draped front and sides. The top is a pale blue satin brocaded in silver and lemon color in small, conventional fruit design. This is made in a coat bodice with long back that is something between a long-skirted coat and a sash. The sleeves are of white net as is also the chemisette with high collar.

Mrs. Langhorne, wife of Dr. Cary D. Langhorne, U.S.N., who was Miss Zadiee Gaff, one of the capital's great heiresses, has adopted an extremely simple style of dancing gowns. The round, short skirt with a series of ruffles being one of her favorite models. At the Friday evening dance at the New Willard Mrs. Langhorne wore a gown of this description in pink and white silk, each of the three flounces showing a border of pink and green flowers, on white background. A girdle of black velvet ribbon with long ends of the same was the only trimming.

Another border-flounced dancing frock seen on this same occasion was worn by Miss Elizabeth Davis, daughter of Rear-Admiral Charles H. Davis. This was white and black in background, with pink roses forming the pattern of the flounces which were overhung in black lace, making an extremely rich frock on simple lines.

Miss Margaret Barbour is wearing a white ball gown right from Callot Sisters, showing that, however the fortunes of war may be affecting the Parisian designers, this firm, much patronized by the younger belles of the American capital, has lost none of its skill. A white satin slip, narrow as ever, forms the foundation over which is hung the finest possible white silk net. Here, too, one sees the three scalloped flounces, but in much closer position, as the top flounce ends well below the knees, the lower one forming the edge of the short skirt. Each flounce is finished in pearl beads of the size of the ordinary pea. The bodice opening in front, like all new bodices, is outlined in pearl beads. The deep, white satin girdle is also finished in a line of the pearl beads, which fall in long strands from the center front almost to the bottom of the skirt, where they are caught together with two six-inch tassels of pearls and crystal. The sleeves are almost nil, being a fall of tulle edged in pearls. Satin slippers with pearl buckles give the final touch of elegance to this costume, which was one of the smartest at a recent dance at the Country Club.

Miss Esther Denny, only daughter of the late Col. Frank Lee Denny and great belle in military circles from Governor's Island to San Francisco, who left Washington last week with her mother to make their permanent home in Indianapolis, made her P.P.C. calls on her old friends in one of the smartest of black tailored suits this season has produced. Miss Denny's skirt continues narrow at the hem, with slight fullness at the waistline. It is perfectly plain, closing down the front, from belt to ankle, with full, plain black bone buttons and well-worked buttonholes. On each side a utility feature, adding to the attractiveness of this extremely well-made skirt, was a pair of tiny pockets. This was worn with an extremely modish white crepe de chine blouse and a coat showing the long, slightly full peplum back with cutaway front. This also closed with bone buttons extending literally to the chin, as the high collar was a part of the original garment. The long coat sleeves were untrimmed, fastened by two buttons at the wrist. A black flower hat, trimmed only with a band of grosgrain ribbon and two well-poised quills, completed this costume.

Miss Sarah Berry of Tennessee and Miss Jane Cowan of the same State have achieved great distinction in the matter of dress. Miss Berry, who was a guest at the New Willard for a few weeks, wore a visiting toilet unmistakably Paris-made of heavy satin with the edges of skirt and chic little coat cut in small scallops and bound with the same material. Her blouse was white satin also, showing self-bound scalloping done as only known in France. Miss Berry furthermore wore the low collar in a pointed sailor shape, leaving exposed a beautiful ornament in the form of a heart-shaped sapphire surrounded by small diamonds and worn on a platinum chain. Her hat from Bond street, just as evidently as her gown was from the Avenue de la Opera, was a turban, dark blue velvet, trimmed in an edge of very fine, light-weight glossy black fur. A muff to match, with a line of fur about the hem of the skirt, gave a seasonable finish to this gown.

The effective costume of Miss Jane Cowan, who is the daughter of Mrs. John K. Shields by a former marriage, is a green cloth tailored suit worn at a recent afternoon dance. When Miss Cowan removed her jacket was shown a bodice simple as a schoolgirl blouse of white crepe, but with the new cape collar falling to the waist line of duchesse lace. A line of moss green velvet ribbon passed under the collar, falling in two narrow ends in front. A brooch of jade set in dull gold held the velvet ribbons together at the base of the V-cut neck. A small black velvet hat with scarf and muff of black fur, were worn with this suit.

Miss Sally Williams, daughter of the Seantor from Mississippi, whose engagement was recently announced, is receiving many good wishes and looking very happy in a tailored suit of dark blue, with which she wears one of the popular sailor shapes of satin, with silver lace brim.

TROOPS HAVE WILD DREAMS.

The Nervous System of the Men in the Trenches Breaks Down Under the Modern War Methods.

[The Lancet:] The number of English soldiers and officers who have suffered nervous breakdown more or less approaching insanity as a result of the strain of war has shown such increase that some of the leading medical journals are pleading for special consideration and treatment for this class.

Some cases are certainly hopeless, but there are others—and happily these are in preponderating numbers—where there are good grounds for believing that they may again become useful citizens.

The effects of warfare on the nervous system are more marked in the case of officers than in the case of enlisted men, the latter in many cases of "trench insanity" recovering "tone" after a continuous sleep of from twenty-four to forty-eight hours. Officers similarly afflicted are generally sent to special hospitals for a rest of a week or ten days, but if they fail to show satisfactory progress after that time they are invalided home, on the ground that it is improbable that they could be again employed in active service.

"The powerful effect which modern warfare has on the mind is shown," writes a surgeon attached to a British ambulance, "by the dreams and nightmares which disturb soldiers' sleep in dangerous positions. Nervous subjects react in a most striking way to the shock of explosions in their immediate vicinity. Some develop a tendency to sleep-walking and are found wandering about the premises with faces expressing the utmost terror and anxiety. In the soldiers' dreams the dread of losing contact with his fellows seems to be felt with extreme frequency, and the horror of isolation constitutes the commonest nightmare of men in the fighting line.

"They dream that they are wandering through endless trenches as complicated as an artificial maze or are picking their way through lonesome forests. The slightest noise during sleep calls up visions of exploding shells or the tramp of armed men, throwing them into a frenzy of shouting terror, to the indignation of their resting fellows.

"Another common night terror is the dream of a sudden call to arms and the inability to find some indispensable article of attire or armament, a conception productive of intense mental agony. Live shells naturally occupy a large share of the soldiers' attention in dreams, and an exasperating nightmare is the supposed discovery in one's bed of a shell ready and willing to burst, associated with the usual nightmare incapacity to execute the necessary movements to get rid of it. Several men have had dreams centering around the inability to withdraw the bayonet from an enemy's body when urgently required for self-defense.

The Sikh's Disc of Death.

[London Tit-Bits:] The Sikhs fighting in the war can certainly claim to possess the most unique form of weapon of any military unit in the campaign. This is a hand-thrown missile, composed of metal similar in shape to the discus with which we have been made familiar in Roman history. Its edge is sharpened like a razor, and the weapon, when thrown with a peculiar circular motion, has extraordinary penetrating power. It cuts like a knife through paper when it strikes any object in its path. At a distance of a hundred yards the disc is capable of cutting its way through a piece of hard wood two inches thick. It is the peculiar twist given to the weapon when it is thrown which causes the cutting edge to bury itself so remorselessly in anything that it meets. It is doubtful whether any but the Sikhs could effectively use this unique weapon.

They made deadly use of the disc of death at the Battle of Dixmude.

THREE GOWNS FOR COST OF ONE!

BRENT'S Closing-Out Sale

$200 in CASH PRIZES

This Contest is Open To All

"Our first Prize Contest was very gratifying. It showed me how I stand with the people. The next Contest will cover a far more momentous subject. I will give $200.00 gold, distributed as below, to the 14 Contestants offering the 5 best reasons why I Should Retire From the Furniture Business. Your answers must be explicit, each containing only one reason and no more. Use not more than 20 words for each answer. No employees or relatives of employees are eligible to enter. Blanks to fill out will be handed you when you come to Brent's. This contest opens Monday, March 1, and closes March 31. The Advertising Managers of the Newspapers, who will act as Judges, will make their awards at Brent's on April 9.

First Prize	Second Prize	Third Prize	Fourth Prize	10 Prizes of $1 Each

"For your information in helping you frame your answers I offer the following: I have never told any one I intended to retire from business. The fact is, the building I have occupied nearly 10 years will soon pass into the landlord's hands. Unable to re-lease at a price I felt justified in paying, I am closing out my entire stock. I have no store to move into; I have rented no building in which to place my goods. I shall suffer a heavy loss in winding up my affairs, but after 25 successful years, I feel I can stand it.

"For years I have been a worker and a busy man, and although next April I shall reach the age of 60 (an age declared by several eminent scientists to mark the end of a man's usefulness) I feel physically well and strong. If I retire from my present occupation I would not be compelled to seek another line of activity, because, by judicious management, my family and myself will be provided for.

"Several of my friends have advised me to get out of business and rest, but I want to hear from the people. Respectfully yours,"

To the Public

"Just a word in regard to going out of business and CLOSING OUT A LARGE STOCK such as I have carried for the past ten years. When I started this sale my stock inventoried approximately $200,000—in my store, in warehouse, in transit and merchandise contracted for. If a Furniture Stock consisted solely of 'staples,' I could close out in a month. But a large Furniture Stock consists of a thousand and one things, some of which move very slowly. Still, they must be carried to make a representative assortment.

"I am in about the same position as a man with a well-stocked grocery store. It would be no trouble to sell sugar and flour under regular prices, but when he started to dispose of high-priced fancy goods he would find he could not do it without a big loss. He would also be compelled to buy a limited amount of sugar, flour and other staples to supply the needs of customers who bought the fancy goods."

GERMANY CALLS LAST RESERVE.

Men of Forty-five Ordered to Join the Colors.

Younger Element Held to be Sent to Firing Line.

To Preserve Nucleus of Army When Peace is Made.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

HANOVER (Germany) Feb. 10.—All German men attached to the landsturm, or last reserve of the army, whether they had had previous training or not, were called out by decree on January 28. The order applied to all men who had not completed their forty-fifth year by August 14, 1914, in the case of those who had been trained, or by December 31 in the case of untrained men. The service of the men is to continue until the end of the war.

The German War Department is relying on the elderly men at the present time, and is keeping its eyes fixed to the future. The announcement was made by the Minister of War in a recent interview that the recruits due to come up this year in the ordinary course would not be called before the normal date in the fall. This apparent holding back of active service of good material in the shape of young men was decided on as a precaution for the future. The recruits of this year will be needed to form the basis of the new army when the war is over, since the ranks of the standing army, whatever peace may be declared, will probably be found to have been depleted by casualties to a large extent. To this depletion must also be added the large number of men who will be entitled to return to civil life before the expiry of their full term of service with the colors, since war service will give them the right to claim their discharge before they otherwise would have been able to do so under conditions of peace. As this will leave the army much below its proper strength, the War Office has resolved to retain the younger men to build the nucelus of the standing army at the conclusion of the war.

On the other hand, the youths from 16 to 20 years old who have volunteered to serve in the army before reaching the regulation age for military service, as well as the regular contingent of recruits called up in April, are being assiduously trained in depots in all parts of the country in preparation for transportation to the firing line, either in the east or the west. The young soldiers display great enthusiasm for the field work in which they are undergoing instruction under the care of experienced commissioned officers, some of whom have returned from the front suffering from slight wounds which do not hinder them in their work. Much of the usual stiff drill of the German army has been done away with in order that the youths may devote more time to and make rapid progress in the more useful warlike acts of shooting and entrenching. Many of them were at first exercised in their civilian clothes or in old uniforms in consequence of the lack of sufficient time to supply them, but the gray field uniform for all was soon provided.

CLOTHING SUPPLY FOR THE REFUGEES.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 30.—In a fine old mansion in Warwick Square, Belgravia—the heart of fashionable London—is the main clothing supply depot of the London War Refugees' Relief Committee. The house has only two rooms, and in its present state resembles more a huge department store than a residence.

Two hundreds of refugees visit it, most of them Belgians, and go away with neatly-wrapped parcels containing the needed articles of apparel. Supplies of the depot number over 300,000 and on Christmas Day they distributed more than 300,000 articles. Lady Emmott, who has managed the depot since its doors opened, has shown remarkable success in keeping the building well stocked, mostly from voluntary contributions, although large quantities of clothing have been purchased outright from wholesalers and from second-hand shops. The goods are arranged like a well-ordered city department store, with signs directing patrons to children's wear, shoes, underwear, millinery, household linen and numerous other articles.

The Modern War Correspondent.

[From "Die Jugend," Munich.]

Self-satisfied.

To shield himself from aviators' bombs the modern war correspondent has to take the same precautions as the warriors whom he accompanies. Some of the regiments carry brush and limbs of trees to conceal themselves in the landscape, quite as the soldiers did in ancient times to deceive the enemy. The author of the above cartoon, E. Wilke of Munich, makes the correspondent say: "While I write these lines I am under the earth and at the same time over it, protected from the flying foe, sitting on my faithful old war horse, viewing the battle from an elevation, while above me my faithful dog barks at the hostile aviators."

GERMAN PUPILS CUT DOWN FOOD.

Two Slices of Bread as Lunch While the War Lasts.

Grave of Heroic Lieutenant is Found in Poland.

French Trench is Destroyed by Running up Saps.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—Have you signed the pledge? Is the question that everybody in Germany, even to the school children, is asking everybody else. The pledge is not for the usual temperance cause. It refers to sausage and other delicacies that should not be indulged in until the food embargo is lifted.

According to the Lokalanzeiger, the school children of the capital are asked to make the following resolution:

"If from today, so long as the war lasts, we renounce sausages and meat for dinner and bind ourselves to take to school not more than two slices of bread, when the class lasts until 1 o'clock, and not more than four slices when the class lasts beyond 1 o'clock, this will be quite sufficient to appease hunger, and meat and bread supplies will thereby be spared."

The Lokalanzeiger adds that in one school the boys have been selected to see that the self-denial ordinance is carried out. Speaking of the circularizing of schools to induce the children to restrict their consumption of food, the paper declares: "Dear Fatherland, now mayest thou be tranquil."

It is stated that the War Committee for consumers has petitioned the Imperial Chancellor to accelerate the slaughter of pigs for fear the potato fodder given the animals may shorten the national food supply.

HEROIC DEATH.

When the German troops again took possession of the little town of Drobin in Russian Poland they found there the grave of one of their lieutenants who had been missing since the end of November; and they obtained from the local priest, the physician, and a German hussar, who had been a prisoner there, the details of his heroic death.

He had been sent out on November 30 with a patrolling party of fourteen hussars and a corporal to reconnoiter. They suddenly found themselves surrounded by forty Russian hussars, who opened a hot fire. At the very beginning, the lieutenant's horse was shot under him. The rest of his party fled, except four who were killed or wounded. The lieutenant succeeded in running across fields and half-frozen ditches, and getting into a house, where he was followed and surrounded by the Russians. Their leader sent a man to call upon him to surrender, but this was refused. On second summons he was informed that his resistance against a whole troop of Russians would be impossible. But the German counted the bullets in his revolver and answered, "A German officer does not surrender. I still have five cartridges—they are enough for you—and me."

Then came a fight in which he was twice severely wounded and captured. "A man with that on him never surrenders," he said as he pointed to the iron cross on his breast. He died on his way to the field hospital. The Russians gave him burial with all the honors of war in the church yard at Drobin. They erected a wooden cross with the inscription: "Von Griesheim, lieutenant of the Thuringian Hussars."

PLOW UP FRENCH TRENCH.

The destruction of a French trench by running saps up to it and exploding dynamite therein is described in a letter from the front. The French had thrown up a trench 150 yards long only twenty-five yards in front of the German trench. The fact that it was not supplied with loopholes, although it was occupied, appeared to show that the occupants intended to sap up to the German trench. The Germans decided to do likewise.

At the end of fourteen days they had run two tunnels up to within a yard or so of the French trenches, and loaded one with twenty-two and the other with twenty-six pounds of dynamite. When all was ready, the charges were fired. The masses of earth hurled into the air were so large that the arms of two of the men in the German trenches were broken.

Before the dust had settled, the men rushed forward and sprang into the destroyed trench. It had caved in for most of its length. Only a few of the enemy were seen, and these, who were crawling from under heaps of soil, could offer no resistance. They were driven to the German trench, twenty-one prisoners in all. The total French loss was estimated at 100.

Berlin Patents.

GERMAN INVENTIVE GENIUS SHARPENED BY THE WAR.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—Nearly 4500 new patents were applied for at the Imperial Patent Office during the first five months of the war, and applications have continued equally numerous during January, showing that the inventive genius of the Germans has not been dulled by the crisis through which the nation is passing. Many hundreds of these discoveries relate in some way or other to the necessities of warfare. Among them are all kinds of apparatus for improving the efficiency of arms, swords and bayonets, and there are also a number of articles specially intended for the better protection of soldiers in the firing line, whom the inventors are also anxious to provide with improved cartridges and grenades for attacking the enemy.

New forms of arrows for aviators have been sent to the office in batches, while armor and safety appliances for flying machines have occupied much attention. Signals for new models, tools for trenching, tougher barbed wire and instruments for cutting that of the enemy are all objects of discoveries. The clothing of the troops and their protection against wet and cold come in for much notice, and it is to be remarked that over a hundred samples of wet-proof socks have been sent in. Patent head, ear, eye, nose, neck and knee protectors, shirts, pants, stockings, jackets and vests possessing some fresh advantage over the old kinds have been received, while rapid cookers for the field, hand and foot warmers, cigar and pipe lighters guaranteed to work in the stiffest breeze are among the articles submitted.

USE OIL CANS TO FLOAT RAFTS.

TURKS EMPLOY NOVEL PLAN TO CROSS INTO EGYPT VIA THE CANAL.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Feb. 10.—American oil cans figured prominently in the first attempt of the advance guard of the Turkish army seeking to invade Egypt to cross the Suez Canal. The Turkish rafts were floated by these cans—a fact suggested some time ago, and smiled at by doubting Englishmen. But a British correspondent on the canal, telegraphing under date of February 10, confirms the story.

After telling of the repulse of the Turks in that preliminary skirmish during which only four of the invaders, subsequently captured, succeeded in crossing the waterway, he says of rafts: The pontoon boats are made of galvanized steel rafts, ingeniously constructed of American "tenekes," as kerosene tins are styled in Turkey, attached to one another by hooks and rings fitted into wooden frames. A large wooden structure, apparently a raft, fitted on wheels and alternative wooden rollers, which was brought within a few miles of the canal, appears to have been burned by the enemy. . . . Nothing has been seen of the famous "India rubber bridge," of which the reports of the Bedouins had to much to tell.

CHINA STRONG FINANCIALLY.

CONDITION OF THE COUNTRY SURPRISES OPTIMISTS.

Outlook for this Year Even More Hopeful, with Prospect of Increased Revenue from Many Lucrative Sources—New Plan for Collection of Land Tax.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PEKING, Jan. 18.—The condition of China's finances at the end of 1914 has surprised even the optimists. A majority of those who believed they knew something of the actual internal condition of the country felt that while China might avoid actual financial shipwreck, she would be shown at the end of the year to be in such a position that only the most careful navigation could keep her off the lee-shore.

The republic's official new year has come and gone. The country is tranquil, the soldiery have been paid, the contributions from the provinces to the central government have been coming in well and the cost of administration is being met out of revenue. Moreover, the salt revenue has shown an astonishing increase and the accession of funds from this source alone has been such as to remove any fears that foreign bond-holders may have felt. Suggestions were made some time ago that the customs revenue would show a great falling off as a consequence of the European war. This belief has been gratifyingly falsified. Other sources of revenue have also been satisfactory.

The outlook for 1915 is even more hopeful. A very large increase in the salt revenue is assured. Furthermore, the land tax is to be collected upon some coherent plan instead of the wasteful, haphazard method of the past. The late Sir Robert Hart pointed out long ago that a properly adjusted and honestly collected land tax would relieve China of all financial anxiety. Without pressing in any way heavily upon the small land owner, a tax could be fixed that would produce a revenue that would cover the cost of the whole administration of government many times over.

It is understood that the government intends to enlist the services of Sir Richard Dane, who has done such good work in connection with the Salt Gabelle, in the task of reorganizing the land tax.

FREE TRADE IN SWEDEN MAY RESULT FROM WAR.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 24.—The action of the government in removing the import duty from corn, wheat and rye for the period ending next May, may result in a permanent free trade for Sweden so far as foodstuffs are concerned. The powerful Socialist party, which with the Liberals forms a legislative majority, has decided to make this its particular fight during the session of Parliament just concluded, which, says one of the Socialist leaders, means the beginning of the end of the protective tariff in Sweden.

When Sweden placed a duty on foods, twenty years ago, agriculture was still its main industry. The farmers feared ruin from American wheat and Russian rye. Since then the economic character of the country has completely changed. Sweden's prosperity now depends on its manufacture of wooden and metal ware, matches and other products, and the export of timber and iron ore. As the majority of the population depend on these trades, they object to the dwindling band of farmers profiting at their expense. When the war caused the price of foods to rise to exorbitant rates, Parliament was forced to suspend the duty on grains. This was done last month.

Lime-Loss in Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (January 17, 1914) was the following:

"It has been many times stated that in tuberculosis or in the pretuberculosis stage an increased amount of calcium (lime) is lost both in the urine and feces. In fact, a demineralization has been thought to be a forerunner of the development of tuberculosis. . . .

"Forced feeding of tuberculosis patients and the enormous amount of eggs and milk once given such patients are not now considered advisable by a large number of physicians who are specializing in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis."

If tuberculosis is due to a loss of lime from the system, the success of Eckman's Alterative in the treatment of this disease may be due, in part, to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Always we have urged users of Eckman's Alterative to attend strictly to matters of food.

In addition to rest and proper diet, some effective remedial agent seems to be needed, and in numerous cases of apparent recovery from tuberculosis and kindred throat and bronchial affections Eckman's Alterative has supplied this need.

It does not contain opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so it is safe to try. Your druggist has it or will order it, or you can get it from us direct.

A Never Failing Way to Banish Ugly Hairs

(Aids to Beauty.)

No woman is immune to superfluous growths, and because these are likely to appear at any time it is advisable to always have some delatone powder handy to use when the occasion arises. A paste is made with some of the powder and water and spread upon the hairy surface; in about two minutes this is carefully removed and the skin washed. You will then find that your skin is entirely free from hair or fuzz. Be sure, however, to get real delatone.

MANY CHURCHES ARE IN RUINS.

Steeples Afford Good Marks for Hostile Shells.

Prices of Bread Reasonable in City of Antwerp.

Annual Fair at Leipsic to be Held as Usual.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—The extent to which village churches have suffered damage is observed by an Associated Press correspondent, who recently visited many sections of the war area.

He found many regions where an undamaged building within a ten-mile radius of recent battle lines was a rarity, and an undamaged church almost unknown. With their high steeples, the churches have furnished most commanding observation points, and sooner or later some well-aimed shells have struck them. Strange pictures are occasionally presented by these ruins. At Bonnine, a hamlet perched on the heights northeast of Namur, shells have pierced the walls of the church tower from each side. The tower stands on four precarious corner legs of brick, and a gaping hole reveals the framework of the chimes, whose tones are now hushed. The Belgians had a lookout with a field telephone in the tower.

The churchyard tombstones had been upset or marked by flying splinters of shells, and one coffin had been bared by a plunging projectile. A hooded arrangement of iron, faced with glass, containing a wreath of immortelles, had been demolished. "Here reposes the little body of our M———," says the inscription of the marble slab. The name, except for the initial letter, has been defaced by a fragment of shell.

The fierceness of the conflict at Bonnine can be judged from the appearance of a field near the church. It contains about an acre of land. A hedge surrounds it. In all this acre there is no spot ten feet square where a shell has not fallen. Evidences of equally tremendous shell fire are seen inside the fortress at Givet. There, in a plot between two of the forts, some 140 by 250 feet, thirty-three shells had pitted the earth, and sixteen had struck upon the walls surrounding the plot.

Near Tilloy les Mofflaines, west of Arras, a cemetery was throughout a whole day the scene of desperate fighting. After the French had been driven out, they made a desperate attempt to dislodge the Germans. There is hardly a grave in the cemetery whose headstone is not broken or defaced, but the most prominent object in the enclosure, a crucifix some thirty feet high, does not bear a single mark.

FOOD LOW IN ANTWERP.

Dispatches from Antwerp announce that the Burgomaster has lowered the maximum prices for bread and flour, which are now 4.6 cents per pound for wheat bread, 3½ cents per pound for rye bread and 5¾ cents per pound for wheat flour. No more than eleven pounds of flour may be sold to one person at a time and dealers charging more than the maximum price render themselves liable to imprisonment up to five years. German papers print this dispatch with comment on the low price of food in Belgium as compared with those prevailing in Germany.

The usual Leipsic fair or Messe will be held there from March 1 to 5. The management, it is understood, expects a large attendance of buyers from the United States and the neutral countries of Europe. In this connection the Chamber of Commerce has issued a statement denying that German manufacturers are unable to fill foreign orders for goods, or that travelers have any special annoyances about passports at the German frontier. All travelers from neutral countries with properly vouched passports can pass the frontier and will meet with no difficulties inside Germany.

WHITE MAN'S WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

GERMANS TAKE STEPS TO PREVENT IT SPREADING TO THE BLACKS.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BLOEMFONTEIN (South Africa) Feb. 1.—German leaders in South Africa guiding the rebellion there against British rule—a rebellion now almost completely crushed—hoped to make it a "white man's war," both sides eliminating the native. That this was the desire of the Germans in Orange Free State was revealed by recent testimony at the court-martial of the rebel Boer Gen. Wessel Wessels, who surrendered in December and was placed on trial for high treason.

Early in the trial one of the chiefs of the Mopeli tribe in Orange Free State, called as a witness, produced a letter he said he had received from Wessels. The letter follows:

"We wish to wage a war of white against white, and, only in case the British should arm the coolies, would we count upon your then very welcome aid, as we are confident of victory over the British. We guarantee you your independence and the undisturbed possession of your country on condition that you remain quiet until we express a wish to the contrary.

Librarian of Parliament in Letter from Brussels Tells Touching Story of Effect Produced by the Reception of Touching Messages from this Country.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Belgians have been greatly moved by the sympathetic character of numerous messages or inscriptions which have accompanied gifts of provisions from the United States and Canada.

M. Paul Mussche, librarian of the Belgian Parliament, writes from Brussels as follows:

"In the warehouse kindly placed at the disposal of the commission at Brussels we found cases of corned beef, pork and beans, evaporated milk, oats, wheat, barrels of dried fish, and other cases of a more complex kind. They opened one of these before us. It contained a ham, three pots of jam covered with white paper, twenty-five kilos of apples, fifty kilos of potato and half a sausage. An inscription, almost effaced, showed that the case came from Hurtsboro, Ala. At the bottom the employee discovered a soiled slip of paper, on which a hesitating hand had traced these words:

"'To the unknown subject of a nation which is dying for respect of its word.'

"There were other cases, reaching to the top of the shed. Had they contained all the gold of Eldorado, they could not have moved us as much as this.

"Other cases bore different inscriptions. Among them we noticed a great many which came from Nova Scotia.

"With a sack of apples from Lower Grandville, N. S., came a letter addressed: 'To whoever will find this letter in Belgium.

"'Dear Belgians: Twenty-four of our neighbors met in my mother's house for the purpose of selecting these apples. We hope a great many Belgians will take refuge in our country, where there is plenty of room, and where we hope to continue enjoying peace.

"'Perhaps the person who will receive this letter will be among those to come here. If so, let him remember that the deepest sympathy and the greatest respect for your nation, as also for its good King, reign among the people of Lower Grandville, along the Annapolis Basin.'

"If only the misery reigning here in Belgium could be represented on a film, what an outburst of charity such a picture would cause.

"It is easy to understand why peasants from the depth of the country take off their caps on the passing of the American Commission's automobiles that fly the Stars and Stripes. They salute our only emblem of human sympathy and international solidarity."

AUSTRIANS HOLD SLAVS AT BAY.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

VIENNA, Feb. 10.—Franz Mohiar, the Hungarian playwright, who is acting as war correspondent in the Carpathians, tells how a small Austrian force, beleaguered in an ancient fortress with walls nine feet thick, held out for days against the attack of superior Russian forces, only to be forced in the end to surrender when Russian artillery fire crumbled the ancient structure's walls.

"The reason we lost so many prisoners in the Carpathians," he continues, "is because such detachments as I have mentioned above, who were holding certain points, had no chance of getting away when at last they were surrounded or reached by a considerably larger force. Retreating from a height through shining white snow with the enemy behind you on the top, plunging knee-deep in snow, and every dark figure an excellent target, is certain death. When these detachments were caught they had no choice but to surrender."

LIQUOR DOCTORED FOR THE BRITISH.

MANY CAIRO SALOONS CLOSED BECAUSE THE DRINKS ARE ADULTERATED.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

CAIRO, Feb. 10.—The parasitical element of the population of Cairo, native and foreign, anxious to get all the money possible out of British soldiers comprising the expeditionary force hereabout, resorted to such drugging and adulteration of liquors that prompt and drastic measures had to be taken by the authorities to cope with the situation.

Chief among the remedies was the establishment of "wet" canteens at camps where, in deference to prohibition, they had previously been barred. In other cases a number of bars and resorts were declared out of bounds by Gen. Sir J. Maxwell's orders, while a few were closed outright.

When the colonial troops and the territorials from England first arrived, there were many cases of men being poisoned by the drinks bought. Army physicians, working on the matter, found that samples of beer and spirits revealed remarkable ingredients. Beer was found to be extensively colored with the extract of Indian hemp, the plant from which "bhang" and "hash-hish," two of the most baneful drugs used by the orientals, are derived.

Some Want to Send Army to Europe, Others Don't.

Leading Tokio Newspapers Discuss Proposition.

Questions of the Far East of Most Importance.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, Jan. 30.—Strongly expressed opinion both for and against sending a Japanese army to Europe is found in the Japanese press.

The Osaka Mainichi remarks that although it has repeatedly drawn attention to the impossibility of sending Japanese troops to Europe it is to be regretted that there are still not a few who seriously favor the project of actively helping the allies. The paper continues:

"What most troubles us, however, is the apprehension increasingly entertained in England and in France as to our motives in the event of our assisting the allies. This apprehension is largely due to the reckless and imprudent manner in which some of us have insisted on Japan sending an army to Europe.

"To our thinking, those who consider it necessary to help the allies at the present moment do not represent the real opinion of our people and ignore the position which we occupy in our relation to other nations. Should the allied nations really be in need of our arms, their respective governments will communicate formally with our government. It is not the attitude of patriotic people, with the peace of the world at heart, to cause ill-feeling among our friends by insisting on the necessity of assisting the allies. Japan is confronted with several important questions relating to the Far East, which await urgent settlement and the allied nations would do well to remember that she cannot afford to send her troops to Europe."

The Tokio Yorodzu, on the other hand, prints an editorial in the French language and points out that Japanese participation would be accepted with joy by France, which has never raised or troubled itself over the question of races. England and Russia, far from opposing the scheme, thought the newspaper, would be equally happy at Japanese assistance. The writer adds:

"On the day we decided to act in Europe we will receive from the allies a formal guarantee of advantages which will indemnify us for all sacrifices. As to the question of transports that has certainly already been settled for the Anglo-Japanese alliance has always suggested the possibility of Japanese intervention in India as an ally of Great Britain."

The journal points out that Japanese participation would hasten the end of the great war which is so terrible even for neutral countries where stagnation of business increases from day to day and general misery is piling up.

It concludes that the military intervention of Japan is not only possible but necessary for the good of Japan and the good of the world.

EVEN GERMAN BOYS PLAY AT WAR.

GAMES CONDUCTED IN FOREST PRELIMINARY TO JOINING THE ARMY.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—Thousands of Berlin Pathfinders, the boy scouts of Germany, since the beginning of the war have spent their Sunday mornings in the forests around the capital in exercises intended to train them for their future career in the army. The other morning at an early hour the streets resounded with the marching of the Pathfinders making their way toward a rendezvous near Schulzendorf, starting from which place a sham battle had been arranged against another large body of Pathfinders coming from Hermsdorf. All were dressed in their gray uniforms, very much like the color of the field uniforms adopted by the army.

At a given signal the Berlin Pathfinders, the white army, entered the woods in search of the opposing red army. All their movements were carried out in almost complete silence. Soon dispatch riders on bicycles or on foot came hurrying back to headquarters with the report that the "enemy" had been located, and shortly afterward loud hurrahs announced an engagement, as a result of which the white army succeeded in taking great numbers of the red army prisoners and carrying off the victory.

The Pathfinders have their own headquarters in the woods. The building has been erected by the boys themselves and all around it are well-constructed trenches of striking similarity to those at the real "front."

AUSTRIAN ARMY SHY OF RIFLES.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PETROGRAD, Feb. 10.—Austria has from the beginning of the war mobilized between 3,000,000 and 3,600,000 men, including all men liable to military service up to 42 years of age, and also the drilled recruits of the class of 1915, says the Budapest correspondent of the Novoe Vremya. Semi-official information places the losses up to December 10 at 900,000, killed and wounded, exclusive of missing and prisoners.

The Austrian army is now suffering from a deficiency of rifles, according to the correspondent. At the beginning of the war the landsturm were armed with rifles of the 1870 pattern, a part receiving even shotguns. Germany sent a million modern pieces to the Austrians, but a deficiency has again arisen. It is said that the gendarmes have had to turn their rifles over to the soldiers, receiving pistols instead. Work of manufacturing a new supply is proceeding night and day at Steyr and other arsenals, with an output of 30,000 arms weekly, which will be increased to 53,000 by March.

BRITAIN'S SHIPS SHOW DECREASE.

LESS MERCHANT VESSELS PUT OUT LAST YEAR THAN YEAR BEFORE.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Great Britain's output of new merchant ships during 1914 shows a decrease of 248,600 tons over the record year of 1913; at the same time the past year's building of 656 vessels of 1,683,553 tons will compare favorably with any other good period.

Of the vessels launched in 1914, says Lloyd's Register in its summary, a fourth of the tonnage went to other countries, of which Holland was the largest single buyer. The Clyde district still remains first in Great Britain in ship construction, followed by the Tyne, the Wear, Belfast, Middlesborough and Hartlepool.

Outside the United Kingdom there were launched 663 vessels of 1,169,200 tons during the past year, a decrease of 231,000 tons as compared with 1913. Germany led in this production with 337,192 tons, the United States with 200,762 tons, Holland 118,153 tons and France 114,052 tons.

Warship tonnage is not included in these returns.

WIN GREAT DUNE BY STRATEGEM.

ALGERIANS CAPTURE TRENCHES BY CLEVER TRICK.

Wandering Horses Taken by Germans and are Followed by Another Contingent the Next Night with Their Owners Riding Concealed Beneath Their Bellies.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The ruse whereby Algerian horsemen gained a footing in the Great Dune, between the Ostend road and the sea, has just become known.

The German position appeared most impregnable, the Germans having made the place a sort of warren, from which they sniped the sappers attempting to mine their position. The French advance was slow until the Algerian horsemen hit upon a plan.

One morning six fine Arab horses wandered, apparently quite accidentally, between the French and German lines. The Germans were careful not to fire on them, preferring to capture the animals when they got near enough to their trenches. On the following day, towards nightfall, twenty-four horses appeared on the same ground. In the half light the Germans were only able to distinguish their vague outlines and to see that they were unmounted. They were preparing to welcome them as another useful capture when, in response to a sharp cry the two dozen horses, kicking up their heels, galloped back to the French trenches. Thereupon twenty-four gray forms rose from the ground to throw themselves into the German trenches. Concealing themselves in eastern fashion under the bellies of their mounts, the Algerians had arrived almost at the edge of the hostile trenches, which they proceeded to attack with fury. The second German line did not dare to fire for fear of shooting their own men in the uncertain light, and the Germans wavered. At this moment the French infantrymen arrived for support.

At 10 o'clock in the evening they had gained possession of the Great Dune with but small losses.

LONDON BREAD LINE LONGER THAN USUAL

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The increasing price of bread is giving Great Britain serious concern, but it will not react appreciably on the cost of living of London's poor, who exist largely on the stale foods that the dealers are glad to get rid of at a nominal charge.

Every bakeshop in London has, even in normal times, its evening bread line. Since the war, the number of people in the lines has increased. Stale fish used to find a wide market, but since the war began fish dealers have bought so carefully, owing to the high price, that there is practically none left over at the day's end. Many shops and resturants charge nothing for their waste, and support a number of deserving dependents.

Scarcity of labor, shortage of ships and heavy war risks are held jointly responsible for the increased price of flour. Floods have ruined a large part of the vegetable farms supplying London, and heavy rains caused considerable damage in truck gardens in other parts of the United Kingdom.

RULE OF SAFETY WHEN UNDER FIRE

In Case of a Bombardment Rush for the Cellar.

And it Ought to be Deep and Strongly Vaulted.

One Shell Enough to Destroy St. Paul's Cathedral.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Dec. 2.—"How to Keep Safe Under Shell Fire" is the title of a statement given to the press by a prominent army officer, for the benefit of coast towns.

"The first fact to bear in mind," he says, "is that no buildings in this country, however substantial, offer any protection against bombardment by warships. The biggest guns brought into action by the Germans at Scarborough and Hartlepool were of 12-inch caliber. These fire a projectile weighing about 900 pounds, one of which would be sufficient to lay the great cathedral of St. Paul in ruins.

"The other guns used were 11-inch, 8.2-inch and 9.9-inch, throwing, respectively, shells weighing 700, 350 and 100 pounds. The lightest of these projectiles would go through the walls of any building as if they were brown paper, and its bursting charge of high explosive would detonate inside with annihilating effect.

"The inside of a house, then, is the very worst place to be during a bombardment, for if a shell strikes the building and the inmates have the luck to escape direct injury from the explosion or the flying splinters they are almost certain to be buried in falling debris or imprisoned and at the mercy of the fire which usually breaks out.

"The next most unsatisfactory place is the street. Shells bursting on the hard pavements are most destructive; to their own splinters of steel are added flying fragments of stone, each a deadly missile. The person in the street is also in imminent danger from the falling walls of houses and from bricks and tiles that go hurling about.

"Where, then, is safety to be found? The only place to be recommended is a cellar, and that must be deep and strongly vaulted. If such a place is available its use is recommended. Go into it the moment bombardment begins and stay until you are quite sure all danger is past. If the building above is supplied with gas turn it off at the meter. If possible, take candles, food and water with you into your subterranean quarters, for the time of your stay is uncertain and your exit may be blocked by debris.

"Apart from such a cellar, the best place to be when shells are falling is the open country, well away from hard roads and trees and buildings. A low, soft ditch, out of sight of the enemy on the reverse slope of rising ground, is the position that I should choose.

"Whatever is done, let it be done without panic. Panic adds immensely to the sum of the danger; it means blind rushes in which the weaker ones always suffer, it means also the overlooking of avenues of safety and neglect of many precautions.

"Curiosity is one of the strongest impulses in human nature; often it is stronger than the fear of death, and so has fatal results. We had examples of this at Hartlepool and Scarborough; when the German shells began to fall people crowded out into the streets, curious to see what was going on. And many such were among the killed and wounded."

CAN FIND FAME AT SAVONA, ITALY.

ONE MAY HAVE STREET NAMED IN HIS HONOR THERE BY A GIFT.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Anyone paying $10,000 to the town of Savona, Italy, recently stricken by earthquake, can have himself immortalized by a street named in his honor. It is Savona's main street. Besides, the donor's name will be inscribed on a monument in the principal square and his generosity commemorated yearly by services in the Town Hall, the free schools and also in the churches, if he chances to be a Roman Catholic.

In a printed appeal sent to England, addressed to lovers of classical antiquities, the authorities of Savona say:

"A commune which derives its name and its origin from the great friend of Cicero, Pomponius Atticus, situated in one of the most smiling valleys of the Appenines, in a fertile and well-tilled region amid hills of classic memories, seems destined to enjoy a respectable future if it can secure these improvements which progress demands. Hitherto it has been able to secure roads to save it from isolation, schools with suitable buildings, lighting, drinking water; but it has not, and never can, secure the sums necessary for a complete clearance of unsanitary areas without which any improvement of hygiene, cleanliness and esthetics is impossible."

In regard to the honors paid the donor the circular adds:

"The municipality promises this formally in the hope of finding a generous man worthy to unite his name with the immortal name of Pomponius Atticus. Apply to Guido Cofolla, via Montenotte 21, Savona, Italy."

LARGER PENSIONS RECOMMENDED.

ENGLISH HOUSE OF COMMONS WOULD INCREASE THE WAR RATE.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Feb. 16.—A special committee of the House of Commons, which has been considering the matter of pensions for fighting men and their widows, has at last made its report, recommending largely-increased rates for all classes of pensioners. The new rates, if approved by Parliament, are to take effect March 1.

Under the new scheme the rate for total disablement will be $6.25 a week, with an additional allowance of 63 cents a week for each child. In case of partial disablement the soldier is to receive "such amount as with the wages which the man may be deemed capable of earning will amount to $6.25 a week," with a discr[illegible] allowance not exceeding 63 cents a week for each child.

All the committee's recommendations show about 100 per cent increase over the rates in effect prior to the war.

A widow without children is to receive from $2.50 to $3.75 a week; if there are children this amount is substantially increased.

The allowance for wives whose husbands are at the front is increased to a rate from $3.15 a week for those who are childless to $6.25 a week for the mother of four children.

The question of pensions to officers probably will be dealt with later by the committee. At present the widow of a flag officer, captain or commodore is given $600 a year, with an allowance of about $100 a year additional for each child.

TRY A LITTLE SALTS IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER ARE TROUBLING YOU

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and cause no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms of diseases are given and the answer will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice may address Dr. Lewis Baker, Culver College-Elkwood Sts., Dayton, O., inclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. Prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order it from any wholesaler.

M. R. writes: "I have indigestion or dyspepsia, or nervous indigestion, more or less for 2 years, and I want you to prescribe treatment for me; my symptoms are the usual ones, such as pain and distress after eating, sour stomach, headache, nervousness and pain in regions of heart, between shoulders, constipation, or sometimes diarrhea, coated tongue, bad breath, and I am score more. Am miserable, to a well-known degree."

Answer: Your case is chronic, but with careful diet and the regular use of a good kidney and tonic you should soon recover a good state. Obtain a packet of "Wilson's stomach and bowel medicine" of a druggist. With it are directions. This is the quickest and best treatment I know of.

C. J. R. asks: "Can I safely increase my weight and how?"

Answer: Go to a well-stocked druggist and get five-grain arbolene tablets in a sealed tube with complete directions. Use as directed and you should soon find the increase you desire. Many of my patients report quick results without any harmful effects whatever.

Ellen J. asks: "Tell me, please, how I can increase my weight and improve my color. I seem to be anemic, and am tired all the time."

Answer: Begin taking three-grain nucleine tablets with your meals and in a few you will feel strength returning and will gradually regain your weight and energy. This is a most effective remedy and acts instantly used.

J. W. W. asks: "Can you recommend a reliable treatment to get rid of a most annoying and feverish scalp?"

Answer: I know you can get relief and permanent results by using a sulphur yellow mineol as per directions with each company each 4-oz. Jar.

"Morris" asks: "I have suffered from a chronic cough for almost a year. Every time I catch a fresh cold every few weeks I have a bad attack of coughing the doctor gives me helps me a little, but only for a short time. Can you suggest anything to you."

Answer: You need a thorough treatment for your cough syrup, one that not only relieves but surely drives it from the system. The following regularly used will cure any cough or cold promptly: Obtain a 2-oz. bottle of essence menthe-laxene, and with a home-made sugar syrup of honey as per directions on bottle.

Miss "Stranger" asks: "I am suffering from a chronic condition due to a long neglected catarrhal trouble. Briefly I have Catarrh (leucorrhea) and other disturbances and throat. What local treatment is good for a cure?"

Answer: I am quite sure that Vi-Tone or Vitane Powder is the most effective treatment that one can use. Full directions accompany each two or eight ounce package. Don't neglect catarrhal trouble.

Thousands Stop Gray Hair by this Simple Method

Not a crude dye, but a restorer, clear and pure as water and as dainty.

Applied by combing through your hair—simple and easy.

Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer

Trial Package 25 Cents by Mail, with Comb

Send us 25 cents in stamps and tell us the color of your hair before it turned gray. Was it black, dark brown, medium brown or light brown? Better still, send a lock in your letter.

We will at once forward you a trial bottle, with a special comb with which to apply it which you can use on a lock of hair. Then watch how it comes back to its original color. The gray hairs simply disappear.

Then, when this test has proved that the rest of your hair can be restored as completely and perfectly as this one lock, get a full-size bottle, price $1.00.

Your druggist will have it or, if you prefer, send direct to us. We gladly take care of personal orders.

Nordenskiold made the trip [illegible] panied by his wife, without [illegible] either.

ART AND ARTISTS.

ANTONY ANDERSON.

[illegible] in the Orchard.
[illegible] carved a flute of alder green
And notched it well and true.
[illegible] pursed his lips and puffed his cheeks,
And merrily he blew.

[illegible] it was spring-time holiday,
A sun-tanned boy was he,
[illegible] russet freckles on his face,
And a patch upon his knee.

[illegible] apple boughs above him flung
Their tangled sprays on high,
[illegible] one dark, bristly bluejay nest
Sketch-sketched against the sky.

[illegible] knew the secrets of the grass,
The burden of the hour,
[illegible] saw the fierce, bluff bumblebee
Pause many a clover flower.

[illegible]aned and poor as poor could be,
The years before him lay
[illegible] billows of an unknown sea,
[illegible] lighthouse on the way.

[illegible] yet, and yet his elder flute
Could bring him comfort true;
[illegible] pursed his lips and puffed his cheeks
And blew, and blew, and blew!

[illegible]ald Cassidy's Indians.

Civilization, the inexorable, has made stealthy advance upon the American Indian, and though it has touched him it has not yet quite marred him. He has been changed, but he has not parted with all his aboriginal traits and traditions. In Arizona and New Mexico, especially, the place of the ornamental pueblo, he still remains a picturesque, an inviting "subject" for the painter.

Not one painter but many have added to his picture-making possibilities. Sharp, Rollins, Couse, Sauerwein and others, have even pitched permanent tents near him, studying his inmate life and probing into his character. Their rewards have been rich, and some of the best present-day American pictures are pictures of American Indians. Intrinsically valuable as works of art, they are no less precious as records of a passing race and manner of life. They are perhaps more truly "of the soil" than any other pictures painted in this country. Gerald Cassidy is another close student of the pueblo Indian's character. Coming from New York to New Mexico several years ago, his enthusiasm has kept him there ever since, and he has painted many phases of the life that so enchanted him, being particularly happy and successful in his Navajo genres, whose intimate symbolism makes them delightful as pictures and convincing as studies in character.

Cassidy has an amazing "gift"—it is nothing less—for portraiture. Though his construction and modeling of the head are so near perfection that his skill astounds you, he yet goes below the surface and reaches the soul of the man, child or infant he is portraying. Assuredly all coons don't look alike to him. Every one of his sitters is sharply individualized, though without a touch of exaggeration.

But his brilliant water colors are pictures as well as portraits, and their interest is largely that of the genre, though many of his Indians are doing nothing in particular—"just hanging around" and looking picturesque in a gorgeous blanket and a figured handkerchief. They may not be in such negligent and colorful splendor all the time, but somehow Gerald Cassidy makes you believe they do.

A score of these opulent loungers—opulent in the artistic sense, I mean, of leisure and color—may now be found ranged along the walls of the Elizabeth Battey gallery on East Colorado street, in Pasadena. They will remain there two weeks longer. Go and look at them. Your interested scrutiny will not disturb their dignified ease. Often their dignity has the classic pose you will find. "A Man of Acoma," for instance, shows us the noble front, the proud pose, of a resting runner in the [illegible] faces. How keen and fine is its action and expression of "The Drum Man," whose brilliant coloring are yet perfectly harmonized. Cassidy, indeed, is never afraid of color, and he always knows how to manage it. He plays with clashing tints and makes them mutually helpful. The red piece of color in the exhibition, and also the strongest character study, "Navajo Medicine Man," whose [illegible]ed old face expresses intelligence and nobility. We find green, orange and blue in pure touches, yet there is no garish restlessness.

"Big Mike," an Apache, has a strong-marked face full of alert intelligence. The eyes are keen and search-[illegible]. Handkerchiefs of red and yellow are bound his head and neck. The face of an Indian in Firelight," seen against a background of luminous blue and [illegible] is also strong and fine. "The Basket Maker," more of a picture than others, gives us a young Indian [illegible] in a red blanket. He is perched [illegible] an adobe wall, and he holds up a [illegible]en of his wares. Beside him are [illegible] and vases that show Cassidy's [illegible]erity in still-life painting.

[illegible]wo Apache boys, one against a [illegible] orange and red background, the [illegible] clad in a blue blouse, are beautifully drawn and painted. Cassidy is [illegible]r when he pictures youth. And he is happier when he comes to child-life. "A Child of Taos" is a com-[illegible] little fat-cheeked baby boy in [illegible], while "Apache Papoose" is a [illegible] infant bound in his tight cradle and protected by a sort of pink [illegible]. The color scheme of grayish [illegible] in the last-named picture is [illegible]. In "The Little Nurse" we [illegible] a small girl carrying pick-a-[illegible] an infant almost as big as herself. The little nurse is panting, but [illegible]ed on doing her duty, the baby's [illegible] is pursed into stoical endurance [illegible] jolts. It is a charming study [illegible] life.

[illegible] name of F. Hopkinson Smith [illegible] a sort of household word to the [illegible]ration just past. He was known [illegible] a man of gigantic stature, and [illegible] considered to have commensurate [illegible]rs and capacities. He turned out [illegible] stories, novels, pictures and [illegible]es with ease and dexterity, and [illegible] popularly supposed to turn them [illegible]ut remarkably well. He is still [illegible] these things.

[illegible] pictures and the stories are [illegible]ir shelves and in our galleries, [illegible]rove their title to our regard. [illegible] If we knew where to look [illegible] them. Their popularity has [illegible]ually waned (I speak of the books [illegible]water colors,) though the painter [illegible]r has not varied his subjects very [illegible] from year to year, from generation to generation.

[illegible]wever, I doubt whether his name [illegible]w so awe-inspiring as it was—[illegible] are today so many claimants for [illegible]hold honors. He doesn't write [illegible] better than he did twenty-five [illegible] ago, and his water colors are [illegible] by what they always were, clever, [illegible] sketches, in gouache, of the Venetian [illegible] lagoons and the Dutch canals. [illegible]ith must have visited Holland [illegible] Venice a prodigious number of [illegible] for the souvenirs of his travels [illegible]ursion. "Desdemona's Window," by F. Hopkinson Smith.

...more water color studies. He is a man of fine intelligence, of quick impressions, and he is gifted with great versatility and facility. His sympathies are wide as his vision, his curiosity is unbounded. He is so American, in short, that his success in many fields follows as a matter of course.

Though he wrote well and painted well thirty years ago, he did not produce great books or great pictures, and he does not do so today. Indeed, his technical expression, especially in painting, has not changed, his art has seen no "periods" of growth. He appeared on the scene armed cap-a-pie for conquest and achieved it at once. Not the biggest triumph, of course, but still a triumph. And he has stood ever since precisely on the spot where he won. This is said to be an impossible feat—you either advance or go back—but F. Hopkinson Smith has proved it to be not impossible.

Thirty of his water colors are now being exhibited in the gallery of Raymond Gould on West Fifth street. They are from Venice and Holland, with a few from outside places. They touch lightly on the surfaces of things, on the silvery light of morning over the serried ranks of pink and gray casas and the quiet Grand Canal in Venice, on the grayer skies that bend over the deeper-hued houses by the sluggish streams in Holland, on sunlit plazas and multi-colored interiors. They do not delve below these charming exteriors, but within their obvious limitations they are refreshingly happy and forceful. Smith is a painter rather than an artist. I have never heard that he has written poetry—and certainly he has not painted it.

But every man must do what the gods have decreed—and it were well to remember the fate of the man who snatched fire from Zeus. Let us be thankful for the capable man who is "onto his job" and doesn't shirk it. F. Hopkinson Smith is such a man. He has given genuine pleasure to hundreds of thousands, and it is good to know he is still doing it. He has done it honestly, with a sincere talent untiringly applied, and his rewards have been just and considerable.

You will like many of the pictures he is now showing in the Gould gallery, perhaps all of them—"Voorstraat Haven, Dortrecht," in cool greens and grays; "The Nieuwe Haven," whose grays glimmer with delicate pinks and greens; "A Hazy Morning, Venice," with its opaline sky; "Casa Brunelli," "Traghetto of San Felice," "The Marmouset, Inn of William the Conqueror," "Desdemona's Window," and so on.

The exhibition opened on Wednesday and will continue for about three weeks.

Impressions by Doris Rosenthal.

Miss Rosenthal's seven pictures from the Panama-Pacific Exposition, painted while it was in process of construction, and therefore showing the delicate skeleton framework of many of the buildings, have the charm of variety as to moods and mediums, the medium changing with the moods. All seven, with sixteen other impressions, are now on exhibition at the State Normal School, where they may be seen to March 5.

The handsome new gallery at the Normal is a good place for showing pictures, and it is pleasant to know that exhibitions there will be frequent, many excellent collections being promised from the East as well as the West. Miss Rosenthal's is the first to be given. When you enter the gallery, you will see opposite you at the head of the stairs three post-impressions in oil, as full of decorative color as stained-glass windows, which, in fact, they closely resemble when looked at from the proper distance.

The artist has used water color over charcoal outlines, with touches of colored chalk over this, in some of the most successful of her San Francisco studies. "Fine Arts Building," perhaps the best, is full of a brooding purple harmony, the morbidezza of twilight.

Equally successful are the studies made in oil on paper—"Fairyland," done with fine simplicity, the vivid green foreground leading up to splendid domes and minarets; "From my Window," roofs seen in the crystal air of early morning, bare branches of trees reaching across the picture.

Vigorous, direct strokes, each charged with pure, resonant color, characterize those made in the medium of oil on canvas—"Triumphal Arch, Court of Universe," a scheme of pinks, blues and grays; "Reverie," pillars of a building that show a purple tone despite the pure color of many hues with which the picture is built up.

Two sketches of the pavilion at Long Beach are vigorously done in the short, square strokes of a brush charged with unmixed color. This method, of course, would have proved disastrous with some of the other pictures, and so the artist wisely put it aside in favor of a method expressive of greater refinement and subtlety.

The Normal School is reached by several car lines, Heliotrope drive, Franklin avenue and Colegrove.

ART NOTES.

The most important exhibition for the month of March is that of Elmer Wachtel and Marion Kavanaugh Wachtel, which opens tomorrow in the Steckel gallery, to continue through the entire month. Each artist will show about twenty paintings.

Pictures by two members of the California Art Club, Gardner Symons and Ben Foster, are reproduced in the February number of the International Studio, illustrations accompanying W. H. de B. Nelson's article on "Contemporary Exhibitions of Modern Art."

During March, paintings by Max Wieczorek will be exhibited at the Friday Morning Club. Wieczorek is an able and versatile painter of portraits, figures and landscapes, and a notable designer in stained glass.

At the Elizabeth Battey gallery, Pasadena, William Swift Daniell is showing a number of recent landscapes, some of his best, done in oil and water color.

BELGIAN ARMY IS REORGANIZED.

ALL THE OLD GENERALS RETIRE AND ARE SUCCEEDED BY YOUNGER MEN.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

HAVRE, Jan. 31.—The Belgian army has lately undergone a complete shake-up and reorganization, followed by the retirement of all the generals commanding divisions, including even the brilliant Gen. Bertrand, who is incapacitated by illness. These officers have been replaced by younger and more active men.

From officials connected with the Belgian government at Havre it is learned that the new army is divided into six divisions. Mixed brigades have been dispensed with, and, as cavalry can play no active role in the present trench warfare, its officers and men are largely serving as infantry.

A section of auto-cannons has been created in imitation of the Germans, who used these mobile weapons in their surprise attacks on Furnes and Coxyde, being able to run in close to the enemy lines and escape unscathed, especially during times of fog. As the Belgian cyclists have already established a record of daring in their assaults within the German lines, the auto artillery is expected to give an equally good account of itself. Its commander is Maj. Colon, late military attache at Paris.

CHINA'S ONE HOPE IS UNITED STATES.

GREAT WAR FORCES HER TO SEEK LOANS FROM AMERICANS.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PEKING, Jan. 31.—Untrustworthy reports of huge American loans to China are constantly appearing in the Far East. China, having depended for a long time on loans from Europe, is now forced by the European war to turn her attention elsewhere, and America is the country to which the Chinese naturally look, because of America's traditional wealth and friendly support. Efforts have been made to interest American financiers on China's behalf both by Americans and Chinese, some bankers having gone as emissaries to the United States to see what could be done. Each time the test is made the papers of the Far East announce the project as though it were an accomplished fact. The Chinese government, however, is turning its attention to the floating of loans at home, and to new methods of taxation.

WAR TOPICS IN CHURCHES.

Extent to Which it Dominates All Activities is Shown by Programme of English Sects.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

MANCHESTER (Eng.) Feb. 10.—The extent to which war dominates all branches of activity in England is shown by the programme for the annual congress of the Free Churches, which is to be held in Manchester, early in March. The subjects of discussion deal almost exclusively with the war, or with the work of reconstruction which must follow it. A few subjects, selected at haphazard from the programme, are:

"Problems of the War from a Christian Standpoint."

"Duty of the Churches in Time of War: To Render such Service as the Nation Demands; to Maintain the Christian Attitude in the National Life; to Combat the Tendency to Militarism."

"Basis of a Lasting Peace."

"New Opportunity Offered by the War for Work in Our Own Country."

"Effect of War on Rest Day, Temperance, and Women's Work."

"Call to the Church Created by the Rally of the Empire."

"War and Essential Unity of the Church of God."

FORGET TO SHOOT.

Soldiers Often Get so Engrossed in Their Work that They Overlook the War.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 30.—"We sometimes get so interested in the progress of our work with the spade that we forget to use our rifles when opportunity offers," writes an engineer officer from the front.

"There is a trench position in front of our position here which is for the time being held partly by the English and partly by the Germans, with sand bag barricade between them. Last night it rained and blew with great violence, and the barricade came down.

"On one side was a British soldier, and on the other a German. Instead of trying to shoot each other's heads off, they quietly began to pile the sacks in position again. First the Englishman put up a sack, then the German, until all was finished. Then they said 'good night' and dropped back in this sentry positions."

KING'S GUIDE MISQUOTED.

Declares He Never Made Statement That Albert Predicted a World-wide War.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

GENEVA, Jan. 30.—The Wallister Poste recently published a statement to the effect that King Albert of Belgium, with a Swiss guide, was on the Zermatt in the Alps at the time the news came of the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand of Austria, last autumn, and that the King, on hearing the news, said: "In four weeks we shall have a world-wide war."

The Swiss guide who was with the King at the time denies the statement and has brought an action for libel against the paper by permission of the King.

Why People Are Suspicious of Advertising Dentists

Many advertising dentists make claims which are intended to deceive. For instance: "Advertising best set of teeth for $5, for this week only" and "For ten days other work at half price." Then practically the same special price advertisement is run as long as the dental company lasts.

In reality a dentist of this kind promises something for nothing. Sometimes the prospective patient is told that the kind of work advertised will not do for his mouth. Or, after making a deposit he is told that it would be better for his mouth to have another kind of work, but at a higher price.

Doing poor or unnecessary work, giving a 20-year guarantee, and moving before the work has time to be tested as to durability—are things advertising dentists, as a class, have been condemned for by their own profession and the public.

However, this kind of business on the part of unscrupulous advertising dentists, makes the field of success greater for the reliable advertising dentist, namely, one who does not perform miracles, but keeps just a little ahead of most men in his profession. This he ought to do, because the one great advantage advertising dentists have over private practitioners is that of having more patients, and, therefore, a greater opportunity to develop professional skill.

All the dentists in this office are given a definite salary, which is more than they could make running a single chair for themselves.

Our specialties are treating Pyorrhea and making teeth without plates if you have two or more roots in either jaw.

We also make plates to restore expression and prevent shrinking gums.

By our Analgesic method we can extract, fill, crown, or remove live nerves without pain.

TURN TO SWISS FOR ANILINE DYES.

ENGLAND HOPES TO BE ABLE TO REPLENISH HER SMALL STOCKS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Feb. 27.—In discussing the efforts which the government has been making to obtain supplies of aniline dyes in place of those formerly purchased from Germany, Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, said in the House of Commons today that the stock of dyes in England had run so low that a large group of industries dependent upon them would be interfered with seriously unless emergency measures were adopted. He stated that the government had made arrangements for forwarding supplies of raw materials to certain Swis manufacturers who were to return finished dyes for them.

BUSINESS IS DELAYED.

Bulgarian Port is Choked With European Traffic and Many Steamers are Waiting for Docking Facilities.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

DEDEAGATCH (Bulgaria) Jan. 31.—Since the closing of the Dardanelles this port has been almost choked with import and export trade. With Genoa it is sharing the advantage of being a neutral port available for the accommodation of Southern Europe. The docks are loaded constantly, and a dozen or more steamers are usually anchored in the roadstead awaiting docking facilities, which were not planned for a trade like the present unprecedented one. Thousands of passengers have passed through here who never before visited it, and enormous quantities of merchandise are in transit to and from Russia, Rumania and other Balkan states. If the port had adequate facilities for handling the traffic that would gladly be dispatched through here, the Bulgarian government would have received a vastly larger revenue than the very considerable one now coming to it. In this respect Constantinople's loss is Dedeagatch's gain.

PRAISE OF BRITISH FOR GERMAN FOE.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—British troops at the front are growing free with their praise of individual acts of bravery of the German foe, of which an instance appears in a published letter written by Sergt-Maj. A. Hands of the Gordon Highlanders. He says:

"We have a foe worthy of our best, and we don't despise him. I saw a German carry one of our wounded to a shelter so that no fire could reach him, and then walk to his own lines in the face of a heavy fire of artillery. That is the man we fight. I wonder whether the Kaiser grants iron crosses for that kind of work?"

Sweeping out Mines.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 30.—A flotilla of Swedish torpedo boats and mine sweepers has been sent from Stockholm to clear mines from Swedish water. All traffic from Stockholm to Gothland has been suspended in consequence of the mine danger.

FREEZE TO DEATH IN PEKING STREETS.

COLDEST WEATHER ON RECORD VISITS THE CAPITAL OF CHINA.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PEKING, Jan. 18.—The coldest snap that ever visited Peking within the memory of the oldest foreign resident has just paid China's capital a visit. It is proverbially impossible to get any vital statistics here, but there seems reason to believe that the semi-official statement that 300 persons perished from cold last Tuesday was an underestimate. The mercury fell to 8 deg. below zero. Soldiers were frozen to death on sentry duty. In the various ministries officials swaddled in about ten suits of clothes shivered over their work.

Twelve rebels were to be shot on Tuesday. It is usual to strip these condemned men to the waist and then to keep them waiting for an hour or two until the officer in charge of the firing party makes up his mind to tear himself away from the American stove, which warms most official residence and barracks. Two of the condemned men froze to death while waiting.

GREATEST FEAR OF AN OFFICER.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—"The greatest feeling of fear I ever experienced," writes an officer who has been at the front in France since the fighting began, "was yesterday, when I was carrying several cases of champagne across a field where the bullets were thickest.

"A well-known champagne merchant had given me the key to his cellar and asked me to get out a dozen cases of wine for the field hospital in the rear of our position. I undertook to do this, but found it a task worthy of the Victoria Cross, for I had to carry each case to a motor car across an exposed place where the whistle of bullets was continuous.

"For the first time during the war I was afraid—terribly so. No one could have been more terrified. I wasn't afraid of being killed, but if I had been hit while carrying champagne from a vacant house everyone would have said, 'Served the looter right.' Who would have believed that I was taking it to a hospital?"

BELGIAN DOCTORS ADMITTED FREE.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Special legislation is announced, admitting Belgian medical men to practice in this country without going through the usual examinations and investigation. The customary fee of $25 is also remitted.

Gift to Von Hindenburg.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—The Municipal Council of Berlin has voted an appropriation of $40,000 for the purchase of a complimentary gift to Gen. Von Hindenburg.

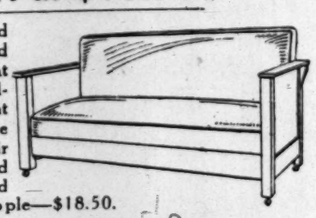
—The bed part when open makes a very comfortable bed—the springs are just 2 inches narrower than the regulation full sized bed—

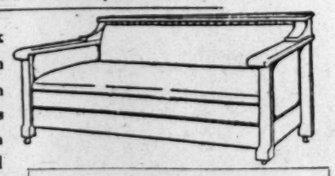
—This bed is easily operated and the mattress and bedding may be folded up with the springs, as the space which encloses the springs is properly ventilated—$22.50.

Bed Davenport at $18.50



—neatly designed solid fumed oak ends and wardrobe under the seat—the back may be adjusted to four different angles — giving all the comfort of a Morris Chair—When made into a bed it is very comfortable and is plenty large for two people—$18.50.

Bed Davenport at $24.75



—massive fumed oak frame upholstered with good imitation Spanish Leather—The springs are covered, making a very comfortable bed without using a mattress — A Davenport that is decidedly under actual worth at $24.75.

THE HELPING HAND.

So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Four years ago a young man, ill and hungry, knocked at the door of Mrs. Jennie Wolf and her sister Bessie at their home in Chicago and begged for food. They gave him food, and when he went away he said he would remember them in his will. The other day the sisters received the news that he was dead and that he had bequeathed them $50,000.

As a reward for "prolonging her life," Dr. N. Francis Brecker, No. 3347 St. Alban's place, Philadelphia, was made the sole beneficiary in a will made by Jennie Torrens, 63 years old, of 1837 Pemberton street, who died in the Polyclinic Hospital after lying there ill for two days. Two building lots and $700 in cash constitute the case. Dr. Brecker was unaware of the good fortune until he was called on the telephone by the aged woman's attorneys. She believed that she would not live long, and prepared her will. She was suffering from heart and kidney trouble, and many times during the last two years she called Dr. Brecker at all hours of the night when she believed she was dying. She appreciated his services that she decided to reward him.

Patrick W. Mulligan, a railroad gate watchman at Norristown, Pa., has been awarded a life-saving medal by President Wilson for heroism displayed in saving the life of a 3½-year-old child at a railroad crossing in the Pennsylvania town. Mulligan is the sixteenth man to win such a medal. He had lowered the gates for an approaching train, but the child got under them and on the track. Mulligan called, but the child did not heed. He leaped after the child, but the train struck both, seriously injuring them. The accident happened August 13 last.

The American Jewish Relief Committee for War Sufferers, with headquarters at New York, announced last week the appropriation of $300,000, to be divided equally between Jewish sufferers of Russian and German Poland. Every effort is being made to obtain a food ship for Palestine. This, so far, has proved exceedingly difficult. It is hoped a fair-sized ship will be chartered before long, and for that purpose an additional appropriation has been made aside from the $160,000 available. Food supplies will be distributed regardless of race or religion except that most is to be used for the Jewish population.

Mrs. Louise F. Shirley, who died in San Diego Christmas Eve, left $70,000 of her $70,000 estate to charity, according to the will filed in the Superior Court. The Young Women's Christian Association will get $10,000 under the will and 7 per cent bonds from the day of Mrs. Shirley's death. The Day Nursery at the Helping Hand Home will receive a similar amount.

Gov. Whitman of New York last week presented to Dr. Ernest E. Just (colored,) 31 years old, of the Harvard University medical school, the Skingarm medal for the highest achievement during the year by one of African descent and American citizenship.

By a daring swim twenty feet under ice, Jack Kreisberg, 15, of Oakland, recently saved an 8-year-old boy from drowning, after having rescued the youngster's playmate by swimming into the freezing water and dragging him to the bank. The two had fallen through a thin sheet of ice that covered a pond.

Kreisberg, passing on the top of the bluff overlooking the pond, saw the boys. He ran down the embankment, throwing off his clothes, and plunged into the pond, which by this time was spotted with floating layers of ice. Young Goldheimer he reached first and was able to carry him to safety, wading through the blocks of ice.

But returning to the bank of the creek, Kreisberg saw the other boy beating the water frantically. To reach the sinking boy was only possible by jumping again into the water, for by this time all ice had floated away from shore. Kreisberg swam twenty feet under the layer of ice until he reached the inclosure in which young Herman had sunk for the second time. With the child clinging to his waist he swam back under the ice to shore.

Pausing only long enough to don some of his clothing, Kreisberg ran five blocks with the Herman boy in his arms, the Goldheimer boy running by his side, to the boy's home.

CHURCHMEN, EDUCATORS

President John C. Branner of Stanford University has submitted his resignation to the university trustees effective July 31. President Branner announced in accepting the office that he would resign in two years.

Prof. William Porter, Beloit's oldest instructor, recently celebrated his 95th anniversary. He is professor of Latin, the oldest living alumnus of Williams College, and believed to be the oldest member of the Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity.

Charles Reign Scoville, evangelist at Akron, O., recently defended the use of slang in illustrating points in sermons, and said that in dealing with modern people, one must use modern language.

William S. Curtis, dean of the Washington University Law School for the past twenty-one years, will be retired automatically at the end of the present school year, having reached the age of 65. Dean Curtis recently celebrated his 65th birthday, reaching the age limit for instructors at the university. He is eligible to a Carnegie pension.

Dr. M. D. Edwards of St. Paul has served forty years as pastor of Dayton Avenue Presbyterian Church, his first and only pastorate.

A Hard-won Bride.

[Christian Herald:] I know a man not far from Samson's country who loved a maiden outside his own people and district. When he went to take her he had to take other heroes with him lest the young men of the maiden's town should resent his coming according to the rude customs of the countryside, and play their tricks on him and his father. When the party came to claim his bride the feasting and bridegroom ware obliged, according to the customs, to surfeit the whole town with feasts of food. Six camel loads of rice and native bread were consumed in the process. The followed feats of physical strength which the bridegroom and his friends were forced to prove their superiority before they could secure the bride to carry her outside her native town.

DO WE CONTINUE TO LIVE?

BY TOM FITCH.

Darwin and Volney and Darwin d Huxley and all apostles of anni- ation to the contrary notwithstand- g, I decline to admit that I am an telligence unfit to survive the death my body.

Whether a dog, or a horse, or an hant, or a chimpanzee, or an ass, the pillar of any loathsome con- mporary of The Times dies when he I do not know, but so far as I concerned I am sure that the ch.

"Dust thou art to dust returnest has not spoken of the soul."

Immortality is an idea, and an idea ital and so dominant that it shapes controls the life and actions of ividuals and the destiny of nations. animal creation below man pos- s in greater or less degree a cer- amount of intelligence, but it is intelligence that is limited to the ations that pertain to physical life, ings and fear, search for food and ing food for future needs, propa- on of his kind and, with the fe- , a period of parental watchful- s and care, are mental attributes animals and of some birds and in- . But they are all devoted to the anization of the physical existence the individual. Observation and ory are exhibited by many ani- , but it is in man alone that the er to construct a syllogism first ears. There are indeed men who m to be governed only by the es of their physical natures and m to have no more intellectual- or spirituality than wolves. But self ever bruised or sacrificed his for the sake of helping another

Harriet Martineau says in his study of ology: "The significant thing about distinction between man and his r relation, the animal, is to be d in the fact that the outfit of the al seems an ideal provision for purely terrestrial sphere in which is placed, while the outfit of man, the terrestrial sphere be all that is ended for him, seems clearly a ge overprovision."

"The animal," says John Haynes ons in his work, "Is Death the has all that he needs for his ely existence; the man has this definitely more, which seems to e no relation to the necessities of present career. If this life be all, need has man of these stu- mental powers, intense moral ctions and lofty spiritual aspira- which characterize him as a apart from the rest of evolving If death be the end, how shall reconcile this vast endowment of mal force with an environment which the physical endowment of animal is found to be an adequate ovision? If the only problem that e a man is that of living for sixty enty years upon this earth, ere e pass into oblivion, why should he moved, as by some power not self, to give his strength and days laborious historical researches, to pound metaphysical speculations, to rapture of poetry and the thrill of to the dreaming of dreams and seeing of visions, to struggles, sac- ce and sufferings for human bet- ment, to the thought of God and hope of immortality. What place e any of these things in this strictly restrial sphere of existence? If this ld be all, then is not the swiftness the deer or the strength of the a more useful attribute than the t of a Plato? and the acute hear- of the dog or the far vision of the e a richer endowment than the t of a Christ?"

A belief in annihilation tends to ard the efforts and deaden the am- ion of mankind. Would you waste time planting and cultivating a gar- from which you knew would be con- ed for a railroad right of way e the harvest season?

"Tomorrow we die, if immortality ishable, and thought only a physical ion and conscience a morbid , then the motive which inspires n and women to great and good is gone, and selfishness and bru- ity may have unchecked sway.

Would the dome of St. Peter's have been hung in air had Angelo deemed s life would have been rounded an eternal sleep?

Would the art treasures of the re and the Luxembourg and the ng galleries of Europe have been ed if their authors had not looked ond the grave and the gloom?

Would Longfellow and Bryant and ler have sung to the ages? the philosophy of Emerson illuminated the thought of two eries? Would the hand of Ste- son have grasped the throttle of the first locomotive? Would e have harnessed the lightning, Edison have made it vocal, and e have seized the air for wires? the voices of Webster and Clay filled the Senate chamber with e that shall live while the Cap- stands—if each and all had not inspired by the belief that their ds and words would follow them deathless realms? Would our heroes bared their breasts to the stormy of battle and went singing to for their country have done so for the belief that beyond the river there stretches a shin- ion?

Creeds may be destroyed; forms of ship may be reconstructed and the- ical charts torn up, and civil so- y will suffer little harm so long as remains a belief in a hereafter. was the Jew believe that the Pen- ch is a collection of fables; that e was only a cunning politician an inefficient guide who took years to cross a desert that have been traversed in a ; that the sacred ark was but sojurer's box; that Gideon's horn only an ancient megaphone, and there is nothing indigestible in a sandwich, and you may shake leese from his religion so that restraining influence of Leviticus control his rates of interest no ger. But leave with him the con- that beyond the stars Jehovah an eternal power, and that every sunbeam may symbolize a per- d human soul, and he will remain honest and orderly citizen.

But the Christian that the cross is the symbol of a delusive dream of ior who never lived or died; that women who have made the name Mary hallowed throughout the never lived but in a poet's vision, that benevolence, patriotism and sacrifice are but names for airy ions. Tell him that the pennons flowing from the masts of ships which have carried the granaries of charity to the pulsing crimson once more the white lips of famine fluttered signals to watching angels to say benevolence still dwells in the of man. Tell him that the tens thousands of hospitals and houses mercy for the sick and weary which link their shadows across every Christian land are but the crazed re- ts of the teachings of a Galilean , upon whose brow no signet divinity was ever pressed. Tell the ation all this and make him be- it, and how much better citizen you have made him?

I am weary of the materialistic rot that would degrade my life to the level of a vegetable. If Darwin and Ingersoll are right, I might as well be a Burbank potato as a brilliant and highly-esteemed member of The Times editorial staff. If I have evolved from a clam to a human, why should I not develop from a human into an angel?

Let society adopt materialism, and Adolphus will not say to his adored one, "Darling, wilt thou be mine?" He will say, "Gladys Araminta, will the compacted molecules which constitute your consciousness consider the advantages of affiliation with the developed and devoted protoplasm which now places itself at your disposal?"

If there is no life hereafter, no moral accountability, no conscience, no innate perceptions of right and wrong which come to us from a source beyond ourselves, and which illuminate the dark nights of human consciousness, even as moonbeams cut rifts of light in the clouds—if all teachings of a moral law are but sounding phrases, invented by priests and used by politicians, then why should not every man lie, steal or destroy, if it seems to be to his advantage so to do?

Why not help himself to whatever may contribute to his comfort without regard to the rights of others? Why not poison his mother-in-law, assassinate his business rivals, burglarize banks, forge checks, kick book agents downstairs, vote the Democratic ticket, get drunk every night, hate his neighbor and love his neighbor's wife?

The world will never believe that the mind of man—the prophet priest and king who walks the ways of untranslatable light—can ever vanish utterly into the void. Those who have climbed the unanswering stair still live in our consciousness, though no more living in the flesh than the radiant children of the stars. It needs no priest to tell us this, nor scoffer to deny it, for there is ever before each of us the testimony of his own soul. Our thoughts are witnesses never suborned. The echoes we fain would grasp repeat immortality in every voiceless atom, in every viewless, measureless length of space.

Surely we give our dead not to the grave and the gloom, but to the hope of the dawn which dwells beyond the sunset.

MEN AND EVENTS.

Edward V. Murphy has just completed his fifty-fifth year as an official reporter of the United States Senate, during which time he has aided in the official report of every great debate which has taken place in that body. He is 72 years of age and a native of Philadelphia.

Her twenty-first child has been born to Mrs. Emma Lutz Harrell, 45, wife of Henry Harrell of Custer City, Okla., according to the Custer county health report filed in the State health office at Oklahoma City. The husband is 49 years old. Mrs. Harrell's mother gave birth to sixteen children, is the grandmother of forty-nine children and has four great-grandchildren. She is 60 years old. All Mrs. Harrell's children were born singly. Sixteen are living, of whom one is married and has one child. The other fifteen are living with the parents.

"Gen." Rosalie Jones, who first came into prominence as a suffragist when she led the first Pilgrim army of New York women to Albany, is learning the automobile business. She is now in the repair shop of an automobile company, where she is to spend a month before she is graduated into the sales department.

After Mrs. John Kotch had testified that her husband had blackened her eyes, Justice of the Peace Miller left his bench at Swoyersville, Pa., and attacked the husband. He thrashed Kotch so roundly that both his eyes were discolored, his nose broken and his body bruised. Resuming his position on the bench, the justice of the peace said: "Now that I have given to you a dose of your own medicine, I order you locked up until you give a pledge not to beat your wife again." Kotch, however, was sullen and was locked in a cell. He insisted that this was a free country.

The birth of a daughter to Joseph and Ethel Cokeley of Kansas City, Mo., completed a line of five generations of daughters. This makes the third time in the last ten years that in this family five generations of daughters have been living.

Harrison Veeter, a prisoner in the Confluence (Pa.) prison, was allowed to go into the corridor of the lockup to get warm. The coal ran short and the outside door being unlocked, Veeter went to a shed near by to replenish the supply. When he returned he found the door locked, so he ran about the streets until he found the Chief of Police, who enabled the prisoner to get back into jail.

The Right to Use Slang.

[Memphis Commercial Appeal:] It is all right for Billy Sunday to tell the people of Philadelphia that a thing is "damned crooked" and that a situation is "damned rotten," but if an ordinary man said the same thing people would declare that he was cussing.

Saving a City's Equanimity.

[Youth's Companion:] It was in the year 1868, after a battle in the Spanish revolution of that year, and the streets of Madrid were filled with angry crowds that were bent on destroying everything and everyone. Suddenly an unknown man appeared at the City Hall.

"Give me a band of musicians," he said, "and before nightfall I shall control all Madrid."

He must have been a man of rare personality to have been able to persuade the authorities in that dark hour to give him anything.

But he got the musicians, and went out with them to wander through the city. While they played, he sang—popular street songs, or some old national air. When these bored the listeners, he mounted old boxes and told funny tales.

By nightfall peace reigned in the city, and the mob broke up and went home to bed. The man's name was Felipe Ducazel, and he was only 22 years old when he cleverly achieved this result.

We are told a deal about heroic things in saving countries by long, terrible rides at night, or by the sacrifice of oneself by dying in somebody's stead, but few of us hear of anyone who saved a town by laughter.

Confidence in the Captain.

[Youth's Companion:] The Gurkhas, who came from India to France to take their place in the British firing line, were sometimes very amusing during the long voyage to Europe.

When they had been at sea two whole days without seeing land, writes an English officer to the London Times, they became very much disturbed in mind.

"Without doubt, the captain of the ship has lost his way," he said, but they counseled together and decided at last that all was well. Some one asked them how they reached this decision. They led him to the stern of the vessel and pointed to the long wake of water boiling behind them, and said with a smile as broad as the greatness of the discovery, "Without doubt he follows the path."

Filling Army Vacancies.

[London Chronicle:] In the Gazette just now you can read lists of promotions in the army, with the sad entry after some of the names, "since died." That could not have happened in earlier days, for down to "the forty-five," when the army was at the wars abroad, its commander filled up all vacancies at his own selection, without knowledge or consent or control of any authority at home. So there may be found in the War Office commission books certificates that, "to our certain knowledge," so-and-so had been captain of horse, and this perhaps years after the step had been given and taken on the field.

DOC HORNE (of the Alfalfa Hotel) AND HIS FRIENDS.

BY GEORGE ADE.

III.—A LITTLE DREAM OF MATRIMONY; WITH A PEST ON THE SIDE.

THE lightning dentist had extracted twenty-three teeth that morning. No. 24 had not appeared. He leaned against the chair and thought of the woman he was to marry. It seemed that he could see her. She was neither blonde nor brunette, not tall nor short, vague and without specifications, but she was very beautiful.

The dentist glanced at the clock on the mantel. The time was 12:22. "I will hurry out and get some lunch," he said.

With that he pulled off his white jacket and hung it on a hook in the closet, jumped into his street coat and bolted through the doorway, shouting:

"Down! Hey, there! Going down!"

The swift elevator car came to a bumping pause in its downward flight. He dived through the open door and sprawled on other men whose faces seemed pale in the dim light of the shaft. A pull at the lever, a confusing glimpse of parallel floors and rows of glazed windows, all flying upward, and the car was on the ground floor.

The dentist did not see the squirming multitude in the street nor hear the clangor of the car bells. He was trying to decide whether or not a piano would be a necessity at the beginning.

As he entered the place wherein food is for sale on quick delivery he did not observe that he was riding in a jam of people and propelling himself by means of his elbows.

The place was crowded. It was a brilliantly-lighted tunnel.

Long counters extended from front to rear. On one side of each counter was a row of stools, with a man on every stool. The men were so close to one another that their arms threatened to interlock as they beckoned and gesticulated or swung themselves in desperate feeding. Behind these men stood other men, restless, watchful, waiting their chance to pounce upon stools as soon as any wild men at the counter wrenched themselves out of the struggling line.

A babel of voices was constantly mingled with the shuffling of feet, the crash of colliding dishes and the loud jingle of cutlery.

If a Niagara of cups and saucers and knives and forks had been falling into a stone quarry the noise would have been the same.

Behind each long counter were waiters in white. They hopped and cavorted, lunged back and forth, uttered strange cries into the air, and propelled dishes and feeding implements along the smooth counter after the manner of shuffleboard players.

The dentist pushed down the line.

Aha! He had captured the stool away from two other men. They moved on, looking at the food in front of each feeder, to see if he would soon arise.

"Where's my tea?" demanded the man at the immediate right of the dentist.

"Cream toast!" shrieked the colored man, who was in an ecstasy of employment.

"Tea! tea!"

"Yes, seh."

"Ham sandwich and——" began the dentist.

"Take away yo' sliced tomatoes!" shouted someone in his ear.

"Sliced tomatoes," echoed a voice farther away.

"Ham sandwich and——"

Crash! A knife and fork fell in front of the dentist.

A glass of water floating a large piece of ice reeled sloppily on the spattered counter and stopped in front of him.

"Ham sandwich and——"

"How 'bout co'n cakes?" bellowed the colored man, standing on tiptoe and threatening someone with a fork.

"Take 'em away!"

"Hurry up that tea!"

"Nuther piece o' butter!"

"What kind o' pie?"

"Whar's my check?"

"Ham sandwich and——"

Crash—boom—bang—thump—explosion—stampede—panic!

"Ham sandwich!" screeched the waiter, bobbing up from nowhere and dropping a plate near the dentist.

"'N' a cup o' coffee."

"How about that tea?"

"Is that pie comin'?"

"Yes, seh." One answer for all three.

The waiter dove under the counter. He ran and counter-ran.

He juggled spoons and saucers. He chuckled with delight when another waiter,, sprinting along the narrow passageway, bumped into him.

He had two cups in the left hand and one cup in the right hand as he danced around a cluster of nickel-plated boilers and pulled at sundry faucets.

The delirium grew on him. He passed out pasteboard checks with one hand and cut a pie with the other.

The dentist shared in the exultation. He clutched the ham sandwich and tore away the greater part of it at the first bite.

His neighbor ordered a second piece of huckleberry pie. The other neighbor gulped the tea, and, in a choking voice, called for his check.

As the tea neighbor slid away another man bolted in and collided with the dentist, who came very near spilling his coffee.

"Pork 'n' beans, glass milk," said the newcomer, rapping on the counter.

The dentist shuddered slightly and then returned to his coffee.

"In a hurry, too," said the newcomer.

"What kind of sweet cakes——"

"Is that blackberry pie under there?"

"Where's the mustard?"

"I want another——"

"Hurry up with that——"

"It's a kind of a cream cake with jelly on——"

"Take away your wheats!" (loudly.)

"I've got you!" (more loudly.)

"Glass o' water."

"Rolls and milk."

"Can you give me——"

Biff — bang — platters — spoons — glasses — sugar-bowls — salt-cellars! —The dentist heard nothing. He was furnishing the front room.

He joined the long, jostling line that moved in irregular order past the cashier's desk. As he handed out the buttery bit of pasteboard and laid a silver dollar on top of it, he became aware that there was a new cashier behind the marble. She made change hesitatingly—but such a vision! The uplift of golden hair, the chaste pallor of her complexion, the whiteness of her teeth, the clinging fit of the cloth gown—all these he saw without enumerating them.

She was a blonde. He admired all blondes.

It occurred to him that she would do. All that afternoon he extracted teeth, but his heart was not in the work. He burned to tell Doc of his discovery. As for the campaign of conquest, it unfolded itself as an easy pathway before him. He would be introduced by the manager of the lunchroom; he would talk to her three times before asking permission to call; he would call twice before suggesting the theater; his watchword must be "gentility."

Doc was not at the usual restaurant, but the dentist found him later on. He and the race-track man were in the office of the hotel. The race-track man was finding fault with the manner in which Mr. Ike Francis managed the alfalfa. The dentist sat with them and waited for an opportunity to take Doc away.

"I never had anything to do with a hotel in my life," said the race-track man, "but I could take hold of this place and improve it; I can promise you that."

"No doubt you could," said Doc. "At the same time I am inclined to take a charitable view of the situation here. Mr. Francis has a great deal to contend with. I can sympathize with him, because I kept a hotel for two weeks once—not from choice, but from necessity. That was enough for me, gentlemen. I am afraid that I am too independent and proud-spirited to succeed as a host. If I don't like a man, I can't attempt to be friendly with him, even to further my financial interests."

"Where did you keep a hotel, Doc?" asked the dentist.

"Didn't I ever tell you about it? It was when I was in Leadville during the first boom. Three of us had pooled our interests and were buying mines. A man named Jackson had a mine that we were anxious to get. We made him an offer, and he said he'd sell if we'd buy his hotel, too. He wanted to raise all the money he could to start a concert hall. We didn't want the hotel, but we knew we could sell it again, because it was making money, so we closed the deal. At the request of my partners, I took charge of the hotel and ran it until we could find a customer. I had no difficulty in handling the work, but I didn't like it. I didn't like to be annoyed by petty details. If I am going to manage anything I want to have subordinates, who will take the details off my hands. However, I reorganized the working force and in two weeks' time I made that the best hotel in Leadville. We had mostly miners and prospectors at the hotel, and although they were good fellows and didn't mean any harm, they were too boisterous at times. They used to fire their revolvers just to frighten the women, who worked in the dining-room. Why, one night there must have been twenty shooting at the same time. I requested them to stop it, but they didn't seem to pay any attention, so one evening, just as they all tramped in to supper, I followed them in and sat at the head of the long table, next to the door. I pulled my forty-two out of the belt and laid it on the table. Then I said: 'Boys, I don't believe we'd better have any more shooting in the dining-room. It annoys the women and makes too much smoke. Let's do our shooting on the outside.' That's all I said, but I guess they knew what it meant. There wasn't any more shooting in the dining-room."

"So you made good with the gun-play, did you?"

The three were startled and turned to look at the speaker. They saw a freckled young man with large ears, nose somewhat awry, hat set carelessly on a crop of rusty hair. His garments were a tight fit, and bore a uniform pattern of up-and-down stripes. This freckled person laid his hand on Doc's shoulder (which no member of the chosen colony had ever dared to do,) and said: "I'll bet you've been a purty good scrapper in your time."

Doc looked up at him, literally speaking, and down at him, figuratively speaking, and in that godlike frown of rebuke the freckled boy discerned a friendly invitation to go ahead and say something more.

"I've been mixed up once or twice myself,' he said.

Without further introduction the freckled boy reached for a chair, seated himself and began a tale of dolor.

"Do you know Danny Oswald—St. Louis boy?"

The three shook their heads solemnly.

"Well, he's all right. Say, you meet that boy and anything he's got is your'n, understand? Many's the time I've went to him—'Well, Danny, how about it, are you strong today?' 'How much?'—that's all, understand—'How much?' Good up to the limit. He knows, too, that any time I had anything in my close he could come get it. That's mee, you know. If a friend's right, he can have anything. That's me."

He tapped Doc Horne on the knee and squinted at him.

"That's proper," said Doc, because he couldn't think of anything else to say.

"Well, I was out with Dan one night an' that was right in this town, too—State street. We went into a place and we'd had two glasses of beer—mebbe it was three. I know I bought and then Danny come back at me, and it seems to me I had 'em piled up again—mebbe not."

"Anyway, after we'd had 'em, I noticed a guy standin' at the bar kind o'—well, s'pose the bar run from me over to the steam heater, I'd be standin' where that chair is and this fellow where you're settin' there" (indicating the dentist.) "Let's see—yes, that was about the way of it. He was a husky guy, too—broad shoulders, big mits, understand?—big fellow."

Doc Horne blinked at the freckled boy and rubbed his nose with violence.

"Well, this fellow was standin' here and me over there, when I hear him say: 'I wonder where his cheap nobs got the hat'—meanin' me. I had on a new white Fedora hat, cost me three-fifty—elegant hat. When I hear him say this, without turnin' around, mind you, I says loud enough for him to hear: 'Don't let the hat worry you, just keep your face closed.' I was lookin' in the mirror behind the bar, understand?—an' I see him start along the bar toward me—understand, don't you? I see it in the mirror."

"Certainly we understand," said Doc.

"He come at me," continued the freckled boy, rising, "just as if I'd come right up here at you" (indicating Doc.) "He's comin', see? And I'm lookin' at him in the mirror. I didn't turn around at all till he was in reach, and then I turned—like that—and if I didn't hand him a jolt that he'll remember! Mamma!"

"Hit him, eh?" asked Doc, affecting a mild interest.

"Hit him? Say—here! Le' me show you now. He was comin' along the bar, see? And was just behind me when I swung around. It wasn't a punch exactly; it was more of a hook—I kind o' pivoted on him. You know what that is, the marine blow, the one that put Dempsey out. I caught him right, too."

He doubled his fist and placed it against Doc's chin in order to illustrate the manner in which he did it.

"I got him right there," he continued, pushing with his fist as he spoke.

"If I'd caught him farther back," said the freckled boy, running his fingers along Doc's jawbone, "I might 'a broke my knuckles and not brought him down neither. I got him right, though. He didn't know whether he was in Chicago or East Skowhegan."

With that he went to his chair, flushed and happy.

"Gentlemen, I must bid you good night," said Doc, as he arose. "I dislike to tear myself away from these jovial reminiscences, but I have some writing to do in my room."

He looked at the freckled boy and gave a barely perceptible shake of the head and then walked over to get his key. The lightning dentist followed and spoke to him. "Doc, I saw a fine girl today."

"So soon?"

"Well, never put off till tomorrow what should have been done ten years ago."

"You simply saw her, or you met her—which?"

"Well, I saw her and I can meet her if I want to."

"Attractive?"

"My God!"

"H'm."

The dentist told of her occupation and suggested that no language could aptly describe her personal charms.

"Where is the place?" asked Doc.

"The Hyperion Quick Lunch, just two doors from our building."

"Well, don't be in too much haste."

Next day Doc called at the Hyperion Quick Lunch, and when evening came he had a piece of news for the dentist.

"Abandon all hope," he whispered to him as they sat with the other members of the colony who were assisting the police to unravel the latest "mystery."

"What do you mean?" asked the dentist, quick to take alarm.

"She is the wife of the manager."

[Copyright, 1915, by the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.]

IV.—TROUBLE.

IT BECOMES necessary to report three calamities affecting members of the alfalfa colony.

First was the discovery that the chosen wife of the dentist was already married to the manager of the Hyperion Quick Lunch. Second was the freckled boy, who persisted in joining the group on no provocation, and talking of his prowess and his ability to fascinate women. The third was a clash between Doc and the lush—a vulgar exhibition of what Doc afterward called the "ruder passions belonging to a primitive state of society."

It may be said to the credit of the lightning dentist that he showed no inclination to quarrel with Fate when he learned that the beautiful cashier at the Hyperion was already married.

"Fortunately the thing hadn't gone very far," he remarked to Doc.

"And the woman, although pleasing to the eye, was of a cold and unsympathetic nature," said Doc. "I knew that the moment I looked at her. You are not discouraged by this preliminary experience?"

"Not at all."

To prove which he soon found one who seemed desirable and who was not married, as will be related hereafter.

The freckled boy threatened to be a permanent affliction, and yet this boy, like every other organic being, had certain uses which were discovered in due time.

The distressing encounter between Doc and the lush might be passed over in silence were it not for the fact that it helped to make the subsequent reconciliation more warming to all concerned.

The trouble came in the following manner:

One evening the lush had been emphasizing the daily routine, and so his stare was glassy as he dropped into a chair and smiled at his companions. There had been some talk about dancing, and Doc had ventured to say that although he had not danced a great deal in recent years, he had no doubt that he could go out on the floor and dance until 2 o'clock in the morning.

"By y'rself, Doc?" asked the lush.

"I am not in the habit of dancing by myself," said Doc, somewhat stiffly. "When I used to go about a great deal in Philadelphia society I was counted one of the best waltzers in the city."

"Phil'delphi'! Doc, y're ringin' in a new one on us. When's you in Phil-'delphi'?"

"I was in Philadelphia the latter part of the '60's," said Doc, moving uneasily in his chair. "I don't know that it concerns you, but some of the best people in Philadelphia are my friends."

"D' they know it?" asked the lush.

Doc made no reply for several moments, but it could be seen by the nervous manner in which he handled his cigar that he had been deeply offended. Finally he turned to the lush and said: "Sir, I can overlook the insinuation contained in your remark. You have been drinking."

"I nev' drink," replied the lush. "What I want to know is, do these Phil'delphi' people know they're friends, yours?"

"I am not in the habit of answering such foolish questions."

"Where is Phil'delphi', Doc?"

Doc drew at his cigar until the live end was glowing red.

"On th' dead, Doc, did y' ever see Phil'delphi'?" and the lush chuckled.

Doc was striving to preserve a dignified silence. The race track man and the dentist kept back the lurking smiles.

"Wha' railroad is it on?" asked the lush.

"Sir-r-r!" said Doc, suddenly turning, "do you realize that these remarks are insulting? I can make certain allowances for a man in your condition, but I object, sir, to having you or any one else call into question any statements I may make to these gentlemen here."

"Get up," said the lush, from whose flushed face the amiable smile had never departed.

"And I want it understood," added Doc.

The drinks had been badly mixed, and the lush was reckless.

"Don't mean me, do you, Doc?" he asked.

"Yes, I mean you."

"What'd I do?"

"You appeared to doubt certain statements that I made to these gentlemen here."

"When's that?"

"Just a few moments ago."

"About Phil'delphi'?"

"Yes, sir."

"Tha's all right. I s'pose y've been there."

"Suppose? Didn't you hear me say that I had been there?"

"Y' got friends there, too?"

"Yes, sir, I have got friends there."

"Well, I jus' wondered if they know 'bout it."

"Exactly so, and I don't want you to say anything of the kind again."

"Y' ain't mad, are you, Doc?"

"Never you mind whether I'm mad or not. I've told you several times that I am of a sensitive nature, and when any man deliberately attempts to belittle my statements he will hear from me. Yes, sir," and he glared at the race track man and the dentist.

"Y' wouldn't lick me, would you, Doc?" asked the lush, with a labored wink at the dentist.

"I make no threats," replied Doc, rummaging in his pockets for a match with which to relight his cigar.

The lush looked at Doc unsteadily and his lips moved in an effort to reopen the discussion. He turned to the race-track man and the dentist for encouragement, but they were grave and non-committal.

The lush brightened up all at once. "Oh, Doc," said he, "wha' State's Phil'delphi' in?"

"Silence!" And the voice of the infuriated man rose to a shriek.

The lush leaned back in his chair and began to cackle at his joke.

In another instant Doc had arisen and made a right-hand pass at the lush, missing him only about two feet.

The lush stood up and began a very deliberate effort to remove his coat, but the dentist seized him by the shoulders and pushed him through the street doorway and into the hotel corridor.

"Le'm come on," shouted the lush, valiantly, as he was pushed along; "I'm purt' good scrapper m'self."

"Stand aside, sir, stand aside," shouted Doc, as he attempted to dodge past the race track man. "I have a right to demand satisfaction of that scoundrel."

"Sit down," urged the race track man. "Don't pay any attention to him. He's drunk."

"That may be, sir; but he must not insult a Horne, drunk or sober."

"Well, he's gone now. Wait till he gets sober and then talk to him."

The dentist, having conducted the lush through a side door to the barroom, returned to the front door and assisted in pacifying Doc. As soon as Doc became convinced that it was his duty, as a Horne, to ignore the cheap insinuations of a tipsy man, he recovered his spirits and told how he had been similarly insulted at a club in San Francisco in 1873. He knocked the man through a plate glass mirror, and when he offered to pay for the glass the club would not permit him to do so, claiming that he had done what any gentleman should have done under the circumstances.

Just as Doc was concluding this story the lush, who had been refreshed by several new drinks, came slowly toward the front door and halted about twenty feet away from Doc and his audience.

"Doc, y're big bluff," said he, very thickly, as he teetered back and forth. "Y're full canal water—nev' saw Phil'delph'."

"Don't pay any attention to him," said the race track man to Doc. "He doesn't know what he's saying."

So Doc preserved a grim silence.

The lush, having vindicated himself, executed a serpentine course back to the office and was then taken to his room in the custody of a bell boy.

"That is the first time I have lost my temper since 1880," said Doc.

Next day the lush was apprised of what he had done, so he went to Doc and said: "I—I want to apologize for what happened last night."

"Your apology is accepted," replied Doc, speaking with much reserve. It was evident that he had not forgiven the lush.

Two days after the attempted assault, the race track man said to the dentist:

"Were you out in front the other evening when Doc told about being elected Recorder of Tracy county, Ohio, in 1858?"

"I heard him speak of it, but I wouldn't be sure of names or dates."

"Well, I remember the name, and I remember the date, and I think I've got him nailed. This morning I was over in the public library to look up a point and decide a bet for a friend of mine, and while I was looking through the catalogue I saw a book, 'Complete History and Official Register of Ohio,' understand? I got it out, and sure enough I found in the back part a list of the counties and the officers ever since the organization. I turned to Tracy county, and I found that a man named Thomas Pettit was recorder from 1858 to 1862. I thought I might have been mistaken as to the year, but I couldn't find Doc's name anywhere in the book. He never held an office in that county at all."

"Oh, well, what if he didn't? You're not going to say anything to him about it, are you? I don't believe I would. You know Doc is as sensitive as a woman, and—"

"All I'm going to do is ask him which is right, him or the book over in the library."

"I don't think you ought to do it. I don't see that it can do any good."

"Oh, well, Doc 'll say that the book's wrong."

That evening the race track man found his opportunity.

"By the way, Doc; didn't you tell us the other evening that you was once elected recorder of Tracy county, Ohio?"

"Yes, I believe I did tell you about it."

"Let's see, what year was that?"

"I told you the year, didn't I?"

"It was in 1858, wasn't it?"

"Yes, 1858—two years before Abe Lincoln ran."

"The reason I asked you was that I thought you might have been mistaken as to the year or the county."

"A man couldn't very well forget the name of a county," suggested the lush, who was in a protracted lapse of sobriety.

"Certainly not," said Doc.

"There's mistake somewhere," said the race track man. "I happened to be looking through a history of Ohio the other day and it gave the name of Thomas Pettit as the man who was elected recorder in Tracy county in 1858. Of course, the history may be wrong, but that's what it said. I wanted to be sure, so I copied it down, and I've got it here." He produced from his vest pocket a folded piece of paper, and opening it read: "Tracy county, Ohio; recorder from 1858 to 1862, Thomas Pettit."

Doc sat staring at the speaker, and although he made an effort to remain calm, his outstretched hand was trembling as he said: "Let me see that paper."

The race track man gave the paper to him. Doc laid it in his lap, and with deliberation brought out his spectacle case and opened it. He carefully adjusted his spectacles, and then, turning sidewise so as to get the light that came out through the doorway, read what was on the paper, his lips moving as he did so.

"Yes; this is all right. I thought maybe it said that Tom Pettit had been chosen at the regular election. The history's got it right. It just says there, you'll see, that he was recorder from 1858 to 1862."

"I know, but I thought that you became recorder in 1858."

"I became nothing of the kind, and I didn't say so. I did say to you gentlemen, without suspecting that the statement needed verification, that I was elected recorder in 1858. I did not say that I ever was recorder. I had the fun of the campaign, overcame the regular majority, cleaned the other fellow out, and what more did I want? Three days after I was elected I received an offer to go to Cincinnati and act as business manager for a company that had just been organized to run a line of packets on the Ohio River. As I hadn't qualified for the recordership I accepted the Cincinnati position and the county commissioners had to accept my resignation and elect someone to take my place. One of the commissioners wanted to elect Willoughby, who had run against me, but the other two were friendly to me. The feeling still ran high, so they sided with me, and elected Tom Pettit, who was a cousin of mine."

Doc paused and then asked: "How does it happen that you went and looked this up?"

"I didn't look it up," the race track man hastened to explain. "I just ran across it accidentally."

"Indeed!"

Thereupon Doc arose and walked away without the courtly "good night, gentlemen," which usually fell on the group with all the flavor of a benediction.

On the following morning Doc notified Mr. Ike Francis, the proprietor, that he intended to leave the Alfalfa Hotel as soon as he could find another room. He gave no reasons.

A PROPHECY OF ISAIAH.

CHAPTER 34.

Come near, ye nations, to hear; and hearken, ye people: let the earth hear, and all that is therein: the world, and all things that come forth of it.

2 For the indignation of the Lord is upon all nations, and His fury upon all their armies: he hath utterly destroyed them, he hath delivered them to the slaughter.

3 Their slain also shall be cast out, and their stink shall come up out of their carcasses, and the mountains shall be melted with their blood.

4 And all the host of heaven shall be dissolved, and the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll: and all their host shall fall down, as the leaf falleth off from the vine, and as falling fig from the fig tree.

5 For my sword shall be bathed in heaven: behold, it shall come down upon Idumea, and upon the people of my curse, to judgment.

6 The sword of the Lord is filled with blood; it is made fat with fatness, and with the blood of lambs and goats, with the fat of the kidneys of rams: for the Lord hath a sacrifice in Bozrah, and a great slaughter in the land of Idumea.

7 And the unicorns shall come down with them, and the bullocks with the bulls; and their land shall be soaked with blood, and their dust made fat with fatness.

8 For it is the day of the Lord's vengeance, and the year of recompenses for the controversy of Zion.

9 And the streams thereof shall be burned into pitch, and the dust thereof into brimstone, and the land thereof shall become burning pitch.

10 It shall not be quenched night nor day; the smoke thereof shall go up for ever: from generation to generation it shall lie waste; none shall pass through it for ever and ever:

11 But the cormorant and the bittern shall possess it; the owl also and the raven shall dwell in it: and he shall stretch out upon it the line of confusion, and the stones of emptiness.

12 They shall call the nobles thereof to the kingdom, but none shall be there, and all her princes shall be nothing.

13 And thorns shall come up in her palaces, nettles and brambles in the fortresses thereof; and it shall be an habitation or dragons, and a court for owls.

14 The wild beasts of the desert shall also meet with the wild beasts of the island, and the satyr shall cry to his fellow; the screech owl also shall rest there, and find herself a place of rest.

15 There shall the great owl make her nest, and lay, and hatch, and gather under her shadow; there shall the vultures also be gathered, every one with her mate.

16 Seek ye out of the book of the Lord, and read; no one of these shall fail, none shall want her mate: for my mouth it hath commanded, and His spirit it hath gathered them.

17 And He hath cast the lot for them, and His hand hath divided it unto them by line: they shall possess it for ever, from generation to generation shall they dwell therein.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Miss Marie Weissman of Vienna, a popular society young lady, fired with the desire to fight for her country, disguised herself as a man and for two months served as a one-year volunteer. Then she was found out and given a commission. She is now serving in Red Cross work.

Miss Alice Kinney is probably the only woman in this country who has undertaken the raising of blooded hogs by hothouse methods. She lives on a farm in Missouri, and several years ago began in a small way to put her unique ideas into practical use, though she had previously been an invalid. She raises only Poland China registered hogs—all under glass—and has never had a case of cholera among her porkers, which bring top prices and find ready sales.

Mrs. Virginia Brooks Washburne, who has written and talked for the benefit of her weaker sisters, was recently offered $15,000 to go on a lecture tour for the Chautauqua and lyceum bureaus, fifty weeks at $300 a week. She declined, and the reason is now explained in a boy born to her a week ago. Her friends call it the $15,000 baby.

Miss Hilda Gilbert, by working her way around the world by her wits, won a $5000 wager on a bet with a New York clubman that a woman could accomplish the task without much trouble. Miss Gilbert had four years to complete the trip, and when she arrived home recently she still had four months to spare.

Princess Shakovskaya is the only woman aviator in the great war. She is said to be in active service at the front in East Prussia. At first her application was rejected because of her sex, but she demonstrated that she could manage a flying machine as well as a man and was finally accepted.

Lady Eva Dugdale, one of the Queen's ladies-in-waiting, is learning to plow, and the Hon. Miss Alexander Vivian, a cousin of Lord Vivian, has become a proficient sheep shearer.

There are now three women Senators in the United States, since Miss Kathryn Clarke of Glendale was chosen State Senator at a special election in Oregon. She ran on the Democratic ticket against two men and won with a plurality slightly under 100 votes. The other two women Senators are Mrs. Helen Ring Robinson of Colorado and Mrs. Frances Willard Munds of Arizona. Senator Munds presided over the Arizona Senate last week during the consideration of a bill to amend the law relating to the fees and salaries of county officers. This is the first time in this country that a woman has presided over a legislative body.

OVER THE SEA.

The Hon. Alfred Deakin, commissioner of Australia to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, is member for Balarat in the House of Representatives, but has held every high office in his country, and is recognized as an empire builder whose name is indissolubly identified with the growth and progress of Australia. He was born at Melbourne in 1856, and there received his education. His public career began in 1879.

Ruben Dario, who has come to this country in connection with the first English translation and publication of his work, is mentioned with Edmund Rostand and Gabriele d'Annunzio as one of the three great poets of the Latin tongue. He is a native of Spain, and the Hispanic Society of America has presented Mr. Dario with the silver medal of the society, awarded only for distinguished service in art and letters, which has been given to only fourteen persons. In Argentina the National Congress has erected to his honor a monument equal to the Washington Monument in size.

William Redmond has received a commission in the Royal Irish Regiment. Mr. Redmond, who has been a member of Parliament for Clare since 1892, is the second son of the late W. A. Redmond.

The Kaiser has conferred upon Herr Ernst Lissauer, author of the "Chant of Hate Against England," the high decoration of the Order of the Red Eagle of the fourth class, with the royal crown.

M. Hanst, the Alsatian novelist, who showed a courageous front to the Germans in peace, has been steadfast and daring in his books attacking German [illegible] made him famous in France [illegible] his reputation is still great, for he has been placed in the ranks of the Legion of Honor. M. Millerand, Minister of War, has just signed the document which Parisians prefer to make all Frenchmen, whether in France or Alsace, rejoice. For the publication of one of his works he was charged by Germany with high treason, but happily he remained in France before the war, and the [illegible] French writer says, "the cross of honor shines on his breast."

Lieut.-Gen. Sir James [illegible] ray, the new Chief of the Imperial General Staff, was [illegible] last March to succeed Lieut.-Gen. Hart in the command of the [illegible] troops in South Africa, with the [illegible] numerary rank of full general. He had been appointed general commander-in-chief, Scottish command, in December, 1913. He is 60 years of age.

Henri Sienkiewicz, the famous Polish novelist and the author of "Quo Vadis," is, like tens of thousands of his compatriots, a refugee [illegible] from home by the war. He is very busy with the members of the committee for the Relief of the War in Poland, of which he is president and Ignace Paderewski is vice-president.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Edward [illegible] In his sixty-sixth year has been relieved from his retirement to command one of the divisions of General [illegible] Third Army, was known in his younger days as Curly Hutton, and is said to have done more than any other officer in the British army to organize the military defenses of St. George's bay overseas. From 1898 until 1900 he was engaged in command of the Canadian militia and during the Boer War was in charge of the brigade consisting of the troops from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, comprising [illegible] mounted infantry, which made a splendid an account of themselves throughout the campaign.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN.

Five Mexican women are now in the United States, where they were sent by President Carranza to study the system of compulsory and free education.

Manila has a woman's club.

Forty-eight per cent of the vote polled in Nebraska at the [illegible] ment.

The Home Beauty Parlor

by Betty Dean

Mrs. G. V. R.: Indeed, yes. Thirty is altogether too young to have wrinkles. Fifteen minutes a day will banish the lines and wrinkles that are worrying you. Get from your druggist some almozoin and glycerine. Take two teaspoonfuls of the glycerine and one ounce of the almozoin and mix with ½ pint of water. When this has been entirely dissolved, it will be in the form of a fragrant cream jelly. Cleanse the skin and dry thoroughly. Then apply the almozoin cream freely, massaging the wrinkles. The results of this treatment will surprise and delight you. The starved tissues will become plump and firm. The wrinkles will vanish, leaving your skin smooth and lovely.

Gertrude: It is perfectly natural to want to be pretty. Every normal girl wishes to be as attractive as possible without having that made-up appearance. A good complexion is the first requisite of a lovely face. Spurmax lotion will clear and beautify your skin. In ½ pint of hot water or witch hazel dissolve 4 ounces spurmax (you can get it at any good drug store), then add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply this to face, neck and arms and rub lightly until dry. Spurmax lotion is invisible, and gives a lovely healthy appearance to the skin without the use of powder and your yellow, oily look will disappear at once.

G. B. L.: You are making a great mistake in exercising so violently and eating so little. You are simply slowly starving yourself to death. Try this simple but effectual remedy if you wish to reduce. Dissolve 4 ounces of parnotis in 1½ pints hot water. After this has thoroughly cooled it should be strained. Take one tablespoonful before each meal. This is a harmless and effective way of reducing weight. When you have lost as much weight as you wish, you will find your flesh firm and solid, and your skin will not hang in wrinkles or folds.

Goldie: Yes you can keep your hair fluffy and soft if, like I, you are very careful not to use makeshifts, but something intended only for shampooing. Cantrhox will quickly remove all dandruff, excess oil and dust, making the scalp so clean and healthy that the hair grows heavy and long. I prepare such a head wash at home at a cost of about three cents per shampoo by dissolving one teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. This keeps my hair so lustrous and fluffy that it seems much heavier than it is.

TRAVEL AND HISTORY.

HUMOR AND TRAGEDY IN RUSSIA.

A RUSSIAN COMEDY OF ERRORS. By George Kennan. The Century Company, New York.

WE fancy these stories have the merit of truth—a merit without a value in literature; but there is something more than mere accuracy of statement in them; they have that something which makes them interesting and admirable whether the incidents recorded really happened, or whether Mr. Kennan thought they could have happened as well as not. The story from which the book takes its title, "A Russian Comedy of Errors," is clever and humorous and ends with a touch." Alexander Gordon, bristling with Yankee independence and rather proud of his sarcasm, goes into Russia to sell "fuel briquettes." After a short and unequal session with the police authorities, Gordon decides for the good old U.S.A., where a man may be as impudent and sarcastic to the police as he pleases without being arrested. "A Body, a Soul, and a Passport," tells of an adventure that came to Thomas Bailey Aldrich, whom many people will remember as one of our leading men of letters a few years ago. In Russia it is said a person consists of three things: Body, soul and passport, and the last is perhaps more necessary to the comfort and convenience than the second. But Mr. Aldrich quite unintentionally smuggled his wife over the Russian frontier and found himself wrapped tightly in nearly all the red tape supplied by Petrograd.

All of these stories are well done (as we are privileged to expect of Mr. Kennan,) and not all of them are amusing. "Russian Red Tape" exposes the methods of the police in apprehending friends of nihilists and suspects and has something of humor in it; but "A Singing Bird of Prey" is a strong tale of a silent convict who had won a bride at the altar; and "The World in a Single Cell" puts into our consciousness something of the resourcefulness, hardships and patience of those who find their way to Russian prisons for such exercises and work as bring honor to men and women in our own country.

"The Escape of Prince Krapotkin" shows the cleverness with which the police are fought and hoodwinked; "A Heart for Every Fate" shows how the patriots fight on when the police are not hoodwinked; and many other stories in the book give realistic pictures of Russian life.

As we said in the beginning, the stories may be true, but even if so, they are flawless in their interest.

AMID THE ARMIES.

PATHS OF GLORY. By Irvin S. Cobb. George H. Doran Company, New York.

MR. COBB is a vigorous writer. He has seen the war and has written of it at close quarters, and though his attempts at facetiousness may be admired by some, there are a few who will not, perhaps, be amused. Calling Belgium "the rag doll of Europe" is plainly a straining after originality that may impress some people. We have long suspected that Mr. Cobb is one of those who would tell a joke at a funeral. He has peculiar ideas of humor.

"The Paths of Glory" is for the most part, far from flippant. It is the first-hand article of one who saw war and who was tremendously impressed and shows it, even though he brings in such funny remarks as "writhing "in the unmistakable pangs of colic;" also the book is wordy. It is fine—oh, how it differs, from the vivid, simple, direct account written by E. Alexander Powell.

Mr. Cobb gets a mass of description and innumerable incidents, and Mr. Cobb is terribly personal. One can never forget that it is he who is telling this. "I now remember," "I was about to say." "I, who have seen this sight." "I don't know how long I stood." "I should say," "I suppose" and ten thousand other phrases all beginning in "I" may incline some to wonder if Mr. Cobb is telling about himself or the war.

The book, as we have said, is vigorous; the descriptions are detailed, interesting incidents are recited; there is much to learn of how soldiers looked and acted; but perspective is lacking—the real bigness of the battlefield is not there. Except for an occasional mention of refugees, wounds and corpses, one might fancy it only an interesting and peaceful maneuver. Words are piled up, but the reader—if at all accustomed to the writings of certain other correspondents—is likely to feel that Mr. Cobb missed the real atmosphere of war.

A RARE TRAVEL BOOK.

MR. THE TIN GODS. By Mrs. Horace Tremlett. John Lane Company, New York.

ANYONE fortunate enough to have read Mrs. Tremlett's "Curing Christopher" knows something of what to expect in "Mr. the Tin Gods," though that was a novel and this is the record of a trip into Siberia. But Mrs. Tremlett's very alert sense of humor seems to show in anything she writes; even the cannibalistic savages, the fever, insects and lonesomeness of the trip, are enlivened with clever, amusing touches.

Mrs. Tremlett set out from London with a man whom she designates as the Primitive Man, or in other and more prosy words, her husband, who was interested in the development of tin mines in the interior of Nigeria. Her wit is not always amiable, but now and then a keen phrase cuts at some governmental feature discovered on the trip that did not meet with her approval; but in turn she speaks with admiration for the men who crowd to their duty in the God-forsaken country, succumb to some of the innumerable diseases, not mention poisoning or murder from the natives, and make way for other Britishers ever ready to take up the duty.

She describes the customs of the country, the bloody Ju-Ju rites of the natives, confesses that the women seem to get along very well without a vestige of reality and not much more than a vestige of clothing, tells interesting stories that she has heard from others, and gives with delightful many of her own experiences and adventures.

This is a striking sentence—the book is full of them on one subject or another: "A pukka woman lives with a husband just as long as he pleases her and not a moment longer. Directly she sees anyone she likes better she is off like a snipe; and the result of this instinctive mating is that the children are happy and healthy little animals, even if they are not always very clear on the question of their pedigree."

It seems needless to say that this is a charming, vivacious book—one that creates an affection for the author and forms the desire to see more books beneath her name.

ON BEHALF OF CARRANZA.

CARRANZA AND MEXICO. By Carlo de Fornaro. (With chapters by Col. I. C. Enriquez, Charles Ferguson and M. C. Rolland.) Mitchell Kennerley, New York.

SENOR FORNARO has himself to blame if he makes readers suspicious of his purpose, since in this book he denounces the fulsome articles and publicity given Diaz and Huerta—yet neither of them received any more palpable varnish than is given Carranza in "Carranza and Mexico."

We doubt any man's ability to be so good as Carranza is pictured, or so bad as Huerta. This vituperative gem is worth attention: "Victoriano Huerta appeared as a demoniacal clown let loose on the political circus of Mexico City, in an infernal saturnalia of gore, drunkenness and prostitution. Huerta was the Avatar of greed, lust, alcoholism, a moral hyena laughing diabolically at the amazed world, a white-livered soldier pickled in cognac, a mental baboon grinning inanely at his own political antics."

The extreme antithesis of that is the flattering tribute to Carranza.

Senor Fornaro is a diplomat, however. All the enemies of Carranza, now powerful in Mexico, are described as honest, misguided men. Villa is all right, but he employs bad secretaries who delude him. Zapata is just like Villa—even to the employment of secretaries who have unscrupulously made trouble between him and Carranza.

It is an interesting book. We find that Wall-street capitalists are begging revolutionists to take their money, and all but Carranza have yielded to their pitiful pleas. Huerta, we are informed, took $3,000,000 to resign and get out when he was intending to do so anyway.

Carranza's noble plans for restoring order in Mexico are given decided attention; and those American correspondents who have upheld Villa to the disparagement of Carranza are declared not to know of what they are talking.

It is rather surprising to learn that throughout the length and breadth of Mexico the name of Woodrow Wilson is highly respected—yes, we have Senor Fornaro's word for it that President Wilson's name is venerated even more than that of Lincoln or Washington.

What purports to be the true story of Huerta's villainy and Madero's murder, as well as of the numerous revolutions and the means of raising money used by Carranza, is set forth with protracted emphasis. Indeed, it is all very, very interesting—but hardly convincing.

Discovered a new continent.

Sir Douglas Mawson's expedition penetrated into the Antarctic in 1911, discovered and named millions of square miles of territory, and found the birthplace of the terrific blizzards known and feared by all sea-faring men below the equator. Sir Douglas is the lone survivor of a sledging party that lost most of its provisions 311 miles from the base of supplies, and for over 100 miles made his way, with practically no food and alone, across the awful ice-ridden solitude. "The Home of the Blizzard," reviewed on this page, tells the story of the expedition.

BOOKS OF FICTION.

A NOVEL OF VALUE.

THE HARBOR. By Earnest Poole. The Macmillan Company, New York.

WE WELCOME the book with artistry and sincerity in it. When the author has sweep of vision and drives with a far-reaching purpose, when words are laid together with care—why, then we are urged to make some extravagant statement that will attract attention. This is perhaps because we see so many extravagant statements favoring books we do not like. Chanticleer took the credit for making the sun get up in the morning; and we who read new books and talk about them are likely to feel with Chanticleer some little credit in crowing over our discovery just as a new, worthy book comes over the horizon.

We do not mean to say that "The Harbor" is a great book in the sense with which that word is carefully used. We do mean to say that it is an exceptionally fine book. We fancy it is a first novel—not because we know nothing of Mr. Poole, but because it has the freshness, the sincerity and the certain "desirable defects" in the form of an abundance of ideas usually discernible in the maiden effort of the earnest author.

Though this is a book of length, the theme may be briefly stated: The transition of the New York harbor is shown through three well defined periods typifying the industrial growth and problems of the nation. The first is the waning prosperity of the merchantmen; the second is the rich traffic of the ocean-shuttling steamers; the third is the conflict between the laborers of the docks and the owners.

The second of the four divisions into which the story is divided is somewhat desultory, and more attention than seems needed is given to situations that blur rather than strengthen the reader's insight. The action is slow, gathers in force, sweeps on—something like the undercurrent of the sea, and never rises into a roar or crash. The third part of the story is particularly fine, with the least noisy, least brutal and yet most vivid description and understanding of the potential lawlessness of aroused strikers that we know of.

"The Harbor" is indeed, a careful, artistic, sincere book. There are parts of it—particularly those chapters dealing with the strikers—that have qualities which for want of a better word may be called classic. It is a novel of high value.

DISILLUSIONMENT.

ON THE FIRING LINE. By Constance Smedley. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

"ON THE FIRING LINE" is not a war novel. The author prefatorially remarks that her book was written and the title selected long before Europe began digging graves instead of furrows. It is the story of a London girl who goes on the economic firing line to make a living as a stenographer, and she tells of her experiences. And she writes well, too—remarkably well, seeing that it is her purpose to be more serious at times than the average reader wishes.

Jasmine is employed by a big company, becomes stenographer for the son of one of the big men in the company, and lives in a cheap lodging-house with a socialistic sort of man for a neighbor. Mr. Richard—the big man's son—seems such a charming, gentlemanly sort of aristocrat that Jasmine's heart goes pit-pat for hours after he has deigned to treat her as more than a machine. Soon he begins to regard her as very much more than a machine, but he is always a gentleman—even when he promises to marry her.

Jack Ford, the socialistic person, is something of a bohemian and has a room full of strangely interesting people on many evenings when Jasmine is lonesome, and when Mr. Richard is attending functions and visiting women where his father's position gains the son a welcome. Of course, Mr. Richard is as shocked as a well-bred Englishman should be to learn that she occasionally associates with such people. Heavens! Of course she should stay in her own little cubbyhole and solace herself with thoughts of him.

Jasmine is disillusioned—properly disillusioned — but Mr. Richard remains the gentleman, a clean-minded cad to the end. Her idols tumble about her; even those big men whom she has admired at the office have faulty streaks in their character; and she loses her job.

From that point on the story weakens somewhat; the god of the writer's machine lifts Jasmine into an unsuspected relationship and happiness settles down just as in all the ordinary novels. And this is far from being one of that kind.

The characters in "On the Firing Line" are admirably drawn; the very finest kind of work has been done with Carol, a wealthy, half-adventurous young woman, and she is of a difficult type to handle. The author knows how to make the English language do its duty; but we cannot believe she was as interested and as sincere in the last third of the story as before. But even at that it is a book worthy of attention.

A PACKAGE OF THRILLS.

THE MYSTERY OF LUCIEN DELORME. By Guy de Teramond. Translated by Mary J. Safford. Appleton & Co., New York.

WE NEVER have been able to understand why authors laboriously toil to work up a breath-snatching mystery and offer the reader a pseudo-scientific explanation that he cannot possibly understand. If an author frankly goes into the realm of fancy as Poe and Verne did, as H. G. Wells and many others sometimes do, then we are willing to take the hobbles off our imagination and listen to him with the bland credulity of a tourist.

But this thing of getting us interested under false pretenses and trying to satisfy our agitated curiosity with some unheard-of and unbelievable scientific technicality is much like getting a brick when we ask for bread, and is likely to make us peevish.

Both the slip-cover announcement and the first few chapters of "The Mystery of Lucien Delorme" convey the impression that we have a psychological study of a peculiar, sensitive mind who actually, and rather unconsciously, makes use of certain psychometric powers.

Thinking that we understand at least something of what the author has in mind, we graciously witness a few murders, make the acquaintances of rogues, watch one band of illusioned thieves pry into the empty—at least empty of jewels—safe of another gang, allow ourselves to be harrowed by numerous intrigues and complicities, and patiently push on to discover how Lucien Delorme is enabled to see through walls, disguises and closed boxes, as well as to spot the bullets the bogus representative of the Maharajah of Pandhukurrah carries about in his body.

If we had known in the first place that Monsieur Delorme had by some elaborate process gotten radium in his eye there would have been more interest and less mystery to the story, and the would-be astonishing denouement would not have made us feel so much as though we had been hoodwinked.

The book will particularly appeal to all who enjoy the type of "exciting" fiction designed for no other purpose than to thrill and thrill and thrill—in other words, for those who like charming nightmares.

FOR AN IDLE HOUR.

STORIES WITHOUT TEARS. By Barry Pain. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.

"STORIES WITHOUT TEARS" are cheerful without being humorous—or rather than cheerful, amusing. "Cheerful" has become so identified with the goody-good fiction that it may soon pass to our package of disparaging words.

Mr. Pain writes with informality, but is never harsh; his touch is not exactly light, but his observations are keen, and usually interest is suspended and satisfied by the unexpected though plausible ending.

A story such as "A Model Man" is unpretentiously amusing. The sly impostor of a beggar, who tells a story easily worth the alms dropped by tourists, engages in a scandal duel with the "official curator" who virtuously objects to the beggar's impositions—or perhaps the curator objects to the success of the impositions. Anyway we find enjoyment in seeing them come to an understanding.

"Great Possessions" sets forth the psychological development of a colorless schoolmaster who comes into a small amount of money at about the same time he decides a certain servant girl would make an admirable wife.

The book is full of good stories, all—as the title implies—light of theme, and now and then a merry complication as in "One Hour of Fame" when "Billunt" poses as the great author Wymondel and is thereby able to get intoxicated at the expense of the admirers of the author.

Another story which shows how fame may be—if not falsely at least accidentally—acquired, is "The Hero and the Burglar." Difficult as it ordinarily is for a husband to become a hero to her who is most dear and cherished, nevertheless, Herbert succeeds after a strange encounter with a burglar.

And so they run, some forty of them; a few very short, but these redeem themselves—or it may be, have an added merit—by being pointed. "Stories Without Tears" is a very good book to have around the house for an idle hour or so.

WITH THE DRAMA.

AMERICAN PRIZE PLAY.

CHILDREN OF THE EARTH. By Alice Brown. The Macmillan Company, New York.

IN 1913 a prize of $10,000 was offered by Winthrop Ames for the best play to be submitted anonymously by an American author. Nearly 1700 manuscripts were received. "Children of the Earth" was selected and was first produced in New York a few weeks ago.

Perhaps this play—if its influence is at all compatible with its prestige—will give impetus to a new movement in letters. It has in it the germ of a philosophy which the stage and the novelist have ignored.

The old romantic dreamers and mercenaries who presented love magically blending happiness forever in the lives of the hero and heroine were—and the few of them that remain still are—nothing more or less than silly.

The later essential contemporary type that has much prominence, somewhat champions the right of each man and each woman to break all conventions for the spasmodic pleasure of living their so-called "own lives," no matter what the injury may be to others. This postulates a sort of social anarchy as well as a state of oversexed selfishness.

In "Children of the Earth," which is essentially an American play with New England characters, we find a man and a woman who challenge society to gain forbidden happiness; but who, upon seeing the courage of his wife, recognizes that they have no right to snatch for themselves pleasure that makes others suffer.

Mary Barstow has cherished to middle age the love dream suppressed by a stern, forbidding father; his death leaves her free to welcome this lover. He comes — an avaricious hypocrite, and she repels him. Still aching with the desire for affection so long denied, she discovers that Peter Hale, though married, now loves and has for years, loved her. They go away together, but chance upon Peter's wife; and she, never seeing them, opens their eyes to a duty larger than happiness.

We cannot help feeling that the play falls somewhat to show why and how Jane Hale rises to the sacrifice she makes to protect Mary, but otherwise it is strong, well built and delicate. Alice Brown is an artist with words, anyway; her characters are splendidly distinctive, her theme big, and her play one that shuts the lips of those who, rather truthfully, have been given to saying America has no dramas worthy of study.

BARRIE'S SHORT PLAYS.

HALF HOURS. By J. M. Barrie. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

SIR JAMES, as charming as ever, allows us to spend an hour or so with him between the covers of "Half Hours," a collection of four whimsical short plays.

And now that we may call Mr. Barrie Sir James, we read with an enlarged interest "The Twelve-pound Look," second of the plays, in which we find that Harry Sims is to receive the honor of knighthood in a few days and is rehearsing the ceremony with his wife. Certainly those high and mighty personages who honor themselves by giving titles to meritorious authors must feel, if the "The Twelve-pound Look" is an indication, that Mr. Barrie has not fully appreciated their condescension. Harry is very proud of himself, but we are not allowed to escape the impression that he makes a big fuss about nothing—at least until his former wife comes in as the stenographer sent for to write Harry's letters explaining to friends how the honor was thrust upon him. The former wife is different in temperament from the woman now reposing on his manly bosom, some of his pride escapes after she frankly tells him why, years before, she ran away, preferring to be a stenographer rather than the object of his British devotions.

"Pantaloon" is irreverent fantasy—sausages keep it from being exquisite—for Pantaloon and Columbine love, but her father, Harlequin, prefers the rich Clown who has plenty of sausages to munch. But true love goes about its own way.

"Rosalind" shows us an actress who escapes to the country, abandons corsets and paints, to rest. She accounts for her aged appearance by pretending she is her own mother, and thus is enabled to hear a suitor pouring out to Rosalind's "mother" his love for Rosalind—a suitor whom it is difficult to disillusion.

"The Will" is lightly satirical and has a short-tailed moral against the evil of being too successful financially. When Philip and Emily first come to have his will made at the lawyer's office, their funds are scarce but their love is great. As the years go by they come again and again, and as money has increased they take more interest in it and less in themselves—until at last Sir Philip looks in vain for something to do with his accumulated pounds.

SIDELIGHTS ON PUBLISHING BUSINESS

"I am about to engage in the mail order cook book business and wish you would give me your terms for your cook book which retails at $1.50!" wrote a stranger recently to The Century Company, who publish three standard cook books.

"Would you agree to ship the cook book direct to my customers and at what prices?

"I positively mean business and am enclosing ten cents as an evidence of good faith."

INFERNO OF ICE.

THE HOME OF THE BLIZZARD. By Douglas Mawson. (Two Vol.) J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.

THE land surface of the world is known to be several million square miles larger as the result of Sir Douglas Mawson's Australasian-exploration expedition of 1911-1914, and it is indubitably established that a seventh continent does exist. This is now called Adelie Land, and was first sighted in 1840 by Admiral Wilkes, U.S.N., but, so far as is known, was never reached by any man before Sir Douglas.

This land is rich in coal and minerals, but covered with glaciers and snow, and swept by blizzards at an average velocity of fifty miles per hour and rising frequently to 220 miles per hour. The expedition carried with it an aeroplane and wireless outfit, but the winds rendered the former useless, although the wireless was effective in communicating with King George to obtain permission for naming portions of the territory King George Land and Queen Mary Land.

Though the party as a whole fared well, Sir Douglas passed through a harrowing experience such as no man before him has ever met with and returned to tell of.

Pushing out from the home camp on Adelie Land with two companions, Lieut. Ninnis and Dr. Mertz, and three sledges, he made his way 311 miles through the inferno of ice over which the terrific winds were ever blowing.

Sir Douglas, with his sled, was traveling at a short distance apart between the others when he looked around and waved cheerfully to Lieut. Ninnis behind him—a moment later he again looked back and only a sweep of desolation was before him; Lieut. Ninnis had disappeared; a crevasse had yawned and taken man, dogs and sled—the sled that carried the most of the party's food supply and equipment.

Sir Douglas ran to where his friend had fallen through, "leaned over and shouted into the dark depths below. No sound came back but the moaning of a dog caught on a shelf just visible 150 feet below . . . We," he writes, "took turns leaning over secured by a rope calling into the darkness in the hope that our companion might still be alive. For three hours we called unceasingly, but no answering sound came back. The dog had ceased to moan and lay without movement. A chill draught was blowing out of the abyss. By means of a fishing line we ascertained that it was 150 feet to the ledge on which the remains were seen; on either side the crevasse descended into the blackness." When all hope was gone, he says, "We stood by the side of the crevasse and I read the burial service."

They started back; a sixty days' journey before them, and they had but six dogs and ten days provisions. One by one the dogs weakened and gave out, and were used as rations by both men and the remaining dogs. Dr. Mertz was soon exhausted, sickened, and one night after a period of delirium passed into sleep from which he did not awaken. Again the simple burial service was read amid the awful solitude, and a rude cross made from a wrecked sled marked where he lay.

The dogs were gone, but a few bits of food remained and Sir Douglas was a hundred miles from camp. But he pressed on with Service's lines drumming in his mind: "Buck up, do your damndest and fight. It's the plugging away that will win you the day."

He slipped into a crevasse, caught himself at the thighs, fastened a rope, but in attempting to climb out, the snow gave way and he dropped the full length of the rope. He writes: "Exhausted, weak and chilled (for my hands were bare and pounds of snow had gotten inside my clothing) I hung with the firm conviction that all was over except the passing. Below was a black chasm."

But there is that within men who seek the bleak frontiers that makes them indomitable while life remains, and Sir Douglas fought his way up the icy rope and climbed to a precarious safety—precarious, for in the bowl of that vast horizon he was alone. He "plugged on," stumbling, falling, blown from his course, slipping and yet pushing on, ever on.

By the merest accident he chanced across a cache made by a searching party that had come out to look for him; and he found it just five hours after the party had left. Here was food and comfort, where he rested before starting on for the main camp.

He reached the camp shortly after the expedition's ship, after waiting in vain for his return, had put to sea. A wireless was sent asking her to turn back, but the high winds and drifting ice rendered this impossible, and Sir Douglas was compelled to spend another winter amid the blizzards and glaciers.

It is surprising to notice in the biographical list of the expedition's members that most of them are young men, practically all under 30 years, and yet have won some kind of scholastic distinction that entitles them to recognition in this scientific expedition.

The two volumes are splendidly illustrated, both with photographs and maps; and though Sir Douglas wrote most of the book, there are chapters by other members of the party. Almost every conceivable detail relative to equipment, food, housing, clothing, discoveries, investigations, animal life, cost and even the pleasures, are included.

It is truly a powerful and dramatic story, one of the most thrilling records of exploration and discovery that has ever been written; and it is with something of amazement that we contemplate the discovery of a new continent in this day when the earth is supposed to be almost as familiar to the geographers as a toy ball to a child.

"THE ROMANCE OF THE BEAVER."

A. Radclyffe Dugmore, F.R.G.S., F.R.C.S., has brought out many interesting books on the romance of various species of wild animals; his new volume, "The Romance of the Beaver" (J. P. Lippincott Company) is the history of the beaver in the western hemisphere and illustrated with photographs from life and drawings by the author. We are informed of the habits of the beavers and of their wonderful engineering feats, the life in the colony, the benefits that man derives from the work of the beavers, and something of the part that the beavers have played in the development of the Canadian country. There are more than a hundred photographs and all of them interesting. The book is written in a simple, direct style.

Classified Liners

The Times classified rates. The rate for Want Ads in the Daily Times is 1c per word per insertion; in the Sunday issue, 1½c per word per insertion; minimum charge, 25c. Except in the following classifications, the rate for which is 2c per word daily, 2½c per word Sunday, minimum charge 30c daily, 40c Sunday: "Personals," "Special Notices," "Churches," "Miscellaneous," "Stocks and Bonds," "Lost, Strayed or Stolen," "Help Wanted," "Salesmen, Agents," "Situations Wanted," "Detectives," "Sanatoriums" and "Massage."

Minimum space for classified advertisements ordered for more than one insertion, 14 words per week.

Sunday real estate advertisements, to be properly timed, must be in The Times office by Saturday night. Other classified advertisements, "To Let," etc., received over counter or mailed until 11 p.m. Saturday. Ads received after these hours for each division will be run under heading "Too Late to Classify." 5c per word.

The Sunday circulation of The Times is 50,000 copies, and more liners are printed in its columns than in the five other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Telephone your want advertisements to The Times," Main 8200, Home 10091. We receive day or night, and secure prompt and careful attention.

The Times cannot guarantee accuracy or responsibility for errors of any kind connected with telephone advertisements.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one time.

Advertisers should retain receipts given by The Times in payment for "liners," as no claim can be entertained without them.

The Times will not accept phone or verbal orders for discontinuance or change "till forbid" advertisements.

Telephoned orders to discontinue advertisements in The Times are numbered in the order of their receipt, and in each instance the number of the order is given to the advertiser, who should make a note of it. In case of dispute, no charge for a liner will be rebated unless the "till order" has been presented to The Times by the advertiser.

The Times constantly endeavors to render a strong satisfactory and efficient service, and invites complaints of, and makes a prompt adjustment for any material errors it may inadvertently make in its columns.

Be quick to kick if things seem wrong. But kick to us, and make it strong."

Classified Liners.

Times classified rates. The rate for inserting Want Ads in the Daily Times is 1c per word each time; in the Sunday Issue 1½c per word each time; minimum charge 25c; except under the following classifications, the rate for which is 2c per word, minimum per word Sunday, minimum 50c daily, as follows: "Societies and Meetings," "Specials," "Special Notices," "Church Notices," "Lectures," "Lost Bonds and Bonds," "Money to Loan," "Salary and Chattels," "Physicians," "Medical," "Dentistry," "Sanatoriums" and "Baths and Massage."

Copy for classified advertisements ordered for more than one insertion, 14 words.

Daily real estate advertisements, to be classified properly, must be in The Times office before 8 o'clock Saturday night. Other classified "Wants," "Lost," etc., received over counter or by telephone until 11 p.m. Saturday. Ads received after that time, for each division will be inserted under heading "Too Late to Classify." Rate 1½ cents per word.

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds 100,000, and more "liners" are regularly printed in its columns than in the five other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Address your want advertisements, Ring up "Times," Main 8200, Home 10891, any time day or night, and secure prompt and careful service.

The Times cannot guarantee accuracy or assume responsibility for errors of any kind occurring in classified advertisements.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one time.

Advertisers should retain receipts given by The Times when payment for "liners," as no mistake can be made in the amount charged.

The Times will not accept phone or verbal orders for discontinuance of ads using "till forbid" advertisements.

Additional orders to discontinue advertising in which there are numbered in the order of their receipt, and in each instance the number of the order given in the advertisement, which will put much in case of dispute, no charge for advertisements will be stopped unless the "till order" number is quoted in the letter ordering the discontinuance.

The Times constantly endeavors to render its many satisfactory and efficient service, and it will welcome complaints of, and make a proper adjustment for any material errors it may make in the classified "Liner" section.

Be quick to kick if things seem wrong. Be quick to us, and make it strong."

PERSONAL—

RENLEY,

RENLEY,

LOS ANGELES' NOTED SUCCESSFUL SEER.

HIS ADVICE HELPED TO MAKE LOS ANGELES WHAT IT IS TODAY.

THE OLDEST PSYCHIC IN THE CITY, TWENTY-FOUR YEARS.

317 WEST THIRD, NEAR HILL.

REMEMBER, MR. HENLEY IS NOT A CARD READER OR PALMIST, BUT A NATURAL-BORN PSYCHIC.

Without asking you a question he gives dates, facts, figures. Are the people pleased? They are simply astounded! AMAZED! They say they never saw anything like it. Spiritualists, scientists, bankers, merchants and people of the highest class of society have had readings with him and pronounce him unequaled in his profession. Readings daily.

LARGE PATRONAGE. A SATISFIED PATRON IS HIS BEST ADVERTISEMENT. 317 W. THIRD, NEAR HILL.

PERSONAL— MRS. MASSON, the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life. Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION WRITTEN OR VERBAL. MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

WANTED—
The dramatic department of this school is now open; terms reasonable; call or send for booklet. MOTION PICTURE CLASS.

MANY REASONS WHY WE HAVE THE PREFERENCE.

We are the only practical school having a department devoted to Moving Picture Acting.

We instruct and prepare students to take positions in Moving Picture Acting as a profession.

We have the indorsement and support of the leading Film Studios.

We furnish the opportunity for practical photoplay acting.

We have our classes meet in the city, so that those that are employed during the day may take up this work without interfering with their employment.

We know a business that means success to a person in a Film profession.

We have a number of students who are now early in the work and drawing large salaries.

We have a number of several new styles [illegible] who will want a number of experienced people.

We advise those who are thinking of taking up the work to apply at once to the Happy.

SEE PRETTIEST BABIES THERE.

MANY ENJOY RECEPTION AT THE CRITTENTON HOME.

Members of Chamber of Commerce and City Council and the City Mothers Get a New Understanding of Work for Humanity's Sake—Gift of Bibles.

A lady of 6 gazed in her mirror with admiration unfeigned. "Grandma," she asked, "you say that God made me?" "Yes," her grandmother assured. "And did He make you?" Her grandmother nodded an affirmation. Giving her curls a dainty toss the wee woman asked, "Grandma, don't you think God is doing much better work here lately?"

The same seems to be true of the stork. He used to go winging his way through the skies with a baby in his beak and the poor little youngster dangled by its pinafores from the big bird's bill with every chance in the world of catching its death of cold before it was born.

Nowadays the stork brings them in a basket and they are rolled up in warm blankets of dainty pink and blue shades.

The institution stands, an imposing structure, on a five-acre tract on a picturesque hillside. It cost $70,000. The whole thing is a gift from Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Johnson.

There may be finer babies in the world than those shown to the members of the Chamber of Commerce, the City Council and the city mothers at the Florence Crittenton Home yesterday afternoon, but it would be a puzzle where to look for them.

The visitors at the Florence Crittenton Home yesterday met something like twenty of the prettiest babies they had ever seen in their lives. The sad little mothers were mercifully spared any exhibition of themselves, but it was a comfort to think of them in a sunny hospital ward or in a cheerful sewing-room next door.

For many years it has been the dream of Mrs. Frank Stoddard's life to see an institution of adequate size and equipment to meet the demands of this work. At last her dreams have been realized. She said yesterday she was afraid to breathe for fear she would wake up and it would not all be true.

It would take a book to tell about all of the interesting features of this work. Something like twenty-five rooms have been furnished by individuals whose hearts have gone out to the institution. One room was provided by the Elks. On the door in bronze letters are the words "Big Brothers."

The nursery is kept up by the First Congregational Church, of which Mrs. Stoddard is a member. The Hotel Men's Association bought the cribs. One of the rooms was prepared by Miss Ellen Diegleman, who is a worker at the City Jail and who wanted a room which would always be ready for any poor girl she might find in the prison whose relief she could obtain on her responsibility.

All of the downstairs is furnished by a fund that was started at the poor little ramshackle home on Santee street on the occasion of the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard three years back. They took all of their gifts that day and turned them into the home. One of these was a big all-over punch bowl, and when the people heard of their plan they almost filled this receptacle with silver dollars.

Lyman Stewart, president of the Union Oil Company and the founder of the Bible Institute in this city, sent out fifty handsome Bibles yesterday for the different rooms.

Dr. A. J. Scott, president of the home's directorate and a member of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, and John S. Mitchell of the Hollenbeck Hotel and also a director of the Chamber of Commerce, headed the reception committee of men yesterday afternoon. One of the first fellows they got hold of was Chief of Police Sebastian, who went out as a plainclothesman.

Henry M. Hurd was there, and his friends pointed with pride to the barn he had built at a cost of exactly $1.50. He had built it all himself with the exception of a single helper for one day.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were there and were agreeably surprised to see life-sized photographs of themselves over the mantel of the assembly room. Mrs. John S. Mitchell and other ardent supporters of the cause were present. Altogether, it was the best day in the history of the institution.

CONTEST WINNERS' NAMES ANNOUNCED

THREE BOYS, ONE GIRL GIVEN PRIZES FOR PICTURES OF FARMS.

Announcement was made yesterday of the winners of the Calipatria Farms picture contest, which closed the 22nd inst. Three boys and one girl drew the cash prizes.

They are: First prize, James Oswald Bennett, Whittier; second, Burnett Wisegarver, San Fernando; third, Richard Steele, Norwalk; fourth, Helen M. Scheck, No. 1202 West Thirty-sixth Place, Los Angeles.

Checks have been mailed these winners by Carl F. Schader, co-owner with the Imperial Valley Farm Lands Association of 47,000 acres surrounding the new town of Calipatria in the Imperial Valley.

Mr. Schader gave the contest to teach children more about farm life. Printed pictures of farm scenes were colored by the contestants, many of whom showed unusual taste and skill.

Souvenirs are being sent to all the children who contested, with letters thanking them for the interest taken, that helped make the contest a success. The pictures submitted, collected in a scrapbook, will probably be displayed with the Imperial Valley exhibits at the two expositions.

HERMOSA BEACH CUPS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HERMOSA BEACH, Feb. 27.—Amateur fishermen, who are in the habit of hauling in fine strings of pompano, mackerel and various other surf fish, while fishing from the beach or municipal pier here, will have an opportunity before long to enter contests for twelve fine silver cups, to be given by the Rod and Reel Club for the best catches of this season. Preliminary arrangements for the cups and other prizes to be given for second place are being made for the club by Financial Secretary Butzin.

THREE WOMEN IN JAIL FOR THEFT.

DOCTOR WAS LOOKOUT FOR TWO SHOPLIFTERS, CHARGE. SHE DENIES IT.

Suspected of being a female Fagin and conducting her operations under the protection of a license to practice a branch of medicine, Dr. Inez Decker, with offices at No. 1220 Washington building, was arrested yesterday afternoon by operatives of a private detective agency in a downtown department store and booked at Central Police Station on a charge of suspected petty larceny.

With Dr. Decker when she was arrested were two women who gave the names of Mrs. Annie Burrow and Miss Alice Brown, both of Watts. In the possession of the two latter women were found several hats which it is alleged by the detectives were stolen from the store.

The three women were traced to the store yesterday afternoon and after loking at some rugs Dr. Decker declared that she wanted to purchase, went to the millinery department. Here it is alleged Dr. Decker stood guard while the other two women secreted the hats beneath their coats. Two hats were found when Mrs. Burrow and Miss Brown were searched at Central Station.

Dr. Decker declares the detectives are wrong and that her arrest is a mistake. She admitted she was acquainted with the other women, but denied that she knew they were going to steal the hats.

According to Detective Chapman of the police department, Dr. Decker has been arrested several times before and her record is in the possession of the police pedartment. Her latest arrest, according to Mr. Chapman, was in Milwaukee, where she was held on a shoplifting charge and assessed a heavy fine.

Louis Decker, son of Dr. Decker, is now on probation, according to his mother, for attempting to pick the pocket of Mrs. James J. Jeffries while Mrs. Jeffries was shopping in the same store in which Dr. Decker was arrested.

Dr. Decker says that she is a graduate of the Marion Sims Medical College of St. Louis, Mo., and has been practicing obstetrics in Los Angeles for the last nine years, except for short periods, when she has been out of the city. According to her own statement, she was refused a license to practice other branches of medicine.

REFUSE TO TALK OF RESIGNATION.

MANHATTAN BEACH RESIDENTS CALL FOR ELECTION TO RECALL TRUSTEES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MANHATTAN BEACH, Feb. 27.—Political factions here are divided on the question of whether Capt. H. C. Coe and Eli Auchmoody, City Trustees, who are facing a recall election, can resign before Wednesday and thus set at naught the work of their, political opponents.

Both of the Trustees under fire say, however, that there is no use worrying over the subject for they do not intend to resign, but propose to fight the matter out at the polls. The question arose today when the oft-repeated rumor of their resignation was again circulated.

The two Trustees are inclined to believe that they have a chance to win over the necessary thirteen votes and remain in office. If they are not unseated in the recall election and refuse to resign, the Board of Trustees here will have the unique distinction of having four Trustees who have faced recall and defeated it, with the opposing votes being equal.

Dr. Walker, the fifth member of the board and its president, takes the position of a neutral and so far has escaped the recall. Trustees Stockwell and Smith have already defeated the recall and are the opposition to Trustees Auchmoody and Coe.

Consultation with attorneys failed to decide the resignation question. The date for the election will be set at Wednesday night's meeting of the board.

In the last election Trustees Stockwell and Smith defeated the recall by twenty-five votes, which would indicate that Trustees Coe and Auchmoody, who led the fight again them, together with former City Clerk C. E. Jenkins, need thirteen votes to defeat the recall against them, if the same number of votes are cast.

SALTON SEA FISHERIES.

Carp to Be Prepared for Chicken and Hog Food—Plant Being Prepared.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BANNING, Feb. 27.—An immense plant, for the purpose of converting Salton Sea or Coachella Valley Lake carp into chicken and hog food and fertilizer, is being built on the shores of Salton Sea, according to reports brought in by residents of that section. R. Burlingham of Long Beach, who recently came from Washington State, is in charge of the plant and fishing operations.

The sea is filled with these non-edible fish and about twenty or thirty tons a day are being taken out. The fish are converted into stock food, fertilizer and oil. The machinery of the company is at Salto, also two boats used for fishing purposes and seines. Two barges are being completed now and all the machinery will be transferred to Seabird island in the southern end of the sea.

It is believed that the supply of carp is inexhaustible for the present at least.

IMPERIAL VALLEY GETS BUSY ON PLANS TO KEEP OUT COLORADO RIVER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Feb. 27.—The directors of the irrigation district today adopted a resolution instructing Chief Engineer and General Manager Rockwood to begin immediate work in accordance with his plans for strengthening, extending and heightening the Volcano Lake and Saiz levees in Mexico as protection from the June floods of the Coorado River.

The formal order is warranted, the resolution states, by the securing of sufficient signatures to the guarantee demanded by the Los Angeles bankers who are to make a $200,000 loan to the district. Seventy signatures have been secured.

Mr. Rockwood says actual work will be begun within a week and be finished before May 15. A thousand mules will be used in the scraper work.

"Original American."

INDIAN MUSIC IS DIFFERENT.

CADMAN RECITAL UNIQUE AS WELL AS INTERESTING.

Instructive Discourse on Pure and Unadulterated Compositions of the Redman Shows that He is Unmusical—Novelty, However, Carries it Over Fine.

The American Indian is unmusical. Charles Wakefield Cadman, the noted American composer, and his magnetic assistant and vocal interpreter, Princess Tsianina Redfeather, established that fact at Trinity Auditorium, yesterday afternoon, beyond a shadow of doubt.

It was a unique afternoon, this illustrated discourse on the music of the "original American," and it was instructive, too, and from start to finish interesting in the extreme.

But if America is to take a standard for its music, the black man, rather than the red, will probably win out, for Indian music, or at least that part which is pure and unadulterated, and not modernized by the impressionistic genius of Cadman, has little besides novelty to recommend it.

It speaks volumes concerning the lives of these peoples of the desert and the prairie. One can easily conjure up the brave, who doubtless thought music decidedly feminine, and save for the war dance would scarce permit anything more musical than a war whoop to pass his lips; it speaks volumes for the squaw, whose broad shoulders assumed the workaday burden of existence; it speaks volumes for the Indian maid, with whom marriage was a matter of barter, with skins and spear heads as the price for possession.

For it boasts for the most part a plaintive monotony, and a tinge of the mystic, a yearning for something not understood and an apathy which makes it manifest that fulfillment is not in the least expected.

It is boastful, too, in some respects; in fact, teems with qualities which are practically absent in all Caucasian music, unless one goes back to the primer of our musical endeavor when sound instruments could be counted on a single hand.

The limitations of the Indian musical instruments is deftly brought out by Cadman by octave arrangements. Piano octaves and a drum can produce almost everything in music an Indian ever presented, and even Princess Tsianina is an admirable illustration of the narrowness of the red man's endeavor.

She is a fascinating being and a clever actress. One can well believe Cadman's statement that in a country-wide search he found no one who could suit his purpose so well as she, but her voice shows the poverty of an Indian soul.

It is different; different from any Caucasian voice you ever heard, but it is an indefinite difference which one might attribute to a dozen sources and still be wrong.

Both in joy and in sorrow it suggests a fatalism, an acceptance of the emotion it depicts as a matter of course, entirely unworthy of ecstacy or despair. And yet it isn't flat, as the voice of a white would be under similar circumstances, and therein it is extraordinary.

The afternoon began with a trio, presented by Oscar Seiling, violin; Axel Simonsen, 'cellist, and Mr. Cadman at the piano, after which the Cadman compositions were presented by the composer and the princess.

It showed exhaustive study, coupled with imagination and practical application, the whole a record of music which all too soon will be extinct, which our progeny will surely value beyond price.

One could not but feel, in listening to the Cadman programme, that he had saved for us a music record which otherwise would have been lost to the world.

IMPERIAL VALLEY KILLING.

Mexican Shot and Stabbed in Quarrel Over Money Matters at Brawley.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BRAWLEY, Feb. 27.—In the second shooting in three days, a Mexican named Ramingo, was killed here tonight, presumably by Jesus Rollers in the latter's home. Not only shot four times, twice on each side of the body, Ramingo was also stabbed an equal number of times, two also on each side of the body. The men had been drinking and a quarrel arose over a money matter, according to Marshal Miles.

Despite the ceaseless search and running down of the countless clews, the murderers of Constable Perry Emerson, shot down Friday night while pursuing three robbers, are still at large. A reward of $250 has been offered by the Business Men's Club. The funeral Sunday will assume the proportions of a public demonstration of respect for the martyred officer.

HELD FOR OLD MURDER.

Man and Wife on Ranch Near Myrtle Point, Or., Charged with Killing Man by Poison.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MARSHFIELD (Or.) Feb. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Russell, living on a ranch near Myrtle Point, were arrested there today, charged with the murder of the accused man's brother, Arthur Russell, who died three years ago.

Disclosures made recently by William Pentland, a former neighbor of the Russells, led to the arrests. As a result of Pentland's story, the body of Arthur Russell was exhumed and the stomach sent to a chemist for analysis.

The result of this analysis has not been announced, but Pentland was arrested yesterday at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, on orders from Sheriff Johnson of Marshfield, and the arrests of Clarence Russell and his wife were made as soon as the Sheriff learned Pentland was in custody.

DECLAMATION AWARD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Feb. 27.—Riverside is to cherish the big silver loving cup of the University of Redlands, contested for each year by the high schools of the south in an interscholastic declamation contest. The contest was held here last night, Clarence Decker, of Riverside, taking first place. He gave Robert Emmet's speech before the judges of England just before he was condemned to death. John Loucks, of Pomona, was second; Raymond Untereiner, of Redlands, was third; Clarence Gurr, of San Bernardino, fourth; John Mayr, of Hemet, fifth, and Lloyd Warner, of Colton, sixth.

PORT ITEMS.

Capt. Blake of the American-Hawaiian steamer Ohioan did not wait to pass quarantine in the outer harbor last night, but proceeded direct to pier A. For this the company is subject to a fine of from $500 to $5000. Capt. Blake stated that this was his first trip through the canal and he did not know that quarantine restrictions were enforced upon vessels from American ports in the Atlantic. The steamer Mexican also arrived from New York, via San Diego. After discharging 3000 tons of cargo here, the steamers will proceed to San Francisco tomorrow.

The steamer Eureka, under charter to W. R. Grace & Co., arrived today from Chilean ports and, after discharging 1000 tons of nitrates at the warehouse of the Outer Harbor Dock & Wharf Co., proceeded to San Francisco.

Lumber carriers arriving today were the Johan Paulsen from Puget Sound, Redondo and Coos Bay, Willapa from Gray's Harbor and Necanicum from Eureka. The Redondo and Rainier sailed for San Diego with partial cargoes.

The Japanese steamer Azumasan Maru completed discharge of a partial cargo of merchandise and hardwood from oriental ports today for Mitsui & Co., and proceeded to San Francisco with balance of cargo.

The steamer Queen arrived from San Francisco and Puget Sound today, under command of Capt. Tarpley, who has relieved Capt. Reilly, who is on sick leave. The Yale arrived from San Francisco and proceeded to San Diego, and the Beaver sailed for San Francisco and Portland.

HOTEL FOR SOUTH HOPE.

Contract Let for Sixty-Room Building Near Second—Apartment Projected for Site on Ingraham.

To L. T. Mayo has been awarded the contract for the construction of a three-story brick hotel projected by Elizabeth Hodgkins and Bertha M. Fisher for a site at No. 227 South Hope street. The building will contain sixty rooms, thirty baths and a large lobby. The front will be glazed brick.

C. S. Anderson is about to begin work on a three-story brick apartment-house which he will build for himself on Ingraham street between Witmer and Valencia. The building will contain sixty rooms and will cost about $35,000.

The contract has been let for a two-story brick store and apartment building for O. E. Brookins at No. 611 East Ninth street. The building will contain two stores and eight apartments.

George N. Hilwig will start this week a brick flat building at No. 107 North Bailey street. J. F. Kavanaugh has drawn plans for a frame flat he will build for himself on Fiftieth street between Moneta avenue and Figueroa street.

NEW LOFT BLOCK.

A four-story brick loft building is to be started at once by H. H. Ford, president of the National Bank of Redlands, at No. 73 South Main street in this city. The site, which is 50x110 feet in size, is now being cleared. John J. Frauenfelder is drawing the architectural plans. It is understood that the structure will be occupied by a furniture company.

How to Dress

If every woman tried to dress like the models shown in the average fashion magazine, she would look like a Futurist or a Cubist painting.

The attempts of a few are responsible for the queerly-dressed creatures which we occasionally see on prominent thoroughfares.

The intelligent woman who cares about her appearance wants to be fashionably yet tastefully and exclusively gowned.

Fortunately, there is a publication which will aid her—The Woman's Home Companion.

The fashion models in this magazine are not fantastic. They do not look like creatures which belong in a zoo or a museum.

They look like real human beings, real flesh and blood women—women who are really pleasing to the eye.

Every woman would be attractive in appearance if she made her gowns according to the designs and patterns furnished by the Companion.

The American Magazine

The American Magazine is the kind of magazine that nobody ever hides in a drawer. It is edited by responsible people, who have children of their own to bring up—edited by people who know that the best and even the most exciting reading matter in all the world is pure—edited by people of brains and character, who realize that nastiness is only a poor substitute for stupidity.

The American Magazine, with all its humor, its facts, its new ideas, its stories and its wonderful pictures, is one of the rarest and most significant products of present day American life. It is, in fact, THE American Magazine.

THE TIMES

By exclusive arrangement with the publishers, The Times is enabled to offer its readers, old or new, the following exceptionally liberal subscription proposition. Any subscriber, old or new, can get The Times, the Woman's Home Companion and the American Magazine, by signing a twelve months' subscription contract for the Daily and Sunday Times and paying therefor only 80 cents per month.

No other newspaper attempts to cover the home field—Los Angeles, Southern California, the Pacific Coast and the Great Southwest—as thoroughly and completely as does The Times, which is the only paper in the Pacific Southwest that daily prints a full and complete Associated Press report.

These comprehensive and authentic reports are of special importance at this time because of the great European war. The Associated Press is the world's greatest news-gathering organization; and its daily cable reports from Europe, which are trustworthy and impartial, show the real facts concerning the activities of the various armies.

In addition to the service of the Associated Press, THE TIMES has special correspondents of its own in the principal centers of population of America and Europe, and it daily prints every happening of importance on the civilized globe, including news of the political, religious, social and business life of the people of all foreign lands.

FACT AND COMMENT.

So candid and accurate a statement of the situation in the business district north of Seventh street as is contained in a communication just addressed to downtown property owners by the Business Stability Association has rarely come to the attention of the Fact and Comment man. Because the letter sums up the actual conditions so completely in a comparatively few words, it is decidedly worth while publishing. Here is the body of the communication:

"In 1911 a syndicate of responsible men offered to purchase the present City Hall property for $650,000. It could not be sold today for $400,000. Why? Because values north of Third street have shrunk from 30 to 40 per cent. in four years. For what reason?

"First—Lack of adequate street facilities, caused by the natural barriers of the hills on the north and west.

"Second—Mercantile business has grown so fabulously that room for expansion of the retail district was absolutely necessary.

"Third—Owners of valuable business property failed to keep pace with the demand for modern improved business buildings, allowing tenants to pay high rents and old-style buildings for the modern attractive stores with cheaper rents.

"Fourth—Property owners have neglected too long to make the modern improvements required by the modern successful business man, and now the only hope for these property owners is abundant and easy approach from the west and northwest, the districts that today are growing most rapidly and already have nearly one-third of our population. This will be necessary to protect them in the vast expenditures of money for new up-to-date buildings, which tenants say they must have.

"We believe the proposed open cut providing two fine wide thoroughfares at First and Second streets to practical grade levels between Broadway and Fremont avenue will protect property values and be a veritable insurance policy to property for all time to come.

"Will you have this improvement, or will you resign yourself to the inevitable further shrinkage of values, and actual loss of money ten times as great as any sum that the proposed open cut could cost you?

"You can elect to pay all cash or in annual payments for any term of years up to twenty-five. The moment this improvement is assured values will cease to shrink. Such evidence of your faith will inspire confidence in every one in the city. We ask your hearty co-operation in securing this great improvement. If this effort is allowed to fall through, and the opponents succeed now, you may as well say farewell to your present values."

Yes! And if the city misses this chance of chances to find a way of outlet through the hill it had better say goodby to all hope for an early solution of the traffic congestion problems. It isn't that the open cut is so infinitely superior as an idea to the often suggested tunnel plans, but that it offers a definite programme for getting at this hill problem immediately. When the hill finally is opened to traffic, whether it be by the cut or by tunnels, people for a generation to will wonder what on earth possessed the property owners, who year after year opposed their own and the city's interests by fighting the projects for giving an entire third of the population of Los Angeles a direct means of access into the downtown business district.

ASK BOARD TO STOP FRAUDS.

San Pedro Business Men Make Serious Charges.

Allege that Harbor Salesmen Misrepresent Facts.

"Shell Game" Selling Methods Cited as Proof.

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Feb. 27.—The San Pedro Chamber of Commerce has appealed to the Los Angeles Realty Board to help stop the sale, at fictitious values, of so-called "harbor" property, that is far removed from the scene of harbor developments. Secretary W. F. Durr, at the request of the Executive Committee of the chamber, has written a letter calling attention to conditions in the area around the harbor district proper, where many innocent purchasers have, through misrepresentation, been induced to buy lots at twice what property in older subdivisions much closer to the port itself may be bought for.

Basing their exploitation upon the interest that the people of Los Angeles have in their harbor and in the improvements that are being made here, unscrupulous sales agents have acquired options upon tracts outside the city limits, without water or streets, and have subdivided these lands into "harbor tracts." By street cars and automobile busses, excursions have been run to these outlying properties. Boat rides, free lunches, music and other attractions have been offered to induce prospective purchasers to visit the tracts. Hired lecturers, painting the possibilities of the port in glowing terms, have done the rest.

Lately, although the stream of prospective purchasers has shown no signs of diminishing, more questionable methods are alleged to have been employed. Some of these savor of the old-time circus shell game, with its "cappers" and "come-along artists."

A familiar face at the excursions of one firm is that of a pleasant appearing woman, who seems to be always on hand when a purchaser has about decided upon a lot to inform him that she owns the one next to it, and is preparing to build a fine new hotel. Those who have been keeping tab on the sale of harbor property have come to the conclusion that if hotels are built on all this woman's lots, the harbor district will soon have plenty of accommodations for all the population that the glowing orators of the excursions have promised.

In one instance a tract that was subdivided into "industrial" lots was so far removed from the harbor that a large wooden tower was built in order that the excursionists might climb to the top and see the water in a neighboring slough that had been filled by the flood waters. This, they are said to have been assured, was to be the harbor of the future.

In few instances do these tracts have improvements such as water, sewers or streets, or any immediate prospect of such improvements. Ranches several miles from the harbor have been purchased under option and dotted with street posts, but these and the tents used to shelter the prospective purchasers, have constituted the only signs of development to date.

In the communication from the San Pedro chamber to the Los Angeles Realty Board the names of a number of operators who are alleged to have been guilty of questionable methods are set forth. The board is asked to co-operate with the chamber in placing the real estate business in the harbor district upon a legitimate basis. Following is a quotation from the letter:

"It has been brought to our attention that certain real estate firms have been operating upon a basis that savors of swindling. Property is being sold upon representations of harbor development that has no foundation in fact. Furthermore, we are reliably informed that certain agents are employing 'cappers' on harbor excursions, who represent themselves as owners of property in the tracts being exploited and seek to influence prospective purchasers, through representations that buildings and other improvements are to be made by them upon these tracts, to buy at prices that are from 25 to 100 per cent. higher than property is being offered at much closer the center of harbor development.

"We ask that you co-operate with us in stopping the exploitation of outlying property, which will in time be needed for industrial purposes and which is being ruined for such uses by being cut up into small lots and sold to individual owners through misrepresentation, at prices that are out of proportion to true values."

D. R. Woods, a real estate dealer of Wilmington, who was present at a meeting of the San Pedro chamber several days ago, stated that Wilmington would probably take similar action. "I believe," said Mr. Woods, "that if we were to take the matter up with the District Attorney, we could secure evidence of fraud that in some cases would result in convictions. It is an outrage to have citizens of Los Angeles imposed upon and sold property at twice its value through such representations as are being made."

TO RESTAURANT MAN.

The W. Ross Campbell Company, through its leasing department, reports having leased the premises at No. 217 West Fifth street for Chester Williams of San Francisco to E. A. Crouch as the site for a high-class restaurant. The lessee already has two restaurants in this city, one on Main street and one on Spring. The space just leased was formerly occupied by A. C. Taylor, to whom the Campbell Company recently leased a store at No. 548 South Broadway for the James Smith Company.

TRADES CORNER FOR ACREAGE.

ARCHITECT ACQUIRES NEARLY THREE THOUSAND ACRES IN RIVERSIDE COUNTY.

An exchange involving Los Angeles income property and Riverside county acreage is reported by Charles L. Whipple and S. A. Selover, with Strong, Dickinson and McGrath. In the deal Albert C. Martin secured from the El Sobrante Land Company a tract of 2760 acres of land, known as the Gavilan Rancho, situated about ten miles south of Arlington. As part consideration Mr. Martin conveyed to the land concern a corner at West Ninth and Bonnie Brae streets. The total valuation of the properties involved is given at $90,000.

Mr. Martin, who is an architect and engineer and president of the Southern California Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, expects to operate the Riverside county ranch as a general farming proposition. He plans to lease certain portions of the property.

OF UNIQUE SHAPE.

New Redondo Beach Business Block to Have Circular Front—Provision Made for Roof Garden Feature.

Building activites at Redondo Beach took a jump ahead last week when work was started on a three-story business and apartment building at that place for L. J. Baumbach. The structure will cost about $70,000. L. B. Pemberton of Los Angeles drew the plans.

The building will be of unique shape, the front forming a quarter-circle, in conformity with the circular lines of the streets. The site is at the intersection of Diamond and Pacific avenues, across the street from the Pacific Electric station.

The building will be modern throughout and will cover 11,000 square feet of ground space. There will be forty-four rooms in the apartment portion of the structure and five stores and a theater on the ground floor. Provision is made for a roof-garden, ballroom and billiard-room in the roof.

The main entrance on Diamond street will be of marble, as will also the main stairway. The structure will be steam-heated. The interior finish and furnishings will be in mahogany.

VALLEY ACTIVITIES.

Thomas D. Campbell & Co. report San Fernando Valley sales as follows: To Samuel Brickey, twenty acres near Marian; to C. M. Broaded, twenty acres near Marian; to Rhoda Harris, twenty acres near Marian; to F. D. Shirpser, forty acres near Sherman Way, between Van Nuys and Marian; to C. W. Ogroske, fifteen acres near Lankershim, and to E. R. Harris, twenty acres near Marian. Practically all the purchasers, it is stated, bought for immediate occupancy and improvement. Some have already begun planting apricot and peach orchards and walnut groves.

FACTORY AND WAREHOUSE.

Plans are being drawn by A. C. Martin for a one-story brick factory and a one-story warehouse, to be built by the Western Oxygen and Gas Products Company on Fifty-second street near Santa Fe avenue. The factory will cover a ground area of 55x100 feet and the warehouse will be 25x50 feet in size.

New Era.

MODERN SCHOOL FOR CHATSWORTH

VALLEY COMMUNITY DEMANDS BEST THERE IS.

People of Western San Fernando District Expect Soon to Have Educational Advantages Unsurpassed in Southland — Section Rapidly Advancing.

Working plans for the modern and attractive grammar school to be erected in the Chatsworth district are well under way in the office of Architects Oliver P. Dennis and Henry Harwood Hewitt of this city. The school will replace a frame building that has served the old-time valley community for a generation. It will represent an outlay of approximately $35,000.

The Chatsworth school will be started almost simultaneously with the splendid new $100,000 Owensmouth Union High School, which will be one of the handsomest and finest institutions of its kind in the West and which is being planned by the same architects. The two projects are closely associated, as the Chatsworth district is one of nine comprising the Owensmouth High School district. Both schools are being erected in response to a demand for increased educational facilities due to the phenomenal advance of the western end of the San Fernando Valley.

A perspective and complete description of the new valley High School was published in The Times two weeks ago. The new Chatsworth school will be of the same thoroughly modern type of construction as the larger institution. Its design will be along the lines of the modernized classic. Hollow tile will be used for the walls and partitions. The roof will be of clay tile.

The building will contain eight large classrooms, teachers' and principal's rooms, a library and an auditorium. The equipment throughout will emphasize the last word in school planning and appointment. The building will have a setting of fine old eucalyptus and pepper trees.

Chatsworth is one of the most beautifully-situated places in Southern California, but has until recent years been out of touch with other communities, owing to its comparative isolation. With the beginning of development operations on the great Van Nuys-Lankershim ranch four years ago, the community, with its oak-covered foothills and its wide reaches of fertile land, began to come to the front. Today Chatsworth is entering the greatest era in its history.

The development of the old ranch lands has reached to its very edges and magnificent highways have linked it with all the rest of the San Fernando Valley and with Los Angeles and other cities. The coming of the Owens River water is expected to complete the transformation and to make of Chatsworth one of the most charming of all the suburbs of Los Angeles.

The bonds for the fine grammar school that is about to be built by the district were voted almost without opposition, so confident are the people of Chatsworth in the future of their community. With equal confidence have the voters of the place assumed their share of the bond issue for the magnificent High School at Owensmouth. The two schools together will give the district educational facilities and advantages unsurpassed in Southern California.

The school trustees of the Chatsworth district are Mrs. Emma Johnson, Mrs. Minnie Gray and Ferd Tetzlaff.

READY FOR MARKET.

Lands Near San Fernando Mission to be Sold in Parcels of from One to Ten Acres.

After two months of preparatory work, the Angeles Mesa Land Company announces the opening of its new Mission Acres tract to take place next Thursday, March 4. The property is situated at the mouth of the aqueduct, in the heart of the lands that center about the old Mission of San Fernando. It lies along San Fernando boulevard within view of the mission and is served by the San Fernando line of the Pacific Electric. The land is to be sold in parcels of from one to ten acres.

The mission district is one of the most fertile areas in the vicinity of Los Angeles and contains a number of widely-known citrus groves. In the immediate vicinity of the land that is about to be marketed are five orange orchards owned by Frank Wiggins, secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce; Stoddard Jess, vice-president of the First National Bank; H. R. Wilkinson, secretary of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, and others.

BUYS LARGER SITE.

Two lots on the southeast corner of West Eighth street and Fedora, in the McCarthy Company's West Ninth-street Heights tract, have been sold by the McCarthy Company to C. W. Sparks, who will build an eleven-room house on the site. Architects Needham and Cline have prepared plans. The size of each of the lots is 50x135 feet, and the price of the two is given at $8000. Mr. Sparks had originally intended to build at the southeast corner of Third and Westminster, on a lot bought from the same company several months ago. The new lots were acquired with the view to securing more space for the grounds.

HILL-STREET LEASE.

Thomas C. Bundy & Co. report the leasing of a portion of the two-story brick building on Hill street between Fourth and Fifth streets, previously occupied by Boos Bros'. cafeteria. The building was leased by Boos Bros. Cafeteria Company to the Balloon Dye Works for a long term of years. The latter in turn have sub-leased a portion of the space to the Pearlin Bros. Jewelry Company.

BUYS NEAR OWENSMOUTH.

R. E. Ibbetson reports the sale for Mrs. Selah S. Westover to A. V. Perkinson of eighty acres about one and one-half miles northeast of Owensmouth. The consideration is given at $33,000. Fifty acres of the tract are planted to olives, quinces, peaches and apricots. Mr. Perkinson expects to improve the rest and may build a fine residence on the property.

AT BOTH FAIRS.

The Los Angeles Pressed Brick Company has installed exhibits of its products at both the San Francisco and San Diego expositions. The San Francisco exhibit is in the Varied Industries building and includes practically every kind of brick and tile made.

OUR idea of a home is one both PRACTICAL and ARTISTIC. By careful thought we manage to instill certain INDIVIDUALITY into each home.

It quite frequently happens that the PROSPECTIVE BUILDER'S IDEAS and PURSE do not correspond. In such cases our PRACTICAL knowledge comes to the rescue, and often where others have hopelessly FAILED, WE SUCCEED.

We build homes from the modern four-room plastered bungalow at $800, to the most elaborate dwelling. It rests with the INDIVIDUAL, entirely what his home will cost. By concentrating our PURCHASING POWER, combined with our PRACTICAL knowledge, and being in a position to DISCOUNT our BILLS, we can, for a given quality of work, discount our competitors' prices.

We build either by contracts on a fixed fee of 10 per cent. of estimated cost of work, or on our own lots in Los Angeles, Hermosa Beach and San Pedro, on easy terms.

We make no additional charge for our Architectural services if we build, or if we fail to satisfy you both as to price and design.

WILD DEVELOP GROVE.

Syndicate Buys Tract North of Claremont and Expects to Develop it as Income Proposition.

One of the most extensive development enterprises yet undertaken in the citrus district to the north of Claremont is about to be carried out by a syndicate of investors headed by Sidney F. Hobbs of Pasadena. This syndicate is composed of a number of men prominent in citrus activities and includes, among others, C. H. S. Littleton, a successful grower in the Glendora and San Dimas districts; W. C. Goodno, owner of valuable orange and lemon groves at Redlands and La Verne, and F. W. Smith, a Pasadena realty man. George H. Lill, a Chicago capitalist, is also interested.

The men comprising the syndicate have acquired 115 acres of the Claremont Heights Development Company's property to the north of the Claremont city limits. The consideration is not given out. Eighty-five acres of the land purchased is bare and will at once be set out to orange, lemon and avocado trees. Thirty acres are planted to oranges. All of the ground adjoins planted groves.

The new owners have bought for investment and not for speculation and intend to make their property an income proposition. O. W. Dalgleish, who has had sixteen years' experience in growing and shipping lemons, will manage the holding. It is the intention of the syndicate to pack and ship under its own brands.

GROVES EXCHANGED.

Raymond D. Frisbie, manager of the exchange and farm land department of the California Real Estate and Building Company, reports having exchanged a fifteen-acre grove at San Dimas, owned by W. B. Larrimar, for eighteen half-acre improved lots and two new houses near Ramona Acres, owned by O. E. Hershey. The total valuation is given at $60,000. Mr. Frisbie also reports the exchange of a thirty-acre ranch at Porterville, owned by Eli P. Fay, for a fifteen-acre improved ranch on the Anaheim boulevard, owned by Samuel T. Graham of Artesia. Eleven acres of the Porterville tract is in six-year-old valencias. The total consideration in this deal is given at $31,000. In the two transactions the differences were adjusted by cash and mortgage.

APARTMENTS LEASED.

A deal has just been consummated through the agency of E. W. Cason & Co., associated hotel brokers, whereby the St. George apartments have been leased, completely furnished, by Jack Lippman to Alonzo Barton for a long term of years, at a reported rental of $500 per month. The St. George is at No. 711 Westlake avenue and was erected about two years ago. It is a three-story frame building and contains sixty-five rooms, in twenty-nine apartments. Mr. Barton, who was formerly in the hotel business in Denver, Colo., will take possession of the premises tomorrow.

FOR SALE—

$250 AN ACRE LAND.

There is only one section left close to Los Angeles where it is still possible to buy land at $250 an acre. And that is in the San Fernando Valley. You will miss the best investment you can make to be found if you do not investigate this before it is too late. Improvements are soon to be started and values should go ahead rapidly. It will pay you to look into this activity. There is a limited number of acres and in the midst of a wonderful country for alfalfa and poultry ranches. It is a proposition that will stand investigation and we can convince you that $100 an acre is cheap. Our prices are $100 an acre for 10-acre tracts and $250 an acre for 5-acre tracts. Terms, $25 cash and $10 per month.

FOR SALE—

ALFALFA LAND IN A PROVEN, ESTABLISHED
DISTRICT, WITHIN
$5 MILES OF LOS ANGELES,
$150 AN ACRE.

The sale of the remaining lands of the celebrated CHINO RANCHO is attracting the attention of the

HOG RAISERS DAIRYMEN
GENERAL FARMERS
WALNUT GROWERS

Land surrounding those offered for sale have been farmed for years, and have a proven productive value. The general range of prices is considerably higher than those we quote. The reason is that we made low prices to promote quick sales—and the land is selling fast.

We have some land already in alfalfa, and with pumping plant or water supply, at prices a little higher. Land at $150, $175, $200 an acre in the area of PROVEN WATER CONDITIONS where a well of moderate depth, produces an unlimited water supply with a small pumping cost—much of the land faces directly upon PAVED COUNTY ROADS. It is all in the heart and center of the best part of Southern California, surrounded by beautiful towns, orange groves and prosperous communities.

Just far enough from the sea to have a dry, sunny climate, and yet enjoy cool sea breezes. It's a short, easy, inexpensive trip to see this.

FOR SALE—

WHEN MONEY IS TIGHT FARMERS HAVE THE ADVANTAGE. The average household on a well-managed farm does not spend for living expenses over $10 to $20 a month. Deduct from your own city provision bills the items for butter, eggs, poultry, meat, vegetables, fruit, honey, milk and cream—farm products all—and see how little is left to pay. You may be glad to get away from car fare, city taxes, expensive clothes and costly amusements? To be independent of the grocer, the butcher, the landlord? To be master of you own time? To be sure of your job? To make pleasure, good health, good food, sound sleep, wholesome morals and sane thinking by-products of your labor?

You may develop your ideas of a farm home and retain all important city conveniences, including electricity, telephone, modern school; rail transportation, trading and social center within walking distance; on land of sterling quality with plenty of water, and California's best climate; and you may buy this land at a truly reasonable price and on terms that will enable you to make good with a very small capital.

If you are in the market for land this spring, send for a report on this country, with its unique bird's-eye-view land charts about California farming as a business, a science and a system of living. It analyzes every feature of our group of small farms and chooses the opportunities best to offer to men of ambition and large requirements.

Write us today, inclosing this advertisement and 10 cents in coin to cover postage, and a copy will be mailed you promptly. These books cost 50 cents apiece to produce, and as the edition is limited; we desire to send them only to those who really mean business to better their condition at once and who have cash enough to make a payment on a piece of land. We do not handle exchanges.

You may also call at our office or to write us for advice. Get an envelope right now.

FOR SALE— 9000—ACRES—9000
TO HOME FOLKS AND TOURISTS.
We are subdividing 9000 acres into small ranches. There is no large unimproved tract as good in Southern California.
There is no improved tract, large or small, that is better.
There is no land on the market as good, so cheap.
9000 acres of it is the very best unplanted lemon land in State.
This also applies to oranges.
It is not necessary to smudge to save trees from frost.
The soil is decomposed granite, easily worked. Water is furnished to highest point; plenty of it. It is suitable for olives, walnuts and all deciduous fruits.
1500 acres is splendid alfalfa land, very level. Good location for raising poultry.
Banks second in car shipments in State.
Prefer to sell whole ranch in one body.
Will sell in 5- to 10- or 1000-acre tracts.
Extra inducements to large buyers, giving release clause.
Small tracts $250 to $400 per acre.
Very small cash payments if improvements start at once.

LOCATION.

Adjoining Magnolia ave., between Corona and Riverside.
Railroads, Santa Fe, Pacific Electric, Salt Lake. Splendid view of mountain range of 150 miles, including "Old Baldy," "Gray Back" and the "San Jacintos."
With city of Riverside, "Mt. Rubidoux" and the great Arlington Heights lemon and orange groves between 4 and 10 miles in sight.
Price low, payments small, long term payments.

FOR SALE—
4700 acres at $100 per acre. This tract is close to the Santa Fe Railway and the paved good road. The soil is decomposed granite and lies level and is all under cultivation with the exception of about 200 acres. There is a flowing well and water conditions are ideal.
6000 acres at $55 per acre. This tract is close to the Santa Fe Railway and good paved road. 5000 acres are under cultivation; the soil on half the ranch is decomposed granite and the other half is decomposed slate, said by experts to be the best soil in the world. An abundance of water only 70 feet from the surface. There are 30 miles of fencing as well as farm buildings, barns, etc.
These two ranches are the finest subdivision propositions on the market. Remember these large tracts are getting very scarce. The above are only two hours ride by auto from my office. These will bear the closest investigation.

FOR SALE—

LA PUENTE ACRES.

Unless you have seen La Puente Acres you have missed the best buy in strictly high-class, close-in acreage. We offer land in 5 and 10-acre tracts at a price away below everything else of the same quality on the market.

It adjoins the fast-growing town of Puente on the north, less than 20 miles from Los Angeles. It is a prosperous, growing, productive community, where values are advancing rapidly.

There is no better soil in California. The climatic conditions are ideal, and there is an abundance of cheap water. The price is right and terms easy.

Let us show you this property.

MASON-KWIS-CRAM,
1005 Union Oil Bldg.

FOR SALE—
9000 acres, Kings county, California;
On branch of S. P., 2½ miles from station;
All fine rich soil, no alkali;
Plenty of gravity water in large ditches;
Water lift 12 to 15 feet;
Absolutely level land, easily irrigated;
100 acres now in fine stand of alfalfa;
House, barns, corrals, etc., ready for use;
Windmill for domestic use;
Entire property fenced and well kept up;
Clear of incumbrance.
This land is good; it is ideal for large stock ranch or for subdivision into small tracts. The property was being planted to alfalfa and improved as a stock ranch when the owner died; the widow is now willing to sacrifice at $60 an acre; it would be cheap at $100 an acre, as surrounding ranches in small tracts are selling for $150 to $200 an acre.
This property will more than double in value in the next two or three years; it is a genuine bargain for someone.

FOR SALE—IF YOU ARE GOING INTO THE GROcery business you will probably want to get started with as small a first cost as possible, and if this is true the store I am offering for sale, on West Seventh street, should prove attractive. The merchandise is not old and unsalesable, but new, clean, fresh groceries, and our adjuster has taken an accurate inventory which shows stock at $514.86 current wholesale cost. The fixtures have been appraised at $696 and are mostly in white enamel. This is an attractive place and is well located, but I have positive instructions to sell to the highest bidder at once so that estate may be closed and dividend paid to creditors. The store is located at 827 W. Seventh st. and I am going to keep it open all day Monday, March 1, to allow bidders to inspect store and place bids. Remember, this must be sold, so be there Monday if you are looking for a bargain. S. P. CHASE at BOARD OF TRADE, 728 Higgins Bldg.

Fact and Comment.

ment is slow in the city itself, but it is pronounced in the country districts throughout Southern and Central California. In Los Angeles the betterment is seen in the gradually increasing volume of transfers and in the really creditable amount of building activity over the city. In the country, however, the evidences of increasing activity are not only absolutely unmistakable, but in many instances almost sensational.

Succeeding a lull even more noticeable at times than that in the city, the again normal market and development activity in the horticultural and agricultural districts attracts all the more attention. In certain sections of the Southland the land business of the past few weeks has exceeded that for the corresponding period in the most prosperous of previous years. Everywhere there has been a resumption that is at least highly encouraging.

A really notable improvement in all lines of business in Los Angeles is bound to come within a short time. The prosperity of the back country is always reflected in that of the trading and shipping center of any section and Los Angeles has the largest and most wonderful back country of any city in the country. The dullness of downright depression, such as affected the entire country a few months ago, is no longer in evidence. Every business man has his eyes to the front. One and all realize that normal times are not very far away, in spite of the war and other distressing circumstances.

The great impetus to business will come to Los Angeles with the beginning of the huge influx of 1915 travel to the Pacific Coast. The effects of this travel are already felt. The demand for good rental property is growing daily, as flat, apartment and hotel keepers prepare for the visitors. Even now the streets are crowded with strangers who have come in advance of the main army. Dealers report a constantly increasing inquiry for both improved and unimproved residence property, indicating not only that confidence has returned to the people at home, but that the early visitors, charmed with life in this part of the world, are beginning to take a thought of the days to come when they will be citizens of Los Angeles.

REGAL SQUARE.

Regal Square, one of the subdivisions on the Venice Short Line, has just been taken over by the Guy M. Rush Company-Robert B. Armstrong Company and will be placed on the market in a few days. The property, which lies between the Venice Short Line and Washington boulevard adjoining the towns of Palms, is owned by the General Investment Company and has heretofore been handled by John J. Duffy, one of the owners.

COPPER STRONG, MARKET UPWARD.

UNITED STATES STEED A SPECULATIVE FAVORITE.

Probable Swiss Loan to be Made by American Bankers — More Cheerful Tone Prevails in London Markets—Week's Bank Statement Fulfills All Expectations.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Irregular prices and moderate trading were the features of today's two-hour session on the stock exchange. The market was upward at the outset, followed by general declines and an uneven close. Amalgamated Copper was strongest of the active list, its rise being accompanied by rumors that large orders for the metal had been received from abroad. Other speculative favorites, including United States Steel, the Pacifics and coalers, made only fractional changes either way. Foreign exchange was easier, the rate for London bills being slightly unchanged, yesterday's quotations, while remittances on Germany repeated recent low-record figures. Foreign news of interest included dispatches of a probable Swiss loan by our bankers. A more cheerful tone prevailed in London's markets. This week's bank statement fulfilled expectations by showing few changes of importance. Reserves in bank vaults underwent small contraction, with a correspondingly light decrease in excess reserves. Announcement that the Western Pacific probably would default on its bond interest and that receivership proceedings would be instituted against the road excited little interest by reason of the fact that such action had been foreshadowed. Today's bond market was irregular with total sales, par value of $1,133,000. United States reg. 2's declined 2¼ per cent. on call during the week.

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—The action of the market today was most encouraging in the face of the war possibilities over Sunday. Zinc stocks were notably strong and copper showed signs of life just at the close.

M'CREDIE INTENDS TO MAKE DAVIS A CATCHER.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

WALT M'CREDIE, one of the best baseball managers that ever kicked a chandelier off the ceiling at an annual meeting, is thinking somewhat seriously of transmuting "Bobby" Davis, utility infielder, into a catcher.

Mac has a cute way of making over ball players and on numerous occasions has increased the effectiveness of his athletes by switching them to positions which they themselves had no idea they could play.

Davis, however, has worn the mask and ear muffs a few times, and this experience should simplify the task of teaching him to catch in a regular and orthodox manner.

Mac thinks "Bobby" is built just right for catching, and says that nature has equipped him with a whip superior to anything brought into play behind the bat here in recent years.

The loss of Murray, who recently left one of his eyes dangling on a barbed wire fence or met with some other accident to his glims which will keep him from reporting, was a keen disappointment to Mac, who felt that this youngster would fill the second-string vacancy without a quiver.

The road to Santa Barbara, mapped by the Auto Club of Southern California. Above is a new Chandler Six driven by Don Smith, in front of the San Fernando Mission, and one of the stretches of beautiful road between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

Romantic, Too.

ROUTE TO SANTA BARBARA ONE OF SCENIC WONDERS.

WHEN the Mission Fathers trudged north from Los Angeles to Santa Barbara more than a century ago, they prepared the way for one of the most remarkable automobile tours in America.

Of course, they did not build Casitas Pass, they did not construct the Rincon sea-level road, they knew nothing of the "oil-under-the-sea," but they may have planted the first lima bean, the first beet from which they distilled sugar.

Certain it is, however, that they did found three missions en route, they did co-operate with Helen Hunt Jackson in making Ramona and her California famous, and they very probably saw the need for a Newhall tunnel.

With this second of the series of tours issued by the route-and-map service department of the Automobile Club of Southern California to visiting motorists is shown the passable highway to Santa Barbara at this time. According to auto club reports

D. RESTA IN A PEUGEOT WINS EXPOSITION GRAND PRIX RACE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

First—D. Resta in Peugeot.
Second—Howard Wilcox in Stutz.
Third—Hughie Hughes in Frank Young's Ono.
Fourth—Louis Disbrow in Simplex.
Fifth—Gil Anderson in Stutz.
Resta's average speed was 57½ miles an hour.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—On a rain-drenched track dangerously slippery with rain that fell more than four hours of the race, D. Resta, an Italian driver, engaged in his first American contest, won the Grand Prix automobile race at the Panama-Pacific Exposition today, in car No. 9. His time was 7h. 7m. 57½s. At the finishing line he was three laps in the lead.

Howard Wilcox, in No. 26, was second. Time, 7h. 14m. 36s.

Hughie Hughes, No. 28, third. Time 7h. 21m. 46s.

Louis Disbrow, No. 12, fourth. Time 7h. 31m. 38s.

Gil Anderson, No. 5, fifth. Time 7h. 34m. 51s.

There is some question as to fourth and fifth places, which can only be adjusted by a recheck of the entire score.

Before the race was two-thirds over Resta went out in front and the contest settled into a fight for the other places, Wilcox and Hughes fighting a stiff battle. Resta won $3000, the other four dividing $5000, according to their finish.

Rain began to fall an hour after the start. It stopped for two or three hours, then began again and continued until the race closed in the gathering darkness.

Earl Cooper raced only a little more than one lap, when a broken connecting rod forced him out. Barney Oldfield was eliminated by engine trouble about the middle, and Eddie Pullen, winner of last year's race, and Ralph de Palma were forced to retire long before the end.

START OF THE RACE.

Two hours before 10:30 a.m., the time set for the start of the Grand Prix automobile race at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition grounds, today, more than a score of the drivers were in the pit tuning up their high-powered cars for the terrific flight around the four-mile course.

At 9:30 the course was cleared and closed to all but the race entries and a few of the long, lean cars began to

KEY TO THE ROUTE MAP.

1. San Fernando Rey de Espagna Mission, founded in September, 1797. Here legend has it that Father Francisco Lopez discovered California's first gold nugget when he pulled up an herb by the roots. By this route, 24 miles from Los Angeles.
2. Newhall tunnel, one of the main gateways to Los Angeles and important as a highway engineering feat. This route, 28 miles.
3. Ramona's home, at the Camulos ranch. This is on one of the roads to Santa Barbara which will shortly be open to travel. Here Ramona lived and inspired early California romance.
4. The largest beet-sugar refinery in the world, located at Oxnard, and by this route, 73 miles from Los Angeles.
5. San Buenaventura Mission, founded in 1782. By landmark tour, 77 miles. It was rebuilt since its early days of prosperity.
6. Casitas Pass, closed from neglect.
7. Rincon sea-level road. Approximately 82 miles from Los Angeles. Here the highway is built on trestles over the Pacific Ocean.
8. Oil pumped from wells under the sea at Summerland, 98 miles from Los Angeles.
9. Montecito, one of Southern California's millionaire suburbs, 101 miles by landmark route.
10. Santa Barbara Mission, one of the most beautiful of all California's cathedrals-in-the-sun, founded in 1786. Revolts and time have not destroyed its beauty, and it is now open to the public; 105 miles from Los Angeles.

Plans for Venice Races are Culminating.

Interference.

VENICE RACE STILL IN AIR.

But Plans are Rapidly on the Move.

Kennerdell is on His Way Down Here.

Work is Under Way on the Roads.

Stimulated by the burden of conflicting dates because of the postponement of the Vanderbilt Cup Race at San Francisco to March 6, the day before practice was scheduled to start for the first annual Venice Grand Prix of March 17, the Racing Committee of the W.A.A. and the Venice Road Race Association are pushing ahead with preparation for the beach event with renewed vigor.

COMING SOUTH.

It is expected that Chairman Kennerdell of the American Automobile Association will be in Los Angeles within a few days. At that time the question of a conflict in the dates will be considered. It is believed there is little likelihood of a rupture between the two organizations such as brought about the strained relations of two years ago.

Venice intends to go right ahead planning for its own race in the belief that matters will adjust themselves. The Motor Cups' Holding Association controls the Vanderbilt Cup Race and it is expected this will be the alibi offered to Venice by the A.A.A. If this proves correct there appears at this time nothing could be gained by entering into a contest.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

It is upon public sentiment that the Racing Committee of the W.A.A. and the Venice Road Race Association rely. This city sent a delegation of about 500 to San Francisco for the exposition races, and but very few of this number remained after the postponement. It is the natural supposition on the part of the Venice Grand Prix management that this disappointed group will circulate their views on the situation and that will prove a big Venice boost.

Although there probably will be a delay of one or two days in opening practice on the Venice parkway, it is said to be more than probable that the drivers will wax even more enthusiastic for the beach event than they have been. Manager Paul J. C. Derkum remains in San Francisco and is in daily contact with the drivers. It is believed that he already has signed up a number of the most prominent of them, but is keeping quiet at their request until after the San Francisco situation is settled finally.

POSSIBILITIES.

Some of the drivers asserted they would not remain in the north for the Vanderbilt Cup Race. They declared they will send their cars to Venice unless the race management of the fair contests defrays their expenses. This may mean some of the cars will arrive here within a few days. No definite information on this point has been forthcoming, however.

In preparing the Venice parkway it has been deemed advisable to remove the waiting station of the Pacific Electric Railway at Tokio to a location across Pico boulevard. The station was too close to the edge of the roadway, since it has been widened and became an element of possible danger. Immense skids were placed beneath the building and the structure attached to the road roller by chains.

Rain has interfered considerably with the improvement of the roads included in the parkway. The largest amount of work has been done on Pico boulevard because of the high crown center and narrow roadway. Several times it has been necessary to roll the road down after it had been plowed to prevent the seepage of water reaching the soil beneath and making it so muddy everything would have to stop. The street gang was able to put in a part of the stone foundation early in the week.

Garage men of Venice have offered free accommodations to the racing cars during the time they are preparing for the race. This will be a big item of expense saved to the private owners of cars, and they have expressed appreciation of the offer.

Big oil deal.

BIG ORDER FOR OIL IS GIVEN.

OVER SEVEN THOUSAND GALLONS PAID FOR IN ONE CHECK.

One of the largest individual orders for motor oils given in Southern California was that recently given to Austin, Bryant & Carter at No. 1660 Compton avenue, by the Los Angeles Creamery Company for A.B.C. oils.

This order calls for two carloads of 7200 gallons, and Mr. R. D. Weaver, manager of the creamery, is here shown handing the order to Mr. C. C. Carter; one unusual feature about this order is that it calls for one grade of the A.B.C. oil direct from the Pennsylvania oil fields.

A company at Troy, O., has received an order for 350 motor trailers at $1250 each from the French government.

MOTORBIKES FOR VENICE.

Fast Drivers are Entering Big Event.

Factories will All Have Teams Entered.

Local Private Owners Have Good Chance.

The 300-mile motorcycle race which is to be run at Venice Sunday, March 28, on the new three-mile Venice speedway course will bring out the fastest field of motorcycle riders ever brought together, as every leading American motorcycle factory wants to capture first place and each make will have a large factory team, as well as many solo riders.

Tom Gerton states that there will be at least five riders in the Excelsior team, of whom Goudy and Perry will be two. The Big X will also be ridden by many private owners.

Howard Shafer, who digs up a Thor for every big endurance run, has not decided yet whether he will start, but will probably face the starter. "Dutch" Fabian, the little wonder from Sacramento, has the choice of three makes, but will probably be on an Excelsior. Bakersfield has several strong riders who are anxious to try conclusions in the Venice 300-mile.

"Warhorse" Baker, who secured No. 1 by entering first, and "Spike" Crevison will lead the big Indian team on machines now being completed at the Springfield factory. "Pinkey" Montgomery, a local boy, who used to be so unlucky on local tracks, but who got into only a few mix-ups on eastern tracks last summer, figures that he has the race already won.

The Pope, Thor and Dayton teams may all come from the East, as well as the Yale bunch, but many private owners, who ride all the year here, feel that they can make a good showing without factory help and will try, as they figure that judgment will count more than high speed in finishing.

A Hot Idea.

"POPULAR PRICES" IS NEW SLOGAN APPLIED TO TIRE.

"POPULAR prices" long has been a slogan for theatrical attractions and more recently the expression has been applied to various lines of merchandise. However, it remained for A. T. Smith, manager of the local branch of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, to use the term in connection with automobile tires.

"Popular prices on tires are as desirable as on everything else the public buys," said Mr. Smith. "To make such a condition possible is a striking example of what scientific manufacturing methods on a stupendous scale and economical distribution can do. To this is due the fact that such a tire as the Firestone can be sold at the price of the ordinary.

"Popular prices alone never will satisfy the experienced buyer of tires. When you think of it, you will realize that no other line of goods is so quickly put to the test as are tires. They go from the hands of the dealer to the grueling service on the roads.

"It is poor consolation to the motorist laboring under all kinds of tire troubles to reflect that he bought his cheaper than his friends did. There is an old saying by a famous maker of quality goods, copyrighted, I believe, that 'the recollection of quality remains long after the price is forgotten.' Truer words relating to tires could not be spoken.

"The car owner has a keen recollection both of good and bad tires. That is why dealers in the business insist on quality with price. Popular price alone does not hold tire customers. The 'kickback' of the sale of a poor tire may destroy the profits on many sales.

"Firestone prices are reduced as scientific efficiency in our factory and economy of distribution are developed. The only fixed factor is quality. That we keep at the maximum and no price movements in the tire world ever can induce us to change it. The volume of Firestone business is sufficient evidence that tire buyers approve this policy."

TRAILERS BEING MANUFACTURED.

LOCAL COMPANY MAKING HIT WITH LOAD CARRIERS FOR AUTOS.

A Los Angeles firm is making quite a name for itself with the manufacture of trailers, the same being husky trucks to be hitched onto automobiles and used in many lines of business.

The Los Angeles Trailer Company of No. 217 East Washington street puts up the claim that their product can be utilized nicely in 150 different lines of trade and different kinds of hauling. They are building up a huge business, which keeps ahead of their ability to supply it.

Rotten.

BAKERSFIELD ROUTE POOR.

ROADS ARE BAD NEARLY ALL THE WAY.

Almost Impassable by Way of Antelope Valley Because of the Mud Flats Just South and West of Del Sur—Elizabeth Lake Route Best at this Time.

The Arnold touring information bureau has just received a report from Fred Hamilton of Willow Springs stating that the Bakersfield road across Antelope Valley by way of Del Sur is almost impassable because of the adobe flat just south and west of Del Sur.

The last Hudson Six to pass over this route stated that the best road to Bakersfield at this time is via Mint Canyon to Palmdale and thence west to Elizabeth Lake, from which point a fair road will be found to within four miles of Willow Springs. This four-mile stretch is deep with mud, but can be negotiated on low gear.

From Willow Springs to Mojave the road is in good condition and from Mojave over Tehachepi Pass the road is rough, and with some show in the vicinity of Tehachepi.

The last eleven miles into Bakersfield is also in bad condition, though the Hudson had no difficulty in negotiating it.

Mr. Arnold is having a map made of this route between Los Angeles and Bakersfield, and motorists can obtain copies free at the Arnold establishment, Nos. 1114-1128 South Olive street.

"The Standard of Value and Quality"

Lower Price—Bigger Value—Why?

THE new Paige "Six" is the lowest priced seven passenger six cylinder car in the world.

And yet—when you check it up point by point with other "Sixes" costing $100, $200 and even $400 more you find not only equal—but actually greater value in the Paige than in any of the others.

You find more power and greater flexibility in the wonderful Paige—Continental Engine.

You find greater distinctiveness and beauty in Paige design—you find the unexcelled Gray & Davis starting and lighting system—and the always standard Bosch Magneto—instead of less expensive distributor systems substituted by others—You find the marvelously flexible, easy riding Cantilever springs instead of the old semi-elliptic or full-elliptic—and you find throughout an excellence of manufacture and equipment that is not surpassed by the highest priced "Six" on the market.

And then you come back to the price—$1525—and you stop in amazement.

Your investigation shows you that you really ought to pay more for the Paige Six than for others—and yet you are asked to pay less—

Why?

The answer is very simple.

The buying power of a strong, well financed company, unhampered by bonded indebtedness—supplemented by superb manufacturing facilities and methods—and, equally important—backed by a group of stockholders who are more interested in the production of a motor car that shall actually be "The Standard of Value and Quality" than they are in immediate profits.

That's the whole secret of this Epoch Making Car and its Record Breaking Price.

The FOUR that STANDS UP in day-by-day service

No matter how handsome a car may be, performance is the thing that counts. And performance is the thing that Studebaker engineers have sought in every little detail of this Studebaker FOUR. For while they have made it as handsome a car as you ever laid eyes on, they have made it, first of all, a car that you can DEPEND ON. A car that STANDS UP in day-by-day service—on hills or on the roads—in any kind of weather.

For into this FOUR at $985 they have built SERVICE-giving quality, stamina, long life, that only Studebaker's long manufacturing experience and unrivaled resources make possible in a car at such a price.

You find over-abundance of POWER—and a FULL-Floating Rear Axle such as only the highest priced cars use—and a COMPLETE equipment of Timken Bearings—187 drop forgings and a deft balance and alignment of the chassis that makes it EASY-riding and EASY-driving, and, above all, LOW in upkeep cost.

But you'll appreciate even more what the name of Studebaker means on a car when you see it, and KNOW the QUALITY and the conveniences and the many refinements that are built into this FOUR at $985

Need for More Signposts to Guide Autoists Through Southern California.

Good.

WANTS MORE SIGN POSTS.

Three Times as Many, Plan of Auto Club.

But it Costs a Whole Lot of Money.

County will be Asked to Help Matters.

BY FRED L. BAKER,
President Automobile Club of Southern California.

To triple the number of signposts on the highways in the southern part of the State is the plan of officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California for the coming year.

At the present time the membership of the club is maintaining 7600 miles in Southern California over 5000 miles of road. To triple this number will mean that by 1916 we will have more than 20,000 motoring guides on the highways.

This work entails expenses which are not considered by the layman and soon run into large figures. For instance, there are the cars which have to cover the roads with the engineers plotting the locations for the posts and signs. After these have been mapped the signs are ordered and the trucks leave for the routes to which the signs are allotted, placing them in position as they go. So, beside the actual cost of the signs and posts themselves, there are the incidental expenses of the men.

The burden of this expenditure has been borne by 6500 motorists out of 7600 in Southern California—all of whom are using the club's signs both for themselves and their friends every day. They are also enjoying the results of the club's efforts to secure better roads and the maintenance of them without contributing to the work in any way. We hope to secure 10,000 members by the end of the year.

The counties of Southern California have enjoyed the benefits from the sign-posting work done by the auto club which has been done impartially throughout its territory, and some of the counties have contributed to the upkeep of the signs and the placing of them and others have not.

If the present plans of the directors take definite shape, it is likely that each county will be asked for financial support of the work the club is doing, thus both the motorists and the landowners will be doing their share toward a common good.

We feel that such a procedure is not only entirely equitable, but that it is becoming necessary, due to the fact that the demands for the extension of our signing systems are constantly coming in and the number of car owners is increasing every month much faster than the club membership. These increased demands can only be met if a good proportion of new car owners join the club and lend it their support.

CONGESTION ON SEVENTH CAN EASILY BE RELIEVED.

"WHY not use Eighth street?" is the new slogan adopted by Joe McDuffie of the local Stearns-Knight and Mitchell agencies.

Joe drives every night out to his home in the Wilshire district and for a long while made a habit of getting caught in the jam of traffic running out Seventh street.

"Why, there is just simply a parade all the way from Broadway to Alvarado," said Joe, "and it sometimes takes a man twenty minutes to go that distance."

However, McDuffie discovered the fact that Eighth street has recently been paved and that it is comparatively free from traffic at the hours when the congestion on Seventh street is at its worst and now he is starting a crusade to have the motorists, or rather, about half of them, make use of Eighth instead of Seventh and thus relieve traffic on the latter during the busy hours.

Classy.

NEW MODEL POSSESSES STRIKING NEW FEATURES.

THE new models of motor cars that have been brought out by the standard manufacturers this fall have been most striking in individuality of refinements and designs.

None of them have been more pronounced in distinctive features than the KisselKar, as is to be seen, especially in the latest of the KisselKar 36 "Four."

In speaking of this latest arrival, H. C. Apgar of the Pacific KisselKar branch says: "This 36 'four' is one of the most striking manifestations of the constantly changing condition in the manufacture of automobiles. It vividly shows the trend of development; the keeping in tune with the demands of the time.

"This latest 36 'four' has come to us with the Rudge Whitworth detachable demountable wire wheels and other accessories in keeping with these. It is finished in a rich plum color; the leather upholstery, one-man top, all working in harmony with the general color scheme which has developed a most richly finished car that will bear comparison with any of the standard makes irrespective of price.

"The KisselKar has always been been a valued vehicle, and this was never more forcefully demonstrated than in this latest car we have just received.

"The motor in this car, an entirely new and Kissel-built engine, has been showing wonderful records in tests, making from 2½ miles to 50 miles on direct drive, and showing great economy in gasoline consumption. It has a 4*-inch bore and 5*-inch stroke.

"Quiet and smoothness of motor operation is obtained through the use of only three turning gears to drive the camshaft, circulating pump and magneto. The large leather-faced cone clutch is integral with the transmission and accessible for adjustment by removing a manhold cover within easy reach.

"The transmission is simplified and lightened over previous models, weight being reduced wherever consistent. All electric wires are centralized on a panel attached to the front of the dash. This feature permits the instant location of trouble, which is a great advancement over all other electrical systems.

"Non-breakable springs have been adopted. The springs are absolutely guaranteed against center breakage during the life of the car.

"Every part of a KisselKar must successfully withstand the most rigid test to insure safety and long life. This accounts for their low average cost of upkeep and slow depreciation of value."

Something New.

FIRST TRAINLOAD ORDER RECEIVED.

NEW YORK DEALER ORDERS BIG SHIPMENT.

Total Number of Freight Cars in Shipment will be about Forty-two. Dealer has Handled the Same Make of Car in New York for Twelve Years.

The manufacturers of the Oldsmobile are in receipt of their first spring trainload order for Model 42 touring cars. An odd coincidence is that the order, which originated with one of their distributors, C. H. Larson of New York City, calls for immediate shipment of not less than 120 cars, and when loaded the cars will occupy forty-two freight cars—so there will be forty-two carloads of Model 42.

This, they believe, augurs extreme prosperity for spring and indicates clearly that their lightweight four (a faithful copy of the Oldsmobile big six on a somewhat smaller scale) will enjoy an overwhelming demand during 1915 and necessitate maintaining in their plants the increased production schedule which went into effect last August when the Model 42 was launched.

C. H. Larson has been handling Oldsmobiles on Broadway, New York, for more than twelve years, and is enjoying an increase in sales of more than 500 per cent. this season over the corresponding months of last year.

Going Abroad.

LOS ANGELES TRUCKS ARE PURCHASED FOR AUSTRALIA

LOS ANGELES is to have the distinction of sending the first American-manufactured motor trucks to the Antipodes. A cablegram was received this week by the Moreland Distillate Motor Truck Company from Mansfield & Phillips of Sydney, Australia, calling for the immediate shipment of two worm-driven 2½-ton Moreland trucks.

The order removed the necessity of the customary credit investigation, as the cablegram stated that the entire purchase price had been deposited in a local bank to the credit of the Moreland company, payable on presentation of an official shipping receipt.

Nearly a year ago Messrs. Mansfield & Phillips, while sojourning in this city, spent several hours at the Moreland factory. Their mission was somewhat disguised by their statement that they were simply studying the methods of construction used in American motor truck factories.

They made a minute study of the design and construction of the California-manufactured power wagon, and had previously inspected several motor truck factories, but the worm-drive equipment of the Moreland was something new and consequently proved intensely interesting.

The fact that the California-manufactured truck operated exclusively on distillate fuel proved almost incomprehensible. The fuel situation in Australia has greatly retarded the progress of the commercial car in that territory. The entire gasoline supply, which is imported, is controlled by a single concern and its cost is correspondingly high. Gasoline seldom drops below 60 cents per gallon and this exorbitant price has practically placed a ban on the gasoline truck.

The workings of the Moreland distillate gasifier were explained to the Australian visitors. The official economy records established by the truck through its successful use of distillate proved a great surprise.

Little significance was attached to the visit of Messrs. Mansfield and Phillips to the Moreland factory.

Even when a cablegram was received from them a month ago, asking for present prices and specifications, the connection was recalled, but the incident was soon forgotten. Not until the recent cablegram arrived, asking for immediate delivery on the pair of 2½-tonners, was the importance of the former visitors realized.

The introduction of the distillate-burning Moreland into the Antipodes is certain to place a vastly different aspect on the entire commercial car industry in that territory. Distillate has as yet never been used as a motive power in Australia and it is sold for as low as 20 cents per gallon.

The Australian order means a great deal to the Moreland factory, as it is complete recognition of the superiority of American manufactured trucks.

Busy Place.

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS IN USE AT THIS FACTORY.

EVERY hour of the twenty-four is being utilized by the Paige Detroit Motor Car Company in an attempt to overtake the back orders which have been piling up during the last few months. The large Paige factory proved inadequate to meet the demands of the trade in December and a double shift was put in operation. This was successful for a month, and then came the big flood of orders from the New York show, which put them further behind than ever.

The Paige sales force set a record at the Chicago and New York automobile shows which probably will stand for some time, when they disposed of $1,000,000 worth of Paige cars and sixes, but this record was too much for a two-shift day and the Paige officials were obliged to put on another one. Now the big factory is working day and night and turning out cars more rapidly than any other of its size in the world.

The popularity of the Paige Six has been amazing. Even the builders were unprepared for so much interest. Don Lee, Pacific Coast distributor, has taken orders for sixes which will absorb every shipment for two months. Shipments probably will arrive for delivery in the next week or two, and with the factory working three shifts on the fours and sixes, the Pacific Coast distributor probably will be able to announce immediate delivery on cars within the next sixty days.

The Paige Four, too, has been selling so rapidly that the factory has been unable to meet the demand. The three-shift day will be continued by the factory as long as the heavy demand for cars continues, or until additional factory space can be built. The factory will have to be enlarged for next year, for dealers' contracts, which are being signed now, all call for an increased number of cars.

While changing conditions in the petroleum industry have cancelled for the present expectations of a gasoline famine, it is, nevertheless, a fact that the problem of cheaper fuel remains unsolved so far as it concerns consumers.

REPUBLIC TRUCK

EQUIPPED WITH NEW

TORBENSEN INTERNAL GEAR DRIVEN AXLE

MODEL F, MAXIMUM CARRYING LOAD 1 TON; COMPLETE WITH EXPRESS BODY

$1250 F. O. B. LOS ANGELES

THIS is the most practical form of truck construction known. The principle of this axle is to supply one solid member for carrying the load and a separate one for transmitting the power to the wheel. The carrying member is of dropped forged steel with the wheels running on taper roller bearings. The jack shaft, or power transmitting axle, is securely attached to the rear of this forging and this unit is relieved of all carrying strain by the forged member, leaving the jack shaft purely for the purpose of propulsion. All of the driving mechanism is enclosed, affording perfect cleanliness, quiet working and efficient lubrication. The internal gear axle has ALL the ADVANTAGES of the usual shaft as well as those of the chain-driven type and the DEFECTS of BOTH are eliminated.

THE Model F REPUBLIC is the type and size all truck manufacturers have been trying to develop at this price, but the REPUBLIC is the only one that has succeeded. This is the fastest selling truck made and it is the enormous output and strong financial stability of the factory making it that have brought it about. The REPUBLIC is the only truck made on the tram system that prevails in the plants of the most popular passenger vehicles.

THE REPUBLIC also is made in 1 and 1½-ton capacity models that sell for $300 to $400 less than others made of the same parts.

IN purchasing any truck, it is advisable to investigate the financial responsibility of the dealer selling it. We have established our reputation in this respect and we invite an investigation of our resources. Ask any of our users about our SERVICE. We will bank on their statements of responsibility.

On Boulevards.

HERE ARE SOME TRIPS TO TAKE IN THE RAIN.

TOURISTS in Southern California need have no fear of the rain spoiling auto trips according to Al Faulkner of the Carlton-Faulkner-Bowles Company.

Faulkner tells of a number of trips tourists can take in their machines and have no fear of getting off the boulevards. The way will be smooth and safe no matter how hard the rain falls. One trip is to San Bernardino and from there to Redlands and Riverside and back to Los Angeles by the way of Pomona.

Another good trip is over the boulevard to Whittier and on down through Orange and Santa Ana and back again. Splendid roads run all the way from Los Angeles to Huntington Beach by the way of Long Beach and this soon will be extended to Newport. The boulevard to San Pedro is excellent and makes a splendid trip. A trip to Redondo Beach is also very pleasant. From Redondo a car can be driven to San Pedro over boulevard.

A much used route is the boulevard from Los Angeles to Venice and up through Ocean Park and Santa Monica and back by the way of Hollywood or the Wilshire boulevard. A beautiful drive can be made out through Hollywood, across to Glendale and La Canada and back through Pasadena. The San Fernando boulevard affords a dozen or more fine trips. This great boulevard extends as far as Saugus. At San Fernando the road branches off to Chatsworth and Calabasas. From Calabasas a drive can be made to Newberry Park. From Hollywood a tour can be made on the Lankershim and Van Nuys boulevards and a direct road to Owensmouth.

These are but a few of the many trips that can be made in any weather and with pleasure. There are over 500 miles of excellent boulevard road in Los Angeles county alone. Orange county has many miles of good road and the amount is increasingly rapidly. San Bernardino county, with its new $1,700,000 road appropriation will soon be one of the best equipped counties in the matter of roads.

SHORT WHEELBASE SAVED A FUNERAL.

CARS WERE JAMMED CLOSE UP AND ONLY ONE ABLE TO GET LOOSE.

Sometimes the light car with a short wheelbase is the only kind in an emergency, according to George Henderson of Orange, who drives a Saxon. He bases his conclusion on the fact that a few days ago his car was one of twelve that formed a funeral cortege. Because of the occasion the cars were moving but slowly when a stretch of mud road was encountered. The motor hearse mired and every car had to stop. Henderson's Saxon was the only car that was able to get out of line and it was sent on a rescue mission. All cars had been running so closely together that when brakes were applied suddenly their momentum carried them ahead on the soft road due to sliding tires. None of the large cars could back, go ahead or turn out, but the Saxon finally was extricated through strong-arm assistance and hurriedly turned about and sent to the nearest garage. A tow car released the hearse, and the cortege was able to proceed.

THE new King eight-cylinder, which was placed on exhibition for the first time on the Pacific Coast last Monday at the salesroom of the English Motor Car Company, was accorded the most remarkable reception a popular-priced car ever received in Los Angeles.

All day long, Grand avenue between Eleventh and Twelfth was lined with automobiles. The salesroom thronged with people and the demonstrator was kept busy from 8 o'clock in the morning until late at night.

Incidentally, a record was set by Mr. English in selling the first popular-priced eight-cylinder car to be placed on the market. His opening day sales totalled more than seventy cars, to be delivered as rapidly as possible.

Unusual demonstrations of the flexibility of the King motor were given by Mr. English. The car was throttled down to three miles an hour on high gear, on a 6 per cent. grade, and made the climb as smoothly as it would at twenty miles an hour. Not once did the motor balk, even while running at such a slow pace on so hard a pull.

BIG TRUCK SURVIVES A FALL OF OVER 800 FEET.

IN ORDER to prosecute its business the better, an automobile salvage company operating in Los Angeles in connection with a London (Eng.) insurance company, has established a wrecking crew similar to those maintained by the railroad companies. The men are ready to proceed to the rescue at any hour of day or night. They maintain relays at headquarters, or, when off duty, are in close touch so that they may be summoned upon notice.

The call has been received occasionally to rescue cars from almost inaccessible place. To accomplish the purpose the foreman of the crew has invented numerous contrivances and mechanical appliances particularly adapted to his usage. Cars have been dragged from deep canyons, the beds of streams, ravines and gulches and turned over to the insurance companies for redemption.

One of the most difficult feats the wreckers have been called upon to tackle was the rescue of a three-ton Mack truck that had overturned on a mountainside and fallen almost 800 feet into a canyon with almost perpendicular walls.

To make a sharp turn in ascending the mountain drive, it was necessary to advance slowly, then back and advance again.

The driver was alone, and in backing he overestimated his distance, the truck got onto a soft place on the edge of the bluff, and the soil gave way. The driver jumped and was uninjured, but the Mack plunged over and over, rearing on end and then somersaulting until near the bottom of the canyon a tree was wedged between a front wheel and the remnants of the truck halted.

When the wrecking crew was sent to the scene by the insurance company the undertaking at first appeared hopeless. It appeared the cost of the rescue would be more than the salvage was worth. However, the rescuers were anxious to be given the chance, anyhow, and were told to go ahead.

Five men were assigned to the job. It was necessary to clear boulders, trees and undergrowth from a path from the debris to the roadway 800 feet above. "Dead men" were sunk at advantageous places to which the tackle was hitched. Lines of cable were run through pulley blocks and attached to a truck on the roadway, and after a few days of effort the wreckage was landed on the roadway, loaded on the other truck and conveyed to this city.

The insurance company had made its settlement, and the wreckage was its property. The motor and various parts were found to be in a remarkably good condition despite the awful strain they had undergone. All the parts were loaded into a car and shipped to the factory of the Mack Motor Truck Company and rebuilt.

Manager J. A. Stoner, the Los Angeles Mack dealer, was notified a few days ago by the factory that the insurance company had turned the truck over to the British government and it had been included in a shipment to Europe for service with the army of the allies.

The redemption serves to show of what stuff the Mack trucks are made.

Some job to rescue this.

TRUCK TWICE AS GOOD AS THREE TWO-HORSE TEAMS.

THEODORE LE CLAIR of Oakland, Cal., describes a trip with a KisselKar truck, loaded with three tons of household goods and declares in conclusion, that the truck does more than three two-horse teams, at less than half the cost.

The letter of Mr. Le Clair is in part as follows:

"On Wednesday morning I left Oakland, bound for a ranch ten miles out of Ukiah, Mendocino county, with a load of household goods weighing three tons, going via Tunnel road to Martinez. I passed through Martinez, Vallejo, Napa, St. Helena, Geyserville, Cloverdale, Hopland and Ukiah.

"The roads were in good condition to Cloverdale, but from there on the State highway was under construction, which proved a severe test for the truck. The grades were heavy and covered with loose sand and rock, and in many places soft yellow clay. But I was never forced to put my machine below second gear, and most of the time traveled in high.

"I reached Ukiah at dark, still having ten miles of the hardest part of the journey to go. I had only oil lamps to show the way up a dark canyon by what is called the Boonville road. This road is a continual climb for five miles, which I took on low gear so that I could make the hundreds of sharp bends possible. During this five miles climb on low gear my engine did not get hot enough to boil over, which is a feat most noteworthy.

"I returned via Santa Rosa, Sausalito and San Francisco, reaching Oakland Friday in the afternoon. Not a mishap was experienced in the whole trip, and my engine ran like a clock. This transportation by motor truck was cheaper than by railroad, also doing away with that dreaded packing and crating."

Beginning March 1 every vehicle using the streets of Detroit at night must be equipped with tail lights.

TIRE PRICES NOT LOWERED.

EXCLUSIVE KELLY-SPRINGFIELD MAKE NO REDUCTIONS OF MOMENT.

The reported reductions in the price of tires will have little or no influence on the Kelly-Springfield tires, according to Manager C. A. Jessup. Jessup has just returned from a trip to San Diego and he reports the roads in wretched condition.

In speaking of the tire prices, Jessup stated that there would be no reduction in the Kelly-Springfield tubes, but there would be a few reductions in casings. The 3 and 3½-inch casings will stand pat. A 10 per cent. reduction is given the 4 and 4½-inch while the 5 and 5½-inch get a 12½ per cent. cut.

According to Jessup the Kelly-Springfield prices have always been as low as consistent with the quality of the tires, and there could be no large reduction if the quality was to be kept the same. The excellent service given by the Kelly-Springfield tires has always more than repaid for the extra cost.

ENGLISH MOTOR BUSSES USE LOCAL CARBURETOR.

[illegible] sales force of the Master Carburetor Company has received a letter from Bournemouth, Eng., which tells of recognition of the Los Angeles carburetor in the commercial field abroad. The letter is from the Bournemouth Transportation Company, which operates a line of eleven motor busses between Bournemouth and London.

The busses are of twenty-passenger capacity, mounted on Daimler chassis. Shortly after the war broke out the company equipped two of their cars with Master carburetors, keeping a careful record of fuel consumption. As a result after a month of operation showed a petrol saving of 25 per cent. More busses were equipped with them and operated until the first of October. The fuel-saving record for this period was 22 per cent. On October first the entire fleet of busses was equipped with Master carburetors.

Following the equipment, President Larry Peebles wrote the manager of the Los Angeles factory of the Master Carburetor Company. In his letter he says: "It seems remarkable that a carburetor could effect such a saving of fuel as the Master has on our busses, and even more remarkable that it should develop so much more power. The motors probably are 30 per cent. more efficient than they formerly were, and we have gained in speed and hill-climbing ability. The Master has greatly improved our service."

Orders for 100 carburetors from the Yuba Constructoin Company were filled last week by the Master house here. This company manufactures the Yuba ball thread tractor, and the Master is the stock equipment. Other California manufacturers who use the Master are the Hall-Scott Company, makers of aviation and railway motors; Glenn Martin, builder of aeroplanes; Moreland Motor Truck Company, Harris Gasoline Harvester Company and the Golden Gate Gas Tractor Company.

Flexible Motor.

DRIVES 250 MILES OVER HILLS IN THE HIGH GEAR.

[illegible]CK BELLEW, Los Angeles business man, won a novel wager last week, when he drove his Cadillac [illegible] 250 miles on high gear. Bellew recently accepted delivery on a Cadillac [illegible].

He was telling a group of friends of the wonderful performances of the car, and he made a statement as to the flexibility of the motor that was questioned by several.

Bellew offered to prove his words, and to make it interesting proposed a wager that the car would go 250 miles without shifting gears. A route was mapped out for the trip which would take the car through Riverside, Redlands, San Bernardino, Arrowhead, Stoddard's Camp and home to Los Angeles by way of the Foothill boulevard. In order to win the required 250 miles were not to be covered, the car was to continue over the Cahuenga Pass and out the State highway toward Calabasas until it had covered that distance.

Bellew started Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. The car was backed into the street at his residence and then started on the high gear. The men who accepted the wager were taken along on the trip as observers. From the time the car left Los Angeles until it returned the lever was not out of the high gear notch.

Riverside was reached at 9 o'clock. The drive to Redlands and San Bernardino was made in leisurely fashion, and luncheon was had at Arrowhead. The trip to Stoddard's Camp was a hard one, as the road was in bad condition, but the flexible motor took the car up the grade in fine fashion.

The return trip to Los Angeles was made in good time, and the party was back home at 3 o'clock, with the speedometer registering 196 miles. Then Bellow determined to show them the real quality of the car, and instead of choosing the easy route by Cahuenga Pass to the State highway, he tackled the grade above Laurel Canyon.

On the sharp turns the car was slowed down to ten miles an hour, and picked up again rapidly, even on the steep grade. Bellow drove the car to Calabasas over the Chalk Hill grade, and then returned to the city with the speedometer well over the 250-mile mark.

HAS A PRIVATE AUTO EXHIBIT.

THE ONLY ONE OF ITS KIND AT THE SAN FRANCISCO EXHIBITION.

When Earle C. Anthony visited the big automobile exhibit at the San Francisco exposition last week he found the Chalmers and Packard exhibits very much to his liking. He looked in vain for a Grant exhibit however, and decided immediately that the big show would not be complete without a Grant four and six on the floor of the Transportation Building.

An eastern company was still dickering for floor space directly beside the beautiful Chalmers exhibit, but Anthony cut the proceedings short by offering to take the space himself for a Grant exhibit. His offer was immediately accepted, and Anthony now has the honor of being the only motor car dealer with a private exhibit at the exposition. All the other automobiles on exhibit are shown by the factories, but Anthony has a Grant exhibit that is all his own.

STANDARDIZED COLE 8

ASSURED DELIVERIES

THE Cole Motor Car Company has contracted with the Northway Motor Company for the season's exclusive production on the Cole Eight Cylinder Motor. This insures your being able to get your Cole Eight—if you order it now. The Cole Eight weighs less than 3400 lbs.—dimesions of the motor are 3½x4½ bore and stroke—this gives it vast reserve power and makes possible road accomplishments which you have never thought possible. The design of the car is the last word in automobile refinement, class and convenience.

The COLE FOUR $1485

is the one refined high-grade Four on the entire market which in the face of changing conditions has not only held its own but actually grown in popularity. The Cole Four is capable of practically unlimited wear and can be maintained with extreme economy. It is 500 pounds lighter than former Cole Fours and the decrease in weight has been obtained purely by simplification of construction and without sacrificing an ounce of strength. The body design of the Cole Four is precisely that of the Cole Eight, which is sufficient proof of its correctness.

The Cole Four is a strictly seven-passenger car and sells fully equipped for $1485.

All Cole Models contain the strictly standard units included in the various Cole Roll of Honor.

You Can Tell the 1915 Car by Its Looks

IT has class showing all over it. It does not represent the experimental stage in construction, but a year's experience. It is not a cut price car that means an attempt to "unload." It is sold only at one price and cannot be bought for any less.

THIS NEW SAXON has improved body design and is equipped with electric lights and starter if desired. You have the option of wood or wire wheels. The oiling system is by pump that insures constant and regular lubrication. The springs are reinforced, making the car more stable and at the same time ride easier.

WHEN the cost of upkeep enters into the consideration of the car you contemplate buying, it is admitted by all the NEW SAXON is the cheapest car to operate. Thirty-two miles to the gallon of gasoline is a low average. A pint of oil will run it 100 miles, and 10,000 miles is the regular service of a set of tires.

The Broad Way

Leads to Goodyear Tires
Some 400,000 Have Found It

Take It a Little Way

This is not to sell you Goodyear tires. It is to ask you to try and compare them. The future will depend upon results.

Our plea is this: Countless men who did compare found that Goodyears averaged best. Thousands of new users adopt them each month.

No other tire ever won so many. Last year—our 15th year—men bought about one Goodyear for every car in use.

Don't Ignore the Facts

This army of Goodyear users is composed of men like you. They want quality, sturdiness, safety. They want trouble-saving and low cost per mile. Goodyears best met these wants.

They best met rim-cuts, blowouts and loose treads. Three exclusive Goodyear features best combat these troubles.

They proved safest, because the base in each Fortified Tire contains 126 braided piano wires.

And our All-Weather tread best met puncture, wear and skidding. That's because it is tough, double-thick, sharp-edged and resistless.

Have Tires Fortified

Mishap and misuse may lead to trouble, even with Goodyear tires. But why not fortify against them in the best ways known?

That's what we do in Goodyear Fortified Tires—in five ways employed by no other maker. These protections cost us fortunes. They are at your service and you should prove them out.

Price Reduction

On February 1st we made our third big price reduction. These reductions in two years have totaled 45 per cent. Today Goodyear tires, more than ever before, offer you most for the money.

More than that, they offer you the utmost possible in tires, measured by cost per mile.

Any dealer can supply you Goodyear tires. If the wanted size is not in stock, he will telephone our local branch.

Topango Canyon Road is Being Repaired

Useful.

TRUCK HELPS BUILD ROADS.

Pumps Oil Long Distance to Big Tanks.

Can't Reach Them Because of Stream.

Two Big Shovels are Kept Working.

New and highly ingenious use of one of their Peerless motor trucks ordinarily used for road oiling is credited to the Los Angeles county officials in their construction work in Topanga Canyon, where the new road is being built to take the thrills and bumps out of the ride over this marvelous scenic route between Santa Monica and the San Fernando Valley.

A new use for a truck.

In working upwards from the ocean end of the road, the steam shovels got beyond the stream at a point where construction of a new bridge was necessary, and the completion of this bridge was withheld until the spring floods should be past in order to give practically a full year for settling of soil around the foundations and abutments.

This introduced a problem in the transportation of oil, used at the rate of about 500 gallons a day as fuel for the steam shovels operating farther up in the canyon.

Both economy and progress demand continuous operation of the steam shovels which, working two shifts, tear out a tremendous quantity of earth every day, and represent too heavy an investment to be permitted to stand idle.

"The method worked out was to provide, just above the detour through the bed of the stream, two large oil tanks having a capacity of about 10,000 gallons, as a storage reservoir," says C. R. Teaboldt, sales manager of Smith Brothers, Peerless distributors, who made a special trip to see this new application of the truck to automobile road engineering.

"A two-inch pipe was run some 400 feet down hill from the tanks, across the stream to a valve and coupling, where the road is blocked by the bridge under construction. The truck, equipped with high-pressure pump running within a tank constructed to allow minimum waste of heat, is filled with hot oil which is transported from the oil pit in Los Angeles to the foot of this pipe.

"The tank is then coupled up to the pipe, and oil is forced through 400 feet of two-inch pipe, requiring 100 pounds pressure, into the storage tanks by the pump operated from the engine of the Peerless through a connection to the truck transmission. From the reservoir tanks it is drawn out at will into a little 200-gallon tank drawn by mules up to the point where the shovels are at work."

The Peerless has been able to make its trips along the coast road and up the canyon in the face of the unfavorable conditions created by the recent rains and high tides, an important factor in its performances being the construction which leaves a space of about one and one-half inches between the rim and the driving chain, so that big non-skid chains may be placed over the tires. This has so reduced the risk that it was safe to run the truck along the coast road where the sea has reduced it in some places to a narrow strip, and a three-inch skid would be highly disastrous.

As a full thousand gallons is carried by the truck over the coast road and up the canyon grades at every trip, this in connection with the pumping against so heavy a pressure is a highly convincing demonstration of the efficiency of this particular engine and transmission.

"Another example of the wonderful versatility of this truck equipment," says Mr. Teaboldt, "was demonstrated when, by the use of flexible hose connected to a tank fitted with spray nozzle and with pump giving 125 pounds pressure the county road force was able in three hours to paint the piers under a bridge with asphalt whereas the same work would have required several days by the old hand method."

BIG TRUCK HAS HORSES BEATEN.

TREMENDOUS SAVING MADE BY USE OF TRUCK AT MINNEAPOLIS.

The Minneapolis Steel and Machinery Company of Minneapolis, Minn., has a KisselKar six-ton truck and a six-ton trailer which shows a net saving over horses of about $55 per day. This outfit will sometimes haul as much as twenty-three tons in a single load. The average load during the period of its service has approximated fifteen tons. It has been in service about ten months and has run more than 9000 miles. It has been laid up for repairs only once during that period and on that occasion only for ten hours. The original tires are still on the truck.

Financial troubles have overtaken the Iowa State Automobile Association, the headquarters of which were removed from Davenport to Des Moines some time ago, after a bitter fight. The secretary of the State association has written to the local clubs stating that the organization is unable to make both ends meet, and that "unless radical changes can be made it is feared that the association cannot continue to exist."

BOXING TOURNEY PLANNED FOR CLUB.

AMATEURS WHO SHOWED WELL IN LAST TOURNAMENT TO MEET AGAIN.

Sixteen amateur boxers have been signed up by George Blake for the special boxing matches to be held in the gymnasium of the Los Angeles Athletic Club Friday evening, March 5.

Five Southern California amateur champion boxers have entered, while the remainder of those scheduled to appear have been chosen from the list of boxers, who made good in the Southern California championship tourney held in January.

According to Blakey, who is handling the affair, during the absence from the city of Cliff Reuman, chairman of the L.A.A.C. Boxing Committee, the special matches will eclipse the championship tournament.

A number of the Southern California champions have been matched with the boxers they defeated in the finals of the championship bouts, the arrangement gives promise of some unusually good bouts as the fighting scrappers are unanimous in claiming alibis and making promises of showing the dope Friday night.

The entries:

The 108-pound class—Fred Murphy, Pasadena Athletic Club, and Al Mayer, L.A.A.C.

The 115-pound class—Louis Wagward, Venice Athletic Club, and Al McManus, Western Athletic Club.

The 125-pound class—Willie Rosenfeld, Los Angeles Athletic Club, and Joe Nieto, Columbia Athletic Club.

The 135-pound class—Herman Schwartz, L.A.A.C., and Dan Duckworth, Venice Athletic Club.

The 145-pound class—Clark Chapman, Brooklyn Athletic Club, and William Huber, L.A.A.C.

Heavyweight—Pat McManus, Western Athletic Club, and L. O. Dow, L.A.A.C.

SHORT RACES FOR HORSES AT FAIR

EXPOSITION MEETINGS TO BE UNDER AUSPICES OF COAST ASSOCIATION.

Two of the most interesting activities in the sports calendar of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition are the race meetings that will be held from June 5 to July 3 and again from October 20 to November 13. They will be conducted under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' association.

There will be no long drawn-out contests except the $20,000 futurity. The races will attract prominent people from all over the country and the attendance will include some of the best-known society folk of the east and America.

The Executive Committee in charge of meetings are Prof. F. P. Healy, San Francisco; I. L. Borden, San Francisco and D. O. Lively of San Francisco.

The following constitute the Advisory Committee: H. K. Devereaux, Cleveland, O.; Morgan G. Bulkeley, Hartford, Conn.; David Bonner, Detroit; Sterling Holt, Indianapolis, Ind.; Amos Whitney, Municipal Judge, Ind.; Al Estabrook, Denver; William Simpson, New York; Lewis R. Weed, New York; Howard Ford, Stony Point, N. Y.; A. B. Coxe, Paoli, Pa.; William Russell Allen, Pittsfield, Mass.; Paul C. Wilson, Menominee, Mich.; H. W. Savage, Minneapolis, Minn.; Tegethoff, New York; H. J. Messinger, Milwaukee; R. J. Macfarlane, Pleasanton, Cal.; R. C. Estill, Lexington, Ky.; J. H. Booth, Rosebery, Ont.; W. P. Ijams, Terre Haute, Ind.; J. C. McCoy, Kirkwood, Del.; Fred Bowerman, Hamline, Minn.; Fred Bostock, Boston; J. C. Linneman, Louisville; Palmer L. Clark, Chicago; Major Johnston, Lexington, Ky.; Harry Bumbey, New York; Edward Fenton, Lexington, Ky.; Sidney Paget, New York; D. J. Campau, Detroit; Fred Terry, Indianapolis; W. F. Murray, Cleveland, O.; George B. Cortelyou, New York; John Drake, Buffalo, N. Y.; John Sinnemer, Buffalo, N. Y.; James A. Livingston, Chicago; James A. Livingston, Jr., Chicago; W. E. D. Stokes, Ontario, Can.; W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., New York, and Andrew J. Mahoney, San Francisco.

The general gain in automobile business may be estimated from the fact that motor licenses brought in New Jersey $255,000 during January, 1914, or 40 per cent. more than during the corresponding month of 1913. In Washington State 741 motor vehicle licenses were issued in January, 1914, as compared with 319 in January, 1914, an increase of 132 per cent.

THE UNASHAMED NUDITY OF GAY SAN FRANCISCO.

Found of Virile Pleasures, Enjoys Them Openly, Says Los Angeles Woman.

Wonderful Analysis of the Life of the Exposition City — Broadway in Los Angeles Compared with the Crowds in the San Francisco Streets — The Psychology of Color and the Old California Spirit.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—It is a far cry from the San Francisco of one hundred years ago to the exposition city of today, but there is an unmistakable kinship between the vigorous, buoyant throng that is dancing tonight at the Old Faithful Inn at the exposition, and those other native Californians, the Sonoma and Suisun Indians, who danced their savage dances in the cemetery in front of the Mission Dolores in 1815. Their dancing was wilder than ours and proportionately less demoralizing; their hearts were simpler and their heads heavier; they were fed by the Missionary fathers and clothed by the Presidio soldiers; they were less ambitious, and happier. Garments have changed, and manners; but in their passion for pleasure and their curious mixture of paganism and religion there is a distinct consciousness of kin between the San Franciscan of today and him of one hundred years ago.

SAN FRANCISCO TRAITS.

That susceptibility to the influence of religion in the frivolous San Franciscan is astonishing. At the death of a prelate, San Francisco will pack the cathedral to the doors and crowd the street in its vicinity, and will stand for an hour to hear a priest speak at the dedication of a new church. Just as the Indian would come from Sacramento Valley down the river through the Bay of San Pablo and Suisun to the Old Mission of San Francisco to sit and feast around a camp fire all night waiting for the morning mass on some saint's day, the present day Californian will dance all night at a Mardi Gras costume ball, and attend the Ash Wednesday services in the morning. No American city is as famous for street carnivals as San Francisco, nor for Lenten services. The strangest part of this strange contradiction is that San Franciscans are the sincerest people imaginable. Their interest in Lent is sincere. On the lips of a pretty San Francisco woman "mi-careme" is a delightful word, and "mi-careme parties" seem so charmingly to combine the necessary, if somewhat conflicting, elements of pleasure and religion.

VIRILE TASTE FOR PLEASURE.

With the rush for gold in '49, there came into San Francisco a virile pioneer element, the result of which is evident not only in the violence of the popular taste for pleasure, but, in its finest phase, in the brave, passionate patriotism which was displayed when San Francisco righted herself after the shock of April, 1906.

If you will put your ear to the ground you will hear the bounding rush of the tumultuous life from dawn to dark. The hum of a great city is always interesting, but in San Francisco it fascinates and inspires. It is all personal. You feel the struggle, the ambitions, the courage, the love of adventure, and above all, the light-hearted Latin temperament of the city.

San Francisco is as candid as a child. It has a sort of unashamed, pagan gaiety. It takes its pleasures with all the abandon of a libertine, and is engagingly obvious in its struggle for existence—in its barefaced bread line. I think that San Francisco's reputation for French wickedness is due to its inability to play under cover. And with this baring of its soul, there is also an actual moral obviousness about the inner life of the city. South of Market street, in the manufacturing district and the Potrero, the appearance of labor is unromantic. The whole section literally empties into the streets, and seems to be laboring there.

There is an interesting difference between Los Angeles and San Francisco in this regard. While the streets of Los Angeles are busy and crowded, the people appear to be en route to somewhere—passers-by, in fact. But in San Francisco they seem to be living in the streets. They are at home there, and they need not be en route to anywhere. Broadway in Los Angeles seems like a swiftly moving stream of un-uniformed messenger boys, to whom the thought of interruption while on their mad errand is extremely distasteful. Usually they are only going home, but they go home with that same hurried, self-important determination with which they go to work. Last week a member of the Times' staff said to me: "I never leave the office without a tinge of regret that the day's work is over," and my first thought was: "He, at least, must have that homeward look of anxiety and expectancy on his face."

In San Francisco it is entirely different. The place to be avoided at all costs is home. To the good San Franciscan home is such an unfamiliar, chilling, repellent place; so uninviting, so forbidding, as compared to Tait's. When San Franciscans meet on the street the warmth of their greeting and the subsequent invitation to a near-by cafe is less hospitality and friendliness than it is relief at being interrupted on their way home. Of course the average home in Los Angeles is prettier than the average home in San Francisco and the temperature within is less—surprising. One walks into a San Francisco home, or more probably a flat or apartment, laden with heavy furs for protection against the chilling fogs and winds, and sinks stifling from the sun heat into the nearest chair with feeble fingers pulling at one's wraps, while the tip of one's toe moves automatically toward the radiator. Or, after a brisk walk in the warm sun, up an almost perpendicular hill, one walks, carrying one's jacket, into a bleak, dark, dismal vestibule which the sun has not touched all day, and, suddenly chilled to the bone, hurries into the great room in the hall.

However, it is not entirely due to climate that the San Franciscan prefers to spend his time away from home. He knows his reputation, and feels compelled to live up to it, and besides that, the tastes of the Northern and Southern Californian are very different.

THE NERVES OF TWO CITIES.

San Francisco nerves demand excitement, while Los Angeles nerves demand rest. After a reasonable amount of work and play one becomes increasingly aware of that languor that settles upon us as soon as we are south of Tehachapi. A display of energy beyond the normal Los Angeles level is a effort. While in San Francisco the more fatigued we become, the more excitement we require, and the ingenuity with which we invent excuses to stay away from home approaches genius. Our homes, as a rule, are not alluring. They are too compact. We must cross the bay or go down the peninsula to see a flower or an open fireplace, and the temptations of the city have always been unlimited. What a boon the exposition is to the home-dodging citizen of San Francisco! The director of works was excessively busy during the last week before the opening, directing the 16,000 frantic workers who were crowded to the limit of their strength to make the fair ready on time, and he confessed to me that he had to be in his office at night as well as during the day, and I detected the unmistakable look of relief in his eyes. It was the same look of satisfaction which I have observed in the eyes of a friend when she sprains her ankle, which she does suspiciously often, and which means that she must stay in bed, surrounded by magazines, bonbons, and sympathizing friends, indefinitely.

ADDITIONAL EXCITEMENT.

Aside from the usual gayeties of cafe life, there will be this year an unceasing round of riotous fun-making. The crowds that are in the habit of dancing and dancing at Tait's and the Tavern will find additional excitement at the Old Faithful Inn in the Yellowstone Park section of the Zone. That will be the favorite rendezvous for the faithful pleasure-seekers and the devotees of the dance. The place is decorated with regard for the psychology of color. San Francisco cafe owners long ago discovered that people will not spend money in a drab room. They require brilliant colors and ample floral decorations, and, in the opinion of many of the more popular cafes, canaries. In fact the Cliff House boasts a whole aviary of parrots. Conversation is no object, but noise is indispensable, and so we have, besides a band, and in some cases a whole orchestra, singing and dancing birds, and sometimes stereopticon views with the possible accompaniment of a lecture through a megaphone.

When Jules Guerin came to San Francisco he opened a new field in color. Once when he was sitting in a cafe, which bears a well-known name, but which, in spite of the crowds that came nightly, made no money, the proprietor spoke to Mr. Guerin quite frankly about the situation, and said that he could not understand it. The great color-artist answered: "The reason is obvious. People will not spend money in a room of this particular shade of blue." The proprietor begged for suggestions, and got them from Mr. Guerin, who is interested in psychology for its own sake. As I was present at the conversation, I followed it up, and was told by the elated proprietor that in the first month after the redecoration of his cafe, his receipts almost doubled. The color scheme of the exposition has been by far the most commented upon of all the features of the Jewel City.

LOS ANGELES MORE COSMOPOLITAN.

San Francisco is called a cosmopolitan city, probably because it was, until recently, the only city of size on the Pacific Coast; its situation giving direct communication with the Orient. But Los Angeles is by far the more cosmopolitan of the two. San Francisco has retained more of the atmosphere of Old California. In spite of three great fires it has retained more actual landmarks, more of the spirit of romance and adventure, and more Californians. Los Angeles is said to have fewer Californians than any city in the State, proportionately to its population. The charm of the ancient olive groves where the old races dreamed and loved and gambled, and where Spanish was the common tongue; the one story adobe casas; the Spanish customs, the dominion of the Catholic church—all the indolent charm and romance of the little pueblo is gone, and Los Angeles, with its palaces of trade, its national administrative buildings, its strange names and faces, is almost as much of a melting pot as New York.

San Francisco has lost the repose and beauty of its old days, but it has retained the atmosphere. The Anglo-Saxons who have come to San Francisco have adopted the romance of the Latin temperament, and have caught something of the hardy spirit of the pioneers, and of the great men who were naturally attracted to the adventures and hardships of early days.

WHEN THE FOGS ROLL IN.

San Francisco has a character of its own, as marked as that of an individual of striking personality. Its name is becoming a synonym for indefinable fascination. It preserves picturesqueness even in its sordid and poverty-stricken districts. When the afternoon fogs roll in through the Golden Gate and hang low about the base of the delicately colored buildings of the exposition grounds, showing only to the tops of the lofty structures, which seem to be resting lightly upon the frail mist, the sight is more beautiful, but not so intense, so full of character and fascination as when the same fog softens the gaunt, tall, picturesquely ugly houses that line the narrow streets on Telegraph Hill.

PHILIPPINE BUILDING.

Dedication Ceremonies Conducted by Officials from the Orient—Spanish Architecture.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—The soft melodies of the tropics played by the Philippine constabulary band mingled yesterday afternoon with speeches and cheering at the dedication of the Philippine Building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Dr. Leon Guerrero, president of the Philippine Commission, was chairman and made an address.

Among other speakers were Henderson S. Martin, Vice-Governor of the Philippines. The building is in the quaint Spanish architecture, characteristic of the islands, and embraces in its display a large collection of rare orchids.

NEWSPAPER CONTESTS.

Score of Young Women from Montana to See Fair as Reward for Subscription Boosting.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 26.—A Butte (Mont.) paper will send a delegation of twenty-one young women, accompanied by a chaperon, to the San Diego Exposition early next month, the first of the newspaper contest parties to arrive under the special rates which go into effect on March 1. The contest awards are remarkable, providing for a continuation of the trip through the Panama Canal.

Montana is particularly interested in the San Diego Exposition in view of the exhibit the State has placed on La Via de los Estados (in the State section) in the building donated by former United States Senator W. A. Clark.

The Utah Building has been crowded with large delegations from Utah in recent weeks, a number taking advantage of the special excursions which have been conducted preliminary to the continued excursion rate of a few days hence. The building managers report the percentage of registrations on the officials' books to the total of admissions to the exposition greater than at any previous world's fair.

The addition of a large section to the Kansas Building is the first new construction allowed on the exposition grounds since the opening. The building was complete at that time but was found not large enough to house the exhibit the State of Kansas wished to install.

ILLINOIS CEREMONIES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—Sunshine and a blue California sky drew a great throng to the dedication of the Illinois Building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition grounds yesterday. An extra thrill was added to the ceremonies by an aviator who executed daring aerial slides and drops far above the heads of the crowd.

Three hundred thousand dollars was spent on the Illinois Building, and it is regarded as one of the finest structures of the exposition. Within its walls are a theater, restrooms, a lounging lobby and an art gallery filled with canvases from the Chicago Art Institute.

Justice Henry A. Melvin of the California Supreme Court, a former Illinoisan, presided, an daddresses were delivered by Rev. F. W. Clampett, formerly of Illinois; Adolph Karpen, chairman of the Illinois commission; William Bailey Lamar of the United States Commission and President C. C. Moore of the exposition.

NORWAY'S DEDICATION.

Addresses of Welcome Given Scandinavian Representatives — Native Dances Feature Exercises.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—Norway's building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, built in the style of a sixteenth-century country home of the mediaeval Norse, was dedicated yesterday afternoon in a festival of song and speech. It was the third of the foreign buildings to receive the chrism of exposition ceremony.

Norwegian hymns and picturesque dances by girls in native costume of Norway lent color to the occasion and stirred memories of the homeland in the hearts of thousands of descendants of the Scandinavian kingdom who attended.

An address of welcome was delivered by Gov. Johnson and other speeches were made by President C. C. Moore of the exposition, Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, Norway's commissioner-general, Herman F. Gade of Christiania, and William B. Lamar, chairman of the United States commission.

RELICS RETELL TALES OF ANCIENT AMERICA.

Art and History Enriched by Exhibits at San Diego Exposition — Wonderful Archeological Discoveries Made Near the Isthmus are Taken to the Fair — Outdoor Doings.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 27.—One could pass weeks in the central group of buildings, the California quadrangle, at the San Diego exposition and always find something new to study. Permanent exhibits, which will give to San Diego a wonderful museum of untold value, occupy this quadrangle and offer an opportunity to study the progress of man by his arts and crafts from the earliest times to the present.

Art and history have a prominent place in the San Diego exposition, for at San Diego the first colony of Europeans was founded and the first efforts were made to teach the aborigines the arts and sciences of the white man. But the San Diego exposition exhibits go back even farther than the history of the white man. Knowledge of American history usually begins with the period of discovery and conquest and follows down to the present time.

In the beautiful California Building is a display of ancient art of America, the art of the Mayas of Central America, that begins with the discovery of America by Columbus, and, looking back, views the history of a civilization that reached its zenith and went down before it was known to white men.

It is the first time in the history of expositions that an entire building is devoted to ancient America, and it affords an opportunity to study an age in America about which Americans generally are not well informed. This wonderful exhibit has been collected and arranged by Dr. Edgar L. Hewitt, director of the School of American Archeology, a man of international fame as an archeologist and ethnologist.

AMERICAN HISTORY.

One is at first sight impressed by the California Building, the tower of which rises nearly 200 feet above the ground. The ornamentation of this tower is bewilderingly profuse, and on it in the sculptured figures of the men most closely related to the early history of the country is a study in American history itself.

Entering the vestibule of the building, one sees a beautiful frieze done by Mrs. Sallie James Farnham, the sculptor, which depicts the discovery and conquest of America, and has relief sculptures from the ancient Maya city of Palenque, Mex., showing rites of these ancient people, further decorate the vestibule with the most impressive decorations imaginable.

In the rotunda of the great building under the dome are reproductions of the marvelous monuments found in the jungles of Guatemala, which the Mayas built ages ago. The monuments are exact reproductions of those discovered by the archeologists five years ago in Central America and were reproduced in the jungles where found, under the direction of Dr. Hewitt, who for the past five years has been in charge of archeological expeditions for the exposition.

For ages the cities of the Mayas had lain buried in the tropical jungles until discovered by hunters. It is now known the ancient temple builders of Central America were American Indians. The hieroglyphics on the huge monuments, some of which are 100 feet in heighth, are a seal book, for none of the scientists have discovered the key and the characters do not bear any resemblance to those of the Egyptians or any other ancient people, the archeologists tell us.

PERFECT SETTING.

The rotunda under the great dome of the California Building gives a perfect setting for the massive monuments with their strange carvings, and this hall contains nothing else with the exception of a number of huge palms. No more noble setting for the works of the Mayas could be found, and never before have they been presented in such perfection.

Here is a study in the ancient history of America that must impress the most casual observer. Civilization as great as that attained by the Egyptians is shown in the finished work of the monuments hewn out of solid stone. One monument, known as the Great Turtle, represents a woman in the mouth of a mythic animal. Another, evidently the monument of a priest, shows the figure of a priest ruler.

Research by Dr. Hewitt and other archeologists shows that no proof exists that this civilization was derived from Egypt or the Orient. It is their belief on the contrary that during a certain period of many centuries it arose, flourished and declined in Central America, and that the people must have been the original Americans, or Indians. Some authorities place the date of the Maya cities as early as the twelfth century, B. C. The civilization was profoundly religious, a trait of the entire American Indian race.

An architectural model of a temple of sacrifice taken from Chichen Itza, Yucatan, mural paintings of the Maya cities by Carlos Vierra, a Maya frieze, showing scenes from Maya life, and a case of beautiful vases excavated at Chiriqui, Panama, give one an idea of this wonderful cultivation reached by the ancient inhabitants of America.

Then, leading from the California Building is the Science and Education Building, where Dr. Hewitt has secured and arranged a display known as "The Science of Man." Casts showing the evolution of man from the lowest form to the present civilization, and other exhibits that would do credit to the greatest universities, are here. In the Indian Arts Building, also under the supervision of Dr. Hewitt, are shown the art and handicraft of the American Indian. Striking groups of life-sized, bronze figures, the work of the Smithsonian Institution show the development of the Indian in mining and in handicraft.

The Fine Arts Building is devoted wholly to American art and is a wonderful exhibit of modern art, giving the work of eleven different American artists. The Little Art Gallery, which is hung with paintings of a different American artist each month, is one of the places of greatest interest to American artists. The past two months the paintings of Beauregard, the young American artist who died while working on paintings for the exposition, were on exhibition.

ROOF OF STARS.

NOTES OF EXPOSITION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 27.—To the tens of thousands of visitors from Eastern and Middle Western States who come to the San Diego exposition, the most remarkable feature of the fair is the continuous series of outdoor events. There are outdoor band concerts, outdoor games, outdoor parades, outdoor dances, and outdoor celebrations of every sort.

Among the most elaborate of the outdoor exercises which have been held since the opening of the exposition beautiful on New Year's Eve was a gorgeous costume ball given by the exposition authorities on the Plaza de Panama, on Washington's Birthday. Beneath the twinkling stars and bright moon, hundreds of couples swung about the plaza to the music of the exposition's Spanish band, and thousands more lined the arcades to watch the beautiful spectacle.

During the afternoon the easterner stood on the same plaza and saw a battalion of United States marines reviewed by Col. J. H. Pendleton, commander of the marines stationed on the Pacific Coast. Earlier in the day there were many band concerts.

The city and the San Diego exposition are already making arrangements for the welcoming to this port, the first north of the Panama Canal, of the new steamer Northern Pacific, due on April 10. A few days ago there was a big welcome accorded the sister ship, the Great Northern, the largest passenger ship to pass through the canal. The passenger lists of both steamers include the names of prominent men and women of all sections of the country, assembling at Philadelphia as the start of the ocean voyage.

Several hundred members of the National Live Stock Association will visit the San Diego exposition next month on their way to and from the sixteenth annual convention, which will be held in San Francisco March 24-26. Special arrangements are being made to welcome the stock men in this city and a special day in honor of delegates and their friends will be celebrated on the exposition grounds.

Mines and Mining in the Great Southwest.

California.

OLD PROPERTY IN NEW HANDS.

Bond is Taken on Rawhide Mine, is Report.

Negotiations are Pending in Other Deals.

Severe Storms Raise Havoc in Mountains.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SONORA, Feb. 25.—The famous Rawhide mine has been taken over under bond and option by a syndicate of Southern California people headed by John L. Whitney, according to report. The same interests have been developing the Atlas mine in this district with excellent results, and their success is understood to have expedited the closing of the Rawhide deal.

The Rawhide is one of the old properties of the easterly portion of the Mother Lode and for years ranked among the largest gold mines in California. It has been worked to a depth exceeding 1000 feet, and large quantities of medium-grade ore are blocked out in the old workings. The veins are very large, facilitating mining of large tonnages of rock at low costs. It is intended to send the shaft deeper in the hope of developing the downward extensions of the profitable ore bodies worked in the old levels.

Negotiations are reported pending for the acquisition of the App mine by eastern interests. The App is one of the most famous of Tuolumne gold yielders and is a near neighbor of the Rawhide. For years it was noted for its output of bonanza ore, although profits were largely derived from the immense ledges of milling quartz. The old dumps were recently taken under lease by local people and will be worked by the cyanide process.

Rich discoveries have been reported of late from the Jumper and Sugarman mines. Developments in the Jumper have been so satisfactory that the leasing company has renewed its agreement and has arranged for more extensive work. In the Sugarman a pocket was recently encountered which yielded over $5000 in gold, and a good shoot of picture ore is declared to be exposed.

GUGGENHEIM DEAL.

The Guggenheims have opened negotiations for the Empire and Pennsylvania mines at Grass Valley, according to current reports. Several very rich discoveries have been made recently in both properties, particularly in the Empire, where the Pennsylvania vein has been intersected on the 3400 and 4600 levels.

An immense tonnage of rich ore is exposed and the output of the Empire alone is said to approximate $80,000 per month. The owners recently added twenty heavy stamps to the old forty-stamp mill and installed a powerful electric hoist capable of operating to a depth of 7500 feet.

Another unit of twenty heavy stamps has been arranged for and other portions of the big plant will be improved. When all alterations have been made 100 stamps will be dropping on ore from the Empire and Pennsylvania mines. The Pennsylvania is equipped with a good shaft and excellent hoist, but the deeper levels of the property will be worked through the splendid Empire shaft.

Before the close of 1915 the group is expected to develop into the largest gold producer in California. Should it be secured by the Guggenheims, it will be at the cost of over $3,000,000, according to Empire stockholders.

The Brunswick Consolidated Company, operating near Grass Valley, is completing specifications for a twenty-stamp mill, which will augment the twenty-stamp plant at present in operation. The projected plant will contain heavy stamps and will present many improvements over the old unit.

Late development in the property has proved so exceptionally satisfactory that the mill is unable to take care of the ore, while the reserves are declared sufficient to keep forty stamps running for years. The company declared a dividend last week aggregating $36,000. In 1914 dividends to the amount of $71,151 were distributed. Considerable stock is held by Los Angeles residents.

The Golden Center Mining Company has secured a permit to follow a rich ore body under the old Catholic cemetery at Grass Valley, and has started exploratory work in the vicinity of the pioneer burial ground. At other points the company is following shoots under the business and residence sections of the town, developing ore bodies disclosed near surface by early-day operators. A powerful pump was recently installed and the company is in a position to operate in the wettest weather. The mill continues to treat a fair tonnage of good ore.

FIERCE STORMS.

Heavy snow has wrecked flumes, pipe lines and power systems in many districts in Sierra, Trinity, Plumas and other mountain counties, and many operators have been forced to suspend work until weather conditions moderate. Most of the placer mines are without water, owing to breaking of flume lines; quartz properties are also badly affected.

At the La Grange, near Weaverville, the largest hydraulic property in California, storms recently swept away about 2000 feet of flume, and the mine is idle pending replacing of the power system. In many respects the storm period is proving the worst experienced in the mountain districts in five years.

Worked almost exclusively for its copper-bearing ore since its discovery, the Mammoth copper mine at Kennett is developing into a great yielder of four metals—copper, silver, zinc and gold—and is upsetting long-cherished theories relative to ore deposits in the Shasta mineral field. In newly-opened workings ore assaying twenty-two ounces of silver and 40 per cent. zinc has been uncovered in large quantities, and heavy shipments of the product are being made to Oklahoma plants.

So important have late silver-zinc ore developments been that the product is reported to be defraying all expenses, leaving the copper as a net profit. Considerable gold is also being produced. The company has erected a large sorting plant at the mine, where the various ores are separated and dispatched to smelters. The property is owned by the United States Refining, Smelting and Mining Company.

MINES CHANGE HANDS.

The Ragon and Mount Auburn quartz mines, two miles from Nevada City, and extensions of the Champion group, have been acquired by the Ragon Development Company, largely composed of eastern people. The claims are located near the Merrifield, one of the principal mines of the Champion merger, and have lain idle about thirty years, although at one time good producers.

It is planned to send the old shaft to considerable depth and to equip the mine with modern machinery. Among the people most heavily interested are R. Chester Turner, general manager of the Brunswick Consolidated mine at Grass Valley, and R. H. Ccuntiss, the Chicago railroad man.

Good progress is being made in the work of placing the Phoenix mine, near Randsburg, on a productive basis. A concentrating plant, recently moved from the Yellow Aster, has been installed, and the ten-stamp mill and cyanide plant are being placed in shape for early work.

With the installation of the concentrator the owners expect to be able to handle ore to advantage that heretofore has caused annoyance.

The ore is of a rather refractory character, but by employing the new system of reduction an excellent recovery is anticipated. More men are being placed at work in the mine and all indications are favorable for an excellent year.

WILL NOT RENEW SUNSET LEASE.

UNION TO LET GO LOCATION OF FIRST WEST SIDE VENTURE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TAFT, Feb. 26. — The Union Oil Company's lease on lands of the Midway Oil Company in the Sunset field expires April 25 and it is not expected that it will be renewed. The land was taken over from Jewett & Blodget and was the beginning of the Union's venture in the West Side fields, but now constitutes but a small part of the company's holdings in that region. For two years or more practically nothing has been done in the way of development, the contract relieving the company of the obligation to drill new wells while the price of oil is so low.

The lease has not been a profitable one to the Union and was the occasion for the litigation now pending in which the company has sued William S. Tevis for $2,000,000 damages alleged failure to carry out an agreement to protect the company's interests.

GENERAL PETROLEUM.

The General Petroleum will start drilling on the next few days on its well No. 5, Buena Vista division, section 32, 31-24, near the flowing wells of the Boston Pacific and St. Helens Petroleum. The territory is deep, the oil strata lying 3600 to 4000 feet below the surface. The General Petroleum is abandoning section 11, 31-24, Elk Hills, and is dismantling the buildings and three old derricks.

The K. T. & O., the one concern that is rushing development to the limit without the slightest pretense of a slow-down because of over-production, is hauling material to commence work on its No. 8 on section 11, 32-24.

DUTCH CAPITAL MAY BEAR LOAD.

ORDER INTERFERES WITH SHELL'S USUAD SCHEME OF FINANCING.

That there may be a marked preponderance of Dutch capital in the Royal Dutch-Shell corporation enterprises in California, on account of a recent order of the British government restricting the new issue of shares in joint stock companies, is a theory advanced by the London correspondent of the National Petroleum News. He speaks of the danger of possible interference with the Royal Dutch-Shell scheme of financing its expansion in this State as follows:

"As is well known, the Royal Dutch-Shell groups are at present financing very large operations in California, which include a pipe line as well as storage and refining plant. The cost of these is expected to run into a few millions sterling, and when appealing for further capital this group usually allots its issues in the proportions of three-fifths to the Dutch and two-fifths to the British interests.

"The case appears to come absolutely under the treasury ban prohibiting issues of capital for use in foreign countries, and it would be hard if the British investor did not have the opportunity of participating in what will probably be a highly remunerative undertaking, especially as so much British capital is already sunk in the interests of this group.

"It is not known what course the Royal Dutch & Shell will adopt but it is quite clear that if no issue for the purpose is to be allowed in Great Britain the expenditure must be met by drawing on cash reserves or by getting foreign capital. That the Royal Dutch would have no difficulty in finding the money among their many powerful friends can be taken for granted, but if they adopted this course it would mean that the preponderance of Dutch interests in the group would be considerably increased over the British."

BELVEDERE HEIGHTS.

Mrs. Nellie Bush of New York City purchased during the week, through the bungalow department of the Janss Investment Company, a six-room bungalow on East Side boulevard in Belvedere Heights, paying a given consideration of $2750. Other sales in the same tract are reported as follows: To Mrs. Roy A. Griffith, Portland, Or., four-room bungalow on South Rowan street, $1500; to A. E. Hansone, bungalow, $1850, and to F. L. Wright, home, $1450.

Goldfield.

DEVELOPMENT UNRETARDED.

Thorough Exploration is Now in Progress.

Production of District is on the Increase.

Record of Happenings at Various Mines.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) Feb. 25.—At many points in the Goldfield district development work of comprehensive scope is making good progress and prospects for the opening of new producers are daily growing brighter. Deep shafts are being sunk and preparations are being made for thoroughly exploring the shale contact in a dozen or more places.

Local production has increased materially during the past few months and apparently is destined to continue its substantial growth with the further blocking out of ore bodies already exposed. So well founded does this promise of increased production appear that the Western Ore Purchasing Company, which handles most of the custom product from mining camps throughout the State, has lately remodeled and placed in commission its local sampler, installing new equipment and giving it a capacity of 250 tons daily.

The reopening of this plant for the sampling of ores from this and adjacent districts affords a market for the product of mining properties that would have difficulty in disposing of their ores at distant points.

Goldfield Consolidated.

The usual large production is being maintained by the properties of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, with the big mill treating upwards of 960 tons daily. The average grade of the product is better than for some time past. The Mohawk mine continues to supply the largest tonnage of the better grade of ore, while there is regular extraction of pay ore from the Clermont, Laguna, Combination and Grizzly Bear shafts. Some of the copper-bearing ore from the last-named is shipped to the smelters for treatment.

The big Lidgerwood cableway, by means of which the tailings from the great pond below the mill will be transported back to the mill for treatment, is nearly complete and will be capable of handling a large tonnage of this material. At the Aurora Consolidated property, which is controlled by the Goldfield Consolidated, new equipment is being installed in the settling plant and the mill is expected to resume at full capacity of 500 tons daily by April 1.

Atlanta Mines.

In the Atlanta property development continues with vigor on the 1750-foot level, where drifts, raises and cross-cuts are being driven to explore the ground at and near the latite-shale contact, as well as the great Grizzly Bear vein, which extends into this territory. The cross-cut from the point where the hanging wall of the vein was exposed has been driven into the vein for over seventy feet and the footwall has not yet been exposed. This cross-cut revealed many small seams of ore yielding good assays and Manager D'Arcy has lately started a drift to the south from the cross-cut within the vein and following seams of ore, in the hope that an ore body of commercial size will be found.

Jumbo Extension.

The cross-cut on the 1017-foot level, driven in the shale and below the contact and from which raises have been sent to the rich ore-shoot, is again being advanced in a southeasterly direction and the face is now over seventy feet beyond the 503-D raise. It is the plan of Engineer J. K. Turner to continue this cross-cut to a point 100 feet from the raise, unless it penetrates the quartz fissures, exposed to the west, before reaching the 100-foot point. Here another raise will be driven to reach the contact.

Goldfield Merger.

Development work in the northern part of the St. Ives claim of the Goldfield Merger Mines Company had reached an interesting point when it was interrupted by the appointment of a temporary receiver for the property. The raise from the 1265-foot level had reached the latite-shale contact and had passed through eight feet of mineralized quartz, yielding low assays, and was still in this character of quartz when work was discontinued.

Reorganized Booth.

Development continues on the 580 and 635-foot levels of the Booth property and on both levels the management has found grounds for encouragement. Seams of pay ore have been exposed in the drift on the 580 level, which has been following the main Booth vein to the south, while on the 635 level the work has exposed large masses of quartz of excellent appearance.

Florence Goldfield.

The annual meeting of stockholders of the Florence company will be held in Goldfield March 1, when it is expected that definite announcement will be made of the company's intention to sink its main shaft to the shale contact, an estimated depth of between 1750 and 1900 feet. Powerful equipment will be installed for this purpose and sinking will be expedited as much as possible.

Other Properties.

At a depth of 550 feet a cross-cut has been started from the winze that has been sunk below the east cross-cut on the 500-foot level of the Sandstorm-Kendall Consolidated. The vein appears to be flattening to some extent at this depth and the management decided to cross-cut to the hanging wall in order to explore that side of the vein, which is seventy feet in width.

A winze has been completed below the point where the shale contact was exposed in the Kewanas property, at a depth of 840 feet, and a large station and ore or waste pocket is being cut to provide ample space for the company's development work at this depth. Immediately above the shale the shaft exposed quartz four feet in thickness and yielding low assays in gold, indicating that some part of a vein has been penetrated here.

Conditions in the Goldfield Oro property continue promising, with seams of ore appearing in the workings on the 700 and 800-foot levels and a showing that affords much encouragement in the raise above the 800 level. The west cross-cut on the 700-foot level has entered a formation similar to that found in producing territory to the south.

Sinking is again in progress on the Silver Pick Consolidated, with the latite-shale contact as the objective point. The work is making rapid progress and the contact should be reached within the next sixty days, according to the management.

At two widely separated points on its large property the Lone Star Consolidated Company is developing with vigor. The No. 2 shaft, situated not far from the boundaries of the Mercer and Spearhead, is being sunk rapidly for the shale contact, in the expectation that it will reach this point at a depth of about 750 feet.

Diamondfield Black Butte is developing on the 300-foot level, which was lately unwatered. Manager Canavan believes that within a distance of not more than thirty-five feet he will penetrate the strong vein southwest of the shaft, in which seams of high-grade ore were found on the 100-foot level.

Diamondfield Daisy is being worked by lessees and ore of exceedingly high grade has lately been exposed in workings of the Justice Gold Mines Company, operating near the east end of the property and headed by C. W. Hays of Goldfield. At the west end lessees, who are also working part of the Great Bend property, have exposed some good ore, which they have treated in a small mill on the ground.

Spearhead is being developed by lessees, the Goldfield Shale Mining Company having taken a lease on the Spearhead claim. This company has installed powerful machinery and is sinking rapidly to the shale.

Blue Bull is exploring at a depth of 700 feet the large vein exposed on the 500 level, where seams of good ore were found.

Yellow Tiger has been delayed in starting up its new plant, but is now in shape for aggressive work, which will proceed on the 700-foot level. Assays taken in block form at one point on the 700-foot level lately gave an average of $53 across a width of thirty inches.

Great Bend will hold its deferred stockholders' meeting in the near future, when plans for the development of the property will be decided upon. The work, which will be upon a comprehensive scale, will be under the direction of J. K. Turner, who has been retained as consulting engineer by the company.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

You are politely requested to submit samples carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying stating what tests are desired. Make samples of small size. There is no necessity for big chunks. Correspondents offering matter for analyses with card, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on samples, will, hereafter, receive no attention whatever.

Zinc Trace.

SODAVILLE (Nev.) Feb. 3.—Q.: this mail I send to you, for classification, a sample of ore; does it carry any zinc? It looks like some of the zinc ore described by Strech, and resembles the ore from silver-lead mines east and west of this deposit in the same range of hills. I am always prospecting. A.

A.: Glad to hear from you. The sample was very carefully tested for zinc, with results on the negative order.

The rock is epidotic, and in part Garnetyte (Dana.)

Silver Present.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—Q.: Enclosed find sample of ore from Imperial county, California. What does it contain? Does it carry silver in commercial quantities? G.

A.: The sample carries titanium iron ore, iron oxides, lead, antimony, quartz, zinc and aluminum silicate.

For full results on silver kindly consult assayers.

Mica Schist.

RIVERSIDE, Feb. 4.—Q.: We enclose some soil from our chicken ranch. Will you please tell me what the yellow-colored material is, and oblige. S.

A.: The yellow-colored material is mica, and it is often confused with native gold.

Floatstone.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—Q.: Found in Cassia county, Idaho, by W. J. L. Vein twelve feet wide. Please determine what it is. Z.

A.: Floatstone is a variety of quartz of a porous or spongy nature. If sample of the substance is placed in water, it floats until the air in the cavities is displaced.

It is very much doubted that the sample is representative of the twelve-foot vein, but if it is, the silica is of value to smelters, etc.

Aluminum Silicate.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—Q.: I have large ledge of this rock on my ranch, located about twenty-three miles from Los Angeles. Is it of any value? What kind of rock is it? P.

A.: Offer samples to the clay-working industry.

Hornblendic.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—Q.: I hand you herewith three samples. No. 1 from Inyo county, California, near Independence. Nos. 2 and 3 from Southern Nevada, near Searchlight. What are they, especially the sooty-look stuff in No. 3? J.

A.: Glad to hear from you. No. 1 yellowish. The rock carries no vanadates; uranium absent. The rock is amygdaloidal, and "this hydrous or chloritic condition is due to alteration." The sample is of specimen interest only. No. 2 is hornblendic rock; iron and manganese present. No. 3, iron oxides, manganese present. The sooty-looking content is that of manganese dioxide mixed with bog-iron; copper absent.

Minium Traces.

CRESCENT (Nev.) Feb. 7.—Q.: Please analyze this mineral, and through the usual column, kindly let me know what it contains, and if of any value? S.

A.: Traces of red lead ore in the mass; hematite present with iron oxides, quartz, traces of lime, and zinc.

Dumortierite Present.

FALLON (Nev.) Feb. 7.—Q.: I am sending you a sample of rock by Wells Fargo Express of a strike I have made seventeen miles east of Fallon. The ledge is from forty to sixty feet in width between andesite walls; this sample was taken from a depth of about five feet. Kindly let me know what it contains? How many aluminum mines are there in the United States, and where are they located? K.

A.: One examining the sample (and we refer to the particular specimen) would be tempted to pronounce it either an ore of copper, one carrying bismuth, phosphates, nickel, uranium, or certain iron ore. All of the named substances are absent in the sample, however, excepting iron.

The specimen is partly Dumortierite (smalt-blue aluminum silicate,) lime present; spathic iron, quartz, feldspathic matter and chlorite.

The sample represents material of no commercial value.

To give the number of aluminum mines in the United States, or rather the names of the mines producing combinations of the element, is absolutely impossible owing to the great number of such producers.

The suggestion is politely offered that you consult "Mineral Resources of the United States."

Greenockite.

EAGLE PEAK, Feb. 7.—Q.: I am submitting to your mineralogical department a sample of ore that is taken from a mine near the California-Nevada line. The mine has lead carbonate, galena, and zinc ores. The sample comes from a pocket. You will notice that the sample is coated with yellow, and other coating of an orange color. I have had a report on this ore, in which it is stated that, "the sample is orpiment, arsenic sulphide." Now, if I understand arsenical ores, arsenical fumes are formed in connection with heat. I am in doubt about the sample; is it orpiment? T.

The mineral carries no arsenic, and the sample is chiefly cadmium sulphide. It is, "Hexagonal, hemimorphous; that is to say, with the opposite extremities of the crystal dissimilar."

The sample carries a few microscopical crystals of greenockite, and carries a high percentage of cadmium sulphide in microscopical reniform masses, with powdery honey, yellow, orange yellow, and orange brown colorations. Translucent, adamantine and resinous in luster; streak "between orange yellow and brick red. Strong double refraction; index of refraction 2.688." Hardness 3. Sp. weight 4.9.

The sample decrepitates when heated, and strongly so, at that. In the flame of the blowpipe it turns carmine red, and returns to its yellow colors on cooling. The mineral on charcoal; play upon with the flame decomposes, and a reddish-yellow ring of cadmium oxide is deposited around the assay. The mineral is soluble in concentrated hydrochloric acid, and violently evolves hydrogen sulphide without separation of sulphur present.

With the sample, and in portions thereof, cadmiferous blende, known as przibramite (of mineralogy) is present.

While it is true that much of the cadmium of commerce is obtained from furnace products, it is also true that the rare mineral greenockite is the "single known ore of cadmium."

Silica.

BEVERLY HILLS, Feb. 8.—Q.: I submit four samples for test, etc. W.

A.: No. 1 consists of a number of thumb specimens of impure quartz, and the impurities referred to are traces only of iron, copper, manganese, antimony and zinc. Chiefly as sulphide traces. No. 2 is quartz carrying very low percentages of pyrite and chalcopyrite. No. 3 is quarts, in part pegmatite (graphic granite,) with traces of iron, copper, and manganese. No. 4 is a greenish gray aluminum silicate.

Quartz and Nodules.

IMPERIAL, Feb. 8.—Q.: I am sending you two samples. I would like to know what is in them? No. 1 (sand) is filled with mineral; after using acid and fire a heavy, white mineral results. No. 2, black balls come in a white sandstone. These samples come from fifty miles north of Imperial. I sent you two samples about three weeks ago from the same locality, and I took No. 1 to be a salt of some kind, and the No. 2 looked like bauxite. C.

A.: Glad to hear from you. We have an indistinct remembrance in regard to the first lot of samples which you sent us some weeks ago, and you were duly replied to in this column. The salt was of but little commercial value, and the supposed bauxite, chiefly iron and silica.

No. 1 sample, as now before us, carries (more or less) lime, quartz, baryte, iron, mica, albite, trace of antimony, and microscopical pyrite; of doubtful commercial value. No. 2 are nodules carrying iron silicate, hematite, and magnetite. Such "black balls" have been picked up on the Navajo reservation in Arizona, by the writer some years ago.

An Assortment.

RIVERSIDE, Feb. 8.—Q.: Under separate cover I am sending you eight samples taken from an outcrop of quarts in Riverside county. Sample No. 1 seems to follow the quartz, and seems to be about as sample. Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 were found in a pocket of stone somewhat in appearance to sandstone, and clinging to a piece of quarts. No. 7 found about half a mile north of the other samples, and was on top of the ground, and I did not find any more of the same in what seems to be float from a point higher up. No. 8 seems to be a sandstone and containing a silver flake in same. Please state in your columns "In the Earth" what samples are, and oblige a constant reader of same. Thanking you for past favors. P.

A.: No. 1 is altered epidote, in part; lime, aluminum silicate, and trace of limonite. No. 2 is "iron froth," sienna present on one side. No. 3 iron oxides, aluminum silicate, and quartz. No. 4 altered epidote, in part, with hematite. No. 5 hematite, limonite; travertine traces. No. 6 impure hematite, with limonite, and aluminum silicate. No. 7 lime-soda, and aluminum silicate. No. 8 aluminum silicate; mica schist on one side.

Silicates.

KINGMAN (Ariz.) Feb. 8.—Q.: I am enclosing under separate cover a sample of ore from a very large vein. Would like to have it analyzed for potash and soda. We cannot see any difference in the samples we are sending, and the one that was sent to you by —— from Owens, Ariz. We have the vein in place for a distance of over 7000 feet, and it averages about 200 feet in width. It lays under a solid wall of volcanic glass, and underneath the vein it is a conglomerate. I am a subscriber and reader of The Times. Any information in regard to the commercial value of this ore would be greatly appreciated. N.

A.: We do not recall what samples you refer to as coming from Owens, Ariz., and it is not possible to give you commercial values in a vein (?) 200 feet in width from a few thumb specimens.

The locality, as by you described, looks good as a source of potash that is not amenable to profitable extraction of potash content. It is probable that the volcanic glass is potash-bearing, and in the conglomerate, it may be that, here and there, a thumb specimen of mineral is obtainable running high in potash values.

All of your samples were tested together, and the results are that from the specific samples potash is present (insoluble in water) to the percentage of 5.10. Soda sparingly present.

POTTER'S SHARE IN THE POTTAGE.

How He Fares in the Matter of Wages in America.

Report of an Investigation by U. S. Authorities.

His Pay Better than in Any Other Country.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. — Official census data of the United States, England, Germany and Austria give the number of males and females employed in the manufacture of earthenware and china, exclusive of those employed in the brick, tile and terra-cotta industries. The data for the United States and England also report the number of males and females under 16 years of age.

In American potteries 3.25 per cent. of all employees were under 16 years of age, 23.45 per cent. were under 21 years of age. Of all employees, 39.57 per cent. were males and 19.13 per cent. females. Of the females 1.33 per cent. were under 16 years of age and 3.72 per cent. under 21 years.

More than half (50.42 per cent.) of the pottery workers of Stoke-on-Trent are females. Of all employees, 11.16 per cent. were under 16 years of age, and of these 7.21 per cent. were females and 4.35 per cent. were males. 30.02 per cent. were under 20 years of age, 19.88 per cent. of these being females and 10.64 per cent. males. Females are strongly in the majority under 35 years of age, the percentage of all employees under 35 being 70.59.

In Germany the official census of 1907 reported that 65.63 per cent. of the pottery employees were males and 34.37 per cent. females. In Austria the industrial census of 1902, the latest available, reports that 59.25 per cent. of its pottery employees were males and 40.75 per cent. females. The figures for Germany and Austria in the following table are based on pay roll data from the potteries investigated, and differ from the foregoing census figures.

Percentage of males and females employed in potteries of the United States, England, Germany and Austria:

Country—	Males. Per cent.	Females. Per cent.
(a) United States	80.47	19.13
(b) England	49.58	50.43
(c) Germany:
Earthenware potteries	65.78	34.22
China potteries	45.76	54.24
(c) Austria	44.43	55.57

(a) Census of occupations, United States, 1910.
(b) Census of United Kingdom, 1911.
(c) Based on pay-roll data.

WAGES IN PRINCIPAL OCCUPATIONS.

The wages of skilled workmen in potteries are higher in the United States than in other countries, except those of kiln firemen, whose wages are about the same in the United States and England, according to a report made by a commission under an act of Congress approved August 23, 1912, and just made public by the United States Department of Commerce and Labor. Compared with England, the wages in the different trades in the United States ranged from 91.05 to 236.28 per cent. higher. The differences for some of the principal occupations in the four countries are given in Table 14.

Average rate of wages per hour in American earthenware establishments and percentage of difference between these rates and the rates paid in foreign establishments, by principal occupations:

OCCUPATIONS.	Average rate of wages per hour in American earthenware establishments.	Per cent. that wages per hour in American earthenware establishments are higher than in— English earthenware potteries.	German earthenware potteries.	German china potteries.	Austrian china potteries.

The occupations listed in the foregoing table are considered fully comparable. Table 362 shows the actual wages paid for each occupation in each country, while Table 363 gives a more detailed comparison than the above of the wages in different occupations.

Casting in the United States is done by men only; in England, Germany and Austria women and girls are also employed as casters. There were no female dippers in the earthenware potteries in the United States and England; female dippers are employed in the German and Austrian potteries, and their wages are much lower than those of male dippers. In the United States batters-out are young men who make the bat by hand. In other countries a machine is used that is attended by young boys and girls.

CLASSIFIED WAGES PER HOUR.

The percentage of all pottery workers, skilled and unskilled, in the potteries of the United States, England, Germany and Austria that received specified rates of wages per hour, ranging from under 5 cents to 60 cents and over per hour, is shown in Table 15. In the American earthenware potteries 10.56 per cent. and in the American vitreous china potteries 12.64 per cent. of all employees earned 60 cents and over per hour, and in the same potteries 29.17 per cent. and 31.14 per cent., respectively, earned 50 cents per hour, but less than 60 cents per hour. There were no employees in German and Austrian potteries and but less than one-half of 1 per cent. of those in the English potteries that earned the rates in the foregoing groups. Of all employees, 41.81 per cent. of those in American earthenware potteries, 37.8 per cent. of those in American vitreous potteries, 11.53 per cent. of those in English establishments, and 8.56 per cent. of those in German earthenware potteries earned 16 to 20 cents per hour and over but less than 30 cents.

The great mass of employees of foreign potteries are in the groups earning 5 and under 10 cents and under 5 cents per hour. In these two groups, 70.26 per cent. of all employees as represented by the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters has been followed since 1897. The system has resulted in increased wages and improved working conditions for the employees. That the system is not without its drawbacks is evidenced by the latest agreement into which the employers and employees entered, in which specific provision is made concerning violations of the working agreement by the employees, of which the manufacturers had frequently complained. No doubt the manufacturers have legitimate ground for criticism of the members of the brotherhood for failure to observe the rules and regulations that the union itself has adopted, and one of the chief difficulties encountered by the officials of the brotherhood is that involved in the settlement of disputes and strikes that are in violation of the agreement. Successful continuance of the collective bargaining system depends upon the faithful observance of the agreement by both parties concerned. There is needed, and undoubtedly there must come, a better, broader spirit of co-operation that will be concerned not only with wages and working conditions but also with the quality of workmanship and product, and the protection of the interests of both employer and employee. Equitable wages and satisfactory working conditions are desirable and necessary, but if the employees fail to go further, if they lack pride of workmanship, if they exhibit a spirit of indifference or of hostility toward the employers, if they countenance violations of agreements which they through their representatives have ratified, the collective-bargaining system must fail.

MISTAKES OF SOCIALISM.

[EDITORIAL.]

ACCORDING to the census report the value of all the goods manufactured in the United States during the year 1909 was $20,672,052,000. The cost of the materials from which they were manufactured was $12,141,291,000, and the cost of "miscellaneous expenses" was $1,945,676,000. The cost of labor and salaries was $4,365,613,000. The number of persons employed in making the goods was 7,405,513 and the average pay of the workers was $589.52 per annum.

If all the industries in America had been owned and successfully operated under social collectivism, the worker could have received but $299.71 more than he did, and when the Socialists say that under their system of collectivism the worker would receive $5000 or even $2500, they juggle with arithmetic and demonstrate that although "figures won't lie" liars will figure.

In order that each worker should make $2500, he would have to get his cotton for nothing, his wool for nothing, and his leather for nothing. He would require free fuel, free light, free rent and free transportation, and would be compelled to "take over," that is to steal, his machinery from the loathsome capitalists who own it, and he would keep it in repair by commandeering the services of machinery experts. No allowance could be made for bad debts, taxes, interest or the traveling expenses of solicitors. Willey, in his book, "The Laborer and the Capitalist," after a careful compilation of statistics, reaches the conclusion that capital actually receives not more than 6 per cent. net profits on its product. The American federationist points out that the census figures fall short of the actual cost of manufactures, as the original gross value upon which calculations are based is itself "arrived at by a constant duplication of value, owing to the fact that the finished products of one plant become the material of some other factory, in which they are changed into some higher form and again included in the value of products."

"How many times," says Meader in his book on "The Pay Envelope," "is the value of the same piece of leather computed from the time it becomes a hide until it is turned out, a finished product, from the shoe factory? Yet every time the value of this material is included in the value of products it gives the manufacturer credit for a sum of money that never reached him."

If every one of the 7,405,513 workers in the industrial plants were to get the $5000 per annum which socialism promises him the wages would amount to $37,027,505,000, about twice as much as the "gross value" of all manufactured products in the country and allowing nothing for material. In order to give 7,405,513 workers in the industrial plants the compensation that socialism promises them the remaining 93,000,000 people in the United States would have to pay more than nine times as much for their clothes, and shoes, and hats and tools.

Under socialism, says Meador, there would have to be 30,000,000 people to be provided for. That would mean a pay roll of $150,000,000,000. The total product at present is less than $21,000,000,000 worth of goods. The consumable wealth produced in the United States is estimated by the Socialist organ Appeal to Reason to be $30,000,000,000 and yet it demands a pay roll five times greater than the total product.

Another fool promise of socialism is that in the co-operative commonwealth men will be required to work only half as long as now. The man who works eight hours a day now will then work only four hours and will receive nine times as much pay for four hours' work as he now receives for eight hours. Socialism promises that he will turn out five times as great a product while working just half as many hours.

Socialism adds to the list of its absurdities that with wages multiplied nine times and a work day cut in half and the cost of production correspondingly increased the cost of living will be decreased and Socialists will be able to purchase everything they want at materially lower prices than are charged for commodities today.

Socialism is the Arabian Dervish, who, with a pot of the ointment of delusion in his hand, greases the eyes of his followers and says: "Look at yonder rainbow! There is a pot of gold at the foot of it. Divide your present earnings between Gompers, and McCarthy, and Debs, and Darrow, and Harriman, and give a few pennies to Joe Scott, and then find the foot of the rainbow and dig, damn you, dig."

PREMIUM FOR SLOW WORK.

Proposition of Engineers and Firemen for Time and a Half Pay for All Overtime Work.

That the granting of time and one-half for overtime demanded by engineers and firemen on western railways would place a premium upon tardy operation of trains and result in serious interference with discipline was stated at Chicago before the Federal Board of Arbitration by A. W. Trenholm, general manager of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha and chairman of the Conference Committee of Managers representing the western railways. Time and one-half is one of the sixteen demands of the men, which the railways estimate would cost them yearly about $41,000,000.

"The allowance of time and one-half for overtime is open to so many serious objections," said Mr. Trenholm, "that we do not feel it should be seriously considered. It would not reduce overtime, but, on the contrary, would be an incentive to increase it.

"The movement of trains is dependent largely upon the prompt carrying out of orders and the desire of the men under present conditions to get over the road and receive their compensation on the speed basis. This would be destroyed and the incentive would be, if the train were near the average of ten miles per hour, for the crew to take little interest in making meeting points, feeling that if they run into overtime they would be receiving 50 per cent. greater compensation.

"There are many ways in practical operation of trains where delays can be accomplished and we are very solicitous that no rule be granted that offers a premium for delays to the business of the railroads. I do not mean to criticise the men and I know there are none on my road who would do this, but the incentive is there. Today it is to the interest of the company and the men alike to get over the road as promptly as possible and it would produce neither good nor harmonious working were higher pay set for slow than for fast operation.

"Conditions in railway service are entirely different from those in other industries. To adjust to a basis of hours would necessitate readjusting of terminals and would change present conditions and practices.

"Train schedules are set by local conditions which the roads may not vary to avoid overtime. Chicago, for instance, must have a very extensive suburban service. Around other cities of size you have a similar condition requiring the movement of people inward in the morning and outward in the afternoon. Branch service must be regulated to meet through trains. All passenger schedules are so interwoven that to change one may disturb all.

"The skill of the gentlemen who prepared these demands," said Mr. Trenholm, earlier, "is entitled to a good deal of credit, in capitalizing every possible thing, almost, that could be conceived to produce a wage-earning set of rules.

"It is the first time in the history of railroading that any such arbitrary, unreasonable set of rules has ever been submitted to any railroad. There is no reason in the world for splitting up a road trip from the time the engine leaves the roundhouse till it reaches the other end of its run, except the one the men set up, namely, the creation of additional compensation and getting away from giving the railroad a reasonable day's service."

EXPLOITS IN EFFICIENCY.

WOULD ABOLISH SYSTEM IN ALL FEDERAL PLANTS.

American Federation of Labor has Constantly Fought the Efficiency System in Government Plants Which Enables Employees to Increase Their Earnings.

[Washington Correspondence of the Boston Transcript:] In striking from the army appropriation bill the rider of Representative Deitrick of Massachusetts, intended to abolish the use of the Taylor efficiency system in all government plants, the Senate Committee on Military Affairs has not necessarily removed this issue from the legislative field. The provision may be voted in by the Senate, and if not it will become a subject of conference; therefore, until the bill has come from the Conference Committee it will be impossible to feel certain that the American Federation of Labor has not won the campaign it has been making for a long time to eliminate scientific management from the arsenals and navy yards. The Deitrick rider is as follows:

Provided, that no part of the appropriations made in this bill shall be available for the salary or pay of any officer, manager, superintendent, foreman or other person having charge of the work of any employee of the United States government while making, or causing to be made, with a stop watch or other time-measuring device, a time study of any job of any such employee between the starting and completion thereof or of the movements of any such employee while engaged upon such work; nor shall any part of the appropriations made in this bill be available to pay any premium or bonus or cash reward to any employee in addition to his regular wages, except for suggestions resulting in improvements or economy in the operation of any government plant; and no claim for services performed by any person while violating this proviso shall be allowed.

CROZIER'S BLUNT COMMENTS.

In his report for 1914, Gen. Crozier, chief of ordnance, stated expressly that "as a result of this extensive investigation the committee did not find, and did not say that it found, anything to the disadvantage of the employees in practice anywhere in the ordnance department." Commenting upon the testimony taken by the Committee on Labor, Gen. Crozier says that the committee has not visited any of the arsenals and that "certain statements made in the report are so erroneous that they seem only to be accounted for by the difficulty of appreciating verbal testimony without an acquaintance of actual conditions." As an example of the inaccuracy of the report, the statement is made that the system "really operates to reduce the workman's wages, not to increase them." Of this assertion and of hundreds of other figures of like purport in the report, Gen. Crozier diplomatically says that they are "utterly impossible of comprehension."

Various complaints have been made to the War Department by so-called committees of employees at both the Frankford and Watertown arsenals to Gen. Crozier. The petitions were sent to the Watertown arsenal and employees there were examined individually as to their views. It was found that some of the signers repudiated the facts alleged in the petitions; but as soon as it became known throughout the establishment that questions were being asked by authority, a telegram charging intimidation was sent to the local member of Congress and at the same time, Gen. Crozier states, the answers began to take on a character of uniform opposition to the system. Some of the workmen, however, including men who were earning good premium, voluntarily opposed the system.

COERCED BY THE UNIONS.

Gen. Crozier summarized the situation in these terms:

"I think the petitions are due both to the coercion and the teachings of labor organizations. The coercion comes from the opposition which organized labor has always shown to the increase of the productivity of the individual, which it has fought in all the forms in which it has made its appearance, from the time of the introduction of the power loom. The fact that increased individual production redounds ultimately to the advantage of the working classes, as well as to that of everybody else, has been powerless to produce a change of attitude in this respect. In the ordinary case this is perhaps explicable by the fact that, while the ultimate advantage is demonstrated, the immediate effect is disastrous to some of the individuals involved, while an immediate remedy for the disaster has not been provided. In the instance of increased productivity at the Watertown arsenal, however, there has been no immediate disadvantage to any class, since the substantial increase in the wages paid out has not been accompanied by any diminution of the working force.

From interviews with the employees I am of the opinion that the teaching of the unions at the Watertown arsenal is that, if the men will join in the expulsion of the premium system, the political power of the unions will be sufficient and will be used to secure the same increase of pay as it had under the premium system, without the necessity of working for it. This, of course, could not be accomplished without the abandonment of the rule of the department that the wages paid at the arsenal shall be the same as those of the vicinity for work of like character. Careful examination upon this point is periodically made, and it is a fact that at the present time the wages at the Watertown Arsenal are slightly above those paid in the vicinity. Evidence as to the effect of the comparison is always welcome from the representatives of the workmen and readjustment is willingly made when occasion for it is shown.

It should be explained that the efficiency system permits employees to make more than the average wage each day, and while the output is increased the wages of a very large number of the men and women in the arsenals are increased. However, in view of the orders issued by the War Department that strictest economy should prevail in all branches of work, and in view of the opposition to the system which is manifested by labor leaders in Congress, and in the report of the Labor Committee, Gen. Crozier had ordered the abandonment of the premium system in the Frankford and Watertown arsenals. Commenting again, Gen. Crozier said in his report of 1913 that he had no doubt that if permitted to handle the system at the arsenals without legislative directions, he could continue its operation satisfactorily, as the leaders of the disturbance could not hold the men in opposition to its manifest advantages.

MEN IN THE ARSENALS PROTEST.

Now a new turn has been given to this rather serious issue raised by the American Federation of Labor by the action of the employees of the Frankford and Watertown arsenals in making a vigorous protest to government officials and to Congressmen against the abolition of the system, and it has even been suggested that a strike might follow if the premium system, which is a feature of the Taylor efficiency system, is eliminated. J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania told the House recently that "300 employees of the Frankford Arsenal have protested against the abolition of this system on the ground that it has worked a practical reduction in their wages." Representative Donohoe of the same State received a delegation of employees of the Frankford Arsenal who asked that the system be reinstated. They said that the high-priced man did not object much to the discontinuance of the system but that the man making an average wage but not representing the highest type of skill was very much worried over the situation because of the substantial decrease of his income through the abandonment of the system.

FEDERATION INCONSISTENT.

This past point demonstrates the strange inconsistency of the American Federation of Labor in opposing the system. Apparently its practices do not square with its professions, for the federation always has declared that the unions are a great protection to the average worker and to the man of limited capacity and not only safeguarded his pay but increased it wherever possible. In this case the action of the federation in promoting a measure abolishing the premium system in the arsenals is a blow against a large percentage of workers who are not of the highest type. The contention of the Federation of Labor that without an efficiency system employers might be forced to take on more men and thus increase the chances of union men getting employment does not appeal to government officials who have been charged with the responsibility of spending their appropriations economically. If the protests of the Frankford and Watertown men will lead to an investigation whose fairness and accuracy will command general confidence, perhaps the discontinuance of the premium system will have brought about satisfactory results after all. UNIONISM RUINS INDUSTRY.

The Closed Shop Has Been Driving Shoe Manufactories from Lynn, Mass., at a Rapid Pace.

[American Industries:] Closed-shop unionism has done its work well in Lynn, Mass. Shoe manufacturers in that city are beginning to wake up to what the closed-shop eventualities are. The Chamber of Commerce has discovered that the closed shop in Lynn means fewer manufacturing plants in that city. The unions are found to be driving manufacturers from that center with alarming rapidity, and bid fair to do to the shoe industry there what the glass blowers in England did to that industry. The shoe industry is being killed in that city by the unions exactly as the glass industry was driven into Belgium from England.

Consider the similarity, as shown in the recent report of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce and a statement by Charles W. Eliot, concerning the "Injurious Policies of Labor Unions." During the ten-year period following 1897 the city of Lynn showed an enormous growth in buildings and population.

A great many large shoe factories were built, greatly increasing shoe manufacturing floor space. The building trade was at its height all over the city, stores were prosperous, all labor well employed and the general business of Lynn was the best in its history. During this period there were some few labor organizations, but their operations were under a more conservative plan than now, and unreasonable demands were few, and did not materially interfere with the general operating of the shoe manufacturing establishments.

Since the period referred to, under the form and management of present labor organizations, the shoe manufacturing business of Lynn has been on a decline at a rapid pace. A great many manufacturers have left Lynn, several have gone out of business, and a very few, remaining, have increased their volume, and at the present time there is more vacant floor space for shoe manufacturing purposes than ever before, and of late years there have been practically no new shoe factory buildings erected.

Note the similarity of conditions in the Massachusetts city to those in England before the labor unions throttled the glass industry. Charles W. Eliot said in a recent issue of the world's Work concerning limitation of output: "A glass blower may blow so many bottles, vials or retorts for a day's work; when he has blown that number he must quit, although he has not worked more than four or five hours. The limitation of output in the glass blowers' trade in England was made so extreme that the entire business went over to Belgium, where there was no such limitation. There are numerable examples in our country of this sort of limitation in trades controlled by unions."

Lynn is a case in point. Business in that city is being ruined by unjust union regulations, and employers in other localities may well remember the experience of this Massachusetts city.

What Does a Man Produce?

[Philadelphia Record:] Among the banners of the unemployed in New York when they came in collision with the police was one reading: "We Want All We Produce."

There is a common impression among socialistic workmen, encouraged by some of the new fangled college professors, that the weaver produces all the cloth that comes off the loom he tends, and he is robbed if his wages are only a part of the value of the cloth. But he is only one of a long line of producers, each of whom has to get some of the money for which that cloth is sold.

What does a man produce? Well, put a man with only his bare hands upon a spot of earth, or in a mine hole, or by the side of a stream, and how much will he produce? What are the chances that he will not starve to death before he can produce anything? Give him tools, and "grub stake" him, in mining lingo, or support him until he has produced something, and it has been marketed, and the produce of other men has been given him and they have got to be paid for their produce in some way. The man in question can't have all he produces without defrauding the men who produced the tools and food which he used during the time he was getting his product made, or extracted.

Sensible Workers.

More than 2000 workmen employed by the Reading Iron Company have accepted, without protest, a 10 per cent. reduction of wages. The puddlers will receive $4.50 a ton instead of $5, and the wages of other workers will be reduced in proportion.

At the same time, more employees will be put on and full working time will be restored, so that the net result will be larger earnings for a greater number.

It is to be expected that when conditions right themselves, the former wage scale will be restored. In the meantime, the workers are to be commended for their good sense, which they show in giving due consideration to abnormal conditions and accepting temporary adjustment to them, instead of going on a strike which would be bad for themselves and their employers.

Full Time for Nine Thousand.

The assembly department, one of the largest at the Singer sewing machine works, has announced a return of all men on a full time schedule. At the office of the management it was said that the entire plant will be back on the old schedule within another month.

Early last fall about 50 per cent. of the 9000 employed there were laid off indefinitely, but since the first of the year more than 2000 of these employees have been returned to their former positions.

ABANDONED BY FEDERATION.

Members of the Hatters' Union Get no Aid from Gompers's Crowd and Must Lose Their Homes.

[Philadelphia Press:] A condition in which labor men see grave danger of the engendering of bitter animosities in the ranks of trades unionism has been brought about by the refusal of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to assess the members of the federation to raise the money to pay the fine of $232,000 to which the Hatters' Union was made liable by the United States Supreme Court's recent decision in the suit brought by D. E. Lowe Company of Danbury, Ct., under the Sherman anti-trust law. The fine is payable to the company as triple damages for injury to their business as a result of methods employed by members of the union in a protest against factory conditions.

The property and savings in Connecticut of 250 members of the union are tied up by attachments and are held as security for the payment of the fine. The property is subject to sale and the savings to seizure for this purpose.

The hatters assert that an assessment of only 15 cents per member by the American Federation of Labor will pay the fine and save the property of the hatters. The federation has decided that it has done enough by carrying the case through the Supreme Court and by obtaining the passage of amendments to the Clayton anti-trust bill, which "precludes the possibility of any similar suit being brought in a Federal court."

As the hatters conducted the strike under the rules and countenance of the Federation of Labor, it seems only reasonable that the federation should not leave them to bear alone the heavy consequences of its failure. The judgment is certainly too heavy for these working men to meet unassisted. This consideration has impelled the Connecticut delegation in Congress to ask for an appropriation to pay from the National Treasury the fines and costs which the Supreme Court imposed on the Danbury hatters.

There are manifest reasons why the Connecticut Congressmen should be willing to support that proposition, but why the forty-seven other States which had nothing to do with this local difficulty in Connecticut should be asked to help pay the fine imposed is not apparent.

Master Plumbers' Stern Oath.

[Chicago Tribune:] An oath of allegiance to the National Association of Master Plumbers of America containing the sentence, "May all the horrors of the damned be my portion when I retire at night," was declared by Joseph Hagen of Sioux City to have once received his signature in his testimony at the trial of the thirty-six master plumbers charged with violation of the Sherman law in the United States District Court at Des Moines, last week.

He was to suffer the "horrors of the damned" in case he violated the rules of the organization, the witness said. Each member, he testified, was sworn to the utmost secrecy.

RANCH OPENING.

Charles O. Middleton and John A. Vaughan yesterday conducted a large excursion party to the Jurupa ranch in the Glen Avon Valley, where 1000 acres of this old rancho were placed on sale in parcels ranging from five to 160 acres. The property which is being sold includes citrus, deciduous and alfalfa land, and is eight miles west of Riverside. It is crossed by the Salt Lake tracks. The railroad station of Pedley is located on the ranch.

UNITED STATES NEEDS SUBSIDY FOR SHIPS.

Now Pays Two Hundred Million Dollars Annually to Foreign Vessels — Senator Perkins Calls Attention to Our Unrivaled Coast Fleet and Shows There is no Reason Why We Should not Have Ocean-going Fleet.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—All the world is talking of ships. Note the words of a wealthy and an uncommonly able man, intellectually, who has known the sea ever since he was 12 years old.

The Golden Eagle, a Kennebunkport freighter, arrived at Havre, on the coast of France, in the summer of 1853, with a cargo of cotton from New Orleans. A sailor boy, wages $7 a month, was a member of the crew.

"Twelve full-rigged ships, flying the Stars and Stripes, were tied to the docks at the time," George Clement Perkins, the former sailor boy, said. He quit the deep long ago, however, and is now, after having been the Governor of his State, a Senator in Congress from California, on whose shores he landed at the age of 17—an able seaman before the mast—carrying all his property in a kit on his back.

"The ships," he went on to relate, "were loaded with the products of this country and goods from other corners of the earth. Only two British vessels were there. Every evening the military bands on the men-of-war at anchor played the 'Star-Spangled Banner.'

"That was the golden age of the American merchant marine. Steamers of the Collins line, outsailing the British Cunarders across the Atlantic, were freighted with the most valuable merchandise and carried the best-paying passengers.

"British naval officers actually came to this country to learn why American ships surpassed their own in speed, power and efficiency. Young men were proud to be sailors in those days. Fortunes were made by shipbuilders and ship-owners along our Northeastern Atlantic Coast.

"I followed the sea, first as a cabin boy and then as a man before the mast, going on voyages out of New Orleans and Mobile to Great Britain, Norway, Sweden and France. Two of the ships in which I served brought cargoes of iron rails to the United States. One cargo was loaded in Sweden and the other in Wales.

AMERICA RULED THE SEAS.

"We brought salt from Liverpool to New Orleans and carried lumber from New Brunswick to Ireland. American vessels transported three-fourths of the overseas commerce of this country and did a large business with foreign nations, besides.

"In 1852—I was a cabin boy then—255 sailing ships and barks, intended for the foreign trade, were built in the United States. Three hundred and eighty-one were built in 1855. Steam lines afterward ran to the West Indies and northward in the Pacific from the Isthmus of Panama.

"There was a day when merchantmen from Boston and other New England ports took American merchandise to China and returned with tea and silk. Men grew rich in that very profitable business. The Sovereign of the Seas, an American vessel, made the voyage, under sail, from Honolulu to New York, 14,970 miles, in eighty-two days.

"I have lived in the time when the United States and Great Britain were side by side in the race for the mastery of the seas. Also I have watched the American flag gradually disappear from all the ports of the world. Today our flag is rarely seen abroad and American ships for years have been engaged almost entirely in the coasting trade—that is, in trade between American ports.

"Our own vessels, in 1856, the year I left the sea, carried 75 per cent. of the products and merchandise we sold to and bought from other countries. The transportation of our foreign commerce then was in our own hands. Thirty years later, in 1886, we carried but 15 per cent. of our exports and imports. Putting the figures in another way, American vessels transported less than $200,000,000 worth of the things we bought and sold, while foreign ships, mostly British, transported freight, originating in and coming to this country, valued at more than $1,000,000,000!

OWNED SHIPS AND WHALERS.

"While our deep-sea vessels have all but vanished, our coastwise vessels have greatly increased in number, value and efficiency, and all the while they have had to compete for business with the greatest and the best railroad system in existence. Land freights go straight across the continent from Boston and New York to San Francisco. Water freights, until the opening of the Panama Canal, had to be carried around the lower end of South America. Nevertheless, our coastwise fleet is one of the finest in the world."

Although he said nothing about it himself, Senator Perkins helped to create the coastwise fleet. The company in which he was once the principal owner and officer operated twenty-seven steamers in the Pacific and carried on a regular trade from Mexico to Alaska, touching at ports in California, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia. He sent the first steam whalers to the Arctic Ocean. Whalebone then was $5 a pound and whale oil was very valuable. Substitutes for bone and oil have since made whaling unprofitable.

Young George Perkins arrived at San Francisco in the clipper ship Galatea, built at Chelsea, in Massachusetts. He sailed from New York in May, 1855, a boy of 16, but man enough to take his turn at the wheel and go aloft during the fiercest storm. It was October when he went ashore with his kit across his shoulder.

Buying a shotgun, a pepper-box revolver and a roll of blankets, he worked his way up the Sacramento River on a boat and, reaching the end of his water journey, walked 150 miles over the mountains into Butte county. He meant to dig gold until he had money enough to buy a schooner and go trading on his own account among the islands of the lower Pacific.

"I operated a wheelbarrow for a time," he told me, "and then got a place in a store. By the hardest kind of drudgery and the closest kind of economy I gathered up $800."

STOOD ON HIS OWN DECK.

Woodbury Smith of South Berwick, Me., writing to me about Senator Perkins, says: "His father was a bright and witty man, a small farmer at the edge of Kennebunkport, and his mother was a remarkably sensible, clear-headed woman. George inherited the strong points of both parents."

One day, soon after Senator Perkins had increased his savings to $800, the owner of a little river steamboat came into the store complaining that a new sand bar in the channel had made navigation so difficult that he was ready to quit the business and leave that part of the country. He would sell his boat for $3000.

"Within a week," Senator Perkins told me, with a proud smile at the memory, "I stood on the deck of my own vessel. The man promised to wait for part of his money. An acquaintance loaned me enough to meet the down payment. I began freighting up and down the river. The sand bar caused me very little bother."

Twenty-one years ago, on entering Congress, Senator Perkins, quoting his own language, separated himself "from all business interests which could in any way be affected by Congressional legislation, excepting that general legislation which relates to the whole country." So, taking into account his personal experiences as a sailor, a ship-owner and a business man, he is well qualified to talk about the merchant marine, the causes of its decline and the measures necessary for its restoration. It should be stated, however, that he is a Republican and holds tenaciously to the protective doctrine.

"Why," he asked, "has the coastwise shipping of the country grown and prospered?"

"Because that particular branch of the marine industry has been reserved for American vessels," Senator Perkins replied. "The coasting trade of the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific and along both coasts can be conducted only in American vessels. A German ship cannot carry freight from New York to New Orleans. A British ship would not be permitted to load a cargo at Chicago destined for Milwaukee, Detroit, Cleveland or Buffalo.

WHY THE FLEET PROSPERED.

"The principle of reserving the coastwise trade for our own vessels was established by the fathers of the republic, by Jefferson and Madison and by Franklin and Hamilton. No Congress has denied the wisdom of that policy. And as a result of the policy some of our coastwise shipping companies rank among the largest, strongest and most ably-administered steamship organizations in the world.

"Our coasting fleet today has a tonnage of nearly 7,000,000 and, next to that of Great Britain, is the largest mercantile fleet on the globe, surpassing, as it does, the entire mercantile fleet of Germany, and being three times greater than the tonnage of Norway, France or Japan. These facts, I suppose, will be surprising to many persons.

"Though we have almost lost our ocean fleet, we have kept and expanded our coast fleet, and hundreds of men in New England, especially in Massachusetts, have found steady employment at good wages building vessels for our domestic commerce. American ship mechanics continue to be the most skilled in the world, and American seamen are as brave and competent as those of any other country. We will need these men, I may observe, if we go to war with a foreign nation.

"Still there are many abandoned ship yards along the New England coast and ports that were once active are now idle and empty. Deep-sea shipping, a noble and profitable industry, has dwindled almost to nothing. In my youth shipwrights and sailors, proud of their occupations, had their sons apprenticed in yards or sent to sea in the hope that some day they would become mates or masters.

"Many of the young seafaring men of Maine and other Northern Atlantic States emigrated to the Pacific Coast and engaged in their loved and honored pursuit and as a result California is only second to New York in the ownership of ocean vessels. American ships aggregating more than a million tons are engaged in foreign commerce on the Pacific Ocean. Competition with foreign vessels on that side of the United States, you should understand, is not so active as it is in the large ports of the East.

THE WORK OF PRIVATEERS.

"During the Civil War, as most persons know, the Atlantic swarmed with Confederate privateers, some of which were fitted out at British ports and carried English crews. Our merchant vessels on being captured were either burned or sunk. Ship owners in many instances hauled down the flag of this country and ran up the red ensign of Great Britain and thereafter kept their property under the protection of that nation. The twenty-five most active privateers of the Confederate government were those which brought about the destruction of the merchant marine of the United States.

"Such ships as the Alabama, Florida, Shenandoah, Georgia, Lapwing, Tuscaloosa, Nashville, St. Nicholas and Chickamauga burned or sunk the best and swiftest of our clippers and steam freighters on the Atlantic. The Alabama, having been built and armed in England, the North in retaliation sent out the Wampanoag and several sister vessels to war upon British shipping.

"These ships could average seventeen knots an hour on long cruises and outclassed any vessel under the English flag in speed and endurance. They exercised no little influence, by the way, in inducing the British government to submit the Alabama case to arbitration and the final payment of about $20,000,000, including interest, to American claimants.

"But skilled as we were in shipbuilding, our merchantmen had disappeared. The loss, however, need not have been irretrievable. Other northern industries suffered, but when the Civil War was over were quickly restored. They were rehabilitated because they were protected by the laws of Congress. Our manufacturers were permitted to occupy the home market. Our farmers were safeguarded against the competition of Europe.

"The over-sea commerce originating in and coming to this country, on the other hand, was transported by the ships, no matter where owned, whose carrying rates were the lowest. So our capitalists built railroads and factories, our ship yards went to ruin and our sailors, the finest on earth, sought other occupations. The merchant marine was not rebuilt and now practically all that we sell to Europe and all that we buy in Europe crosses the Atlantic in foreign bottoms. It is said we annually have paid $200,000,000 in freights to the owners of such vessels.

"A liner that costs $1,500,000 in Great Britain cannot be duplicated in this country short of $2,000,000. The difference in cost is caused by the difference in wages paid mechanics and laboring men. The ship that is built in England, therefore, can enter the carrying trade between this country and Europe on an investment of $500,000 less than could its American competitor, if it had such a competitor. In interest alone its advantage would amount to $25,000 a year. Furthermore, the wages paid to officers and sailors on American ships are nearly double the wages paid on foreign ships.

"Nor have I spoken of the subventions given by all the great nations of Europe to the men who are engaged in the shipping business. I am not arguing in this instance that subsidies should be voted to American vessels engaged in foreign commerce, instead, I am trying to show why such vessels cannot compete with foreign vessels in our over-sea traffic.

"Germany has been giving $1,750,000 yearly in subventions to two of its steamer lines alone. Austria, Italy and Russia have each paid its shipowners $4,000,000 a year. The subsidies of Japan aggregate $7,000,000; of Great Britain, $9,700,000, and of France, $12,500,000. We pay our trans-Atlantic steamers $930,000 for carrying the mails.

"Foreign ships receiving subventions are at the call of the governments in the event of war. They are constructed so that they can easily be converted into cruisers and commerce destroyers. We need such vessels as auxiliaries to our navy. Until the European war, we argued that civilization had progressed so far that differences between nations would have to be settled hereafter by peaceful negotiations. That vain idea, I imagine, has gone out of the heads of all sensible men. The world will fight—a large part of the world is now fighting—and we have no warrant for saying that the United States will forever be at peace.

"I am not disposed dogmatically to urge any particular method by which to restore our oversea marine. We once argued that we should not be a great independent and self-respecting nation until we could produce all the things we consumed. The United States, we said, was not simply a huge farm on which to grow and raise food for the rest of the world.

"We started making our own iron and steel, having coal, ore and limestone in the ground. We began building machinery. We have done everything we should have done except in one particular, and, as a result, we find ourselves today in the humiliating position of not having the means of delivering our own goods to our own customers.

"I would like to see the $200,000,000 which we pay in freights for transporting the goods and products we buy and sell given to our own people. I would like to see new shipyards along the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts and our own mechanics employed in building vessels for our own trade. I would like to see the ore, dug from our own hills and made into pig-iron at our own furnaces and turned into steel at our own mills, go into the construction of ships on our own shores.

"And then I would like to see the ships, with the Stars and Stripes flying from the masts and with American sailors on the decks, carrying our wheat, cotton, corn, machinery and merchandise to the foreign markets where all these things have found a sale.

"While I would like a fair and honest trial made of the policy of granting mail subsidies to regular lines of steamships or to steamships which have been approved by the navy as being fit for auxiliary service in time of war, I am willing to accept any proposal that gives promise of rehabilitating our merchant marine.

"The paying of mail subsidies is the policy of all other governments. In a small way, under the ocean mail law of 1891, it has been the policy of the United States. It has succeeded wherever it has been tried.

"Building up our oversea shipping is not a political question. All parties should unite on the common ground of patriotism, which means the country's dignity, honor and welfare."

CONTRACT AWARDED.

William S. Freeman of Santa Monica has the contract for the construction of a two-story brick and frame residence to be built in Brentwood Park by George Gray Anderson. Mr. Freeman also designed the structure. The cost of the house is estimated at $12,000. The dwelling will contain twelve rooms and will occupy a site on Canyon drive, near the corner of Twenty-sixth street, in the Seaward subdivision. Anderson is an engineer and formerly resided in Denver.

WORKINGS OF TORRENS LAW.

Local Attorney Explains New State Land Act.

How to Register Real Estate Under System.

Plan of Transfer and Other Details Clarified.

BY JOHN N. MTCALF.

The purpose of the Torrens Land System, as incorporated in the recently amended California statutes, is twofold, viz.: Certification of land titles and the simplification of transfers of real estate. Any estate or interest in lands (except an undivided interest or an easement) may be brought under the operation of the act and registered. Consequently its operations have a direct bearing upon real estate matters generally, and it is important that all who own or expect to own property should know something of the system.

Under the Torrens system, in probate proceedings, the lands of estates (within the State) being probated may be brought under the operation of the act by virtue of the decree in probate, registered. This is also true in an action to quiet or establish title.

It is also permissable for several persons to join in a single application to have the lands of all of them registered; and by virtue of the decree made therein, the holdings of the applicants may be brought under the operation of the act.

To protect against fraud of every kind and character, the applicant must furnish the court a definite description of himself and the character (legal status) in which he makes the application; a definite description of the land and its character, and must state the names and give the addresses of all persons having or claiming to have an interest in the land sought to be registered.

All persons having or claiming to have any interest in the estate or land or lands sought to be registered must be notified of the fact that application for registration of the land has been made before proceedings upon the application for registration can be had. The rights of all persons having or claiming to have any interest or estate in lands are protected against fraudulent registration, fraud in such proceedings being punishable by fine not to exceed $5000, or by imprisonment not to exceed five years, or by both fine and imprisonment.

Registration of the title to the lands, pursuant to the decree of the court, as provided for by the act, after one year from the date of registration, gives to the holder of the certificate of title a title good against the world.

AFTER REGISTRATION.

Under the Torrens system, the transfer of real estate is simplified. After the initial registration, abstracts of title are discarded and certificates of titles companies made unnecessary. From that time on the State itself affects the transfer of the title whenever it changes hands.

The discarding of abstracts after the initial registration of the land under the Torrens system is held by the friends of the new plan to be one of its chief advantages. Every time real estate is transferred or subjected to mortgage or loan, the certificate of title issued by a title insurance company must be brought down to date at the expense of the land owner. Under the Torrens system, certificate of title is always down to date.

Under the Torrens system the transfer of registered lands is effected by presenting to the registrar the deed of conveyance or other instrument from the registered owner and surrendering the owner's duplicate certificate of title. The transfer is made on the record and the title so transferred vests in the transferee to whom the new duplicate of title is issued. The old one is cancelled.

The registered title under the Torrens system is guaranteed for all time. There is back of it the decree of a competent court of the State.

Under the Torrens system there is provided an insurance fund for the reimbursement of any person injured through the registration of any land or title under the act. This reimbursement is to be equal to the market value of the land as registered and through the registration of which the party has been injured. The one injured has four years within which to bring his action for reimbursement.

Under the Torrens system, by inspection of the certificate of title, the exact status of the holder's title can be ascertained at any moment. The certificate must show who the true owner is and all charges against the land so registered.

Under the Torrens system, when land has once been registered, thereafter title by adverse possession cannot be acquired, no matter what the length of the possession may be. Community property registered under the Torrens system as such cannot be transferred, mortgaged or encumbered or otherwise disposed of by the registered owner thereof without the written consent of both spouses.

It is interesting to note that numerous States of the Union, many of the countries of Europe and the three largest English-speaking cities of the world—London, New York and Chicago—have adopted the Torrens Title System.

ORANGE GROVES SOLD FOR CASH.

VALUABLE REDLANDS CITRUS PROPERTIES BOUGHT BY INVESTORS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Feb. 27.—One of the important sales in orange grove property for the week was that by B. G. Holmes to Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bowen of a ten-acre ranch grove on East Lugonia avenue. The consideration is given at $17,000 cash. The property is one of the best in the city. The purchase brings the orange grove holdings of Mr. and Mrs. Bowen up to a total of seventy acres.

Mrs. Jennie Springer has disposed of her Valencia grove of eight and one-half acres in the Terracina locality to George S. Bock of Coshocton, O. The grove is known as the "old Nashon place" and is a good producer. The consideration in the deal is reported at $15,000 cash.

The Woolworth Company of "five and ten-cent store" fame, has taken a ten-year lease on the storeroom owned by N. L. Lelean on State between Orange and Fifth. The store that the company will open here soon will be the 342d, established by the Woolworth interests over the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Westerbrook, through a deal just completed, have become the owners of the new Clatworthy bungalow in University tract on Colton avenue. The bungalow was purchased from W. Singelton for $5400.

The trustees of the Redlands school district have added three acres to the property owned by the Crafton school district, purchasing the ground owned by Emory A. Warner. The Redlands Sanitary Laundry has sold two lots on Central avenue to the Union Oil Company.

NEW INDUSTRIAL TRACT.

A new industrial tract is to be placed on the market in the near future at Harbor Industrial City, according to an announcement just made by W. I. Hollingsworth & Co. During the past week contracts for improvements were let and these, it is stated, will be started immediately. The new tract adjoins on the south the present townsite of Harbor Industrial City. It comprises about 110 acres and will include factory sites, lots and half-acres. A side track from the Pacific Electric, to run through the new subdivision for a distance of 3000 feet, has already been contracted for. Representatives of the Hollingsworth Company state that a public market square for the handling of the produce of the district will be a feature of the tract.

INTEREST IN HOGS.

Chino District Rapidly Being Given Over to Raising of Pigs for Los Angeles Market.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CHINO, Feb. 27.—The farmers of the Chino section have in the last few months taken an increasing interest in hog raising. The Remington ranch, among others, has recently gone extensively into the hog business. Its owners state that they will produce 1400 pigs for market this year.

The farmers generally in the Chino region are putting up hog houses.

Thomas D. Campbell & Company, who are closing out the remaining unsold lands of the Chino Rancho, report a number of sales to hog raisers. Among recent purchasers are J. Tulene, an experienced hog raiser from Nebraska, and Alexis Lemonton, a hog raiser from the Antelope Valley. Each has bought forty acres.

LARGE AREA IN LEMON GROVES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Feb. 27.—With the planting to lemons of a tract of 105 acres in the Alta Doma section to the northeast of Ontario, now going forward, the lemon acreage of the Ontario-Cucamonga district will soon have been increased within the past few months by more than 400 acres, placing this section well to the fore in the lemon industry of the State.

The 105-acre tract is owned by three Kansas City business men, George D. Harrison, Henry Koehler and John D. Howe. It is said that $35,000 will be expended in the planting operations.

The tract adjoins large groves just set to lemons by George N. Hamilton of Claremont and by A. Podrasnik, J. H. Payne, R. T. Nelson and F. Parker, making a total new orchard area of more than 400 acres, and representing an expenditure of over $250,000.

Work on the newest tract is being rushed and eighteen teams and sixty men are busy clearing the land. The work is under the supervision of F. M. Higley and it is his belief that the land will have been entirely cleared of rocks by March 1. Within ninety days it is expected that all the trees will be in position.

Oil Company Establishes Headquarters in Whittier Adjoining Seven Hundred-Acre Grove.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, Feb. 27.—The Murphy Oil Company of East Whittier, has let the contract for a one-story office building, to be erected at once on its lot on North Greenleaf avenue. The building will be 50x58 feet in size, of classic design and finish, and will cost about $15,000.

The establishment of its office headquarters in Whittier by the Murphy Oil Company marks a big development epoch in the citrus business of this section. The company three years ago began planting a big lemon acreage on its holdings in the East Whittier foothills. The larger part of 700 acres of the best lemon land is now planted, and the earlier plantings are coming into bearing. The company has also acquired ample trackage facilities on the Southern Pacific and it is unofficially understood that it will erect and operate its own packing-house as soon as the development of their groves will warrant.

PLANS RANCH HOME.

Lawrence C. Woods of Glendale, who owns twenty acres at Nuevo Rancho, in the Lakeview-Perris-Hemet Valley district, is having plans prepared for a ranch home to be built on his property. Mr. Woods has set ten acres at the place out to apricots and will, it is said, plant the same kind of trees on the unimproved acreage before the end of the present season.

LOS ANGELES MEN ARE HEAVY REALTY INVESTORS.

Acquire Large Amount of Citrus and Alfalfa Acreage in Region Around Porterville—Mining Men to Plant Big Tract to Lemons and Olives.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Feb. 27.—[illegible] A. Shoenhair of Los Angeles is already the owner of considerable alfalfa property west of the city limits, added 160 acres to his holdings this week in the purchase of eighty acres of alfalfa property from Mrs. Sarah J. Ray and a forty-acre tract from Mrs. [illegible] Peters. Neither holding carries any improvement. Shoenhair paid $[illegible] for the land, which he expects to plant this spring.

F. E. Fay, a Los Angeles business man who has extensive interests in this district, has sold to [illegible] Harris, formerly of Patterson, a [illegible] acre tract of general land in the Deer Creek district. The consideration is not given out. Pharris expects to raise early vegetables for the Los Angeles market.

J. J. Doyle has sold to F. S. Pollock of Los Angeles ten acres of peach land situated in the same district to the south and one of the city limits. Pollock is now putting in an irrigation system.

E. P. Fay of Los Angeles has sold to R. D. Graham of Anaheim a ten-acre orange grove in the Porterville district. The tract is planted to Washington navels in full bearing.

M. J. Nolan of Los Angeles has closed for the purchase of a large section of alfalfa land in the Alpaugh and district, near the Home Land and Colony. The property was purchased from the Iowa Land and Water Company, a Los Angeles partnership.

S. E. Boylan of Los Angeles has purchased a ten-acre tract of orange land south of the Deer Creek district from the Terra Bella Land Company, Los Angeles investors. Boylan will plant his tract this spring.

R. D. Adams, formerly an Arizona miner, and who has large property interests in the foothills north of Porterville for the installation of an irrigation plant in the Zante citrus district sufficient to irrigate 200 acres of his land, which is largely planted to Lisbon lemons. Contracts for the trees for the property were closed with Los Angeles nurserymen. Adams also plans to put out a large tract of olives in the near future.

Among the deals of lesser importance during the past week are the following: R. L. Manger to John J. Fleming, twenty acres of alfalfa land near Porterville; John Gilligan, [illegible] California Farm Lands Company, [illegible] acres of alfalfa land near Alpaugh and tract; C. A. Schroder of Los Angeles to M. J. Nolan of Los Angeles, twenty acres land south of the Deer Creek district; O. I. Hamilton to W. [illegible] half section of foothill land near Porterville; Desaix B. Meyers to Fleisher, twenty acres of alfalfa land in Pioneer addition; Thomas Foster to Bertha J. Foster, half interest in eighty acres of orchard land on Tulare road; Mrs. [illegible] Wright to William Clemens, [illegible] acres of alfalfa land, Woodville district; Swarthmore Land Company to D. R. Williams, five acres of orchard land south of Strathmore townsite.

SOUTHERN BUYERS HAVE THE CALL.

LOS ANGELES MEN ARE HEAVY REALTY INVESTORS.

Acquire Large Amount of Citrus and Alfalfa Acreage in Region Around Porterville—Mining Man to Plant Big Tract to Lemons and Olives.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Feb. 27.—George A. Shoenhair of Los Angeles, who is already the owner of considerable alfalfa property west of the Porterville city limits, added 160 acres to his holdings this week in the purchase of eighty acres of alfalfa property from Mrs. Sarah J. Ray and an adjoining eighty-acre tract from Mrs. M. A. Peters. Neither holding carries any improvement. Shoenhair paid $24,000 for the land, which he expects to develop this spring.

F. E. Fay, a Los Angeles business man who has extensive interests in this district, has sold to T. A. Pharris, formerly of Patterson, a twenty-acre tract of general land in the Deer Creek district. The consideration is not given out. Pharris expects to raise early vegetables for the Los Angeles market.

J. J. Doyle has sold to F. M. Pollock of Los Angeles ten acres of peach land situated in the suburban district to the south and east of the city limits. Pollock is now putting in an irrigation system.

E. P. Fay of Los Angeles has sold to R. D. Graham of Anaheim a fifteen-acre orange grove in the Success district. The tract is planted to early navels in full bearing.

M. J. Nolan of Los Angeles has leased for the purchase of a half section of alfalfa land in the Atwell Island district, near the Home Extension colony. The property was purchased from the Iowa Land and Water Company, a Los Angeles partnership.

S. E. Boylan of Los Angeles has purchased a ten-acre tract of land south of the Deer Creek district from the Terra Bella Land Company, Los Angeles investors. Boylan will plant his tract this spring.

R. D. Adams, formerly an Alsatian miner, and who has large property interests in the foothills north of Porterville, has closed contracts this week in Porterville for the installation on his property in the Zante citrus district of an irrigation plant sufficient to handle 100 acres of his land, which is to be planted to Lisbon lemons. Contracts for the trees for the property were closed with Los Angeles nursery men. Adams also plans to put out a small tract of olives in the near future.

Among the deals of lesser importance during the past week are the following: R. L. Munger to John J. Simmons, twenty acres of alfalfa land north of Porterville; John Gilligan, from the California Farm Lands Company, three acres of alfalfa land near Atwell Island tract; C. A. Schroder of Los Angeles to M. J. Nolan of Los Angeles, twenty-acres land south of the Porterville district; O. I. Hamilton to W. T. Colcord, forty acres of foothill lands east of Porterville; Desaix B. Meyers to W. Belsher, twenty acres of alfalfa land in Pioneer addition; Thomas Fylbert of Los Angeles to Bertha J. Saunders, one-half interest in eighty acres of alfalfa land on Tulare road; Mrs. Sarah J. Wright to William Clemens, twenty acres of alfalfa land, Westfield district; Swarthmore Land Company to J. H. Williams, five acres of orange land south of Strathmore townsite.

MONTIJO GIVES ONLY ONE HIT.

Baptists Fail to Support Cram Properly.

Mexican's Delivery Baffles at All Times.

Hibbard is Demon Hitter for Oxy.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Feb. 27.—Montijo, a dark visaged chap and exceedingly capable, was the stumbling block in the way of the Baptists today in their race for the championship. They went sprawling when Montijo held them to one single hit and Occidental won the game by a score of 6 to 0.

EASY FOR MONTE.

It was a slaughter because of the rotten support given Cram by his team-mates. He pitched a good game. Out of the nine hits chalked up against him, only five of them were real singles.

Montijo had the Baptists at his mercy all the time. They were unable to solve his delivery and the only chance they had of scoring was when he walked a man. At times he was wild and gave a base, but he usually made up for it by striking the next man out.

ONLY CHANCE.

The only chance Redlands had was in the sixth. Weed went to first on a fly. Hentschke took first on Hibbard's muff. The two men executed a double steal, placing them on second and third. Montijo was equal to the occasion and he struck out Sabourin and Vineyard, the heavy hitters of the team. Whittemore rolled one down to Porter and it was all over.

HOW TIGERS SCORED.

Hibbard was the one man with the stick for he got three hits, one a double. Occidental made three runs in the eighth on two errors, a man hit by the pitcher, and a single.

In the fourth, a run was made on three hits. In the sixth, one run was made with two hits, both doubles. In the ninth, there was a tally on a walk, a sacrifice and a hit.

Occidental won the game by playing the best brand of ball that has been seen here this year. Some of the fielding was far above the average.

THE OLD RAG.

"Doc" White was on hand to see his hopefuls gallop around the bags and after it was all over, he was heard to remark between his teeth, "The old rag is all ours."

The game practically puts Redlands out of the running if Occidental wins the championship of the first division. Score:

COAST LEAGUE RECRUITS.

Eight Men who can Hit .300 or Better have been Signed by the Different Clubs this Year—Harry Wolverton Got Most of the Hitting Demons in the New Deal.

THE work performed by those who are to make their appearance in Coast League circles this season is in many respects commendable. Eight .300 or better pole wielders constitute the wonders snagged during the winter months.

Harry Wolverton picked off three of those highly-respected batters. Paul Meloan squashed the pill to the extent of .304 while a Tiger last season. Baerwald finished his season's toil with something like .318 tacked down after his name, while Outfielder Thomason hacked away for a grand total of .325 somewhere in the tules and unpruned weeds.

Koerner, recently secured from Topeka by the Oaks, left the Western League after demolishing baseballs around the .323 altitude. Providing this individual does not instantly shift his plans after breaking loose in the Coast League it is feared he will crush all the available orbiculars. Dowling and Elliott are the other two heavy sluggers trapped by the Oaks.

The only .300 man gathered in by Hogan for the coming season is young Riesberg. While playing up around Ogden, Salt Lake and a few other towns where little trade is drummed up for the barbers and tonsorial experts, Riesberg hit .366. Gleichmann ranks next in line, .297 being his grand total for a single season's damage.

Nary a three hundred man was secured by the Angels, while Portland picked off but one, Naughton, who rattled the distant walls with .310 as his receipt for long poling.

It is authoritatively reported that a Cleveland company has received more than $1,000,000 worth of orders for two and three-ton trucks from the French and Russian governments.

Built-in mileage is far better than patched-up adjustments—

When you buy Diamond Tires you buy tires that are built to give you the maximum tire service—tires that give you freedom from trouble and relieve you of the necessity of having adjustments made. This is what a dealer who sold many thousands of Diamond Tires last year has to say about the service they gave the buyers:

"Gentlemen: "Cleveland, Dec. 15, 1914.
"The performance of Diamond Tires during the past year has been eminently satisfactory. The claims for adjustment were almost a negligible quantity. On the other hand, we have had a great many voluntary reports as to the excellent service our customers have had from Diamond Tires. We feel that a perfect balance has been worked out in the scientific construction of these Tires. The net result is that there appears to be the proper relation between the inside carcass and the outside rubber, so that there is no excess of either. The tire seems to wear out naturally and only after having given a very large mileage.
"THE FOREST CITY RUBBER CO.,
"W. E. Crofut, President."

Similar reports of Diamond service have been received from dealers all over the country.

Added to the wonderful Diamond service you can now buy Diamond Squeegee Tread Tires at the following

OSTRICH SWALLOWS THREE BASEBALLS.

SAN DIEGO EXPOSITION BIRD FINDS NEW FOOD THROUGH CUT IN CANVAS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 27.—By his persistent swallowing of all the balls which came through a slit in the canvas separating him from the contest, Edward VII, the big Nubian ostrich at the San Diego exposition, threatened to put an end to the baseball game which was going on in the space beyond his yard.

The attention of Edward's keeper was attracted by the bird's rushing the length of the field in pursuit of a rolling object, which, when overtaken, was devoured forthwith. On the first occasion the keeper paid little heed to the bird's activities; on the second he became curious, and on the third, he started an investigation.

Before he could act, however, a fourth object rolled down the field and the big Nubian raced in pursuit. The keeper did some racing himself, and arrived in time to prevent Edward from swallowing a baseball.

At this moment, there appeared in the yard the proprietor of the ball game, who pointed to a slit in the canvas and protested that four balls had escaped through the rent. The keeper returned the fourth ball, and then pointed significantly at Edward, who was eyeing the remaining ball hungrily. The proprietor of the ball game gave one look at the big Nubian and then hurried away with the surviving ball hidden under his coat. Edward is still healthy, but the slit in the canvas has been sewed up, and there are no more baseballs for his meals.

Here Are the New Savage Prices

QUALITY has always been the first consideration in the building of Savage Tires and Tubes. We build up to a standard of quality, not down to competitive prices.

However, due to the recent reduction in the cost of crude rubber, combined with improved manufacturing facilities and increased production, we are enabled to reduce Savage prices and still maintain Savage Quality.

We are pleased to give you the benefit of the following low figures. Remember these prices include Savage Quality, Savage Mileage and Savage Service, as usual.

Buy these California made tires through your dealer.

A. C. Robbins has gone foolish over golf and his faithful henchman, Mr. See Walsh, here depicts the various forms of the mania.

In motor vehicle importations into the Straits Settlements, which include Singapore, Penang and Malacca, the United States is pushing Great Britain hard. Automobiles, parts and motorcycles to the value of $727,484 were imported from the United States by the Straits Settlements in 1913. This was $206,000 less than the total of similar imports from Great Britain for the same year. It is noteworthy that in the previous year the share of the United States was only $274,206 as compared with Great Britain's $700,542.

A movement has been begun among automobile dealers in St. Louis to close their salesrooms on Sunday. Those supporting the plan argue that there is no reason why automobile men should have to work seven days a week and miss church, while other business men are having a day of rest.

Leland Stanford University has added fencing to its intercollegiate sports. A team will meet the University of California in a dual meet in April.

SAUGUS ROADS ARE TERRIBLE

BETTER GOING FOUND ACROSS THE FIELDS.

Ralph Waidler had to Drive Half a Mile with Two Wheels Bumping on Railroad Ties in Order to Get Traction for the Machine—Worst Road Ever.

Motorists are advised by Ralph Waidler to heed the warning of the Automobile Club and not attempt the road from Saugus to Fillmore via Bouguet Canyon. According to Waidler, he read the club's warning and interpreted it to mean that the road would not be open for general travel and it would be no place for an inexperienced driver. He has been touring all about the country in his Oakland for two years and considers himself as being skilled, but he also knows his limitations now.

As Waidler tells the story, the road since the heavy rains, has been a veritable quagmire. He had driven through land almost every place south of Tehachepi, and it never failed, he said, but this time he admits he was stalled. He even regrets himself as fortunate for retaining the use of the car, as he saw three machines imbedded in the mud up to the running boards that had been abandoned for five days and were left in the custody of a guard, who camped on the spot.

In several places, Waidler says, it is necessary to forget there is such a thing as a road and drive across the open fields. Fences have been torn down and it is necessary to drive way beyond the telephone poles to find ground secure enough for travel. For half a mile he drove with the wheels of his car bumping over the railroad ties and the other part sinking through the soft ground of the embankment.

OLD-TIMER IS AGAIN ON JOB

W. K. COWAN TAKES UP AGENCY FOR CARS OVER IN PASADENA.

After a six-months' absence from the automobile business, W. K. Cowan, pioneer automobile man of Southern California, has returned to the business. Cowan last was connected with Earle C. Anthony, Inc., and will represent the Grant line in Pasadena, Altadena and Eagle Rock.

Cowan spent nine years as a leading dealer in Los Angeles and gained fame into the automobile business in 1905 when he took the agency for the Waverly electric. A year later he took the Southern California agency for the Rambler, at present the Jeffrey line, which he held until last September, when he disposed of his interests to the Thomas B. Jeffrey Company.

Upon the arrival here of the first six, Cowan was one of the first to inspect and test the new car, and lost no time in closing for the Pasadena agency. The veteran is more than enthusiastic over the new six and is extremely confident that it will prove one of the most popular cars of the coming season.

TRUCK TIRES STAND USAGE.

HAVE BEEN USED FOR THREE YEARS.

Solid Tires for the Heavy Machines Give a Maximum of Wear and Satisfaction—Big Shipment of Endless Tires is Expected in the Very Near Future.

In these days when people sit around and talk about hard times it is a pleasure to step into a place that is swamped with business. The new Kelly-Springfield truck tire service station is such a place. The service men have been working day and night to meet the demand for repairs and for new solid rubber tires. All makes of tires are repaired.

One of the first changes made in the new station was performed on a Newmark & Co. truck of five-ton capacity. This was a Reliance truck. The entire set of old Kelly-Springfield tires was changed and replaced by a new set. U. L. McLaughlin of the Newmark company stated that the old tires had been on the truck three years. This is a splendid record for the tires.

On one truck operated by the Eastside Brewing Company a single set of Kelly-Springfield tires has lasted two years and seems good for six months more. These are block tires and Manager Jessup of the Kelly-Springfield company believes that these are the best tires in a country like Southern California, where it is warm all the year around.

A shipment of the Kelly-Springfield endless tires is expected in within a day or so. Many orders have been booked already. Carload orders have been received by Manager Jessup from Nelson, Priace, Rude and Opp, Los Angeles tire dealers.

CARS PARKED AT THE EXPOSITIONS.

One of the special features of the Auto Club "run" to San Diego will be the parking of the cars of all participants at the east entrance to the exposition grounds as an exhibit of Southern California motordom, according to a statement made yesterday at club headquarters.

It is expected by the officials in charge that there will be between 300 and 500 cars in line over both the coast and inland routes.

All motorists who take part will be especially entertained in San Diego and will have a chance to see himself in the "movies" which will be filmed en route.

His Experience.

SANE ADVERTISING BASIS FOR BUILDING BUSINESS.

ADVERTISING has been the chief factor in the rapid growth of the automobile industry, according to John North Willys, president of the Willys-Overland Company, second largest manufacturer of automobiles in the world. Had it not been for the newspapers, according to Mr. Willys, the motor-car business could not possibly have attained the immense size it has in the short time it has been recognized.

Mr. Willys, who is the largest newspaper advertiser of automobiles, declares that much of the credit for the growth of the Overland from a pigmy to a giant is due to the advertising policy followed by the company since its inception.

But advertising alone will not build up a successful business, he adds. First of all, one must have a product that is worthy of the confidence of the public. A manufacturer can 'get by' for a year or so with shoddy goods and a huge advertising campaign, but such success is not stable. It has no foundation but paper, and cannot last long.

But with a product which merits confidence, a well-planned advertising campaign will build up a success, which will be established for years to come.

Mr. Willys believes in using only facts in his advertising space, and he tells nothing that cannot be substantiated with actual performances of the car. As a result of this policy he points out the fact that the Willys-Overland Company has grown from a rm marketing 401 cars in 1908 to one which placed 50,000 on the market last year and will produce 75,000 this season.

Mr. Willys's policy has been to advertise and sell a car which merits the confidence of the public, and owing to the faith he has established in the automobile buying public, every Overland car is sold now before it has been built. The entire seasons output for 1915 already has been disposed of.

Oh, Gee!

SALESMEN CHEW AT PENCIL ENDS.

BECOME ESSAYISTS BY THE THOUSAND.

Local Automobile Men in Large Numbers Have Entered Unique Contest and Have High Hopes of Getting Away with Some of the Prizes—Contest Closes Very Soon.

The Los Angeles Studebaker branch, individually and collectively, sits in wild excitement awaiting the results of the essay contest for Studebaker salesmen.

From A. W. and R. D. Maxwell down along the line, every salesman whosesale and retail, in Southern California, has sent an essay entitled, "How to Sell a Studebaker Car," and the announcement is to be made shortly after the first of the month.

From Maine to California and from the blizzard-swept prairies of North Dakota to the sunny savannahs of Florida, men have been gnawing at the stubs of their pencils and writing essays in a competition which is expected to develop more hard facts in scientific salesmanship than have been recorded by all the cumulative efforts of ten seasons in automobile merchandising.

The event is a sweepstakes, as far as the cash prizes are concerned, with a special division and prize for each of the Studebaker branches and distributing districts. It is, of course, open only to members of the organization. Every State and virtually every trading center in the country is represented with from one to several score of contestants.

The contest is the idea of Sales Manager L. J. Ollier of the Studebaker organization, who explains its purpose in a thoroughly logical way.

"Something sells the Studebaker car," declares Mr. Ollier. "That something is probably a combination of various merits such as the Studebaker reputation as a veteran manufacturer, the obvious beauty of the cars themselves, their records for durability, the full floating rear axle with which they are all equipped—these and, perhaps, 400 others; some of our salesmen maintain there are as many as 472."

Motor trucks are now barred from all unpaved roads in Harris county, Texas, in which Houston is the principal city. This action was taken by the County Commissioners following a report of the county engineer that drivers of automobile trucks showed no consideration for the roads. The commissioners' decision to call a halt to this "road destroying traffic" hits the merchants of Houston hardest.

Catching On.

PUBLIC GETS "MOTOR WISE."

PEOPLE KNOW MORE ABOUT THE AUTOMOBILE.

Man High in Motor Car Industry Says that the People at the Big Auto Shows are All Asking More Intelligent Questions than They Did a Few Years Ago.

"It is natural that people should want to see the new things in automobiles as they are placed on the market," said Harry A. Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company, in conversation with newspaper men last week.

"It is the same all over the country, whether in New York, Chicago or Los Angeles. The moment a new car is announced, in flock the people to have a look. It seems that ever since the inception of the automobile, people have always been anxious to keep informed on happenings in the automobile industry.

"In talking with C. E. Stebbins, sales manager of the Maxwell company, when he was here the other day, he mentioned that people were asking far more intelligent questions at the automobile shows this year than they had ever asked at previous shows. This also proves my contention that you cannot sell an unproven car, no matter how much interest is shown in it, because the purchasers today have learned that because a thing is new does not necessarily mean that it will prove durable or efficient. Most men are willing to let their neighbors experiment with the untried cars, while they buy cars of a make that has been tried and proven by two or three years' service in hundreds of owners' hands.

"It is now about three years since the Maxwell company put the $750 car on the market. They were the first company to put a car of so much value at this price on the market. Before its advent, this price field remained untouched. It remained for Walter E. Flanders, president of the Maxwell Motor Company, to recognize that the public were looking for a car embracing all the features of the higher-priced machines and to sell at a price midway between the lowest and medium-priced cars. That his judgment and foresight were sound is best answered by noting the number of other concerns who immediately began to experiment with a car to sell around the price of the Maxwell. Truly, 'imitation is the sincerest flattery.'

"The Maxwell name carries a long record of successes behind it. You will probably remember that it was one of the first names used in the automobile world. You may also have recollections of cars that made their appearance in those early days but which have long since passed by the wayside, for the reason that they did not stand the test in the hands of the public and meet the requirements of owners."

CALIFORNIA TIRE GETS BIG BOOST.

FIRST ONE PURCHASED STILL GOING AFTER 7000 MILES.

The severe tests which Savage tires are being given and the splendid manner in which they are standing up and delivering mileage, is well evidenced in the following letter addressed to the big California tire factory:

"Ours is one of the cars the dealer points out to show hard usage. As a stage to haul passengers, baggage and supplies we have driven it over 27,000 miles in less than two years. It is frequently overloaded and most of our trips are over rough mountain roads and steep grades. Until we tried the Savage Non-Skid we had never averaged more than 4000 miles per casing, and many gave us even less mileage."

"We purchased our first Savage Non-Skid tire June 24, 1914, and it has been over 7000 miles, more than half of this on a rear wheel, and the tread is not worn through yet."

"Our car is fully equipped with these tires and all are giving splendid service. The rubber resists wear and cuts from sharp stones remarkably. Had we begun buying Savage Non-Skids when we first heard of them we should now be at least $100 ahead, to say nothing of the trouble and annoyance.

"Keep up the quality to the present standard and you will always find us loyal boosters for this splendid tire. Sincerely,

"HULBURD RANCH,
"Per A. L. Palmer."

The Chandler people are doing such a huge business since their drop in price that they have been forced to move their used-car department from the regular salesrooms and establish it at No. 825 South Olive.

Sydney L. Waldon, who climbed from the ranks to the job of vice-president of the Packard company, has joined the Cadillac Motor Car Company, thereby creating a lot of excitement in the bosom of Manager W. C. Leland of the Cadillac.

John Wiese excitedly bursts into print with the news that there were sixty-three Wintons in the parade of welcome to the new car and that he could have had over a hundred if he had wanted that many.

The H. Jevne Company has bought six Autocars to replace machines which were destroyed when their garage burned down. Some of the old machines had been in service for something over four years.

Just to show that the boss wasn't necessary, Mr. English of the local Chevrolet agency, moved into his new quarters at No. 1212 South Olive street, while Mr. Durant is up in San Francisco watching the rain fall.

TRAINLOAD WORTH MORE.

Harold Tuttle has made the terrible discovery that he did himself wrong to the extent of $130,000 last week.

In figuring up the total valuation of the huge Buick trainload coming out from the East, Tuttle lost track of his fingers and when he said that the trainload was valued at $620,000 he really meant to say that it was valued at $750,000.

Tuttle says that if it wasn't for the hard times he wouldn't mind the difference.

SAUGUS ROADS ARE TERRIBLE.

BETTER GOING FOUND ACROSS THE FIELDS.

Ralph Waidler had to Drive for Half a Mile with Two Wheels Bumping on Railroad Ties in Order to Get Traction for the Machine—Worst Road Ever.

Motorists are advised by Ralph Waidler to heed the warning of the Automobile Club and not attempt the road from Saugus to Fillmore via Bouquet Canyon. According to Waidler, he read the club's warning and interpreted it to mean that the road would not be open for general travel and it would be no place for an inexperienced driver. The Test.

SOME OF COAST RECRUITS WILL STICK IN MAJORS.

Dope on Western Athletes Who will Fight for Big League Berths — Bancroft Should be Star in Philadelphia — Rodgers Regarded as Fixture in Cleveland. Tough Job Ahead of Klepfer.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

COAST LEAGUE managers last fall graduated into the majors a crop of players whose careers in the wicked cities of the East will be followed with interest.

To have some of the home boys covering themselves on the big turf adds to give a personal tang to the box scores, and causes the fans to feel a sort of proprietory interest in the ceremonies.

With many of the big league clubs having had the spine ripped right out of them by the opposition, the following doors of opportunity have been held open to aspiring athletes as seldom before in recent years, and it should be a good season for the youngsters.

WHO ARE UP.

Five men who were in the Coast league last season will earnestly strive to merit a meal ticket in the majors.

Klepfer sent Ed Klepfer, the pick of Baker's staff, to the Chicago White Sox. Sailor Stroud of the defunct Rustlers will endeavor to give Mack's somewhat wobbly pitching staff the necessary added strength. Pep Young is the prize drawn from the Missions by Detroit.

Grover Alexander of the Oaklets has been sentenced to the St. Louis Nationals, and Bobby Quinlan, outfielder, is Oakland's contribution to the White Sox. The Cubs get Pete Standridge of the Seals.

Walter McCredie performed the unusual feat of sending up three infielders—Rodgers to Cleveland, Bancroft to the Phillies and Kores to the Reds.

BEEN THERE BEFORE.

Three of these—Klepfer, Stroud and Alexander—have at least had a cup of coffee in the big leagues. But that was before they were wholly ripe. In the meantime each of them has occupied himself profitably by improving about 66 per cent.

It is hardly likely that all of these will succeed in ingrafting themselves into a permanent job. Practically all of them, however, have a fighting chance, while at least three—Bancroft, Rodgers and Stroud—figure like fixtures already so soon. Not only do they scintillate much class, but they were fortunate in landing with clubs who are weak in the departments in which they happen to specialize.

TO STEP RIGHT IN.

Rodgers is expected to step right into the second baseman's berth at Cleveland without any opposition that is visible to the naked eye. Bill is a big leaguer in every meaning of the term.

Of course, he cannot hope to make the fans forget a certain party by the name of Lajoie, but he will fit snugly into the Cleveland combination.

The position of shortstop on the Philadelphia Nationals has been like an open drawbridge since the defection of Mike Doolan. This is the position into which Bancroft will step and it will forthwith cease to be a roaming vacancy. If Dave doesn't fill the bill and give the nuts something to holler about, then all of us out here on the Coast are totally lacking in judgment when it comes to judging a ball player on the hoof.

WIN ANYWHERE.

Sailor Stroud, if he retains the form that he displayed in 1913 and 1914, will win in any man's league. For the first three months of the season he was practically unbeatable. Later his club was wrecked on the shoals of discouragement and it would have taken a Walter Johnson to win games behind it. Therefore, Stroud's record of twenty wins and eighteen defeats does not give even a faint idea of his real ability. Blinding speed is one of his chief assets. Set him to work on a cold and dreary day, and the only chance to locate the pill is by the whistling noise as it catapults past the batter's ear. With a team that loafed behind him in the last two months he allowed an average of but 2.01 earned runs for the season.

ED MUST HORN.

There are those who contend that Klepfer is even a better pitcher than Stroud, and that he has greater records in the way of foolers.

Klepfer, however, was not as fortunate as Stroud, in the matter of selection, landing with a club that is rich in pitching talent. Aside from the Red Sox and possibly the St. Louis Browns, the White Sox have the strongest staff in the American league.

To gain a footing on the club it will be necessary for Klepfer to horn his way in against such men as Scott, Faber, Russell, Walsh, Faber, Lathrop, Benz and Wolfgang, which is no easy undertaking.

Klepfer was the strikeout monarch of the Coast League in 1914, whiffing 313. Jack Ryan was the only other hurler in the circuit to exceed the double-century mark. Jack salted away 201 strikes.

Klepfer has oodles of speed and a wonderful curve ball. Last season he also perfected a "spitter," but he is so rich in other resources that he really does not need the damp delivery.

CAN'T HOLD 'EM ON.

Physically and mechanically, Ed has everything that makes for great pitching. He does his best work without men on bases. If he can master the simple science of holding runners close to the bases, he is sure to stick. Otherwise, it may prove to be a fatal flaw.

Quinlan is a youngster of great promise. He hits well, covers as much ground as a homestead in the outfield and has an elegant whip. But Bobby won't come to terms with the Sox, and it is darkly hinted that he will be back with the Oaklets—a move calculated to indefinitely postpone his major league debut.

"FORK-BALL" MAN.

Pete Standridge propels the "fork ball," which is regarded by many as the greatest asset. When he has this under control, the opposition finds it very aggravating. His record last season wasn't anything to get excited about, but he pitched stellar ball in spots.

He is young and husky and equipped by nature for "iron man-ing." When the Cubs drafted him they doubtless were figuring ahead. There seem to be great possibilities wrapped up in Pete's manly frame.

Mechanically, Alexander is almost a perfect catcher, and his whip is a thing of beauty. These things may possibly land him a berth alongside of Sam Agnew.

"PEP" YOUNG.

Pep Young found his natural calling last season when Harry Wolverton shifted him to second base. He simulated greased lightning in that position, and figured in a bigger average of double plays than any other keystone man in the league.

As a fielder, he would prove a sensation even in the American League. He is a streak on the bases, and uses good judgment. In Detroit he will have to combat Vitt and Kavanagh, and possibly a few recruits. He is not a heavy hitter, but his work in this department showed some improvement last season. Inability to pickle the ball is the only thing that can keep him off the Detroit team. It is regarded as doubtful, however, whether he can wield the bat in regular major league fashion.

Coast League managers and players who are familiar with the work of these men from the inside, I think, will agree that the foregoing analysis is correct.

MECHANICAL UMP IS NOW REALITY.

LOS ANGELES MAN INVENTS MACHINE THAT DOES AN INDICATOR'S WORK.

At last an umpire has been found that never makes a mistake. But it's mechanical, not human.

H. E. Westgate, of No. 1343 North Mariposa avenue, is the inventor, and the device is to be manufactured here by the Westgate Automatic Umpire Company, with offices at No. 921 Hollingsworth building.

Friday, for the first time, the umpire was tried out by league pitchers, and Walter Boles of the Angels and a score of other players and newspaper men, took turns in the box.

The device automatically registers balls and strikes, automatically, presents either a right hand or left-hand dummy batter, and automatically returns the ball to the pitcher.

A space representing the distance between the average player's knee and the shoulder, and the width of the home plate, must be struck to record a strike. Even if the ball strikes an eighth of an inch from the "strike zone," a ball is recorded.

The inventor claims for the device that it is valuable in practice work, as no catcher or second player is necessary to return the ball. It also can be used to test the eye of a batter, by allowing him to indicate as the ball approaches whether it is a strike or ball. If his judgment is poor the umpire so shows. But, on the other hand, if he indicates a strike, and it is within the "strike zone," his judgment is backed up by the umpire.

L. A. HIGH DUCKS WINS FROM NORMAL

Los Angeles High School won a swimming meet from Normal at Bimini Friday night. Bob Howard was Normal's particular star and Clark, L.A. High's. The results were as follows:

The 220-yard—Won by Bob Howard (N.,) Stahl (L.A.) second, Tuttleback (L.A.) third.

The 62-yard breast stroke—Won by Tuttleback (L.A.,) Sandrick (N.) second.

The 100-yard—Won by Bob Howard (N.,) Clark (L.A.) second, McClain (L.A.) third.

The 62-yard back stroke—Won by Lenz (N.,) Clark (L.A.) second.

The 50-yard—Scott (N.,) and Clark (L.A.) tied for first.

The 25-yard—Won by Bob Howard (N.,) Cummings (L.A.) second.

Diving—Won by Howard (N.,) Berger (L.A.) second, Clark, (L.A.) third.

The 440-yard—Won by Stahl (L.A.,) Tuttleback (L.A.) second.

Novice race—Won by Cummings (L.A.,) Tuttleback (L.A.) second, Berger (L.A.) third.

Final score—L.A. High, 31, Normal, 20.

DOPE ON THE PHOENIX ROADS.

The Arnold Touring Information Bureau has just received word from its Phoenix correspondent that the last Hudson car over the road from Yuma to Phoenix found the route almost impassable because of the overflowed condition of the Gila River between Palomas and Agua Caliente.

For sixty miles the car had to plow through adobe and silt up to the hubs. It will probably be a month before that road is in anything like good condition.

Returning to Los Angeles, they found that the route from Phoenix was very much better by way of Salome and Vicksburg, crossing the river at Ehrenberg and thence through the Chuckawalla Valley to Mecca, San Bernardino and Blythe.

A trifle more than $500,000 was contributed last month by motorists of New York State in the way of license fees. Sixty-five thousand four hundred and fifty-five owners and 32,733 chauffeurs registered. The cash received was nearly $200,000 more than the amount paid into the New York State treasury during January, 1914, although there was a deficit of approximately $40,000 due to a half-fee provision for cars registered for four years previous.

Completely Equipped— Nothing More to Buy

French Engineering Dominates

French engineering ideas have dominated the building of high-grade, expensive motor cars from the beginning.

But French engineering has never before been given its rightful place in the light car at less than a thousand dollars.

If it had been, low-priced American cars would not be the ordinary, cheap, uncomely, low-value product which they are today. Hasty manufacture cannot be blamed for all the faults of low-value American cars. Poor engineering is also at fault.

The Briscoe car contains the best ideas of leading French engineers. It is a really high-grade small car built of as fine material, with as careful workmanship and as artistic in appearance as any of the best large cars. It is the finished product of three years' careful investigation and study—tried and proved under every conceivable practical test, both abroad and home.

The Kind of Demonstration We Give

You can ask us to put this car to the test on any road. This demonstration will banish from your mind all comparisons with cheap, ordinary cars costing from $750 to $1200. This smooth propulsion of the Briscoe car under any and every condition, the flexibility of its motor, its easy riding quality, its roadability, will class it in your mind with cars selling for twice as much.

The Briscoe car was built for discriminating buyers—men who wanted a car built right, highly finished in appearance, comfortable and responsive to every demand of the driver.

A demonstration will convince you that the Briscoe is all of these things. It more than meets expectations.

Note carefully the following features, boasted of in cars costing $1100 to $1400. You would DEMAND them if you were paying $1500 or $2500. The BRISCOE has them—without additional charge:

French Chassis.
French Line body designed by Carrosserie Internationale, Paris.
107-inch wheel base.
Sunken center headlight.
Electric lights.
Silent electric starter.
Wire wheels (wood optional.)
Full-floating rear axle.
Centrosmal type front axle.
Electric horn button on steering wheel.

The Right Truck Tire
Proved by 2100 Actual Tests

The 1915 Goodyear S-V Truck Tire surmounts all obstacles that makers have faced from the first.

Goodyear experts—whose research costs us $100,000 yearly—strove eight years to attain this triumph. They built 74 separate tire structures in this one type alone. And each solved some baffling problem.

More than 2100 S-V test tires were run and recorded. These records—the court of last resort—award S-V today's top place.

No Fastenings

Goodyear S-V Truck Tires are pressed onto the felloe band, at a minimum of 50,000 pounds. This pressure far exceeds any strain possible in service. Thus S-V tires end creeping. And they cannot be thrown from the wheel.

There are other pressed-on types, to be sure. Yet none goes on like these—in 5 or 10 minutes—without a single auxiliary fastening.

More Tread

S-V's save the cost of metal wedges, flanges, bolts and bands. They lessen tire weight as much as 35%. And thus they save what it costs you to carry the difference below the springs over thousands of miles.

They give you 20% more available tread rubber than other standard makes. In this one way alone Goodyear S-V Truck Tires multiply mileage.

Keep Trucks Going

Goodyear S-V tires end truck tire troubles. They stop dead losses that now accrue when wrong tires lay up your trucks.

In five separate ways—so the cost book shows—these tires save over other makes.

A press for applying these tires is located near you. Write or telephone for full particulars. Let us show you the letters from men who have used these tires side by side with others.

You owe it to your business to compare results as they did. Because, in the cost-book, every column recommends these new-day tires, without delay.

Grand Prix Race.

thunder around the track in trial spins.

The entry list was not sifted down to its final standing until half an hour before the starting signal was given.

Five cars were withdrawn, leaving thirty-two starters in the race.

A fair crowd filled the smaller bleachers before the race, but there was only a thin scattering in the main grand stand. Heavy clouds hung in the sky and though the weather bureau had promised dry weather, there was some fear that rain might fall.

Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, honorary referee of the meet, and Mayor Rolph were among the first arrivals at the track. The official distance was announced as 400.2856 miles, requiring 104 laps to complete it.

DRAWING FOR PLACES.

Positions for the start were drawn by lot, Earl Cooper in No. 8 winning first place. Alongside him in an even start were Ruckstell in No. 6 and Newhouse in No. 15.

Fifteen seconds later Taylor, No. 29, and Bragg, No. 14, followed.

De Palma, Eddie Pullen and Barney Oldfield were among the last starters.

At exactly 10:30, to the second, the start was given and in a few seconds the course was a roaring maelstrom of thunder and smoke.

Bombs were exploded.

Ruckstell, No. 6, took the lead from Cooper and led all around the first lap. Cooper hanging on his flank. Bragg, No. 14, fell 100 yards behind in third place. Parsons, No. 24, contested with Bragg. The other cars followed in the following order: Nikrent, No. 10; Taylor, No. 29; Newhouse, No. 15; Carlson, No. 32; Resta, No. 9; Disbrow, No. 12; Alley, No. 2, and Oldfield, No. 1.

COOPER GOES OUT.

On the second lap Earl Cooper had engine trouble and was forced into the pit, the first of the cars to be stopped. Cooper discovered that he had broken a connecting rod and was forced to withdraw from the race.

Ruckstell, No. 6, completed the first five laps, nearly twenty miles, in 17:57. Behind him was Resta, No. 9, time 18:13. The other leading cars finished the fifth lap in this order: Alley, No. 2; Anderson, No. 5; Wilcox, No. 26; De Palma, No. 22; Grant, No. 30; Hearne, No. 21, and Oldfield, No. 1.

De Palma had worked up from far back in the start.

At the end of his twelfth lap, Parsons, No. 24, went to the pit.

De Palma and Eddie Pullen had at this point pulled well up to the front and were among the first six cars. At the end of the fifteenth lap there was no change in the position of the three leaders, but De Palma, No. 22, had crept up from fifth to fourth position and Gil Anderson, No. 5, was close behind him.

SKIDS INTO FENCE.

On the twenty-third lap, Lou Gandy, No. 7, rounding "Purgatory Bend" at the head of the course, skidded into the fence and was forced to drop out of the race temporarily. Neither Gandy nor his mechanician was hurt.

On the twenty-fifth lap, Resta, driving No. 9, had worked up from sixth place to the lead. The rain had stopped and the track began to dry out.

At the beginning of the thirty-second lap, Resta, No. 9, who was leading the race, stopped to change a tire. Gandy, No. 7, re-entered the race at 12.:30.

DRAWING FOR PLACES.

Barney Oldfield encountered engine trouble on his thirty-seventh lap and went into his pit for repairs. After about ten minutes' delay Oldfield reentered the race and was cheered as he passed the grand stand.

BARNEY GOES OUT.

After a couple of laps Oldfield's car went wrong again. He worked on it for twenty-five minutes and then threw up his hands and left the race, making the fifth car to retire. Bragg, No. 14, and Marquis, No. 27, were officially declared withdrawn a few minutes before.

One of the tensest moments of the race occurred when a dog ran onto the track opposite the starter's stand and raced down the middle of the course to the far turn. The crowd stood up with a gasp, expecting an accident, but three or four cars dodged the dog and after a quarter-mile romp, the dog left the track.

RAIN BEGINS.

At 2:45 a drizzle of rain began and expectations were that it would continue and further slow up the race. Resta, No. 9, and Hughes, No. 28, were engaged in a fierce duel for the lead, with Resta leading. Eddie Pullen, No. 4, and O'Donnell, No. 19, were pressing hard upon both.

Carlson, No. 32, who was second at the sixtieth lap, was stopped by engine trouble, and Hughes, No. 28, closed in second place. Carlson took advantage of the stop to put on non-skid tires. Rain was still falling.

At 3:20 De Palma, driving No. 22, stopped in front of the grand stand and announced that he had quit the race.

"Nothing is wrong with my car," he said, "but the condition of the track is such that a racer is foolish to continue the contest and I have no doubt that the race will be called off."

Shortly after the seventieth lap, Pullen, No. 4, who won the Grand Prix in 1914, dropped out of the race.

POMONA AND HUNS TO MEET AT TRACK.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Feb. 27.—Coach Clinton Evans of the Pomona High School is grooming his lads of the spring track team for a practice meet to be held at Claremont with the Pomona College varsity team on next Tuesday. Evans will try out a number of new lads in the events, and says he expects to win some of the contests, too. He figures that the Pomona High lads have a good chance of taking first place in the high jump, pole vault and shot put and perhaps one or two of the sprints.

The outlook is good for a winning track team at Pomona High School this season, for besides the members of last year's team, there are some new aspirants for honors, who are showing great form in the practices.

Coach Evans has already started baseball practice, but as yet the outlook is none too promising for a championship team, although it is hoped that some new surprises will develop in the way of fast material, out of which a winning nine can be developed.

Decision by the Brooklyn Motor Dealers' Association to hold a show from March 2 to 9, inclusive, in the Twenty-third Regiment Armory is indicative of the prosperity of the automobile trade in the East. Last year the association did not give a show and the event was sharply missed.

BILLIARD NOTES.

Foremost in the events of a busy week at billiards comes the balk-line exhibition game between Ora Morningstar and Redyard Blake tomorrow evening.

From the form shown by both men in practice, the game of 300 points is likely to be short. Blake, the strongest amateur who has yet appeared here, has been averaging from twelve to seventeen in long games, and Morningstar, one of the greatest masters living, has beaten the world record in private tryouts. The contest is open to the public at No. 333 South Spring street, Hill's parlors.

The Union League has shown unusual enterprise by engaging Morningstar for a series of lectures on billiards, with illustrative play and criticisms of the play of members. These evenings are to commence as soon as pending contests are out of the way, and within the next fortnight.

The amateur three-cushion tournament at Voorhies's rooms ends this week, with the exception of one game, that between the leaders, Merrill and Smith, which is set for next Monday. Pairings of the last round follow:

Monday, Root and Thomas; Tuesday, Giles and Merrill; Wednesday, Green and Rose; Thursday, Brady and Root.

Well Run Off.

ALHAMBRA HIGH WINS TRACK MEET AT MONROVIA

BY AD G. WADDELL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Feb. 27.—With a score of 48 points against 22 run up by the Alhambra boys, Monrovia High School won the second annual United Student Body Association track meet here today. There were six schools represented in the list. El Monte High is a member of the prep conference, but no athletes representing that city answered roll call today.

Claremont High was third in the reckoning, with 18 points. Bonita High scored 16½, Covina 14½ and Citrus Union brought up the rear, with 6 counts.

RUN OFF WELL.

The meet was run off like an eastern varsity conference affair. The officials were on the job every minute and the events kept moving. It was like a three-ring circus and there was not a hitch in the programme.

There were enough spectators in the over-crowded grand stand and on the side lines to make some of the Southern California college meets look like rainy-day funerals and there was some real enthusiasm displayed.

LATE SHOW.

With all the dash and pep, the show ran late into the evening and when the relay number came on there were enough automobile lights focused on the field to make it look like an exposition on opening night.

While the time in the dashes was fast, the field events did not show much class, but when it is taken into consideration that this is the second year of track athletics for this High School conference, the athletes and the coaches deserve great credit.

SMITH STAR.

The one bright star of the afternoon's entertainment was a Monrovia boy by the name of Smith. Lester Smith, to be exact. This Smith boy won 23 of the 48 points scored by his team.

With seemingly little effort, Mr. Smith took the high jump at 5ft. 6in. While the elevation event was in progress, he took time out to win the high hurdles in 17s. He then entered the shot put and pole vault, chasing back and forth across the lot to take his turn in these events. Second place was the best he could do in the shot put, but he won the pole vault hands down.

While the pole vault was still in the spot light, Smith was doing his turn at the broad jump and won this event with a leap of 19ft. 7in. The Monrovia star is 20 years of age and this is his last year in High School athletics. He is at least two years from graduation and it is doubtful if he will remain in the game until he is able to enter college.

An abbreviated youngster named Eddie Green, from Bonita High, won 15 points for his school, taking the fifty, 100 and 220 dashes. Green is about four feet five inches tall and when he runs he reminds one of a frightened mountain quail. This Green lad is the manager and master spirit behind the track athletics at Bonita High School. Last year in the conference meet, the best he could get was a fifth place in one of the heats of the fifty-yard dash. This year he proved up as the star sprinter of the gathering. There is no coach at Bonita and Green, with his two brothers, does all the tutoring for the team.

NOT ENOUGH SUITS.

There were so many athletes entered that there were not enough track suits to go round at Monrovia, so some of the hopefuls wore silk shirts and patent leather shoes.

A young gentleman who bears the identification mark of Aiken and who is also an interscholastic pitcher of some fame, was hailed by the Monrovia coach and asked to get ready for the shot put. Aiken stepped into the ring, removed his coat and hat and heaved the lead in the vicinity of forty feet.

When he horned into the finals, he consented to remove his collar, but at that he was unable to get better than fourth place.

VAUDEVILLE SHOW.

Tonight the combined talent of the six schools are putting on a vaudeville show here. The proceeds will be diverted to the channels that turn out medals and when the proper time comes, the young men who starred today will be rewarded in metallic souvenirs.

The summaries:

The 50-yard dash, first heat—Havenor, Alhambra, won; E. Green, Bonita, second; Arren, Covina, third. Time, 5 2-5s.

TROUT MAY BE ON SALE HERE.

UTAH MAY BE ALLOWED TO SHIP FISH IN.

H. N. Welch to go Before Legislature and Ask that Present Barriers be Removed—California Favors Plan Provided the Local Streams Can be Protected.

Mountain trout will be found on the market in California the year around if the State Legislature approves of the measure to amend the present law on importation.

As the law now stands it is forbidden to ship trout into this State, except during our open season. The fish thus imported must all weigh one pound or more, which is not a good market size. From seven to nine inches is the most desirable size.

MAY PASS.

H. N. Welch, who represents the Utah Commercial Trout Hatcheries, is now in Los Angeles. He has conferred with the Fish and Game Commission and many prominent local men interested in the plan. He is now prepared to go before the Legislature and present the matter in the proper form.

Contrary to the idea of the Utah people, our present law was not made to protect commercial hatcheries in this State, but to protect our wild trout during the closed season.

Ernest Schaeffle, executive officer of the commission, told Welch that he was in sympathy with his plan, provided some means can be devised of preventing fishermen from taking trout from California streams when the fishing season is closed and putting them on the market as Utah fish. This may be arranged in a number of ways.

PROTECT TROUT HERE.

As long as the Fish and Game Commission of this State is allowed to regulate the importation, so that our wild fish will not suffer, it is in favor of removing the present law. Utah or any other State may ship all they want here, provided the requirements are met.

The proper handling of this matter will tend to conserve our trout rather than deplete them. The market price will be so reasonable that commercial fishermen could not compete with it. The present limit law and the law calling for trout to be taken with hook and line only, would make it impossible.

Conditions for raising trout for commercial purposes are very unfavorable in California. The condition of the water here causes disease and it is impossible to make the industry pay. The State hatcheries raise great numbers every year, but they are transferred to the open streams when very small.

MANY ORDERS.

In Utah, however, it is different. The only difficulty there is that the market is not large enough. There are twenty-nine hatcheries in the State, representing an investment of almost $1,000,000.

Welch has already taken many orders from the hotels and cafes of Los Angeles, to be filled as soon as the present law is changed. The railroads have also agreed to place the fish on the bills of fare in their dining cars.

If the Legislature passes favorably on the plan, the people of California will be able to procure through the entire year a luxury to be found in few parts of the country.

Bowing to the request of the St. Paul Automobile Club, the Minnesota Legislature has increased the automobile license fee from $1.50 to $5 for a period of three years, and the dealer's demonstrating license fee from $10 to $20. All surplus remaining after the expenses of the license bureau have been paid is to go into the road fund, which is the reason why the Minnesota motorists were so anxious to pay more money for their tags.

MISS SEARS WINS POLO PONY BY SHAKING DICE

It is Whispered About Coronado that Such is a Fact, but Nobody Knows Anything About the Game. Women to Organize Team Next Week — Miss Eleonora Sears Learning to Pilot Flying Boat.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 27.—Shaking dice may not be exactly an out-of-door sport, but it's exciting anyway and Eleonora, if you please not Eleanor, nor Eleanora, Sears excels in it, as she does in all sports. In fact, that young woman is the possessor of a polo pony as the result of a game last night, and it is whispered that the loser was pretty Mrs. Devereux Milburn, though no one knows anything about the game.

WOMEN TO PLAY.

Miss Sears will have an opportunity to use her polo pony next week when a large party of the Burlingame Club people are expected at Coronado from the north and many gay times are planned.

Mrs. Garrett Kip, Mrs. Rumsey, Mrs. Milburn and Miss Kathryn Steele, all play polo and with the northern crowd there will be enough women polo[ists] to make up two teams. Riding costumes are the thing at the Coronado Hotel at present, as nearly one hundred women of the smart set now spend most of the time

Covina Falls.

WHITTIER HIGH WINS PREP BASKETBALL TITLE

WHITTIER HIGH SCHOOL won the Southern California basketball championship for the fourth successive time yesterday, when Covina was defeated in the title finals at Manual Arts, 38 to 32.

Covina is accustomed to an out-door court, Whittier to an indoor court; so half of the game was uplayed inside and half out.

At the end of the first half, which was played in the gym, Whittier was leading, 16 to 11. The score for the second half on the out-door court was 22 to 21 in Whittier's favor.

The game was hard fought, close enough at all times to be exciting and filled with enough basket shooting to be spectacular.

Covina had a large crowd of rooters at Manual Arts, who cheered for the losers until the end, never once giving up hope. During the second half they made one continuous howl.

Deam and Benton were the clever basketball tossers for [illegible] scored sixteen points [illegible] twelve. The work of [illegible] the more remarkable, [illegible] had his broken arm taken [illegible] sling last week and has [illegible] for three months.

REDLANDS HIGH WINS TRIANGLE TRACK MEET

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Feb. 27.—By annexing second and third places, Redlands High School won the triangular track and field meet held here today between the Redlands, San Bernardino and Riverside High Schools, scoring 48 points. San Bernardino was second, with 33, and Riverside, although taking four first places, was last, with 27.

Redlands ran away with the honors by only placing first in three events, while San Bernardino, which was second, took five firsts.

HOUSE STAR.

Riverside, or rather Meredith ("Jud") House, the versatile cinder performer of that institution, took three firsts for his team, winning the high and low hurdles and the broad jump. House's winning leap in the broad jump went 21ft. 3in. and he did not extend himself.

Leeper, the San Bernardino sprinter, had his own way in both the 100 and 220-yard dashes, emerging victorious in both events. Martin of Riverside carried off the honors in the mile, Norwood of San Bernardino won the 440-yard dash and Yount of Redlands galloped away with the half-mile.

In the field events Redlands took all three places in the discus and won first in the shot put. Mendenhall starred with the weights.

Bradley of San Bernardino won the high jump. The relay resulted in a dead heat between Redlands and San Bernardino.

MURRAY IN A CAFETERIA.

American Association Umpire Shoulders Tray to Martial Music with Waitresses, Gets a Bargain-Counter Rate from Cashier and Pays Two Cents Extra so as not to Break a Nickel.

JIM MURRAY, American Association umpire, who has been wintering his way along in Los Angeles, recently had his first cafeteria experience. His act was not deliberate, premeditated or wilful. He just happened in.

Strolling down the street, Jim was suddenly overcome by hunger. Without stopping to investigate or count the cost, he dived into one of these self-generating grub garages.

MARTIAL MUSIC.

At first he was inclined to beat a precipitate retreat, but that inward craving for food goaded him on.

Balancing a tray on one shoulder, he marched down the victual line to the strains of martial music by the orchestra.

"You forgot your tools," said the first waiter, when Murray showed up minus the regulation equipment, consisting of a knife, fork and spoon. "Must think that you're goin' to eat off the home plate."

"Anyway, I never ate out of anybody's hand," came back the ump. "Think I will tackle some chicken."

TOUCHING THE BASES.

"What part do you prefer?"

"Any part but the bone."

"Spinach?" asked the next server.

"Naw; I raise that on my chin," replied Murray, engaging in a life-and-death struggle with his tray, which was trying to escape compromise on alfalfa."

CHEST-PROTECTOR.

"Guess you overlooked my protector," remarked the waitress, picking up a napkin and using it under Jim's chin.

"Lemon with your salad?" asked the next waitress.

"Don't try to kid me," said Murray.

"No chance. Nature beat it," was the artful reply.

These waitresses are pretty at times.

Jim beat it down to the end of the line, where a young lady with an adding machine gave his bill a once over.

"Forty-three cents," said the cashier.

"Go awn; I'm not looking for cut rates," said Murray.

He handed over 45 cents.

DANCES.

This evening at the usual week-end dance at Coronado, Miss Sears electrified society by dancing, the first time since her arrival here as she has been in mourning and has but seldom appeared at the social functions of the Coronado set. She danced as well as she rides, which is saying a good deal.

FLYING BOAT.

Training for a swimming contest which she proposes to enter next week and learning to pilot a flying boat, along with a few other things like tennis matches, polo practice, billiards and boating, keep the hours fairly full for even as strenuous a person as Miss Sears.

LATE ARRIVALS.

ANGELS DROP FIRST GAME.

"United States Smith" Does the Deed.

Dillon Tries Out a Long List of Hurlers.

Sawtelle Gang Anything but Old Soldiers.

The old awning was hauled up yesterday afternoon, carefully and tenderly released from its hooks, sprinkled with moth balls and stowed away to think over its performance during these winter months. In other words, the 1915 baseball season was unwrapped and the prefatory ceremonies performed.

Before proceeding further into details of all that actually took place, it may be mentioned that "United States" Smith clipped off his shirt and crushed fourteen Angels and won his game, 6 to 3.

For the Old Soldiers' Home could put out a club capable of walloping what is considered a serious pennant contender for the Coast League this year does not appeal as quite humorous to the hearing organs. Players from all sections of the hemisphere opposed the aggregation that wears Cap Dillon's collection of Angels.

ANNOUNCING.

It was exactly two and a half minutes after the noon meal had been served that Umpire Finney, all dolled up in his working equipment, stalked out before the newly-painted and whitewashed stands, politely removed his fireplace and bellowed:

"Ladies and gentlemen, the batteries for today's game are: Ryan and Hoffman for Los Angeles, Smith and Bassler for Sawtelle."

At short intervals during the progress of the game Finney halted the conflict long enough to announce the drill of battery scenery.

Not caring to overwork his pitching department, Dillon contented himself with allowing Ryan, Cheeh and Perritt to decorate the timber situated in the immediate vicinity of pitcher's box.

FIRST RUN.

As Cornett's club was unable to establish business relations with Ryan's first inning, nor the second or third, but "United States" Smith was relieved of three runs and a perfectly good run in the opening chapter.

After McMullin had been preserved by Butler and W. Smith, and Metzger had met his demise singlehanded by W. Smith, Harry Harper walked to right field, the hit being badly misjudged by Mitchell. Not caring to be outdone by Harper, Abbott also drove out a two-bagger into left center. Harper passed through all stations on this clout. Maggert then pushed the ball down the third base line and beat out the hit, but Finney, Graham then carried little Harry out toward Watts with a line drive through short. After Heilman had aviated out as far as Harper, Ryan assumed ownership of the pigskin bag, being so cussed mean as to steal it. Butler drove a one-base hit to center. Flick drove a grounder at Metzger's big feet, but before arriving to the territory covered by 'Metz's' mitt, the ball collided with a cobble stone and bounced out into the left field, scoring Graham.

ANGELS SCORE.

The first resemblance to a run was put up on the Angel scoreboard in the seventh. Terry unfurled this round by plastering a two-bagger against the right-field wall, took second on Perritt's infield death, and scored when Boles pumped a single from his bat.

The Sawtelle gang riddled Perritt to a certain extent in the ninth. All have to admit that it requires a ...ose riddling to riddle a man of Perritt's build.

Butler and Flick buzzed singles past first like that, populating the initial two stations. It appears as though Perritt possess a natural desire to see full houses, in that he passed Bassler, cramming the bags to capacity. United States Smith popped to Harper, Butler registering after the catch. Mitchell singled, advancing Flick and Butler as far as home.

COMICAL.

It was here that "Polly" Perritt displayed his comical ability. Schultz was safe on Metzger's boot and W. Smith singled, sending Schultz to second. He went on a little further, however, and Perritt threw to McMullin, in an endeavor to embalm Schultz. Being a sensitive individual, Schultz followed his nose and kept on toward third. "Polly" threw to head him off, and as he did so the entire Angel team gathered on the base line. Finally Schultz decided that he would look better on second than third base, so returned, evading all attempts of Perritt to jam the ball into his ribs.

Failing to tag Schultz out Perritt turned facing the ocean, but found he was facing Smith instead, and he very rudely shoved the little ball far into Walt's well developed side spokes, ending the game. The score:

SMALL CROWD WITNESSES RACES.

RUNNING HORSES MAY BE AT END HERE.

Polora Throws Jockey Pegg and Runs Around to Barns—Dazzle Gets Left at Post in Six-furlong Event—Vespacian Continued to be Favorite—Jimalong Wins.

Today will probably see the finish of horse racing in Los Angeles for some time. The public has not taken very kindly to the game as it must now be operated, and the management has about decided to discontinue the meet.

The attendance yesterday was very small and it could well be seen that those were there more out of curiosity.

Vespacian was the only favorite that came through yesterday. Dazzle, the little chestnut that has been showing heels to all comers, was left at the post in the six-furlong event which was won by Lady M.M.

As the field was lined to start in the third race, Jockey Pegg on Palora was thrown and the horse ran around to the barns and turned into the paddock. In the fourth race Lucky B., with Jones up, was left at the post.

Yesterday's results:

First race, three and a half furlongs:
Rosy Alf, 106 (Miss Josie Duncan,) Roberts.....First
Daruma, 110 (J. Farnsworth,) Carr.....Second
Sweetheart, 108 (N. Fitzgerald,) Pegg.....Third

SEVERANCE IS GOLF WINNER.

REDLANDS SWEEPSTAKES ARE PLAYED.

Day Ideal and Low Scores are Turned In—Hornby Finishes Second, Aymar Third—Severance Gets a Leg on Phillips Cup—Sixteen Qualify for Championship.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, Feb. 27.—M. S. Severance registered his first victory for several weeks in the weekly sweepstakes of the Redlands Country Club golfers this afternoon. There were two big events for the afternoon, the "sweeps" and the qualifying round for the club championship, a cup donated by the directors, being the prize worked for.

It was an ideal day for play and some good scores were made. By his performance yesterday, Severance gets a leg on the Phillips cup. The sixteen men who qualified for the championship are given in the order in which they finished, some of them not having played in the sweepstakes.

They are R. Hornby, whose gross score was the lowest; M. S. Phillips, R. Herold, A. E. Sterling, A. Will, B. Aymar, W. P. Burke, W. E. Rabbeth, L. R. Gay, S. R. Hotchkiss, E. Stauffin, C. N. Meyers, O. H. Hicks, E. S. Graham, A. O. Mason and W. M. Kerr, whose gross was the highest.

The scoring in the sweepstakes was as follows:

Name—	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
M. S. Severance	89	14	75
R. Hornby	83	4	79
B. Aymar	95	16	79
A. E. Sterling	93	13	80
W. P. Burke	100	20	80
E. Stauffin	104	24	80

O. H. Hicks	107	15	92
W. M. Kerr	111	15	96

Both the Cleveland Automobile Club and the Ohio State Automobile Association are backing a bill before the Ohio Legislature aimed at halting motor thefts. The measure provides for a fine of $200 or imprisonment for six months for anyone who receives, buys, conceals or disposes of a car of which the manufacturer's serial number or the distinguishing mark or other means of identification has been defaced, removed or covered.

EIGHT KING EIGHT

EIGHT CYLINDER KING
PROVES PUBLIC MOTOR WISE

The wonderful reception given the new King eight proves conclusively that the people recognize that the motor industry has made an important advance.

The buyers of today do not want obsolete models. The people realize that some of the so-called 1915 six cylinder cars will be as far out of date next year as the two cylinder machine is today.

A ride in an eight will convince anyone. It is the car the dreamer has looked forward to. It is the car that gives what every motorist has wanted in a motor car, compactness, luxury, ease of operation, continuous flow of power, hill climbing ability, lack of vibration and extreme flexibility.

And with it all is a beautiful finish and design. We are proud of the King Eight. We are proud to be so closely identified with such a progressive step in the advance of the modern motor car.

$1475 F.O.B. LOS ANGELES

The world's first popular priced eight is the one big outstanding feature of the 1915 season.

This new King is not a cheap car, but at the same time it is offered at a price that does not place it beyond the reach of the purchaser of a medium priced car.

It has everything that can be found in the most luxurious of automobiles—and a little more.

The motor measures 2 1-4 by 5 and develops 40-45 horse power. The wheelbase is 113 inches—the accepted ideal size for all uses—cantilever springs in the rear—electric lighting and starting—highest grade upholstery and complete equipment.

We invite the closest inspection.

Orders are now being booked and cars will be delivered in the order in which deposits are placed.

Route to Santa Barbara.

from its scout cars, the road through the Newhall tunnel and thence over the Castaic will be open in the near future.

On this special tour, wonders of California's golden past and many of her glittering future are included, making it a true "landmark tour." The world's largest beet sugar refinery is seen at Oxnard, the world's largest bean fields are seen through Ventura county, one of the world's richest suburbs is open for inspection at Montecito, and California's most beautiful and most ill-used mountain pass, the Casitas, is crumbling into ruin like the missions—for lack of attention.

Motorists who are contemplating this trip are being dispatched at present by the auto club touring bureau through Hollywood and the Cahuenga Pass to the wide sweep of the San Fernando Valley, thence across the San Fernando road and on to the San Fernando Mission, founded in 1797, where it is said Father Francisco Lopez, pulling up a beet by the roots, discovered the first California gold nugget.

Continue westward to Chatsworth, where a turn to the right is made into the Santa Susana Pass, crossing the county line at the summit. Follow the auto club signs through Santa Susana, Simi and Moorpark, turning left at Somis to Camarillo over a good dirt road.

At Oxnard, which is a short distance off the recommended route, is the mammoth sugar refinery, sweetly sifting sugar for civilians in greater quantities than at any other one place in the world.

For Santa Barbara continue on to Ventura, home of the San Buenaventura mission, founded in March, 1782, and known later as the Garden of Eden, because of its fertile crops and vast herds. After this, the motorist will tour over the Rincoln sea-level road, built above the ocean in places, and following the shore line for many miles, rivaling the Riviera in scenic beauty.

Casitas Pass is closed. Designated on the map as "No. 6," it has been given place by auto club officials because of its dead grandeur, since it has been allowed to fall into ruin from the ravins, thus losing to California a natural marvel. It is off the recommended route.

The oil wells under the sea at Summerfield are phenomena peculiar to Southern California. Before entering Santa Barbara, 106 miles from Los Angeles, a short tour of Montecito, remarkable for its beautiful homes, may be taken. In Santa Barbara inquiry at the auto club branch office will put the motorist on the road to the Santa Barbara mission, founded in 1786, and now one of the most beautiful missions in actual use.

For added information on the tour, application should be made at the auto club headquarters on Figueroa street.

SAN DIEGO STRONG FOR BASEBALL.

INDIANAPOLIS, VENICE AND WHITE SOX TO PLAY GAMES THERE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 27.—Baseball fans who visit the San Diego exposition during the late winter and early spring will be offered innumerable opportunities to see stars of the national game from all parts of the country in action. For many years Southern California has been a headquarters for big league and class AA teams on their training trips, and this year, with the exposition in this city, San Diego has become a baseball center even more than ever before. The Venice Tigers of the Pacific Coast League and the Indianapolis Hoosiers of the American Association already have announced that their training headquarters will be in the exposition city; while the big league teams which train in the Southwest are planning to play exhibition games on the exposition grounds.

There is considerable rivalry between the magnates to see which can secure the greatest number of games on the Pacific Coast. The Chicago White Sox were among the first on the scene, and promptly went through the calendar, picking out the most promising dates. Other teams, however, anxious to take advantage of the crowds which will visit the two California expositions during the early spring, quickly abandoned the idea of playing games in cities further east, and the number of open dates in cities along the Pacific Slope is decreasing rapidly. By the time the first men arrive to take the winter kinks out of their muscles, practically every available date probably will be gone.

Incidentally, players in the various winter leagues of Southern California find considerable satisfaction in the trend of events. The stars who pass the winter months playing ball in this section welcome the prospect of meeting their teams at the expositions. Many a ball-tosser will have extra dollars in his pockets because he will not have to make the trip to Texas or the Southern Mississippi Valley to join his team-mates.

March 26 and 27 are the dates selected for the annual convention of the Ohio State Automobile Association. The delegates will meet in Toledo.

TROJANS WIN FROM HUNS, 5-3.

Benson is Touched up for Eight Hits.

Anybody's Game Until the Last Inning.

Pomona Gets All Her Runs in Fourth.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Feb. 27.—U.S.C. assured herself of second place in the conference race here today by handing Pomona a 5-to-3 beating. The game proved to be the closest and most exciting contest that has taken place among the colleges in the south this year, and it was anybody's ball game right up to the last inning.

HIT THE BALL.

For the first time this year, the Huns managed to hit the ball, securing eight wallops off the delivery of Pitcher Benson. At that, the Trojan hurler managed to pitch tight ball in the pinches and was at his best with men on bases. Both Trojans and Sage Hens had men on bases in almost every inning.

The break came in the fourth inning. Canepa was hit by a pitched ball and Patterson sacrificed him to second. Hirsch hit a ball at the Sage Hen third baseman, which he knocked down, but allowed Canepa to score when he threw low to first. Hirsch advanced to second on the error and scored a moment later when Elliott overthrew third in attempting to catch him stealing.

HUNS COME BACK.

The Huns came back in their half of the fourth and scored three runs. Bray was safe on an error by shortstop and stole second. Youngman scored him with a long two-bagger to center. The Sage Hen captain scored and Elliott took second when Wright overthrew first on Elliott's grounder. Conley sacrificed Elliott to third and a moment later the third run came across on Sugg's single to center. Cree and Staples singled in succession, leaving the bases full, but Benson came through in the pinch by fanning Bergstrom and Given.

U.S.C. forged ahead again in the fifth. Young and Halloway singled and both scored on Canepa's three-bagger to right. Canepa was caught at the plate.

INDORSEMENT FOR PRODUCT.

P.C.A.C. PASS UPON RIM-GRIP SUB CASINGS.

Association of Professional Chauffeurs, Who are All Experts on Automobile Subjects, Get Together and Send a Written Indorsement to Local Firm of Manufacturers.

The officials of the Western Auto Sub Casing Company, Inc., No. 1044 South Los Angeles street, announce that their product, Fisher "rim grip" sub casings, has received an overwhelming indorsement this week.

This indorsement, coming from the Professional Chauffeurs' Association of California, clearly indicates, so the manufacturers of Fisher "rim grip" sub casings state, that the highest expert testimony has been added to that of numerous other prominent authorities and all coincide in testifying to the merits of this local product.

The Professional Chauffeurs' Association of California is an organization of experts, who have proven their ability to join the association by passing the most difficult technical and practical examinations; therefore, their indorsement coming from such an association is unusual and highly desirable.

The indorsement reads as follows:

February 20, 1915.

Western Auto Sub Casing Company,

Gentlemen: At a recent meeting of our association the question of indorsing your sub casing was brought before the house by L. M. Lynn, secretary-treasurer of the association. In view of the fact that a number of our members are now using your product and speak highly of it, we do not hesitate to give you our indorsement. O. W. McKillip says that he has obtained over 5000 miles with an old tire which, as he put it, was ready for the scrap heap. Wishing you every success and trusting that your business will be always on the increase, we are

Yours very truly,

[Signed]

PROFESSIONAL CHAUFFEURS' ASSOCIATION OF CALIFORNIA.

D. P. OATMAN,

Chairman Board of Directors.

Motortrucks to the value of $3,333,000 were exported in December, 1914, according to preliminary figures, which have been issued by the United States Department of Commerce. In December of the preceding year only $101,000 worth were exported, showing a net gain of 3300 per cent. Of the total number of automobiles and trucks shipped abroad in December, 1914, France took $2,500,000 worth, Great Britain $1,000,000 worth and the remainder of the world $500,000 worth.

land club, who is wintering here. He also will sign up a Billy Widner, a local broiler, while "Red" Kuhn, II, infant brother of "Red" Kuhn of the White Sox, has already placed his name on a Portland contract.

Should these fail to deliver, or Mac fall down in his efforts to get Bassler, he will then set to work at fashioning Davis into a backstop.

WHAT WILL HE SAY?

Just how "Bobby" will fancy acting as a shock absorber is not known, but his feelings in the matter are not considered of any importance whatever.

McCredie yesterday took occasion to extend the once over to U. S. Smith, the pitcher he secured from the Tigers, and then tagged him for New Orleans.

He wanted to get a line on Smith for future reference. Smith pitched good ball in all but two innings, and his achievement in beating the Angels may have impressed Mac, although this is by no means certain.

SMITH LEAVES.

Smith is due to depart for the South today, a move which he regards as getting back into the United States. Smitty has long carried the idea under his hat that Southern California is in the Philippine Islands.

"Never touched me," said Mac, when asked about the eighteen-player limit. "If a man can't win a pennant with eighteen players he will fall down with twenty-eight."

McCredie will go his rivals one better by lugging but seventeen men around the circuit with him. This will give him two catchers, six pitchers, five infielders and four outfielders.

In his pennant-winning years, Mac has usually carried only from sixteen to eighteen men, the same proving conclusively that it is quality rather than force of numbers that counts in baseball.

Chronic idlers seldom have been seen festooning the Portland bench.

"If you carry a big surplus of men, some of them accept it as an excuse to loaf, while others, who may want to work, are frequently forced to sit on the bench and rust out," said McCredie. For several years now he has successfully operated on this theory.

The Tigers, showing signs of some condition and considerable sunburn, returned yesterday from their training camp de luxe at Maier's ranch, where they have been communing with nature and three square meals a day for the space of a week.

Comprising the group of hardy mountaineers were Manager Hogan, Dick Bayless, "Swede" Riseberg, Franz Hosp, Rhino Hitt, J. Hiram West, Donald Rader, Kid Piercey, Augustus Gleichmann, "Gasoline Gus" Hetling, John Joseph Bliss, "Tub" Spencer, Charlie Roberts and "Hurdler" Wilhoit. Big Chief Maier remained at the ranch, but about Tuesday will inspect the club in San Diego, for which point the bunch will leave tomorrow morning.

AFTER TOMORROW.

By that time the squad will be swelled by the addition of Walter Carlisle, Frank Decanniere and J. J. Kane. The latter returned last night from the Murietta muddery, where he has been smearing himself with rich, liquid loam for the past month.

Johnny learned so much about mud that he is thinking of starting a brick yard.

Billy Purtell is on his way here from Columbus, O., and is likely to arrive at any moment now. Mitze, who wintered in the justly-celebrated State of Missouri, will leave for Los Angeles tomorrow, according to a wire received by Hap. Koestener, Henley and Yantz will report early in the week, while Roy Mitchell, the pitcher purchased from the St. Louis Browns, will probably put in an appearance within the next ten days. Joe Berger will not join the team until the latter part of March. Meantime he is undergoing severe training with the White Sox.

MURRAY SIGNS.

Jim Murray, umpire, yesterday received his contract from the American Association. The association retains the double-umpire system, but makes heavy retrenchment in another direction by reducing to sixteen men per club.

It is probable that Billy Pare, former Angel second baseman, will land in the Southern Association. He yesterday dispatched a wire to Birmingham in an effort to ascertain what might be doing in a business way down there. Most players shun the southern circuit on account of the torrid weather. Page figures that this kind of a temperature will be just to his liking. The change here from warm days to cool nights didn't agree with Bill's elbow.

CINCINNATI WINS EASILY.

Capt. Rheinhart Forced Out by Injury.

Falls from Horse and Gets Hit by Mallet.

All-American Championship Today.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 27.—This was Capt. Rheinhart's hoodoo day apparently, as far as polo was concerned. Capt. Rheinhart, a good horseman and fast player, was twice dismounted while playing on the Coronado team today, the second time being unable to finish the game.

THE PLAYERS.

The Cincinnati Club team won a decided victory over the Coronado team by a score of 10 3-4 to 3 1-4. Rene Le Montagne played a brilliant game at No. 2 for the Cincinnati team. He goaled five times, receiving splendid support from Capt. Fleischmann at No. 3. Reggie Weiss, playing back on the same team, was on the job every minute and defended the goal beautifully.

Coronado's line-up was: No. 1, Walter Dupee; No. 2, Capt. Reinhart; No. 3, S. Lee; back, Thomas Le Boutillier. After the fourth period Le Boutillier took Lee's place and Devereaux Milburn played back.

THE INJURY.

In the second period Capt. Reinhart was thrown from his horse, which rolled over many times, but Reinhart was uninjured. Again in the seventh period Capt. Reinhart received a hard drive on the helmet from Le Montagne and was unable to finish the game, though he was not seriously injured.

The All-American championship match will be played tomorrow by Cooperstown and Onwentsia.

RAIN HELPED THIS DEALER.

BECAUSE HE REPAIRS BROKEN TOPS AND BODIES.

Havoc Wrought by the Storms of Past Weeks Brought Him More Business than He has had for a Long Time—Is Fixing up Some Brand New Designs for New Cars.

Found. One automobile man who blessed the rain, and declared it was good for his immediate business, as well as the future profits. He is Frank K. Weidler, manager of the Bantel & Mackey body-building plant and mechanical works.

According to Weidler, his trim shop has been busier than it was for months. The workmen have been kept busy repairing and recovering tops, and replacing broken lights in storm curtains. No less than forty-five storm curtains were repaired in the last week.

With the extra work caused by the rain, and the regular output, the body shop has been working full capacity. A gentleman's roadster on a Simplex chassis was delivered to Charles F. Rhodes last week. Mr. Rhodes is the Dayton Airless Tire man. Mr. Rhodes was delighted with the job, which is of the pure stream line type, and very racy in appearance.

The racing roadster body being mounted on a Benz chassis for Chance is nearly finished. It is in the paint shop, and the last of the varnish are being applied. The touring car which Chance has had for several seasons thus will be converted into a speedster.

The demountable limousine body being built for Thomas H. Ince, the movie man, is in the upholstering shop, and soon will be ready for the painters. Only the finest of leather obtainable are being used for the body, and the workmanship is that of Quinby.

A garage that has never been built but for which the plans have been drawn, is concrete enough to be entangled with a lien on the property, the Minnesota Supreme Court has decided the court holds that the architect of a garage is entitled to pay for his work of drawing up the plans, if he can secure a lien against the premises, although the structure was not erected. The decision of the Supreme Court upheld the lower court decision of the lower court, which handed down some time ago.

"She Just Made Good —That's All!"

¶ Mr. Burgess, the Jeffery district manager for the Pacific Coast, was showing us some figures the other day on the remarkable sales of Jeffery Fours throughout the country.

¶ How do you account for such persistent demands from all quarters for "The Four," when we hear so much "Six" talk and Jeffery is, himself, building two wonderful "Six" models? we asked him.

¶ "She just made good—that's all," said he, with a bang.

¶ After all, that is the answer to every big motor car success.

¶ The buyer of a motor car today demands that a car make good, and when it does, the news spreads because motorists are a big family with much in common.

¶ Then there are a certain number of thousands of buyers in this country—a lot of them in Southern California, who buy only the car that has made good and will not be influenced by price, long trades, split profits or anything else.

¶ That's why The Jeffery Four is still the leader in the four-cylinder field.

¶ That's why we have just bought four more carloads of them.

¶ And why did she make good?

¶ The Jeffery Four introduced five thousand dollar quality into a moderate priced car and along with it engineering practice and design, new in this country, but proven in Europe.

¶ A car must make good if built in a big, modern, well equipped and well financed plant like Jeffery's if it contains imported annular ball bearings, vanadium steel parts, a high speed, high efficiency European type of motor, full floatingt rear axle, Daimler leather couplings, Spicer universals and the highest priced starting and lighting system on the market.

¶ Such specifications in a car of the fifteen hundred dollar class is the marvel of the motor car industry today. Check it up yourself or have your garage man help you.

¶ It would be well for you to drop in and look over this car before these twelve are spoken for.

¶ The new Jeffery Chesterfield Six is also on the floor and the much talked about little "Fiat 30."

If Geared as Low, Will Equal or Better the Performance of any Eight-Cylinder Car

There has been a tremendous jumping to eight-cylinder motors on the part of a number of factories.

A careful analysis, however, shows the VAST MAJORITY of those announcing eight-cylinder motors have been small manufacturers with a small output.

They have thought the untried eight MIGHT stimulate their sales, BUT THE SO-CALLED SUPERIORITY OF THE EIGHT-CYLINDER LIES IN THE GEAR RATIO, NOT THE MOTOR.

Nearly all the "eights" are geared 5 to 1 and some even lower. A CHALMERS SIX, IF GEARED AS LOW, GIVES THE SAME OR BETTER PERFORMANCE.

MR. TWEE DEEDLE

1.—"Look, Mr. Twee Deedle!" cried Dickie, as he ran up to Mr. Twee Deedle, who was sitting upon a stone, "that man is in trouble; he is crying!"

"Let's see if we can help him!" Mr. Twee Deedle answered.

2.—"Poor old Bossy is very sick!" the man explained, "and as I cannot afford to have the doctor come out to my place, I have to take Bossy in to see him."

"Let us take Bossy!" Dickie said at the suggestion of Mr. Twee Deedle, who was invisible to the man.

3.—The man refused to let Dickie have the cow. Mr. Twee Deedle and Dickie hopped upon Bossy's back. Mr. Twee Deedle said a word of magic. The cow, to the great surprise of the man, flew up in the air and was soon lost to his sight.

4.—They finally came to earth in a great forest. A cute little lady came to meet them, when Mr. Twee Deedle told her all about Bossy. The little lady called her sister and said that they would soon have Bossy in good health.

5.—The little lady said "Hickity Pickity Pooh!" and instantly there was a large soft bed into which they all helped to lift Bossy. Then Mr. Twee Deedle whistled and Dr. Giggle came and fixed some of his magic medicine. One of the little ladies brought Bossy a lot of steamed corn, while the other fed her the medicine from a bottle.

6.—The next day Bossy was as fat as butter. She felt as young as a calf, so Mr. Twee Deedle and Dickie took her back to the man and his wife, who could scarcely believe their eyes. They thought it surely must be another cow. The woman brought Dickie a large bag of home made cookies for his kindness.

"Now we can have lots of milk and make butter to sell," she said.

"Why, there's a bottle!" Dolly says.
"I wonder what's inside?"

She opens it. A curling smoke
Streams up, and spreading wide,

"Your wish!" he fiercely cries.

"It sounds good, but Eve's middle name was curiosity."

"Er—please fold up again," says Dot.
"Your very smallest size."

"To hear is to obey," he growls;
"Slaves of the Seal are we!"

"Henceforth," says Dot, "I'll be no slave
To curiosity."

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

KEEPING THE BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARIES.

"WE don't believe in keeping birthdays at our house."

The speaker was one of two women sitting near me in the reception room of a hotel where I was awaiting a friend. The tone was so emphatic that I involuntarily listened for the response of the other of the couple.

"Well, I don't know but you are right," she said hesitatingly. "Of course my husband has little patience with that sort of thing. You know what a practical man he is, and he says Christmas is bad enough without having to fuss about presents at other times of the year—but the children always feel bad if we don't have some sort of celebration for them, and so we usually have a cake or something of the kind."

"I don't approve of it at all." The first speaker had the floor again. "My children have never had anything different on their birthdays from other days and I don't believe they even know the dates on which their father and I were born. In my opinion you can make a much better use of time and money than in spending them on these foolish family festivals."

I could not refrain from stealing a glance at the emphatic woman who had made the last remark and saw her to be well dressed and prosperous in appearance, with no sign that she grudged spending either time or money on her toilet.

As I made my way homeward my thoughts lingered on the conversation I had overheard and I wondered if there were many others who held the same point of view. How far does my own attitude—or, rather, my family attitude—differ from that of the majority of households? Do most persons make a festival of birthdays, or is the date permitted to pass without notice? And if birthdays are not totally ignored, what kind of attention do they usually receive?

My mind turned naturally to the methods of commemoration with which I was most familiar. When I was a child I don't recollect that so much stress was laid upon birthdays. I know mine never received especially strenuous notice, but what could one expect who was so foolish as to be born just before Christmas? In those times less devotion was expended in making children happy than became customary in later years, but I know that my own children always considered their birthdays as gala occasions. We made them presents; we planned little outings or parties, in accordance with the season of the year, and they were always permitted to choose what they should have for their birthday dinner.

"Ice cream and cake, watermelon and hash" was the bill of fare demanded by one of the small fry after mature deliberation, and great was his disappointment at being told that melons were not to be obtained in midwinter and that he must select a substitute. The June born child took it for granted that her annual celebration should be in the form of a picnic; the others chose as their fancy prompted. But the aim of the elders was always the same—to show the children how glad we were that they had come to us and to make the recognition take a form which would best please them.

I recalled another family where birthdays are made much of. This does not mean that handsome or costly presents are given or that much money is expended in the festivities, but there is something a little different—a dinner comprising items particularly liked by the one favored, a cake with candles, a few special friends asked in to help in the commemoration; or perhaps a meal at a restaurant may be the form the merrymaking takes, or a trip to the theater. In any case, the object is the same—to give pleasure to the one who honored the day by being born upon it.

"Sometimes I forget that it is my birthday until the day is past," a man told me once, and my heart ached for him, remembering that he had no family living, few near ties of any kind. Under the circumstances it was not to be marveled at that his natal day slipped his memory. But in a home, with parents and children, it seems incredible that such a state of affairs could exist.

What can it be to be a member of a household where one does not hear from every one in the establishment the greeting, "Many happy returns of the day!" as soon as one appears on the morning of her birthday, where there are not flowers and a gift or two awaiting one at the breakfast table, where particular attention has not been paid to one's preferences in the line of food, where one does not know that the morning post will bring greetings of good will from absent friends and relatives? I cannot quite visualize such a state of affairs—and I esteem myself happy and fortunate in such inability. It shows plainly that I have never known the heartache of an unrecognized birthday.

I wonder how many of the Cornerites make much of the birthdays of friends and family? How many of you recollect to send the word of greeting on the date that is in one way assuredly the most important that the recipient of the salutation has ever known?

"I can't remember other people's birthdays." I have heard said, more than once. "It is as much as I can do to recollect when my own is due, and my memory doesn't hold dates."

Then permit me to say that it would be a good thing for you to undertake some memory system which will enable you to recall them. If you cannot do this, try some plan by which you can bear in mind the days on which you can give pleasure by a word of remembrance.

"You never forget to write on important dates," I said once to a friend whose ready note of sympathy or of congratulation or good will was always at hand on the anniversary of a birth, of a great joy, or of a sorrow. "I don't see how you manage to carry them all in your mind."

"I don't carry them," she said, quietly. "I make an entry of them in the little devotional book I read every morning, and I glance ahead a day or two to keep track of any one to whom a word might bring happiness or the comfort of feeling remembered. It is really no trouble and it strikes me as being one of the easiest ways in the world of giving a little pleasure or solace."

Think the matter over for a moment. You know what it means to you to get such a note as this on the days which are much to you, although they may be nothing to any one else. Does it occur to you that you might bestow on others the same type of enjoyment you receive and are grateful to have come to you?

To carry the matter a little further, if you have never had the habit of celebrating family birthdays, begin it now and see if the result is not worth the trouble. I wish I could be present at the festival of some one whose birthday had always hitherto passed unnoticed when a feast was made of it for the first time. I would like to add it to the store of happy memories I already hold connected with my own birthdays and with those of others.

Like that, for instance, of the 5 year old who was taken to lunch at a restaurant on the day he entered upon his sixth year and was afterwards conveyed to the circus. It had throughout been a day packed with marvels, beginning with a new suit and going on with gifts like, until this climax was reached he had exhausted his small [illegible]. Yet when this crowning and [illegible] joy came he made a manful [illegible] grapple with the situation.

"O, mamma, when I fwink of all I have done for me today," he [illegible] mamma, when I fwink—when I [illegible] O, mamma, fwank you, fwank you."

That was all he could compass, but his mother it met and covered [illegible] completely.

One household I know where [illegible] ents are not confined to the [illegible] sessing the birthday but are [illegible] him upon the family and friends [illegible] never quite made up my mind [illegible] the custom, although I remember [illegible] touching in the case of a [illegible] bachelor who had no one [illegible] to him to recollect the date [illegible] and so had hit upon the [illegible] making little gifts on that day [illegible] whom he cherished most dearly [illegible] his friends. His habit remained [illegible] a family of fatherless children [illegible] to keep their dead father's [illegible] trying to do then the things [illegible] have liked them to do, by [illegible] to their widowed mother, [illegible] and deed to one another.

In the same line is the [illegible] always held on the birthday [illegible] dear one who has passed into [illegible] At that time the surviving [illegible] family meet to dine together [illegible] solemn occasion but to recall [illegible] words the beautiful life of [illegible] one, to speak not only of his [illegible] and his heavenly mindedness [illegible] love of fun, his jokes, his [illegible] to keep his memory sacred [illegible] in the hearts of those who [illegible] the thought of having him slip [illegible] daily recollection of him.

Why do we not follow this [illegible] frequently? We take it for [illegible] we should honor the birth [illegible] great men of the country who [illegible] Why should we let pass into [illegible] birthdays of those who are [illegible] our affections today as when [illegible] the earth beside us? How [illegible] much to be thankful for as [illegible] having belonged to us here [illegible] as they will later do in the [illegible] meeting?

Let us make much of birthdays [illegible] we love while they are here [illegible] passed out of sight. We are [illegible] that we do not always take [illegible] should to show those we love [illegible] they mean to us, and when they [illegible] we make their memory a [illegible] a comfort. Let us try to have [illegible] day a time of joyous [illegible] showing our thankfulness for [illegible] edness of possessing family [illegible] to cherish.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"I DO enjoy the Corner so much and only wish it had more space. No one can know the hearts it reaches and the good it does. I, too, am a crippled shut-in, and outside of my constant pain (no one can enjoy that!) I am so happy and thankful for so much that I manage to keep a song in my heart nearly all the time. Unless I get more crippled I could manage to send some messages of love and cheer to other shut-ins—if they would only write to me—a letter or a card or some good story marked in a book. These little personal touches mean so much. You might also send me some addresses. (You see I put it in the plural). I also have a big box of embroidery patterns I can no longer use since my hands are crippled. If those who want them would write me the kind they wish I could supply several, I know. I have changed the words of the dear old hymn to express what is in my heart: 'Lord, take my life and let it be useful to others and to thee.' FRANCES."

This letter is very touching. Those of us who are in full possession of health and strength sometimes feel we are doing well when we recollect the needs of others and try to supply them, but here is a cripple who is unable to use her fingers in needlework, who suffers much pain, and who is yet able to "keep a song in her heart" and to endeavor to bring joy into the lives of others as well. I am sure there will be other shut-ins who will be stimulated by her example, as well as a number who will desire to have the benefit of her letters and words of cheer. Her name will go on file and I trust that her gifts of patterns and the like may be sought by those who are invalided and shut in—not by those who are well and strong and who need brightening less than the sufferers.

Flowers, Magazines, and Scraps.

"I have wanted to write to the dear Corner for a long time, for it is grand, just grand! Sometimes we hear from some one who desires a change in the way the department is managed, but I don't really see how the 'by-laws' could be improved. I have several beautiful roses and would be glad to exchange cuttings from them for a pretty palm—the kind that grows tall and looks something like a little tree. I also have lots of good magazines any one may have who will pay postage on them. I have scraps which could be made into quilts any one is welcome to have, and I hope to help from time to time as I can. Here is a good recipe for glaced fruits and nuts. Have the fruits perfectly dry and free from dust. If you are going to glacé oranges separate the carpels without breaking the inner skin; they must be perfectly dry. White grapes must be cut so that each will have a short piece of stem attached to the fruit. Put the nuts where they can be easily handled and have them free from loose particles. Set a pound of sugar and three drops of lemon juice over the fire and stir until the sugar melts and is slightly straw colored. Take from the fire, hold the pan in the left hand, put each piece of nut or fruit to be glacéd on the candy dipper, and dip this into the syrup. Turn each piece at once into small paper cases. I can send other recipes for good candies. ELSIE."

This testimony to the merit of the Corner is gratifying, and I am glad to learn that some one thinks the "bylaws" could not be improved. I only wish that I could make the offer of the flounce of which you speak, but unfortunately one of these same "bylaws" precludes such an exchange as you wish to make. I trust your other offers may be accepted, and I am glad to have the candy recipe and the promise of more of the same kind. Good recipes are always welcome.

Abbreviation in Weather Report.

"Will you be so kind as to tell me what the letters 'tr' mean? They are in the weather report under the division entitled 'precipitation.' E. L."

I am afraid I do not study the weather report carefully, but on receipt of this inquiry I looked up the column and asked some one better versed in such matters than myself the meaning of the world. I was told that it was the abbreviation for "trifling" and indicated that the precipitation or rainfall has been of that character. If the explanation is wrong I shall be glad to be corrected.

Household Expense Budget.

"Some time ago I saw in the Corner a request by M. M. B. for a household expense budget. I come with my halting pen at the eleventh hour, hoping that my plan, as I work it, may prove more than a skeleton guide to M. M. B. and others in like dilemma. I have kept books nearly all my housekeeping life, a period of thirty years odd, and can truly say from experience that to succeed in financing the home the housekeeper must keep accounts. Get your book and pencil, place the month's allowance, $100, on one side, with the fixed expense items below, such as rent, $18; insurance, $4; light and fuel, $3—a total of $25. This amount, deducted from the $100, leaves you $75. This must be divided by four, a fourth to be used for each week's expenses. But in order to provide for the inevitable extra week which falls due every third month the sum of $1.65 must be set aside each week to meet that emergency. This leaves us $17.30 for the week's budget, under four heads, as follows: Table, which includes milk, poultry feed, and everything which supplies the table, help, and laundry, $3; personal, $4.50 [for yourself and three little ones]; incidentals, 80 cents; total, $17.50. The table is, of course, of first importance. I find that $2 a week for each grown person is a fair percentage and allows good substantial food. With the help of your poultry and eggs, with home baked bread, close personal attention to income and outgo, supervision, if not the actual work, and judicious buying, your table expenses should average less than the limit allows. A wise and necessary expense is for service and laundry, especially when the mother is both mistress and maid, with young children; it takes time and strength to look well to the ways of one's household. Under the item 'personal' come all clothing for mother and children, toilet accessories, and church and charity. With careful figuring and planning and long thinking before buying, $2 for self each week, amounting to $104 a year, should clothe you and cover your needs for all ordinary occasions. The children should cost proportionately less, according to their ages and to their mother's ability. Incidentals, as every housekeeper knows, include a multitude of items—cleaning, breakage, house supplies, and emergencies. The sum allotted is small, but a careful housekeeper can usually manage somehow, and a stated sum or regular allowance, intelligently planned, makes the business of housekeeping a pleasure. May I come again?

"M. M. H."

I am positive this outline and suggestion for a household budget will prove not only interesting but helpful to many housekeepers. I would much like to hear their opinion on the subject. As a matter of course the sum allotted for the flexible expenditures apart from rent, etc., must depend upon the place in which the family lives and the conditions surrounding them. In some towns living is much higher than in others, occasionally circumstances are such that a woman must entertain more, or must provide rather costly items for invalids in the family, or must dress in a more expensive manner in order to appear well with those in her social circle. The same circumstances may prevail with regard to her children. But even with the greatest care I confess that an allowance of $2 a week seems small to me for the food of each adult member of the household, although supplemented by the products of a poultry yard. When meat is taken at least once a day the cost of it mounts up, and what with milk, ice, vegetables, fruit, and the like, apart from absolute necessities in the line of groceries, it is difficult to keep down the allowance for a household of healthy, hearty eaters. More than that, growing children usually devour as much as adults, if not more. I shall hope to hear fully and clearly from a number of housekeepers on this matter. Meanwhile I extend my thanks to M. M. H. on behalf of the special Cornerite she wrote to help as well as for the rest of us, and I wish to assure her that when she "comes again" her welcome will be waiting for her.

Patterns for Embroidery.

"If any readers of the Corner have embroidery patterns to give away I would be glad to receive them. I would be pleased to have such pieces as pillow-slips, alphabets, dresser scarfs, and centerpieces; also any such materials as linen and thread. I could use any of them and they would be greatly appreciated. I like to do any kind of embroidery, yet I have not the means to buy the patterns and materials. J. G. B."

I do not forget that I have already printed an offer of patterns for embroidery, but I put in this appeal because of the request for materials as well as designs. I hope they may be forthcoming, from different sources, if no one person has both to give away. The address of J. G. B. shall be put on file.

How Doily Holders Are Made.

"Please tell me how doily holders are made, also where to get pasteboard tubing." MRS. M. A. M."

Several kinds of doily holders have come my way, some more ornamental than others. The simplest form consists of squares of pasteboard, a little larger than the doilies they are to hold, caught together by ribbons or cords, and opening like a loose leaf book. The doilies are laid between the sheets of pasteboard and thus kept smooth. If the small finger bowl doilies are the only ones to be thus used the squares need not be large, but for plate doilies bigger pieces will be required. More elaborate doily holders are covered with linen, either plain or decorated, or the outside covers may be of bristol board with a painted design. For pasteboard tubing one may go to a stationer's or to a music store, or to a picture shop, where unmounted photographs are sold. The pasteboard tubes are used for all these purposes and might also be found in the art department or the commercial stationery section of a well equipped department store.

Cake and Doughnuts.

"Will you please tell me how to eat properly a plain boiled potato? Here is a recipe for watermelon cake: For the white part are required two cups of sugar, half a cup of butter, one sweet milk, three and a half cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder, and whites of six eggs. For the dark are needed one cup of molasses, one cup of butter, half a cup of sour milk, one of four eggs, two cups of flour, one teaspoon of baking powder, and one cup of seeded raisins. When the dough is ready are mixed grease a pan with a tube in the middle. Put the red part of the dough around the tube, then in alternate spoons the red and white portions. This makes a delicious cake for those who like it. Another recipe which may be useful is for economy doughnuts. One cup of sugar, one cup of sour milk, four teaspoons of baking powder, a second rate or two teaspoons of soda, baking powder, salt, nutmeg enough to make a dough to roll out. This recipe makes eighteen doughnuts.

"An old correspondent."

The only method I know of testing a plain boiled potato is to cut it open, break it with a fork, put in butter, salt, pepper on it, and eat it as one would a potato cooked by baking. Is this your correspondent's meaning? I am at a loss to understand just what she wishes to know. I am glad to have the recipes for the watermelon cake and the doughnuts. The former would be a treat such an expensive luxury as watermelon where butter and eggs were so cheap. I would like to know what is considered cheap where it is to be purchased by the piece. I think that if one could not be had a second place could be taken by two small ones using a trifle of cochineal to color the dough. One word also I wish to say about using second rate prepared baking powder. I do not approve of using second rate preparations of any kind. There are several good brands on the market, put up by reliable manufacturers, and the housekeeper is much safer both as regards the healthfulness of her cooking and the health of her family when she uses only a product upon the purity of which she can depend as first rate. I should like to see the remedies sent out by druggists under the rules of the department. Many people take medicines of any kind, whether of external or internal use. The directions are not kind enough to send for a copy, which will appear a little later in the column.

"John's favorites." I am glad to have a generous supply of these.

CENTERPIECE IN CROSS STITCH

DRAWN BY E. J. BUCKMAN

THE REQUEST for centerpieces is so strong that I endeavor to give a design for an attractive one as often as I can. There is a great demand for large centerpieces, but with that demand comes the hint that elaborateness and very little or easy work are desired. With this suggestion in mind I have had the artist make a cross-stitch design with a thirty-inch centerpiece. A first glance at the design may cause you to think that it is a lot of work, but when you remember how simple and easy the cross stitch really is and how much it is used this year you will be eager to start the work.

You may have difficulty in tracing the design on fine linen on account of its numerous small squares. It would be advisable to use linen which is loosely woven; or, if you are extremely anxious to have the design on the fine linen, you can trace it on canvas which has a large mesh, and baste the canvas over the linen. Then embroider through both linen and canvas, taking care that your needle goes between the linen forming the mesh of the canvas and does not split up the dividing threads. This precaution is necessary for the following reason: When the work is completed the threads of the canvas can be pulled out one by one, and you will then have your design on the linen as you wished it.

The cross stitch is nothing more than its name implies: one stitch made to cross the other from corner to corner of a square, thus forming an X.

One-fourth of the design is given, but this much of it is enough to convince you that the whole design has the effect of stenciled grapes. The embroidery forms a background which brings out the design, while the grape leaves themselves are not embroidered, except for the veins running through the grape leaves.

Do not gasp when I suggest that you work the design on white linen and outline the cross stitches with black mercerized cotton or washable silk. The use of black and white is very strong in the furnishings of a room are considered. Can't you picture the artistic effect of a black bowl containing white grapes placed in the center of this black-and-white centerpiece?

The woman who does not care for the black-and-white combination can use linen on which to trace the design. In this instance the stitches can be worked in green of various shades. We suggest that leaf green be used for the veins and for a few rows of cross stitching near the leaves. As the worker approaches the grape design a lighter green can be used, so that when the grapes are reached the green will be the exact shade of the green visible in white grapes.

The greens, blues and purples of dark grapes can be effectively carried out on tan linen if an embroiderer wishes to use them. The best way to choose the shades is to study Mother Nature. It is not necessary for you to wait for the grape season to do this, for in many fruit shops grapes are sold all through the year. If you do not have one of these shops in your vicinity, get a book on the subject of grapes and in it read about the various colors of the fruit. By so doing you will make no mistake in your color effect, and your friends will all wonder at your knowledge of the artistic and your ability to arrange the colors so effectively.

There are various ways to work the edge of the centerpiece. Just at present tape is being used freely as a change from the buttonholed scallop. In some cases the tape is the same shade as the linen used for the centerpiece, and then again in others it is of a shade that is most prominent in the design itself. Your own preference in the matter can be your dictator; but let me implore you not to allow the color of the tape binding to clash with the colors used in working the design.

It is possible to buttonhole the edge of this centerpiece by drawing another line about one-quarter of an inch in from the line already given.

Should you desire to make the centerpiece several inches larger you can do so by outlining the single line shown and by applying cluny lace on the line or beyond it.

One Quarter of Design

Practical Luncheon Cloths

NOW that color embroidery has almost superseded for a time the all-white work, it is not surprising to see luncheon cloths in very amazing hues and designs. The most informal home luncheon table nowadays has its attractive cloth or set of runners, and for the impromptu luncheon table nothing is prettier than these simple embroidered pieces. The "stole" effect in luncheon cloths is no longer new, but there are many designs and stitches applied to this very practical piece. One of these combination runners and centerpiece cloths has a bright design of old-fashioned flowers set in hexagons of black outline. Another brand-new idea in luncheon linen is to have the design exactly match that of the luncheon china. This would not always be possible, but in a simple blue-and-white pattern the china might easily be copied by a deft-fingered needlewoman. There are some new crash cloths to throw over the luncheon table between meals. They suggest bungalows and seaside cottages, and remind one that it is not too early to begin to prepare pretty fixings for the other home by shore or mountain.

Black Touches on Petticoats

THE craze for black and white has even entered the lingerie realm. While this at first seems ridiculous, a glance at the petticoats shown will convince you that the combination is just as charming on undergarments as it is on gowns, suits and hats.

A black chantilly lace flounce is most effective on a pettiskirt of white crepe de chine. If you already possess a white crepe de chine petticoat and wish to surprise it, and at the same time please yourself with a change, buy several yards of chantilly lace, or you might use black shadow lace for a deep flounce. A rosette of white baby ribbon placed at either side of the petticoat would add to its charm. The line of joining can be neatly hidden by a bias band of crepe de chine or by a band of white ribbon. Another means of concealing the line is to have the flounce joined to the petticoat with a gathered heading.

Bordered corded silk is used to introduce the black note on another model, the border being formed by six rows of black stripes. The upper section of the petticoat is of white silk jersey. Here is a suggestion for using two remnants of material, and if you fail to find a border containing black and white you have the liberty of selecting one with another color combination.

Embroidery stitches are employed to add the black note on a petticoat of pussy-willow taffeta. Close examination of this skirt reveals intricate details which give it beauty. The foundation of the flounce is pleated silk; over this is laid a flounce of white net, the design of which is embroidered in black. To the bottom of the white net is attached a scant ruffle of white shadow lace. Between the scallops of this lace black organdie is visible.

To petticoats of nainsook and fine muslin the black touches can be added, for by using washable silk floss or mercerized cotton the black will stand the soapsuds just as bravely as the petticoat itself.

When making your new petticoats bear in mind the fact that they must be wider than they have been for some time. This extra fullness may be displeasing to some women, but they should rejoice over the fact that the increased width of the outer skirt does not call for such voluminous and really ugly underskirts as were worn in the days when skirts measured yards and yards around the bottom. It is true that some of the models were pretty, but this is difficult to believe after reading in the books depicting old-fashioned styles that in order to make the petticoat a framework to support the dress skirt it had to be lined with horse hair. In some instances a straw-plait was inserted in the hem of the petticoat to make the skirt "stand out," and as many petticoats were worn as possible. The underclothing of the lady of fashion living about 1856 consisted of long drawers trimmed with lace, a flannel petticoat, an under petticoat, a petticoat wadded to the knees and stiffened in the upper part with whalebones inserted closely together, a white starched petticoat with many stiffly starched flounces, and two muslin petticoats. Imagine the weight and discomfort of such a quantity of material!

After knowing all this you will greet with joy the idea of duplicating the petticoats shown, even though you are advised to add to each a little somber touch.

Bedroom Lingerie

BLACK and white have taken the world of interior decoration by storm. And the combination isn't only a fad; it promises to last, now that we have discovered how much character to articles and rooms can be given by this color effect. Even the bedroom has not been spared—or it has been honored, whichever way you look at it—with the attention of black and white, and we find black rugs on white floors, and white beds and furniture and woodwork, and sometimes black curtains; and now there have been introduced the most charming lingerie sets for the bed, dressing table, dresser and chiffonier, the set sometimes including from one to half a dozen boudoir pillows. That part of the lingerie used for the bed includes a spread, bolster slip and pillows or shams. If a bolster roll is used, then only the bolster throw is needed, doing away with the necessity for the bolster slip and shams.

The black-and-white lingerie bedroom set may be embroidered in any design that you would use for the all-white embroidery set. The material used is rather heavy white linen. The design is worked in black mercerised cotton. It must be very carefully worked on the wrong side, few, if any, connecting threads being used when passing from one design to another. When laundered such black threads are likely to show through the white linen and spoil entirely the clear-cut effect that is necessary in this fashionable decoration of black and white now so popular.

If you do not wish to use black curtains at the window, lawn curtains with black figures are good substitutes. If shades are used with the curtains, they should be either all black or white. A black-and-white carpet may be used instead of all-white or all-black. Black carpet with white rugs, or vice versa, is also effective. The boudoir pillows should be of white embroidered in black. They should not, however, be placed over black pillows, as in the case of pink or blue pillows. White pillows must be used for the purpose or the pillow slips will look soiled. A black-and-white room would prove pleasing to a man.

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

In the Guest Room

"Tom and I started housekeeping we decided to buy very little furniture, so that we could have the best of the best lines and the best choice. Consequently, we went without a guest room. One day Tom's mother visited us and said if I should like to have the old-fashioned bed which she had used in her attic. Of course, I said 'yes.' Before having the bed sent to my mother-in-law went to a furniture store, where it was painted so that it looked like new mahogany bed. Then I started in our guest room, continuing to furnish as funds were low. I bought and shop and bought a bed and an old mirror with mahogany frame. For a table I possessed the necessary furniture to make the room spare in appearance. Over above the washstand, which was to be a shelf, had a flat top. This, which was to be a table, I draped old-rose heavy linen, using the material in box-plaits. The color because a delicate vine ran through the paper on the wall. I made a curtain of the linen to go along the sides of the bed. As yet I had no chair for the room, so I brought a shirtwaist box into it and covered it with old-rose linen, too. Three cushions, harmonizing with the color of the covering, transformed the box into a cozy and attractive seat. I am now busily engaged making pink candle shades for the candles which grace the dressing table. A small rag carpet rug is the only covering on the floor, but as the boards are well varnished and the room is really small the rug seems to be quite sufficient. The room can boast of but one window. This, however, looks westward, and the dainty dotted swiss curtain draped over it would make any guest forget that there were not two or more windows in the room.

Bits of Daintiness

FOR the young girl's room or the guest room, where simplicity with daintiness is the keynote, there are several new ideas for coverings for dresser and bed that might easily be copied by the clever fingers of the young girl herself. If she has made for herself, as so many girls have, a pair of stenciled scrim curtains, she can repeat the design on runners of unbleached muslin for bureau and dressing table. In measuring for these runners she should allow an extra three inches on all sides, which is to serve as a hem to be turned back on the right side after a piece of coarse net has been basted over the runner within five inches of the edge. The net softens the crude effect of the stencil on the muslin and gives the runner a dainty appearance.

She may repeat the process for the bedspread, allowing for a deeper hem in this case. For the girl who has not the time or inclination for stenciling, there are beautiful double-bordered scrims that come forty inches wide for as low as 20 cents a yard. Strips of these pretty rose borders in pink, blue or yellow form centers to which are added the imitation filet insertions and edgings, which are so inexpensive, to make the scarfs for bureau and dressing table. Dainty pillows, pincushions and all the pretty accessories of a girl's room may be made from the scraps of rose-bordered scrim left from her curtains, while the bedspread in this case should be made from a whole width of the bordered scrim, to which, if it is necessary to have the covering wider, can be added a single border with the filet lace to join the two together. A room decorated in such a manner would be a veritable bower, dainty enough to meet the most fastidious tastes.

Long Ago Fashions Reign To-day

Quaintness Personified

Funny, Charming Little Ruffles Velvet-Edged

Fashions that are now called new
Have been worn by more than you;
Elder times had worn the same,
Though the new ones get the name–

QUOTH Middleton, and surely this season's fashions prove the truth of the jingle. Modistes are unusually frank lately in confiding to us the source of their inspirations. Indeed, though, so little have they done to modernize the present fashions worn by belles of long ago, that most of us are able to recognize their historic semblance without the telling. With a touch here and a small twirk there the dear old fashions are introduced, each by a different fashionable modiste, not as the modiste's creation, but as her protege, with which second-handed relationship the modiste seems well content. And well may these sponsors sigh with satisfaction, for surely it is impossible to create more beautiful lines than are seen in some of the very old frocks. It is as though the modern designer of wearing apparel had said, "We and our ancestors of the profession have given to the world all the lines in apparel that can be called beautiful, and now we will bring before your modern eyes the modes of the past, that you of the present may appreciate the quantity, wonder and beauty of the work of ourselves and professional ancestors from the beginning of the history of fashion." Surely no other plan could have promised so rich a season of fashions as that of throwing the treasure chests of the ages open for our individual selection!

"Charm," that inevitable adjective, fairly radiates from the quaint seersucker taffeta frock with its high waist line and lace petticoat, and in placing it we hover between those rich fashion seasons of 1824 and 1830. The high waist line, which will be popular for slender figures during the spring and summer, is seen in this model, but the overlapping scant pouch of the bodice effectually conceals any joining of the bodice and skirt. The short, puffed elbow sleeve is delightful, and though only the slender figure will look well in this pretty frock, the arms must be at least slightly plump or the sleeve must be slightly longer. Each sleeve is tied with a band of black velvet ribbon, the latter an indispensable trimming these days. Lovely indeed is the drop shoulder, modestly filled in with a narrow bit of shirred white net. The net shirring may be deeper if you prefer a neck not so open. The long but full taffeta overskirt is but sparsely gathered at the front line, and two ruffles of lace form the pretty petticoat, which hangs three-quarters of a foot below.

Hardly so picturesque is the utility frock with "funny little ru velvet edged. Yet its deficiency in this respect is probably due fact that the chief sources of its inspiration date no further back 1901 and 1905. The designer who sponsored this frock had courage, generated no doubt because of her certainty that the of line would appeal to the conservative woman and afford a relief from the puffs and frills of contemporary styles dur "revival" season. A bit of the designer's artistic temperament out, however, in the soft colonial fichu and the 1860 ruffles. may be fashioned in any soft silk, preferably foulard, as in the of the model shown. The scant waist comes softly down to the waist line, where it is belted by a very narrow 1901 black measuring not over two and a half inches in width. The fortable sleeves are just sleeves, with neither distortion nor unless one applies the latter to the "pleasant" little ruffles at
